GERMAN WARSHIP OF NOVEL DESIGN

Requirements for 10,000-Ton Ship Which is Expected Promise Strange Result.

LONDON, England, Jan. 4 Canadian Press).—The Daily News' naval correspondent says: The opposition of the Socialist Party having been overcome, there is no longer any doubt that a new ship of 10,000 tons will be laid down immediately by Germany to replace the obsolete battleship Braunschweig.

This ship is often referred to erroneously as an armored cruiser. Under the terms of the Peace Treaty, Germany is not permitted to build cruisers exceeding 6,000 metric tons in displacement, nor battleships of more than 10,000 tons.

It may be assumed, therefore, that the new ship should be classed as a small battleship for coast defence. No doubt her speed will be higher than the nominal 18 knots of the Braunschweig, but it certainly will not approach that of contemporary 10,000 ton cruisers, ranging from 31.5 to 36 knots.

Diesel engines have been selected as the method of propulsion. The ship will be unusually broad of beam, with comparatively light draught—doubtless with a view to possible inshore operations in the shallow waters of the Baltic. This suggests that her machinery will have to be arranged on a novel plan, in view of the amount of head room required for an ordinary Diesel installation.

Various armaments have been proposed for this singularly original design. The most plausible includes six 11-inch guns as its main feature. It is by no means out of the question for heavier guns than this to be mounted. But the question of weights is bound to enter into the matter.

The Krupp 12 and 14-inch pieces weigh 47 and 75 tons respectively, against only 36 tons for the 11-inch. It would not be possible therefore to carry so many of the bigger guns on a displacement of 10,000 tons, and the consequent reduction in volume of fire is unlikely to be adopted.

In other directions every possible expedient is being adopted to save weight. A very high grade of steel is being used throughout. Electric welding is to take the place of riveting, with a resultant saving in weight officially stated at between 400 and 500 tons.

The Weather

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—The depression which was over the south-west states yesterday now covers the Mississippi Valley and is increasing in intensity, while pressure is high and the weather cold over the eastern and western portions of the Dominion.

Forecasts.

Lower Lakes—Strong south-easterly winds and gales with rain to-night and part of Sunday, becoming colder, with snowflurries Sunday night.

Georgian Bay—Strong winds or gales from south-east, with snow or part rain to-night and Sunday; colder Sunday night.

Northern Ontario—Strong winds with snow to-night and Sunday.

Superior—Snow in most districts today and part of Sunday, with increasing winds.

Manitoba—Fair and cold to-day and Sunday.

Saskatchewan and Alberta — Fair to-day and Sunday; stationary or slightly higher temperature.

An easy solution for dessert for the elaborate luncheon. Place in a sherbet glass a mound of vanilla ice cream. Add chopped nuts, finely chopped fresh fruits and maraschino cherries. Top with whipped cream in the center of which is a whole cherry.

COD LIVER MEAL GIVES EXTRA KICK

Improves Health and Laying Qualities of the Flock.

Cod liver meal made from fresh livers of the codfish after some of the oil has been extracted has proved to be of great value to the poultry industry. Added to a good poultry mash it has the same effect as direct sunlight insuring full mineral nutrition twelve months of the year. The birds are healthier, grow bigger and stronger frames, lay more uniformly and produce eggs that contain greater nourishment.

In correcting mineral nutrition cod liver meal practically eliminates the common mineral deficiency troubles such as poor soft bones, paralysis and thin weak shelled eggs. It makes possible the raising of good chicks at any time of the year and in any kind of weather.

Helps Purify the Blood.

While cod liver meal is fairly rich in Vitamin D, that is not its most valuable property. Cod liver meal in common with all the other liver tissues has the property of very markedly improving the condition of the blood. You are probably familiar with the fact that calves liver costs from three to four times as much today as it did five years ago, because the doctors are recommending the use of it in the case of anaemia or as a regular part of the diet to keep the blood in the very best condition.

Birds receiving cod liver meal in their ration have a large proportion of red corpuscles in the blood. There is a distinct difference in the appearance and health of the birds. They have the bright red comb that you like to see.

Because of the better condition of the blood the digestion of the remainder of the feed is more thorough and more complete. Birds keep in better flesh and in better feather. They lay eggs free from blood clots. Cod liver meal gives them greater resistance to the more common poultry troubles such as bleeding combs, colds, roup, chicken pox, egg paralysis and the like.

In addition to keeping the blood in good condition and correcting mineral nutrition, Cod liver meal provides an abundance of excellent liver material. The liver is ordinarily quite heavily taxed and the first organ to break down. Cod liver meal supplies just what the birds need to keep this organ healthy.

BABIES' HOTEL VERY HOMELIKE

English Hotel for Babies Specializes in Achieving Cosy Appearance.

COSY LOOKING PLACE

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 5.—(Canadian Press.)—An interesting description of a hotel for babies at Tadworth, Surrey, is given by a special correspondent of the Daily News and Westminster Gazette. He says: "I made my first acquaintance this afternoon with one of the hotels where parents from abroad who are travelling in England, or English parents travelling abroad, can leave their babies This hotel has no formidable portico outside with a porty commissionaire on duty. It is a cosy looking place overlooking Tadworth Common, with a garden and a short drive and Christmassy-looking fir trees.

"A bright-eyed woman, wearing a green overall and looking little more than a girl, opened the door to me. She is the nurse in charge, Miss Barclay, and in spite of her youthful looks, she has considerable experience in looking after children and is a trained infants' nurse.

The first little resident I met was a fair-haired girl, one year old. Her mother is travelling in India, and Jean has been with Miss Barclay since she was three weeks old. Each of the children has a separate room, and Jean's furniture consists of a large cot and play-pen, and dozens of toys. In an adjoining room twin baby girls were taking an afternoon nap. They are three months old and taking a convalescent holiday.

"'We try to give as homey an atmosphere as possible,' Miss Barclay explained to me. 'Among the babies I have looked after are children of actresses who are on tour'."

FACTORY PRINTS FAKE PASSPORTS

Bogus Papers Allow Holders To Pass Ferry Docks at Detroit.

FORGER HELD.

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—Evidence of an alleged factory for faking immigration passports, supposed to pass their owners at the ferry docks in Detroit, was revealed yesterday in Sandwich Police Court, when William Schramek, former Sandwich Police Court interpreter, was committed for trial on charges of obtaining money on false pretenses, and a further charge of forgery.

Schramek is alleged to have sold a bogus passport to Mrs. Antonia Drukowsky, which was purported to allow her into the United States, "at will." He is alleged to have received $75 for the document.

The woman was arrested the first time she attempted to enter the United States.

BROCK STREET RINK OPENS TO-NIGHT

Band of Ten Pieces, Under Captain Peryer To Give Up-to-Date Program.

Brock street rink opens to-night for skating, which is the latest it has opened any season since the rink was built.

There is however an extra fine sheet of ice for to-night, and there will be a band of ten pieces from the 57th Regiment, under the direction of Captain Peryer, and up-to-date music will be played for the skaters.

There is every convenience at Brock Street Rink, warm dressing rooms, and a fine restaurant under the charge of Mr. Charles Quinlan, where soft drinks, hot dogs and coffee may be had.

Skating to-night is from eight o'clock until ten. Other Saturday nights, when there is zero weather, the skating will probably be from eight until ten-thirty.

GUS SONNENBERG IS NEW CHAMPION

Football Player Wins Mat Title When "Strangler" Lewis Disqualified.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—Wrestling to-day had a new champion, "Dynamite" Gus Sonnenberg, the former Dartmouth football player.

Sonnenberg won the heavyweight mat title when Ed. "Strangler" Lewis was disqualified in the match here last night. Sonnenberg had taken the first fall with his famous "flying tackle" in 29 minutes 46 seconds, and when they returned to the ring, he tried to drop the champion again with the same tactics.

The rugged football player, who continued his gridiron career with the Providence Steamrollers, butted Lewis seven times in rapid succession, forcing the champion to fall or crawl outside of the ropes to escape punishment.

Each time he sought safety outside, he was ordered to return by Referee Leon Durbank. That official gave Lewis ample warning, and, after the seventh butt, counted him out of his title, which he turned over to Sonnenberg, to the great delight of the 20,000 spectators who filled the spacious Boston Garden to the last seat.

PRIMER GRADE STARTS MONDAY

Kindergarten and Kindergarten Primary Will Not Return Until Later.

TEACHERS ASSIST.

On Monday, January 7, the pupils of the Primer Grade, Books I., II., III., and IV., will return to school.

The only classes that will not return on the above date are the Kindergarten and Kindergarten Primary Classes. These are half-day classes, and the Board has considered it advisable to defer their return to school until Monday, January 21.

In the interval the Kindergarten teachers will assist in the necessary supply work.

WIDE RANGE IN PRICE OF EGGS

Potatoes and Carrots Are Priced At Dollar a Bag.

BUTTER 45 TO 48.

The women of the basket section of the farmers' market rubbed cold fingers this morning, but the men around the stove enjoyed a fine back-warming as they formed a solid ring around it.

Butter was priced from 45 to 48 cents a pound this morning and eggs had quite a wide range, from 40 to 60 cents, registering a 20 cents spread, which is quite unusual. Difference in size, color and quality accounted for the variation. Chickens were 33 to 35 cents a pound, and were quite scarce.

On the open market, pork was quoted at 15 and 17 and 16 and 18 cents a pound, in front and hind sections. Potatoes and carrots were $1 a bag and apples were priced from 30 to 60 cents a peck, in varying quality.

Amber honey was 50 cents in five-pound pails and clover honey 60 cents. Halibut was 20 cents a pound, the same price as salmon trout, and smelts were 23 cents a pound.

Brussels sprouts were 10 cents a quart.

Wood was $8 to $12 a load.

PLAN TO ATTEND POULTRY EXHIBITION

This Fine Show Deserves a Splendid Attendance From Both City and County.

The directors of the Peterborough Poultry Show are endeavoring this year to secure the co-operation of residents in the city and in the surrounding district by their attendance at the show, which is to be held in the Market Hall, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, January 8th, 9th and 10th.

The Poultry Show itself is without doubt one of the finest in Central Ontario, and it rivals some of the very largest shows in the Province.

However, with such a show, attendance until last year has not been what the show deserves, and if it is to make progress, attendance is necessary.

Any citizen who attends the show is assured of a most interesting exhibit, educational as well.

The directors trust in appreciation of their efforts to make the Poultry Show an event comparable in importance to other events held in the city that the public will turn out in large numbers this year.

St. John's Men's Club Make Arrangements For Big Night

At a sub-committee meeting of St. John's Men's Club held last night arrangements were made for booster night, next Monday, when every member is expected to come and bring a friend, lady or gentleman. Music, games and refreshments will be put on. A deputation then waited on the Womens Friendly Bible Class, who undertook to do the catering for the mens supper Feb. 11, when about 150 are expected to be present.

Aged Trapper Found Missing From Shack

CHAPLEAU, Jan. 5. (Canadian Press.) — When Charlie McGowan, an aged trapper and one time fire ranger, failed to keep his promise to spend the Christmas holidays with his family at Franz, they became alarmed, and his son-in-law, P. Rouscy, set out for his lonely cabin on the shores of the Magpie River, situated some ten miles from the nearest railroad.

The shack was found to be unoccupied, a single fox pelt and all the provisions being frozen solid, seemed to indicate that it had been tenantless for some time.

Roussy returned at once to Franz, and after obtaining assistance and provisions, again left for the scene in the hopes of finding some trace of the missing man.

PRESIDENT IS RE-ELECTED

Caledonian Club Holds Annual Election of Officers For 1929.

BURNS' NIGHT PLANNED.

The Peterborough Caledonian Club held its annual business meeting in the W.O.W. Hall last night. Robert Veitch occupied the chair. A large attendance of members was present to hear the reports for the year 1928, and for the election of officers for the coming year. The auditors' report showed the club to be in good financial standing.

After the usual business was transacted the election of officers took place, and the following were elected:

Hon. President—Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.
Past President—George Low.
President—Robert Veitch.
Vice-President—Robert Gilmour.
Secretary-Treasurer—James Miller.
Recording Secretary—Ian McPhate.
Executive—D. Anderson, W. May, W. Petrie, J. Wyllie, and J. McPhate.
Ladies' Executive—Mrs. A. Jackson and Mrs. Moffatt.
Sick Visiting Committee—Mrs. McPhate and Mrs. G. Nimmons and Messrs. Hendry and Rae.

These officers were duly installed in their respective offices by Robert Hendry.

Robert Veitch, again re-elected to the chair, voiced his appreciation of the honor extended to him by the members, and hoped 1929 would be the banner year in the history of the club. He also thanked the retiring officers for the faithful service and co-operation which they had given him in the past year.

Basket Social.

On Friday next, Jan. 11th, the sports committee will hold a basket social, and it is hoped that there will be a record attendance of the members present on this occasion. This committee deserves the hearty support of the members for the service which they render in providing amusement and entertainment for the club.

On January 25th, the annual Burns' supper will be held. The Executive is already making arrangements for this important event, and it is hoped that a large number of Scots and others interested will arrange to attend on this occasion.

Sir Lomer Gouin To Become Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec.

QUEBEC, Jan. 5. Canadian Press.—Sir Lomer Gouin will take the oath as Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Quebec, on January 10, it was officially announced yesterday. The ceremony will be held in the Chamber of the Legislative Council at 2.15. Sir Francois Lemieux, judge in chief of the Superior Court, will administer the oath to the new Lieutenant-Governor.

OBITUARY

MRS. RICHARD WHALON

The death of Lilla Pearl Whalon, beloved wife of Richard Whalon, occurred yesterday afternoon, after a long illness of fourteen months, at the family residence, 485 Donegal St.

Mrs. Whalon was born in England, and she had not been long in Canada.

The funeral service was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence at 485 Donegal street, and the interment took place in the Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. D. N. McCAMUS.

After an illness of several months the death occurred of Kate Jamieson, wife of Rev. D. N. McCamus at their residence, 693 Queens Avenue, London, Ont., Dec. 24th, 1928. Interment took place in Woodlawn cemetery Wednesday, Dec. 26th.

Several years ago Rev. Mr. McCamus was a member of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the former Methodist church and served on several pastorates near here.

Mrs. McCamus was much beloved.

ISAAC NEWTON ACKERMAN.

The death occurred suddenly yesterday morning of Isaac Newton Ackerman, in his seventy-fifth year, at his home in Norwood. Mr. Ackerman was stricken very suddenly of heart trouble.

The deceased was born in Prince Edward County, and he moved to Norwood while a boy of eight years of age, and has lived there ever since. He was well-known throughout the whole of Central and Eastern Ontario, both for his upright character and broad views on social and political problems. He was for years in business as a hardware and harness merchant, but for the past thirty years has lived in retirement. He was an elder in the Presbyterian Church at Norwood, a Liberal in politics and a member of the Order of Oddfellows.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, formerly Mary Finlay, daughter of the late John Finlay, who was a former member of Parliament for East Peterborough, and B. F. Ackerman of this city, his only brother.

The funeral service will be conducted at the family residence, Norwood, to-morrow afternoon at two o'clock, and interment will be in the Norwood Cemetery.

REAL SUCCESS IS DESCRIBED

James Dutton Delivers Fine Address at Meeting of Friday Night Club.

GOOD WILL NECESSARY.

The Friday Night Supper Club of the Y.M.C.A. got off to a good start for the new year last night. About forty of the boys turned out to hear James Dutton give an unusually interesting address on the "Elements of Success." Mr. Dutton's speech was full of interesting facts and the boys were greatly pleased with it. "The desire to succeed is inherent in every man. Everybody dreams of the time when they will be a success. There are two kinds of success,—the one that only seems like success and real success. We are all after real success. A good start means a lot on the road to success, just the same as a good start is necessary in a race. The constitution of success is not as we think. Many people think because of certain handicaps they will not succeed. They think that to succeed one should have a father who is well off. A real classical education is not necessary to be a success. Many men start with absolutely nothing but brains and the ability to work and they make life all that is worth while," said Mr. Dutton.

Must Have Goodwill.

"An important factor to make a success is to obtain the goodwill of your fellows. One should strive to win and maintain the goodwill. Industry is an important factor. If you wish to succeed at any trade or profession you must work hard. The work of to-day is not like the work of a few decades ago. People are getting away from laborious work. Not long ago men worked twelve and fourteen hours a day at what was drudgery and then didn't earn a good living. But there is a great change now, and men are not compelled to work as they used to. Modern methods and machines did away with most of this but it is still the man who is able to apply himself who produces the best results. Diligence also pays good investments. One must also have integrity to succeed.

"A man has to be true to his convictions. Courage is another important factor. There are two kinds of courage—moral and physical. Everybody admires physical courage. In the game of life moral courage plays an important part. This courage is necessary in adventures in business." In closing, Mr. Dutton stressed the importance of religion, which plays an important part.

"Bim" Sturgeon moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Dutton, which was seconded by Grant Gillespie.

The membership campaign is coming along fine. The boys are all behind it and pushing the campaign as hard as they can. Hec McLeod's team has been leading right along, but the other teams are not going to let him win without a say in the matter. The standings of the teams is as follows:

	Points.
Hec McLeod's	41
Bob Allin's	32
Crawf Hall's	29
Bruce Fraser's	29
Bill Sangster's	28

MOTORS ARE RUNNING AT THEIR BEST

Big Monoplane Continues To Hover Close To Its Home Port.

ALL RECORDS BROKEN.

Question Mark Is Going Strong In Its Endurance Test

METROPOLITAN AIRPORT, LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—Man and machine were pitted against time and gravity to-day as the army monoplane, Question Mark continued on its seventh day of flight.

Apparently in perfect condition, the plane ended its 144th hour in the air at 7.26 a.m. Observers reported it had consumed a minimum of gasoline during the night, indicating that the motors were performing at their best. This was said to mean that the time when the great mechanical bird gives way under the strain is "remote."

Reports on the condition of the five men were that they were as fit as the plane, except that they had been deafened by the constant roar of the motors. They previously had declared that the longer they remained up, the better they liked it.

All memories of the trying weekend, during which they had to contend against missing spark plugs, cold, difficult refuelling situations and lack of sleep, seemed to have vanished.

The big monoplane continued to hover close to its home port, however, in order to keep the records it has made. The plane must land at the scene of the take-off in order to have the records officially accepted.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—Having long since passed all official and unofficial endurance flight times written in aviation, the United States army monoplane Question Mark approached the seventh day of flying.

The great Fokker yesterday left the cautious course followed for 18 hours and was touring the San Fernando Valley region in sweeping circles, bound for some more audacious mark.

For the first time since the monoplane took off here Tuesday morning, the motors began to show appreciable strain last night.

Missing cylinders in the three motors with which the plane is powered, threatened to force the plane to earth, and once brought from Major Card Spatz, commander of the fleet, an order for all members of the crew to take their posts and prepare for the final glide to the airport.

For more than seven hours the ship pare for the final glide to the airport, within gliding distance of the field, prepared for a forced landing, but shortly after 1 p.m., the ailing engines apparently were readjusted, for the Question Mark took on a heavy load of gasoline in mid-air and began a more courageous flight which took in the entire San Fernando Valley.

Crises Early in Week.

Hours rolled by uneventfully for the "Question Mark" to-day, and the three motors were still turning over smoothly, the seventh day.

The first crisis was caused earlier last week by combined fog, clouds, bad weather and threatened fuel shortage.

The Question Mark, which took off from this airport at 7.26 a.m., New Year's day, claimed the last aircraft endurance record yesterday morning when it soared past the estimated 118 hours of continuous flight made by the ill-fated Dixmude, lost in the Mediterranean.

Every endurance and distance flight record known to man and bird perched on the wide wings of the tri-motored Fokker as she droned onward to answer the question put to her by the army air corps—How long can an airplane stay in the air?

Beggar With a Secretary-Valet Found Mulcting a Living In Subway Sidings

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Twenty-three-year-old Samuel Ansell of Revere, Mass., is no longer with us.

Ansell, who maintained a secretary-valet and who is the proprietor of his own private pool hall in the basement of his suburban, retreat in Revere, was the twitching, twisting, shambling figure who so pathetically passed through the subways of Manhattan, urging passersby to purchase one of his 10-cent knives.

The probation officer who investigated Ansell's case found that he had deposited something over $500 a month for three months in various banks; that he had boasted of owning $40,000 worth of first mortgages.

Accordingly Magistrate Brodsky had a brief interview, with Ansell and gave him his choice of putting up a $1,000 bond to refrain from mulcting a living from subway riders in New York and leaving town or going to the hoosegow for a six months' rest. Ansell put up the bond.

UNITED STATES. DELEGATES ARE IN CAPITAL FOR BIG CONFERENCE

Anti-Smuggling Discussion Between Countries Opens in Ottawa On Tuesday.

OFFER SUGGESTIONS.

Personnel of Both Parties to Meeting is Purely Departmental, Attitude Not Disclosed.

OTTAWA, Ont., January 7 (Canadian Press).—The United States delegation to the anti-smuggling conference, headed by Admiral F. C. Billard, arrived in Ottawa at noon to-day. Their program for their first day in the Canadian Capital was not a heavy one. The real work of the conference will not begin until to-morrow morning, and in the meantime the United States delegates will confer with Hon. William Phillips, United States Minister to Ottawa, and prepare their own angle for presentation during the coming days of discussion.

In the delegation with Admiral Billard were Dr. J. M. Durand, Commissioner of Prohibition, E. W. Camp, Commissioner of Customs, F. C. DeWolf, of the State Department, F. J. Murphy, Treasury Department, and H. J. Ansleinger, liason officer between the State and Treasury Departments.

During the conferences this group will be reinforced by United States representatives in Ottawa, including F. L. Mayor, Counsellor of the American Legation, Irving N. Linnell, United States Consul-General, and Lynn W. Meekins, United States Trade Commissioner.

The importance of the conferences in the eyes of the American press was indicated by the arrival with the delegates of a large number of newspapermen from the Eastern States.

The opening sessions will be held to-morrow in the offices of the Department of National Revenue There the suggestions brought by the United States representatives for Canadian co-operation in liquor smuggling

EX-PREMIER DIES.

HON. GEORGE H. MURRAY
Former Premier of Nova Scotia, who died last night at his residence in Montreal.

DR. BLAGRAVE IS HONORED

Local Minister Will Deliver Lectures at Berkeley Divinity School at New Haven.

FIRST CANADIAN.

It was announced in St. John's Church on Sunday that a signal honor had come to the Rev. Dr. Blagrave in his being invited to give the annual special course of lectures in Berkeley Divinity School at New Haven, Connecticut, during the months of February, March and April of this year. Annually, it has been the practice to invite an English scholar to give these lectures and among those who have done so in recent years have been Dr. Percy Dearmer of King's College, London; Canon T. W. Pyen of Southwark Cathedral; Dr. G. A. Studdart Kennedy, Canon F. W. Dwelly, of Liverpool Cathedral; the Rev. A. S. Duncan-Jones, of St. Paul's, Knightsbridge, and the Rev. Canon Cyril E. Hudson, Director of Religious Education, of St. Alban's.

Dr. Blagrave is the first Canadian to be invited to give this series of lectures. It is, therefore, the greater honor to himself, to St. John's and to the church in Canada. He is a graduate of McGill University; has received his Doctor of Divinity degree from the Board of the Province of Canada by nomination and from Trinity University. He was rector of Christ Church, Belleville and St. Mark's Church, Parkdale, Toronto, before coming to Peterborough in 1921;

The Rev. A. E. Minchin, B.A., late of St. George's College, Prince Albert, Sask., has been secured as "Locum Tenens" for St. John's during the absence of the vicar. Mr. Minchin, with his wife and two children, will take up residence in the rectory on the first of February.

The Weather

The weather conditions during the past few days have been out of the ordinary. The fair weather of the early portion of Saturday was succeeded in the evening by rain. This rain was no gentle shower, but a downpour which continued far into the night. The total was 1.30. If this precipitation had been in the form of snow (which would be the natural thing in mid-winter) we would have had between 13 and 14 inches of snow on the ground this morning instead of a glare of treacherous and unsafe ice. The rain was succeeded by a gale which howled and whistled in a thoroughly orthodox manner. The temperature at one time rose to 42 degrees, and did not descend below 10 degrees above.—W. P.

Death Of Archbishop Of Milan, Cardinal Tosi Creates Unprecedented Situation In Sacred College

ROME, January 7 (Canadian Press). — An unprecedented situation in the Sacred College was created to-day by the death of Cardinal Tosi, Archbishop of Milan. For the first time since the so-called Babylonian captivity (when the Popes lived at Avignon in the 14th century) the Italian Cardianls are in a minority of four.

There are now 29 Italian Cardinals, 33 others, and 8 vacancies. This makes it practically certain that the Pope will bestow several red hats at the Spring Consistory.

Pope Pius was greatly touched at the Archbishop's death. He was a warm personal friend who succeeded the Pope in the Lombard Diocese, and he showed particular affection when he brought a Milan pilgrimage to Rome to usher in the Pontiff's Sacerdotal jubilee year. Cardinal Tosi at that time was apparently in good health. He was stricken shortly after his return to his diocese.

GIRL WAS IN ST. THOMAS WHEN PRISONER ARRIVED DID NOT TELL HER WHERE HE INTENDED GOING

Escaped Prisoner Spent Full Hour in Bowerman Home Friday night While Chief Augustine Guarded Stolen Automobile Belonging To Walter Jackson.

AYLMER, Ont., Jan. 7.—(Special to Examiner).—A seventeen year old girl for whom John Parks a prisoner who escaped from Peterborough jail, risked capture on Friday night holds a confident belief that she can twist the daring Parks around her little finger. She is Pearl Bowerman, pretty, dark haired slip of a girl for whom a life long acquaintance with Parks developed last summer into a close friendship. It was the knowledge of this that led St. Thomas Provincial Police to visit the Bowerman home, only to miss their quarry by a matter of seconds.

Pearl was in St. Thomas as the companion of two elderly ladies when Parks visited her Friday night. "He came to me with a message from mother" she told The Examiner. "He certainly surprised me because I had just read of his escape from jail. He only talked for a few minutes and didn't say where he was going. He had a big car with him but I didn't get a chance to ask him what he had been doing before he was gone again. When The Examiner found Pearl, she was at the home of Gus Finch, a neighbor of the Bowerman's where she was huddled close to the kitchen stove with both feet on the open oven door. It was thus that Parks spent a full hour in the Bowerman home on Friday night while Doc. Augustine, Aylmer Chief of Police walked shiveringly up and down the road at Benson's corners guarding the stolen car which Parks had abandoned after his dash from Peterborough.

Pearl Bowerman, fast talking, vivacious and quick thinking had ready answers for every question but maintained her comfortable position by the oven door. "Certainly I have gone with Johnnie," she said. "I first saw him when I was just a little girl and he visited our home ever so often. We moved from place to place, but he always found us. Last summer we started going together and until Fall we peddled fish together down in Delhi and Simcoe. We were living at Delhi then and I returned home every night."

"Are you engaged to Parks?" she was asked.

"Oh, that's doubtful," was the ready answer.

Outwitted Posses.

The conversation ran to Parks' various escapades, and which she described "Johnnie" as having outwitted posses of police and civilians who searched for him.

"Aren't you afraid of such a slippery chap?"

"Not me. I would either twist him around my little finger or break his neck. 'Treat 'em rough,' is the only way to get along with Johnnie. I can always handle him."

Miss Bowerman displayed ignorance of where Parks went after he made his sensational escape from the police. He may have gone down to where his people used to live at Walsingham Centre. If he had among the hills there they would never find him," she said. "Ma is mad at me to-day, so I guess I will have to get a job somewhere. I was going to Windsor on Saturday, but the rainstorm stopped me. Ma didn't like Johnnie coming there Friday night and she gave me fits."

Feet Soaking Wet.

She laughed when Joe Halliker told of Parks' visit to the Bowerman home. "Johnnie came in looking like a rag, his feet were soaking wet.

"Well Martha," he said to Mrs. Bowerman, "Have you got any pie for me?"

"Nothing doing, Johnnie, you won't get any pie from me," she retorted."

The theft of the postmaster's car was news to the group. Parks must have started throuhg the bush across from the French home to get to St. Andrew's street, where Roberts' car was housed. The fact that he was soaking wet when he came to the Bowerman house strengthens the belief that he fell into the creek when he came up.

The chase which brought close to two score police and civilians into action ended in disappointment Saturday night when officers were satisfied Parks made a clean getaway in another stolen car which had sufficient fuel to take him far into another section of the country.

Occasionally there is a smile passed around in the City Police Court, and sometimes it is due to a clash of formality and fact.

So it was this morning when Magistrate O. A. Langley, prepared to impose sentence after reviewing the case in which the theft of two cars had been charged and admitted, call-

ATTEMPT TO WRECK EXPRESS

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 7.—(Canadian Press Cable).—An attempt was made to wreck the Melbourne-Adelaide Express yesterday. Two heavy sleepers were found placed across the rails near Bacchus Marsh. The engineer stopped the train within a few yards of the obstruction. Two crowded express trains passed over the line soon afterwards.

KING REMOVED FROM BEDROOM

Sunday's Bulletin Is Considered Best Since His Majesty's Illness Began.

RESULTS FAVORABLE.

LONDON, Jan. 7. — (Canadian Press).— The nation was confident to-day that King George was well on the road to recovery.

The improvement of a quiet day by the monarch was noted in the only bulletin issued on Sunday and it was added that there was some improvement in his condition. Since the bulletin said some instead of "slight improvement," which was the most that had been previously stated, it was regarded as the best report from the king's bedside since his illness began.

Another significant happening in regard to the King's condition was his removal from his bedroom into an adjoining audience chamber where he remained for one hour. This was the first time that he had left his sick room during the whole seven weeks of his illness. While there was no official statement as to the effect of the removal on the patient, it was understood in palace circles to-day that the result had been entirely favorable.

Presumably the king was only wheeled on his bed into the audience chamber. The mere fact of such a brief change of scene from the wearisome appearance of the sick room to which he was chained so long was calculated to have a beneficial moral effect in reviving interest in life around him.

The Duke of York told one of the officials at Burlington House where the royal party visited an exhibition of Dutch art there, that everybody at the palace was happier than they had been for a long time. It was noted that Queen Mary and all the other members of the party were smiling as if the load of anxiety which they had borne so long had been greatly lightened. The party included all the other children of the Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Gloucester, Prince George and Princess Mary, and it was believed that this was the first time the Queen had been seen at a public function with all her children.

King George's physicians reported this morning that His Majesty had a fair night's rest, and indicated that he was holding the ground which they announced he had gained in their last bulletin.

London was blanketed with fog today, but the dense atmosphere no longer caused anxiety at Buckingham Palace, for the King's condition was so improved that it was believed the oppressive conditions without would have little if any adverse effect upon the royal patient within the palace walls.

In palace quarters there was no diminution of optimism induced by recent developments in the King's case, and members of the Royal Family are now moving about in pursuit of their avocations very much as in normal times.

The Duke of Gloucester, who lunched at the palace, left shortly afterward, and was joined at the railway station by the Duke of York. The two brothers then left for Sandringham, where they plan to have some pheasant shooting in the coverts of the King's Norfolk country home. It was expected that the Prince of Wales would join them there to-morrow.

Australian Government Decides To Scrap Conqueror Of German Cruiser Emden in 1915

CANBERRA, Australia, January 7 (Canadian Press Cable via Reuters). — The Australian Government has decided to scrap the Australian light cruiser Sydney, which was laid down in 1912.

The Sydney, which has a displacement of 5,400 tons, became famous during the war when she sank the German raider Emden, which had sunk fifteen merchant vessels off the West Indies.

At dawn on November 9, 1915, the Emden appeared off the cable station at Cocos Keeling Island, and the operator flashed the news to Singapore. The big Australian and New Zealand convoy of 38 transports homeward bound, which left Albany on November 1, escorted by the Minotaur, Melbourne, Sydney, and Ibuki, was approaching Cocos. It was only 55 miles off when the news reached it, and the Sydney went off to Cocos Island at full speed. An action ensued between the Sydney, commanded by Captain J. C. Glossop, and the Emden, commanded by Captain Von Muller, and the Emden was driven ashore in flames by the six-inch gunfire of the Sydney.

Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia Dies After Pneumonia Attack.

IMPOSING PHYSIQUE.

Leader of Fugitive Nobility Commanded Army During Great War.

ANTIBES, France, Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—Grand Duke Nicholas, held by the Royalists to be heir to the Russian Throne, last held by his second cousin, died here yesterday.

The collapse of the heart of the old warrior, sudden and irrevocable, came when his condition was showing an improvement in his valiant battle against pneumonia. He was 72 years old and commanded the Russian army in the war.

The Grand Duchess Prince Andrew of Russia, Princess Battenberg, the Grand Duke Peter of Russia and his wife, and the Duke of Leuchtenburg were present when the end came. There were also some of his old retainers and faithful supporters who had followed him in his exile.

The Grand Duke came here from Paris last November to seek a more temperate winter. Pneumonia developed from an apparently trivial cold.

Despite his age of 72 years, he had made such progress that on New Year's Day he was thought to be out of danger. Then he collapsed yesterday and sank rapidly until his death shortly after midnight.

End Is Unexpected.

PARIS, Jan. 7.—The Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia, who died yesterday at his villa near Antibes, had one of the most imposing physiques of any of the Romanoffs.

He stood six feet three inches in height, erect, and particularly in his last years, almost emaciated.

He dressed himself usually in a grey sack suit, and kept his pointed beard trimmed most carefully.

In sharp contrast to some other members of the Romanoff family who were known for certain eccentricities, the Grand Duke was almost ascetic in his tastes. He kept regular hours and maintained restrained habits of eating and drinking.

Of all the living Romanoffs he was regarded as the ablest in point of administrative talent and measured judgment. His brilliant conduct in the last important military campaign during the Czarist regime, when he was Commander-in-Chief of the Russian armies, won him the commendation and respect of the allied command.

He made his home in France since the Russian revolution. He was always extremely circumspect in his conduct, so as to do nothing to attract adverse comment or to embarrass the French Government, although he was deeply engaged in the interests of the House of Romanoff.

TARIFF COMES BEFORE HOUSE

U. S. Committee of Ways and Means Commences Hearing Witnesses.

IMPORTANT CHANGES.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 7.—(Canadian Press).—The tariff—historic issue in United States politics—is before Congress again in concrete form.

The subject, a live one in the recent campaign, was brought to the front by the Ways and Means Committee of the House, whose members were called together to-day to open hearings on tariff revision. The work begins coincidentally with the settling down in his Washington home of President-elect Hoover, whose administration will see the tedious job completed.

When this will be accomplished is an interesting question because of the uncertainty of a special session, the responsibility for which rests upon the shoulders of the incoming President.

Stupendous Task

Meanwhile, the stupendous task of readjusting the 1922 Fordney-McCumber tariff act will go forward in committee. Representative Hawley, the huskey Oregonite who succeeded to the chairmanship of The Ways and Means Committee when Representative Green of Iowa, went to a federal bench, has more than 60 witnesses waiting to be heard on the first schedule.

This embraces chemicals, oils and paints. Three days will be devoted to this section and the remaining fourteen will be taken up in the order in which they appear in the existing law.

The schedule relating to agriculture products, which Mr. Hoover declared in his campaign probably would need some attention in connection with the tariff, will not be reached until Jan. 24.

Chairman Hawley hopes to conclude the hearings by March, and by breaking up into 15 sub-committees, each working on a different section of rates, to have a new bill ready by the middle of April. If a special session were called then, he believes the bill could be passed by congress by mid-summer.

CANADA'S BIG GROWTH TOLD IN STATISTICS

Dominion Has Reached New Elizabeth Age Says Hon. G. N. Gordon.

ADDRESSES ROTARY.

Amazing Story of Canadian Progress Last Year Is Related.

"Canada has reached the new Elizabethan age of power and wealth," declared Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., in the course of an eloquent address upon Canadian development in 1928 before the Rotary Club to-day. Hon. Mr. Gordon placed before his hearers a wealth of new figures in regard to the growth and progress of this country last year, and his illuminating address was thoroughly enjoyed by the Rotarians and their guests.

President W. R. Morris announced the charter night of the Campbellford club would be held next Monday night, and named Rotarians Jack Gillespie and Chris. Graham as joint chairmen of a committee to secure a good Peterborough representation at this meeting.

Rotarian John H. Seels reminded his fellow Rotarians of the meeting on January 21, when the club will entertain the boys of the camp, and Judge Mott of Toronto will give the address.

Rotarian Ray Harding was congratulated upon his first effort as editor of the Rotary bulletin.

The speaker of the day was introduced by Rotarian Dr. Morrison, who explained that Mr. Gordon had endeavored to secure Chief Justice Lamott as a speaker, but failing in that attempt, at much inconvenience to himself, had consented to address the club himself.

Greater Material Growth

"Canada during the year 1928 has furnished a greater material growth than in any year of her history, and generally trade conditions the world over are upon a more secure foundation than at any time since the war," said Mr. Gordon in beginning.

"Two outstanding events have struck the minds of the people. One, the grave illness of King George has indicated the solidarity of the peoples composing the Commonwealth of Nations comprising the British Empire. The unanimous vote of sympathy and of deep interest, in his welfare from all parts of the Empire, has shown how deeply rooted is the respect for British institutions. There is a marked contrast between the respect shown the King of the Empire, and the heated criticism and deeply ingrained suspicion, of many millions which greeted, recently, the President-elect of the United States. There is a distinct advantage in favor of the highest official of the nation being free from partizan controversy, and from the bitter memories created by the United States method of popular selection of a chief executive.

"The second event I had in mind, was the recent mandate, for the first time given, by the people of the United States, in favor of total prohibition. The striking part of the decision was that the majority was so overwhelming, that no candidate for president dare ever make the question an issue again. The results men without question, enforcement in more drastic form and continued ever-tightening bands. It does need much vision to read this s the times and what the tren public opinion is.

Death Claims Boxing Promoter

Tex Rickard Succumbs To Complications Set In After His Operation

Boxing World Loses Powerful Figure in Death of Famous Promoter—Lifted Sport From "Ham and Egg" Class into Field of Big Business.

HINTED DEMPSEY MAY BECOME NEW HEAD OF MADISON SQUARE GARDEN

Rickard Promoted His First Fight in Gold Fields of Nevada—His Greatest Success Was the Tunney-Dempsey $3,000,000 Fight in Chicago.

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, January 7 (Associated Press). — The death of George L. "Tex" Rickard in Miami Beach yesterday removed from boxing a figure more powerful than champions, a character unique and without a rival in the field of promotion, and the most important single figure in the lifting of the sport from the "ham and egg" class into the field of big business.

Probably without ever having lifted his own hands to a position of offence or defence, Rickard revolutionized the staging of boxing bouts. Forced into boxing by "home town" pride in 1903, he staged a lightweight championship match between Battling Nelson and Joe Gans at Goldfield, Nevada, and ran a stake of $30,000 saved from gold mining days in Alaska into a personal fortune of several million dollars.

His death robbed the Madison Square Garden Corporation for which he has made millions of dollars in profits through the promotion of boxing extravaganzas, hockey, bicycle racing, and other sports, of its guiding genius. He left no man in the organization capable of taking the seat at his two-ton bronze desk and dealing with the modern problems of fisticuffs with the ability Tex possessed.

King of Boxing Promoters.

The details of important matches, from the battles of contenders in the lightest classes right down to the staging of the $2,000,000 heavyweight spectacle between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney in Chicago, were kept mostly in his own brain. He bothered little with records and notations, kept no accurate track of expenditures necessary for promotion, and worked on the principle that when the receipts were finally counted and the expense totalled, always would be left a good margin of profit.

Only twice in his entire career was the maker of champions wrong, both his financial failures came last summer when he staged a lightweight title bout between Jimmy McLarnin and Sammy Mandell at a loss of $100,000, and dropped $300,000 in the promotion of Gene Tunney's final battle with Tom Heeney. He made millionaires of two heavyweight champions, Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, and set up establishing purses for fighters in every other division.

Although no one can be expected to successfully replace Rickard at the head of the fight business, management of Madison Square Garden probably will revert to William F. Carey, treasurer and vice-president of the corporation, who with Richard Hoyt, Wall Street banker, controls a majority of the stock. Contrary to general belief, Rickard himself owned little stock in the Garden, and received only $50,000 a year as president of the corporation.

Dempsey Might Take Post.

Rumors about the Garden indicated that Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, and to Rickard's mind the greatest fighter ever to draw on gloves, might be offered the post left vacant by the promoter's death. It appeared unlikely that Dempsey, with the ties of friendship that bound him to Rickard broken, would ever enter the ring again. The old Manassa mauler, the greatest drawing card Rickard ever had, had promised the promoter he would come out of retirement and take one more fling

HON. G. MURRAY PASSES AWAY

Premier of Nova Scotia For 27 Years Dies From Pneumonia in Montreal.

LIBERAL IN POLITICS.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—Hon. George H. Murray, whose record-breaking period in office as Premier and Leader of the Liberal party in Nova Scotia ended only on his voluntary retirement in 1923, died here last night. He had been ill only three days, of pneumonia. Former Premier Murray, who held that office in Nova Scotia from 1896 to 1923, was in his 68th year. Shortly after resigning his portfolio in the Nova Scotia Government, and his seat in Victoria County, which he had held throughout his long tenure as Premier, Hon. Mr. Murray came to Montreal, where he established permanent residence, but making frequent long visits to Nova Scotia each summer. During the latter year of his occupancy of the Premiership of Nova Scotia he suffered a severe illness which resulted in the loss of a leg. During his residence in Montreal, Hon. Mr. Murray had lived in retirement so far as business was concerned but remained active physically and maintained an interest in all public affairs, particularly those of his native province. The funeral will be held at the residence, Mount Pleasant avenue, at 2.30 Tuesday afternoon(or at an hour to be announced later), and the remains will then be conveyed to North Sydney, N.S., where the final rites will take place Thursday.

Mme GODIN

It seems almost a miracle—the way "Fruit-a-tives" benefits women suffering at the change of life. "I was obliged to go to bed because of the terrible dizziness, pain and weakness," writes Mme. Onesime Godin of Paquetville, N.B. "During this trying time 'Fruit-a-tives' proved a godsend to me, and now I am in perfect health. Every woman should follow my example and take 'Fruit-a-tives,' and they would surely get the wonderful relief that I did." Try it. Your dealer has this wonderful fruit medicine—25c. and 50c. a box.

SOCIETY HOLDS FIRST MEETING

Regular Business Transacted at Meeting of W.M.S. of Madoc Church.

TREASURER REPORTS READ.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Jan. 7. — The Women's Missionary Auxiliary of Trinity United Church, held their first meeting of the new year on Thursday, January 3, in the ladies' parlor of the church. The devotional reading was given on Christian Stewardship by Mrs. Bristol. Several items of business were disposed of, regarding yearly envelopes, special movie, social teas, departments' secretaries, etc. Reports were received from the treasurer which showed that $340 was sent to the Presbyterial Treasurer. A report of the year's work was given by the secretary, Mrs. F. Dafoe, "With the watchword, 'Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts,' and through the able leadership of the president, the word success seems to stand out in the review of the year's work." The allocation was reached and the membership was increased. Twelve monthly meetings were held with an average attendance of 19. The study book was ably taken by the members, chapter by chapter each month. Six teas were given in the homes of members, providing the social atmosphere, so needed to sustain interest. A concert was given by an Indian entertainer in the theatre. The Field Secretary was a speaker on one occasion, and a banquet was given for which the society catered, and this was some of the ways in which money was raised. Sunshine bags were used and added to this were the Easter and Autumn offerings. The Mission Band had a balance of $30. Bereaved and sick members were remembered with letters of condolence and cheer.

Mrs. M. Maybee was appointed as Strangers' Secretary, with Mrs. O. Dingman and Mrs. J. Henderson as assistants.

The first chapter of the study book, "Drums in the Darkness," was taken by Mrs. Huffman and Mrs. A. Kincaid.

The Heralds of the Watch Tower were appointed and arrangements made for regular reports from these after which the meeting was closed.

LIBRARIAN REPORTS INCREASE IN NUMBER OF BOOKS CIRCULATED

Public Library Has a Most Successful Year During 1928.

1,542 NEW VOLUMES.

Adult Section Supplied 86,076 Books in Past Year.

Librarian F. M. Dela Fosse, in his annual report to the Public Library Board, was able to show one of the best years in the history of Peterborough's Public Library. A distinct advancement in the circulation of books as well as in the interest taken in the library is reported. Donations to the library fell off considerably during the past year, but 1,020 new books for adults were added to the shelves and 522 in the juvenile section. In the adult department 86,076 books were taken out during the year, showing an increase of 8,906 over 1927. The juvenile department showed an increase of 826. The Librarian reports as follows:

"It is gratifying to be able to state that the past twelve months have shown a distinct advance over any preceding year, both in the circulation of books and in the general interest that has been taken in the library by the public. Although we have not been enriched to as great an extent as in former years by donations of books from persons interested in the library, this loss has been more than made up by the purchase of a larger supply of books by the Board. In fact, the past year has been the first year that we have come so near the limit of our appropriation. The result has been seen in the greater patronage that the library has received.

"It may be as well to stress, at this point, the great benefit that accrues to us by benefactions of books. In past years we have received large gifts from friends. During the twelve months that have just passed, we can only record the presentation of fifty books. This does not, of course, mean that people are taking less interest in our work, because former gifts in large quantities, of volumes, have invariably been from those who were leaving the city, or for other reasons were dismantling their shelves.

"Several improvements have been made in and about the premises and the coming year will see us well equipped in almost every particular, to cater to the growing needs of the reading public.

Department Shows Progress.

"The Children's Department has been for the past year in the capable hands of Miss Isabel Thompson, and marked progress has been made. The circulation has shown a healthy increase, and the story hours have been well attended.

"The Reference Department in the adult section has been greatly enriched during the year by the addition of several splendid works, chief among these must be noted the New Oxford Dictionary, the greatest work of its kind in the world; the Harmsworth Encyclopædia, Chambers Encyclopædia, and two complete sets of books dealing with recitations. The latter have been used largely, and supply a long-felt want.

"Appended herewith is a statement of the books received during the past year in the adult and juvenile sections:

$39,000 Fire Sweeps Village Of Bancroft

BELLEVILLE, Ont., January 7 (Canadian Press). — A fire did over $39,000 damage in the Village of Bancroft on Saturday. Two stores and two residences were burned to the ground. For a few minutes it appeared as though the centre of the business section would be wiped out. All of the buildings burned were of frame construction.

The fire started in the residence of Charles Mullet. Both the store and the house were a complete loss.

FOUR TEACHERS SICK WITH FLU

Campbellford High School Failed To Re-open This Morning After Holiday.

PUBLIC SCHOOL OPEN.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 7. — Because there are not enough teachers to carry on the work of the High School here, the school did not open this morning, and will remain closed for another week. Only three of the staff of seven teachers were prepared to resume their duties. The others are either recovering from an attack of the "Flu" or are still confined to their beds with it. E. H. Greig, principal of the school, Miss Ferris and Miss Wheadon are the three teachers who are ready to resume their duties. Interviewed last night, Dr. H. O. Richardson, chairman of the Board of Education, said that it would be impossible to carry on the work with an degree of efficiency with such a depleted staff, and that the school would remain closed for another week. The public schools opened as usual this morning.

Sproule have each served one year on the Council staff previous to 1929.

RUM RUNNERS ARE SHOT

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Jan. 4 (Canadian Press).—Three men alleged rum runners, were shot, none fatally, early to-day by United States Customs border patrolmen, when they resisted arrest as they are alleged to have landed a boatload of six cases of contraband liquor on the river shore at Lewiston, seven miles north of here. The wounded men were brought to Mount St. Mary's Hospital in this city.

KING ALEXANDER TAKES REINS OF GOVERNMENT OF JUGO-SLAVIA

Jugoslav Monarch Suspends Constitution and Appoints Cabinet.

ROYAL STATUS DEFINED.

His Majesty Names General Peter Ziokovitch As First Premier.

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—King Alexander yesterday took into his own hands the government of the turbulent kingdom of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes, which had it birth in the aftermath of the world war. He suspended the constitution and appointed a non-party cabinet. The royal decree, posted throughout the capital, said that new laws would be made in the same manner.

Under the changed laws all local governing bodies will be dissolved and the district governors will nominate councils to carry on the work of the municipalities. The work of the district parliaments will be carried on by commissioners appointed by the government.

For several days His Majesty had sought to reconcile the strong party and racial antagonisms with which the parliamentary regime had been split since last June. The 40-year-old monarch then fell back upon a non-parliamentary government of military stamp and in a long manifesto addressed to the nation, expounded the new policy.

He named as Premier, General Peter Zivkovitch.

Royal Status Defined

The status of the Royal house is defined, and provision is made for a regency in the absence, illness or minority of the King.

The King is empowered to appoint a Premier and Ministers who act under his instructions and are responsible to him. Laws shall go forth from the King and be promulgated by a decree countersigned by the Premier, the Ministers directly concerned and the Minister of Justice. The law was made operative at once.

In behalf of the exceptional regime now inaugurated, it was semi-officially stated that the patience of the King was exhausted by the long years of dickering, and the utter impossibility after the most persevering attempts on his part to reconcile the antagonisms and to free the country from the evil influence of party and racial politics.

Plan Well Received

Under the changed laws, all local governing bodies will be dissolved and district governors will nominate councils to carry on the work of the municipalities.

An exception is made in the cases of Belgrade, Zagreb and Ljubliana, where the Councils will be appointed by the King on the advice of the Minister of the Interior. The work of the district parliaments will be carried on by commissioners appointed by the governors.

A majority of the people of Belgrade yesterday were preparing for the celebration to-day of the Christmas of the Greek Orthodox Church calendar. So far as they were interested in the new form of government, the great majority seemed enthusiastic.

"May God help him. We have had enough corrupt Parliaments," was their attitude toward the King and the task he has set himself.

WOMAN LEADS AGAIN

PARIS, Jan. 5.—Local airway companies are disposed to believe that the "weaker" sex has more nerve than her brother. Many women, they say, fly between Paris and London merely to attend dinner parties, and when they hop from the plane they are dressed ready to step into the drawing room.

CHAMOIS SKINS

To wash your chamois skins that you use for the furniture, silver or other household things, use warm soapy water in which a pinch of soda has been added. Rinse in water in which a little glycerine has been added.

COLDS RELIEVED INSTANTLY BY METHOD DOCTORS RECOMMEND

Advise Home Use of Hospital Method to End Colds During "Pneumonia Weather"

Goes Straight to Seat of Head or Chest Cold and Quickly Drives It Out of System

Realizing the danger as well as the misery caused by neglecting colds during pneumonia weather, doctors are now recommending home use of a remedy that is pleasant to take and capable of relieving even the most extreme hospital cases.

Nose Cleared Up—Cold Relieved Instantly!

The quick relief which came to A. L. Gillis is typical of experience in numbers of Peterborough homes.

For three days the different remedies he used failed to check the cold in his head. Then he consulted his doctor, who advised double strength doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a hospital certified medication of wild cherry, terpin-hydrate, etc., which clears up the breathing passages.

Relief began instantly. He felt the comforting, healing warmth — from his nose passages deep down into his chest—and in a few hours congestion began to loosen up. Next morning he was breathing freely through his nose and in a day or so all traces of the cold were gone.

Tempting to Take and Soon Ends Child's Cold

The six-year-old daughter of Mrs. E. M. Martin contracted a severe cold which started speading so fast it was necessary to call the doctor. On his advice then she gave double doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral every half hour until congestion was relieved—then once every two hours. By supper time the child felt lots better and ate heartily for the first time in several days. That night she was able to sleep without coughing, and in a day or so was rid of the cold and back at school.

Note: Other cases reported daily—all certified by attending physician.

This "hospital certified" medicine quickly penetrates and heals inflamed linings of the air passages. Absorbed by the system it helps allay congestion and drive out the cold from the nose passages, throat, and chest.

Just a few pleasant spoonsful of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral now and you, too, will feel like a different person to-morrow. Endorsed by leading druggists.

POLICE SEARCH FOR HUSBAND

George E. Schnabel Is Thought To Be In Toronto Or Surrounding District.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—Assigned by Detective-Inspector Alex Murray, Detective Chisholm of the Toronto police force, is at work investigating the possibility of George E. Schnabel, wanted in connection with his wife's disappearance, being or having been in Toronto. He is acting on information receved from Montreal and other cities.

The search enters a new phase with assurance that the woman's body exhumed at Cornwall last week, is that of Mrs. Schnabel, formerly of Hamilton and latterly of Montreal, who disappeared September 2. Identification of the most conclusive order was secured over the week-end in Montreal when George Allen of Hazelton, Pa., recognized the body as that of his sister; and Mrs. P. W. Pugh of Hamilton Ontario, identified both the remains and the dress in which the corpse was clad.

A new development in the situation is the story told detectives by Elaine, 12-year-old daughter of a strange drowsiness which overcame her on the night of September 2, which resulted in her going to bed immediately after supper and not awakening until next morning, when she learned that her mother had gone away.

Examination of the organs of the dead woman is being made in Montreal morgue to-day.

PREMIER FERGUSON SUFFERS FROM FLU

Hon. Forbes Godfrey Is Also Sick With Epidemic in Bermuda.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—The "flu" has attacked the Prime Minister of Ontario and the Minister of Health. Generally speaking it continues throughout the city on a serious scale, though not so as extensive as before.

Premier Ferguson, who remained home over last week-end on account of a cold, expecting to return to his work in a day or two, has been confined to bed for some days.

He is suffering from a neuritic variety of the prevailing malady, causing pains in the back and head.

Dr. Forbes Godfrey is suffering an attack in Bermuda.

TWENTY-FIVE BELOW.

THREE RIVERS, Que., January 5 (Canadian Press). — Following a period of unusually mild weather during the month of December, winter set in this district with a vengeance to-day. Twenty-five below zero was registered at Cap de la Madeleine, and twenty below in this city.

A Tickling In Her Throat For Years

Mrs. Peter Johnson, Port Alberni, B.C., writes:—"I had been troubled for years with a tickling in my throat every time I would lie down, and at night I would cough so I could not sleep, and could hardly do my work. I would cough until I would vomit.

"I heard of

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

and after the first bottle I had no more cough, and now I am never without a bottle of 'Dr. Wood's' in the house."

NURSING CLASS FOR WARSAW

Women's Institute Arranges For Class To Be Held During January.

SMALL FEE.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Jan. 5.— The Warsaw Women's Institute has arranged with the Department to hold a class in nursing and first aid under the direction of Miss Florence McLean Alexander. The date has been definitely set for the two weeks beginning Monday afternoon, January 21, in the Warsaw Town Hall. These classes are free except that the necessary running expenses such as rent and supplies, must be paid for by the class and any wishing to join the class who are not members of the Institute are required to pay the Institute membership fee of 25 cents. The class which was held two years ago under direction of Miss Alexander, numbered ninety-four.

The Institute secretary has received from the District Medical Health Officer a circular regarding flu, with some posters which have been placed in prominent places. He also asked for the names and addresses of any who would be able to care for the sick in case of need. The members of the last nursing class are being interviewed and their names will be sent to the Medical Officer of Health, Dr. Sutton, as soon as possible.

Open Meeting.

On Thursday evening January 10, the Institute will hold an open meeting in Warsaw Town Hall, at which Dr. Munro, Medical Officer of Health for Dummer, will give an address. There will also be a musical program. As Dr. Munro is a very busy man, and gives his time freely, it is hoped that every person who can attend will do so. A collection will be taken to defray expenses for the hall and piano.

He Purchased a Box and Found Relief

Several Other Remedies Tried Without Success

"About five years ago I was troubled with Sore Back, so bad I could scarcely walk about," writes Mr. Angus J. MacDonald, Creignish Rear, N.S. "I tried many remedies, but no good results followed. One day I purchased a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I venture to say that I owe my life to them. To anyone suffering from Kidney Trouble I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills." For almost three generations Dodd's Kidney Pills have been the standard remedy for Backache, Rheumatism and Ailments arising from Faulty Kidneys. They strike at the seat of the trouble, the Kidneys. They are no cure-all. Simply an effective Kidney Remedy.

TEX RICKARD RESPONSIBLE FOR PRESENT STANDING OF BOXING

Promoter Brought Game Out of Wilderness Into Respectability.

SUCCESSOR IN DOUBT.

Expect Garden For Present Will Be Taken Under Management of Executive.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—Boxing in general and Madison Square Garden more particularly will have to look far and wide before it finds another Tex Rickard. A prophet not without honor in his own country. His death, many believe, will have a tremendous adverse effect upon the game.

It was Tex who led boxing out of the wilderness. Perhaps another hand will be found to keep it in its present position, but there are many disposed to doubt it.

The one-time cowboy, gold miner and gambling hall proprietor found the game in disrepute, looked upon askance by those Tex himself would call the "best people." He leaves it now a thoroughly respectable sport, patronized alike by upper and undercrust.

Who Will Succeed Promoter.

With his passing, the question naturally arises: "Who is to succeed him?" At the moment, at least, there appears to be no satisfactory answer.

Rickard was not without his detractors. Yet there are few, if any, inclined to deny that it was Tex's genius that made boxing what it is today. His uncanny ability to foresee what the public wanted enabled him to hang up purses previously unthought of, and still clear huge profits either for himself or the Garden corporation. The Garden, indoor home of boxing, hockey, bicycle racing, track and field meets and other sports, stands almost as a personal monument to the man. It is the "House that Tex Built." His was the brain that made it pay huge dividends. Whether another can succeed as well remains to be seen.

For the present at least, the Garden probably will operate under the joint direction of William F. Carey, vice president and treasurer, and Colonel John S. Hammond, vice president and assistant general manager. One or the other of this pair may eventually be selected to become Rickard's permanent successor.

But in the event that neither is chosen, there are others whose names already have been linked with gossip concerning the management of the Garden.

CANADA'S HUGE GROWTH TOLD IN STATISTICS

nents of zinc, copper and lead. The Whitney-Payne Syndicate this past year entered into an agreement to spend $50,000,000 in mining development in the Flin Flon. The Flin-Flon Railway was completed on September 1st, 1928. This enters so rich a copper and zinc mining area that capital has been attracted to an extent hardly known before in mining investment.

"The prospects are said by eminent engineers to rival Ontario's great mineral wealth.

Quotes Premier Ferguson.

"Perhaps I might well quote here, Premier Ferguson's optimistic review of Ontario's past year. He states as follows:

It is a good old custom at this season to review the past in order to find inspiration for the future. This task is not a difficult one to the people of Ontario. Year in and year out the sum total of the wealth of the community increases. In every important line of production there is continuous advance, not always uniformly great, but on the whole uninterrupted and encouraging. If one were to search for the outstanding characteristic of the economic situation of Ontario he would find it in the great diversity and stability of our productive industry. We can count upon a yield of about $500,000,000 from our farms and yet only about 40 per cent. of the estimated possible farm land of Ontario is under cultivation. One can readily see what a great expansion of agriculture is possible in Ontario under the most favorable conditions. Our manufacturing interests have reached truly imposing dimensions. With an annual output reaching $1,677,000,000 we have added $350,000,000 to the record during the course of five years. Steadily the mineral output of Ontario has grown until it has reached $100,000,000 annually and yet the possibilities of the industry are scarcely realized. Our forests are yielding a harvest which markets at about $120,000,000. Our lakes and streams yield commercial fish food to the value of $3,000,000 or $4,000,000, but furnish the game fish which draw millions of tourists to Ontario. These tourists, who number from 7,000,000 to 8,000,000, spend from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 annually in this Province. This is a source of wealth that, thanks to our excellent highways and widespread publicity, has developed enormously of late, and is capable of greater expansion. I think these facts are sufficient to show that the outlook for Ontario is good, both for the coming year and those that follow. We are, in my judgment, entering upon a period of unprecedented expansion which will contribute to the prosperity of all Canada."

And this reminds me, that the universities and collegiate institutes are crowded. So, whether we like it or not, very soon, more adequate provision must be made for providing for the students seeking secondary education. I think it was Mrs. W. R. Morris, who, if not the pioneer, was early an advocate of the extended collegiate and vocational school, which policy for some time met a somewhat chilling reception.

Possibly I might be permitted to give some dry figures for the thought of the business men present. These deal with our business and trade conditions in 1928 as compiled by the Dominion of Canada Statician, Mr. R. H. Coates:

Business Conditions

Business Conditions in Canada at the Close of 1928.

AGRICULTURE: Areas of field crops have increased as follows: 53,108,000 acres in 1925; 56,172,000 acres in 1927; 59,410,000 acres in 1928.

The wheat crop has reached new high record of 500,000,000 bushels or 25,000,000 bushels greater than highest previous yield; 110,000,000 greater than average yield of five years from 1922 to 1926.

In barley, 135,000,000 bushels constitutes a new high record.

Export of wheat in November of present year reached new high level, being 75,416,000 bushels; 361,148,000 bushels being the export for twelve months ended Nov.; $439,380,000 being the value.

MINING: $247,000,000 being value of mineral production in 1927.

First half of present year exceeded corresponding period in 1927 in production of metallic minerals by $6,500,000.

$185,632,000 total estimated value of metals and non-metals produced from Canadian ores, as compared with $99,137,000 in first half of 1927.

FORESTRY: Export in wood and wood products have increased from $179,925,000 to $284,543,000 in six years from 1922 to March 31, 1928.

For 12 months ended Oct. 1928 a further increase to $285,752,000 took place.

Production of newsprint in first 11 months of 1928 reached 2,163,000 tons being 101,000 tons greater than 12 months in 1927. 805,000 tons was produced in 1921.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER: 2,706,000 h. p. was total hydro-electric turbine installation in Canada in 1921. 4,778,000 h. p. was total hydr.-electric turbine installation in Canada in 1927. 2,000,000 h. p. increase in 6 years or 77%.

In 1928 new plants developing over half a million additional horse power have been installed.

In Oct. last, the average daily production of hydro-electricity in Canada was 46,330,000 kilowatt hours, as compared with daily production of 39,128,000 kilowatt hours in Oct. 1925, or an increase of 59% in 3 years.

MANUFACTURES: Gross products of Canadian manufacturing industries increased from $2,482,000,000 in 1922 to $3,248,000,000 in 1926 and $3,500,000,000 is a conservative estimate for 1928.

102.0 index number of employment in manufacturing industries in Canada for first 11 months of 1928.

95.5 index number of employment in manufacturing industries in Canada for same period in 1927.

91.9 index number for employment in manufacturing industries in Canada for same period in 1926.

934,085 ton pig iron produced in Canada in 11 months ending Nov., 1928.

646,500 tons same period in 1927, an increase of 287,585 tons or 43 per cent. in a single year.

1,137,160 tons of steel ingots and castings produced in first 11 months of 1928.

811,390 tons in same period of 1927 an increase of 325,770 tons or 40 per cent.

CONSTRUCTION: Contracts awarded aggregated $483,127,400 for first 11 months of year 1928 as compared with same period in 1927 $382,269,600.

For 1928 the total is over $70,000,000 or about 18½% higher than for 1927.

63 cities issued in first 11 months of 1928 building permits to the extent of $303,522,500, as compared with $172,858,000 for same period last year; an increase of $31,000,000 or 17.7% higher than in 1927.

TRADE AND COMMERCE: $2,584,000,000 aggregate of external trade for 12 months ended Nov. 1928. $1,349,181,000 exports of Can. products for above period; $23,893,000 exports of foreign products, or a total of $1,373,074,000 exports; $1,210,960,000 imports.

$162,114,000 balance of trade in favor of Canada as compared with $141,500,000 in last completed fiscal year.

Trade balance is probably highest per capita favorable trade balance in the world for this period, and is certainly higher than the per capita favorable trade balance of any trading nation in 1927, from the latest available comparative figures.

124.4 index number of employment at commencement of November, 1928 of wholesalers and retailers, as compared with 112.8 at same date of 1927.

Bank debits or totals of cheques charged to accounts for first eleven months of 1928, was $39,606 millions as compared with $31,819 millions, and $27,514 millions in corresponding periods of 1927 and 1926 respectively.

Transportation.

Gross earnings of C.P.R. and C.N.R. for the first eleven months of 1928, aggregated $444,120,000, as compared with $393,854,000 for same period of 1927, an increase of $50,266,000, or 12.8 per cent.

Net earnings have also increased and Sir Henry Thornton stated the net earnings of C.N.R. in 1928 will reach $50,000,000, an increase of some $8,000,000 over 1927.

Net operating revenue of C.P.R. in first nine months of 1928, is stated at $33,188,000, a substantial advance of $7,304,000 on $25,984,000, the comparative figure of last year. This shows the C. P. R. is building for the future.

3,519,866 railway cars loaded to Dec. 8, 1928, as compared with 3,215,880, in corresponding period of 1927, an increase of 304,000 cars, or over 9%.

A gain of 109,000 in number of motor cars in Canada in 1927, bringing the total up to 945,000, will be at least equalled in 1928.

Production of motor cars in Canada in first ten months of 1927 was over 221,000, comparing favorably with the totals of 179,054 and 204,727 produced in calandar years of 1927 and 1926 respectively.

Finance.

Total ordinary revenue for first 8 months of current fiscal year reached an aggregate of $308,784,000, as compared with $287,282,000 in same period of preceding year, an increase of $21,500,000 in spite of reductions in taxations amounting to some $19,000,000. $63,000,000 of war debt was paid off, at annual saving to taxpayers of $2,650,000 in interest.

Net debt of Canada on Nov. 30, 1928, was approximately $2,230 millions, as compared with $2,287 millions on same date in 1927, or a decline of $57 millions in last 12 months.

$1,406 millions total savings deposits in chartered banks on October 31, 1927. A year later they reached $1,511 millions, a gain of $105 millions.

Net insurance to the value of $519,630,000 has been written in Dominion during first 11 months of 1928, as compared with $450,790,000 in same period of last year, or an increase of nearly $69,000,000, or 15%.

Conservative estimate of life insurance in force in the Dominion is not less than $5,500 millions.

The Bank assets 1900 equalled $459 millions, in 1927 they were $2 1-2 billions, or 7 times as much, and in 1928 it is estimated they will reach nearly $3 billions.

These barometer readings of Canada's trade mean that Canada has, through long years of toil, anxiety and sacrifice steadily developed and grown until she has reached the new Elisabethan age of pawer and wealth.

Rotarian R. F. Downey, in moving a vote of thanks to the speaker, declared that Mr. Gordon's address made every one who heard it, a little prouder of the fact that he was a Canadian.

JUBILEE YEAR BIG SUCCESS

W. C. Hughes, of Grafton Store, Attends Big Conference in Dundas.

ADVANCEMENT EXPECTED.

W. C. Hughes, manager of the Grafton Store, attended a conference of the executives of the various stores of the company, held in Dundas on Wednesday and Thursday of last week.

The big clothing firm has just completed its 75th anniversary year, and has the unusual feature on which to congratulate itself, of still having a Grafton at its head, with a prospect of this condition continuing for a long time to come.

The 75th anniversary year was also a banner year for the big clothing concern, and the conference of the store managers and other officials had in view a still greater exploitation of Grafton-made clothing in 1929. Mr. Hughes returned to Peterborough full of inspiration to make the local store a prominent factor in the 1929 advancement.

GRAFTON EMPLOYE GIVEN PROMOTION

J. E. Cronin Will Be Head of Men's Furnishing Department in Hamilton Store.

J. E. Cronin, who during his twenty years' connection with the Grafton Store has made a host of friends, left this morning to assume the duties of a new position to which he has been advanced in the big Hamilton store.

From all the numerous staffs of the Grafton Stores, Mr. Cronin has been selected to take charge of the important mens' furnishing department in the finest store of the Grafton chain. His many friends will be glad to know of the fine recognition by the company of his executive qualities, and to wish him well in his new surroundings.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS ARE RE-OPENED

Attendance of Pupils is From 75 to 77 Per Cent. in Five—Two New Teachers.

The Public Schools of the city reopened this morning with few changes on the teaching staff. Miss Eagleson and Miss Armitage fill the vacancies on the King Edward staff. No changes have taken place in the staffs of the other schools.

The attendance of pupils in five of the schools was from 75 to 77 per cent. In the sixth school the attendance was somewhat lower owing to an outbreak of measles in the central part of the city during the holidays.

Nearly all of the teachers reported for duty.

The school buildings have been thoroughly cleaned and with well-heated and well-ventilated rooms it is hoped the "flu" epidemic may soon die out.

Screams of Woman Scares Off Burglar

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—Miss Cora Park screamed and scared off a hold-up man at the Victoria street entrance to the Pantages theatre on Saturday evening. Miss Park, who is the cashier, has been working at this theatre only since last Friday. The same man, wearing a trench coat, also tried to hold up a Laura Secord candy shop and the Federal Bakery, but took fright at both these places when women screamed.

Sunday night, William Reist, aged 21, no home, was taken into custody on a charge of being the man who held up Miss Park.

PARKS CANNOT BE LOCATED

ed out the name of "John Parks! John Parks! John Parks!"

"He is not here. Your Worship," replied Chief Newhall.

"Then where is he?" queried the bench.

"So far as we know he is still going strong and his whereabouts are unknown," replied the Chief Constable.

So far as the local police are concerned, there is nothing new regarding the capture of Parks, alias Bernard, alias Williams, who, on Thursday night last, cut, crawled and climbed his way to freedom from the Peterborough County Jail, avoided capture in the home of his sweetheart three miles from Aylmer, Ont., on Friday night, and is still at large, believed to be making from the American border.

ESCAPES WITH $485.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7.— (Canadian Press.)—Asking to be shown the wash room, a lone bandit early to-day ordered the proprietor of a Dominion restaurant, Samuel Koruntis, to remain in the cellar, and escaped with $485, the previous day's receipts, which Koruntis was removing from the till when the robber came into the place.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

The Bell Telephone Company and its Bill in Parliament

THE Bell Telephone Company of Canada is bringing before Parliament this session a Bill regarding its capital.

This Bill is in the interest of telephone users in Ontario and Quebec, both present and future, because without it the telephone system cannot hope to serve an ever growing public.

The Company, therefore, is publishing this advertisement as the first of a number of statements to present the facts of the situation. This first advertisement is to tell exactly what the Bill is and why it is needed.

what the Bill is

THE Bill is an amendment to the telephone company's act of incorporation. Its purpose is to give the company authority to invite new capital from investors. The new capital is to extend the telephone system as the country grows.

To invite new capital from investors means to offer new shares for them to purchase from time to time in the future. No grant or subsidy of any kind from parliament is involved.

why the Bill is needed

THERE are three reasons why the telephone company is asking Parliament for this amendment. The three reasons are:

1. Because the telephone system cannot extend to meet the growth of the country unless there is a steady supply of new capital year after year.
2. Because necessary plans cannot be started unless there is assurance that money may be obtained in the future to complete them.
3. Because the company's present authority to seek new capital is almost exhausted.

Each of these reasons is important and each of them now will be explained.

the first reason

"—the telephone system cannot extend to meet the growth of the country unless there is a steady supply of new capital year after year."

IN a progressive country like Canada the telephone system never stands still. Each year there are thousands of new telephones in new homes and offices. There are new central exchanges, new cables, new conduits, new devices to give better communication. With the growth of the country there is a call for telephones and equipment in steadily mounting volume.

Last year, for example, the company spent twenty-two million dollars on new telephone plant to extend and improve the system.

This year, the company has made plans to spend twenty-seven million dollars in new plant and equipment.

For the next five years the definite needs which the system is under public obligation to meet, mean spending in new plant over one hundred and twenty million dollars.

For Canadians this business outlook is inspiring because it is a measure of the progress of their country. For the telephone company it is not only inspiring, but challenging, because it represents a problem to be solved.

The problem is how to find the money for such rapid growth year after year. A great part of it must be new capital and there is only one way to obtain new capital. That is to go into the market and get investors who will purchase new shares or bonds as the money is needed.

That has been the procedure in the past by which the telephone system of today has been built. Since the company began forty-eight years ago there have been twenty issues of new shares, or an average of one about every two and a half years.

By this procedure the number of investors in the system has increased to a present total of 15,300, a telephone plant has been built which has actually cost $140,000,000; and the system has grown from a few hundred telephones to over 700,000 now in use.

Year after year, in good times and bad, new money is needed for more telephones if the system is to keep pace with the country. That is why the company wants to extend its horizon beyond the standstill point it is now approaching in the present limit of its authority to offer new shares.

the second reason

"—necessary plans cannot be started unless there is assurance that money may be obtained in the future to complete them."

NEW buildings and machinery must always be planned with definite regard for the needs of the future. They must always be a little ahead of present needs.

That is true of any business which is growing, but it is particularly true of a telephone system.

With a steamship line there must be docks before ships. With a railway there must be tracks and stations before trains can run. With a telephone system there must be cables and conduits and central exchanges before new telephones can go in. To wait until people are clamoring for telephone service is too late.

To build new for future needs thus is a necessity. But to do so without assurance that money can be obtained to complete the work when these needs arrive is out of the question.

In Windsor, Ontario, for example, telephone engineers forecast a development during the next five years that will require 32,000 telephones. To prepare for this a new building and extensive equipment are now under way in Windsor, at a cost of $1,700,000 and continuous costly extensions will be required thereafter to keep pace with the remarkable growth of the Border Cities.

At Hamilton a program of conversion to dial service has been started with a view to future needs. This change to dial service means immediate construction of a new building and an annual outlay of $500,000 in new plant for some years to come.

In Toronto the rapid growth in all sections of the city will call for yearly expenditures for new plant at least equal to that of 1928, which was more than $5,000,000.

other subjects to discuss

Details of the telephone company's relations with the Northern Electric Company and with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company will be discussed in later advertisements of this nature.

In Montreal the outlook is the same, and in Quebec, Three Rivers, Oshawa, London, Kingston, Ottawa, St. Catharines, Brantford, St. Thomas, Kitchener and a score of other important cities and towns there is rapid growth which requires planning telephone facilities in advance if the demand is to be served.

The program in long distance cables means 872 miles of cable by the end of 1933 at a cost of over $10,000,000.

All these things have been undertaken, as such projects in the past have been undertaken, because the company has been confident of securing money from investors when it was needed to put the new equipment into full service.

But if the company is not able even to approach investors, its assurance vanishes and to prepare for the future becomes impossible.

The telephone system does not need, and will not seek, all the seventy-five million of new capital provided for in its amendment now, nor next year, nor the year after. It may not need it all for a good many years. But it does need now the assurance that it will be able in the future to go into the market for new money when it is required.

the third reason

"—the company's present authority to seek new capital is almost exhausted."

WHEN the telephone company began in 1880 it had authority to sell shares up to half a million dollars. That seemed sufficient in 1880 when the development of the telephone was undreamed.

But with the growth of the system year after year new money was needed and the company's authority to raise capital was extended by Parliament as the old limit was outgrown.

This outgrowing of the limit is progress. It has happened, on an average, every eight years since 1880. The five past amendments to the company's act of incorporation are a record not only of telephone development but of Canadian enterprise. They are as follows:—

from	$500,000	in 1880
to	$2,000,000	in 1884
to	$5,000,000	in 1892
to	$10,000,000	in 1902
to	$30,000,000	in 1906
to	$75,000,000	in 1920

The present amendment would double the limit of authority again to provide scope for another period of growth. It would do so because, of the seventy-five million of shares set in 1920, less than ten million now remain for the company to offer.

This margin is not enough. It is uncomfortably close to a standstill point.

With twenty-seven million to be spent in new plant this year, and over one hundred and twenty million to be spent during the next five years, a substantial part of which must be supplied through the purchase of new shares by investors, the margin of less than ten million represents neither the steady supply of new capital, nor the assurance of the future which the telephone system must have to serve the public with efficiency.

eight years from now

IF the telephone company, when it approached its limit in 1920 had not been given new authority, Ontario and Quebec today would be struggling with a telephone system so hopelessly behind public requirements that all branches of business would suffer under the handicap.

The telephone company does not want that state of affairs to prevail in Ontario and Quebec eight years from now. It is proud of the part the telephone has played in Canadian progress. And with this Bill it is only asking that it be given continued freedom in its effort to serve the public with enterprise and efficiency.

A GLORIOUS ACHIEVEMENT.

The perilous winter flight of Captain "Wop" May, former war pilot, and his companion war veteran, Victor Horner, who flew 600 miles north of Edmonton to carry a supply of anti-toxin to Fort Vermilion where a diphtheria epidemic threatened, was as spectacular as some of the circus stunts airmen have been performing and decidedly more useful.

The intrepid flyer and his comrade faced death in their long and dangerous dash to the far north, but they assumed the risk not in any desire to win personal glory, but because the lives of human beings were at stake and the air route offered the only way of getting assistance through in time.

They realized the dangers of the journey, the possibility of being forced down in the wilds, and the peril of being smashed up in landing on wheels on the snow, but with dauntless courage ventured forth on their mission of mercy.

Captain May has added another glorious page to the history of Canadian flying, and more laurels to those he had already won as a war pilot and a peace-time flyer of skill and nerve.

SEND IN THE NAMES.

While there has been a splendid response to the request of the Old Home Week Committee for names and addresses of former residents of Peterborough, many other citizens who have not yet reported must be in possession of information along this line that would be of great service.

As a matter of fact, it is essential that as many old boys and girls as possible should be located in order that they may be told of the celebration and supplied with full details.

The success of the celebration hinges upon this particular feature of the committee's work.

The local end will take care of itself—or at least can be handled without a great deal of difficulty.

Just at present the important thing is to get into touch with former citizens.

We want as many of them back here next summer as it is possible, and Old Home Week will be a failure if hundreds of old boys and girls from far and near are not with us when the fun begins.

Citizens who have names to report are asked to send them in at once; the more and the earlier the better.

The best contribution to the success of the affair that can be made at the present time is information that will put a full list of old boys and girls in the hands of the committee.

OBEY THE REGULATIONS.

There should be a general compliance with the orders of Dr. T. W. H. Young, medical officer of health, that the quarantine regulations in regard to measles must be closely followed.

Unless ordinary precautions are taken in this respect the outbreak is likely to assume much greater proportions and cause a great deal of unnecessary illness and inconvenience.

There are, unfortunately, many people who cling to the old idea that this particular disease is a trifling matter, and that on the whole the easiest plan is to expose children to it as soon as possible and "let them get it over with."

The trouble is, however, that they don't "get it over with" usually without some decidedly dangerous after effects, some of which do not appear until much later in life.

Measles should, as a matter of common safety, be regarded as serious, and every effort should be made to keep the disease from spreading.

There has undoubtedly been some carelessness in this respect during the past few weeks that has been responsible for the large number of cases now under quarantine, and unless citizens co-operate more readily with the health authorities the situation is likely to cause trouble for some time.

If all concerned will live up to the regulations the epidemic will be checked speedily; if there is evasion, however, a continuance of the outbreak is to be expected.

WORTH-WHILE ENTERTAINMENT.

After many weeks of "dark" nights, local theatregoers are being given an opportunity to see a cycle of decidedly worth-while British stage productions that should do much to make up for the almost complete absence of substantial theatre fare in the last few seasons.

Unfortunately, the first of these excellent presentations, the appearance of the talented young actor, Gordon McLeod, in Clement Dane's success, "A Bill of Divorcement," did not draw anything like a capacity audience on Saturday evening, doubtless due to the prevailing epidemic and the inclement weather.

It must have been a disappointment to many discriminating play-goers to have been compelled to remain away from this most meritorious performance.

Several other good things are, however, in sight.

On Wednesday evening that famous English character actor, Bransby Williams, comes to the Grand in his own version of "Oliver Twist," an engagement that would be outstanding in any season. Mr. Williams plays two roles in this striking production, and does some of the best work of his distinguished career.

A week from Saturday we are to have an evening of George Bernard Shaw, when an excellent company of British players will present a double bill, "The Dark Lady of the Sonnets" and "Fanny's First Play," an offering that should be irresistible.

The Examiner calls attention to these productions because we feel that the spoken drama should have an important place in our hours of entertainment, and because we realize that the absence of adequate patronage will jeopardize our chances of being offered further opportunities of seeing good stage fare.

WORLD'S SILVER PRODUCTION.

Figures of the world's silver production in the month of November indicate that there is little chance that the present low prices for the white metal are likely to be corrected by a slackening in production in the immediate future. In some of the largest producing countries of the world the November output was shown to be larger than that of October, while stocks at Shanghai on Nov. 24 were heavier than they were in the month previous and those in India but little decreased.

Interest in the Canadian silver mining stocks has been small lately, owing to the fact that the price of the metal has had an unfavorable effect on profits, while production at some of the properties is on the wane, owing to exhaustion of the resources.

Canadian production in November was 2,003,000 ounces, compared with 2,051,000 ounces in October and 2,177,000 in September. Total production in the Dominion for the first eleven months of 1928 was 19,067,000 fine ounces, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics.

Silver production in the United States during November amounted to 4,657,000 fine ounces, an increase of 306,000 over the 5,352,000 in October. Output in that country for the first eleven months of the year totalled 50,778,000 fine ounces, according to the American Bureau.

Peru reports November production of 1,982,000 ounces, against 1,846,000 in October, and 1,717,000 in September, the total output for the first eleven months of 1928 being 18,611,000 ounces.

No other countries have yet reported November production to the Bureau. Mexico, the largest producer, turned out 9,138,000 ounces in September, compared with 8,727,000 in August. Bolivia in September produced 391,000 ounces, compared with 627,000 in August and 500,000 in July. Production in Australia was 618,000 ounces in October, 700,000 in September and 794,000 in August. Burma produced 610,000 ounces in October, compared with 604,000 ounces in September and 633,000 in August.

Refined silver in the hands of United States refiners and producers on Dec. 1 amounted to 905,000 fine ounces, compared with 856,000 ounces on Nov. 1 and 872,000 ounces on Oct. 1. Canadian producers and refiners had 346,000 ounces on hand on Dec. 1, compared with 718,000 ounces on Oct. 1.

Samuel Montague & Co. report silver stocks at Shanghai on Nov. 24 as equivalent to 132,959,000 fine ounces, compared with 132,594,000 on Oct. 27, while silver stocks in India, according to the currency returns, aggregated 362,519,000 fine ounces on Nov. 22, compared with 364,373,000 ounces on Oct. 22.—Monetary Times.

DRUGS IN ONTARIO.

Dr. E. C. Routley, secretary of the Ontario Medical Association, asserts that less than ten per cent. of the drug addicts in this Province ever come to physicians for treatment; the other 90 per cent., he says, "keep in close touch with the underworld, and, instead of treatment to cure them of the disease which gripped them, they sink further into the mire, until at last they are swallowed up." The doctor's estimate, alarming as it is, is less unfavorable than that of another authority on the subject, Dr. C. H. L. Sharman, chief of the narcotic division of the Federal Department of Health, who, taking the figures for the year 1919, estimates that less than eight per cent. of drug users in Canada were medical cases, all others procuring their supplies from street peddlers and various illicit sources. Dr. Routley considers the number of addicts in Ontario to be at least 2,000; it is difficult, if not impossible, to make an accurate estimate, but the figure given is regarded as quite conservative. Under Canadian law it is a criminal offense for any person to be in possession of drugs obtained otherwise than on prescriptions from members of the skilled professions authorized by the act to deal in narcotics. But the craving, once acquired, is so strong that it is almost impossible for the unfortunate victim to free himself without skilled assistance, and he will resort to any measures to appease his depraved appetite. This leads the medical authorities to the conclusion that there is only one effective way to cure the addict, and that is to place him in a special institution, where it is impossible for him to obtain supplies, except such as those which are administered by the physician.

The evil is admittedly largely a police problem. Since not only the vendors but also the purchasers of drugs are criminals in the eyes of the law, the responsibility for the suppression of the traffic rests with the law officers, and it must be said to their credit that they are discharging that responsibility in a very effective way. Within recent months seizures of huge supplies of narcotics have been made, which have put a serious damper on the business of the traffickers; but the peddlers are a crafty and an entirely unscrupulous set who stop at nothing to extend their profitable operations. It has been stated that more than 95 per cent. of the addicts upon this continent acquired the habit through persuasion by some other addict or vendor of drugs, who himself is often not a user. Of about 10,000 addicts arrested in New York and committed by the police department to the hospitals for treatment, no fewer than 98 per cent. acknowledged that there was no medical reason for their using narcotics in the first instance, their addiction being the result of association. Dr. Routley speaks of the hopelessness of attempting to cure an addict unless he is kept under constant medical supervision and removed from all possibility of getting the drugs for which his system craves. "You may have trained nurses and doctors," he says, "but the drug fiend will circumvent them all to get what he desires. To treat a patient outside an institution that is 'vendor-proof' is mopping up the bathrom floor and leaving the faucet open." For this reason, the Government is urged to make suitable provision for the treatment of addicts in the public institutions of the Province. "We fully expect that the Government will work out a scheme that will be beneficial and helpful," concludes Dr. Routley.—Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

When that English thief who stole the influenza germs gets through with that supply many Peterborough people can tell him where he can get a few more.

They may have prohibition in the United States, but the fact remains that one hundred million dollars' worth has gone over the border in less than five years.

The elusive Mr. Williams has been giving the police of Ontario plenty of exercise, besides creating considerable activity in the used car trade.

Forged Control Board labels are being used across the line to sell "prune" whiskey. Just another proof that Barnum was right.

And now all that is left of the Peterborough street railway is the memory of the sound of its flat wheels.

It is suggested that bridegrooms should wear fancy dress. It is doubtful, however, if even this ruse would cause anyone to take any notice of them.—Sarnia Canadian-Observer.

A Thought

WALLS BETWEEN.

As there is no screen or ceiling between our heads and the infinite heavens, so is there no bar or wall in the soul where man, the effect, ceases, and God, the cause, begins. We lie open on one side to deeps of spiritual nature, to the attributes of God. Man is conscious of a universal soul within or behind his individual life, wherein, as in a firmament, the natures of Justice, Truth, Love, Freedom, arise and shine.—R. W. Emerson.

GOD'S MINUTE.

Deuteronomy VI. 6—"And these words which I command thee this day shall be in thy heart."

* * *

Out of the heart, God sayeth, comes all that in Man abides.
Thoughts that he vaunteth proudly, and thoughts of the things he hides.
Love, and kindness, and mercy, truth, and each higher aim.
Cruelty, evil, and falsehood, and sins that he dare not name.
Take then thy heart, lay it open, and search it throughly through,
Many a thing thou wilt find there, hidden and closed from view.
Open its windows to Heaven, that the Sun of Righteousness shine,
Let its sweet impulses kindly grow in that light Divine,
Bind thou the words of our Master fast to its doors and say,
"Be ye my guardians holy, keep me from sin away."
For if thy heart be cleansed according unto His Word,
His law, and His love shall abide there, and help thee to follow thy Lord.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

TUESDAY, JANUARY 8, 1928

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Certain menacing signs dominate in today's horoscope, according to astrology, but there are aspects that offset them.

The wise will be exceedingly careful about investing their money, while this rule prevails. Speculation is especially dangerous.

The seers warn Americans that they are particularly susceptible tocontagion of thought, and for this reason incline toward extremes in emotional reactions. Like sheep they follow the lead in any wild mining, oil or general stock excitement.

Women may be foolishly avid to make money easily, and should be careful to avoid any risky enterprise.

The stars may encourage extravagance for personal gratification, and girls should practice self-denial where bargain-hunting is involved.

There is a direction of the stars supposed to affect the nerves, and to precipitate quarrels. While this rule prevails it is important to rest and to take stock of one's mental and moral as well as material possessions.

Older persons may be unusually critical, captious, and difficult today which will bring to employees many tests. Patience is to be cultivated.

Holiday romances and flirtations should not be pursued until a more favorable sway prevails. Many a football hero will appear commonplace while this planetary government continues.

Girls of 1929 are to make much of intellectual attributes as well as physical charms, astrologers foretell. The newest types will be clever as well as beautiful.

The seers stress the importance of proper conservation and administration of time, that most elusive of possessions belonging to all.

Mars seems to foreshadow increased rate from machinery, motors and explosives. Extra care should be maintained in factories.

According to astrology, organized crime will gain in power and daring in 1929, which will be marked by astounding acts on the part of enemies of society.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of perils to be met in love as well as business. It is imperative not to jeopardize either one's heart or one's bank account.

Children born on this day probably will have exceedingly eventful lives. These subjects of Capricorn are likely to travel much and to meet hardships in foreign lands.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

ONE LITTLE ROOM

I know that they pity me many a time,
The folks with a house on the hill,
Imagine how lonely the stairway I climb,
To a room that is lonelier still.
But, oh, they don't know, when they pity me so,
And talk of my terrible doom,
The peace and the rest and the quiet so blest
You can find in your one little room.

The world is so noisy the whole of the day
You tire of the poor and the proud,
The good and the wicked, the sad and the gay,
The garrulous voice of the crowd.
But the day's work is done at the set of the sun,
You can turn from the bench or the loom,
And whatever they shout you can shut it all out
With the door of your one little room.

Your book will be waiting, the book you let fall,
And here are the page and the place,
And some way you never miss riches at all
With one perfect rose in a vase.
And here is your chair, and your table right there,
A lamp that has banished the gloom;
And the world hurries by, but you never care why
In the peace of your one little room.

THE LUCKIEST LADY

— By —

Ruby M. Ayres

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XXVI—THE EMPTY ROOM

There was a tragic silence.

The Little Flapper sat crouched back on her heels, her eyes straining to see Marna's face through the darkness.

There had been something so terrific in those harshly spoken words, something so soul-revealing and bitter, that Biddy was shaken to the depths of her youthful soul.

"I've never known what happiness really is!"

She had known for a long time that Marna was unhappy, but until now she had not realized the depths of her unsatisfied longing. They had called her "Luckiest Lady," she and the Big Flapper! Blind little fools they had been! As if money and diamonds and all the things money can buy make anyone really happy!

She found her voice in a broken whisper.

"You've got me, Marna, and Uncle George, and we'd both die to make you happy."

"Oh, I know, I know. I'm ungrateful and wicked, but—I have tried—I have tried! I suppose I must be horribly weak, because in the end, unless you're very strong, you find that you can't beat life; life beats you instead, and that's what has happened to me."

"What do you mean?" the Little Flapper whispered; but she knew only too well.

There was a long silence, broken only by the wind and the rain outside; then Marna laughed as if in self-scorn.

"I've been talking nonsense. Why didn't you stop me? It's too bad, keeping you awake. Besides, I've got to get up early tomorrow."

Biddy moistened her dry lips.

"Early? Why, what for?"

"George is going to play golf," Marna smoothed Biddy's hair. "I've been telling him he's getting too fat, so I've made him promise to go down to Moore Park and have a day with Mr. Saunders. You don't know Mr. Saunders, do you, Biddy? He lunched with us and Hugh the other day. I like him. He used to live in Shanghai years ago. He's a nice man. His sister is going out on the Karmala with Hugh."

It all sounded stiff and unreal, but she struggled on.

"So George is going to Moore Park, and that means he must get up very early. I will leave here at half-past eight."

"Oh!" Biddy clenched her hands to steady herself. "Why don't you go with him?" she asked.

"I!" Marna laughed. "I'm no golfer, you know that. Besides, men are happier alone sometimes."

"Then let you and me go somewhere together," Biddy rushed in impulsively. "We haven't been out alone for ages. Do let us go somewhere for the day together, darling!"

"Not tomorrow. Some other time. I'm engaged tomorrow." Marna rose to her feet with a nervous little laugh. "Some other time," she said again. "And now you must go to sleep."

"I'm not a bit tired."

Marna stifled a yawn.

"Aren't you? I am, dreadfully tired. I wish I could sleep on late tomorrow."

"Well, why don't you? I'll get up and see Uncle George off!"

The Little Flapper's voice was eager, but Marna only laughed.

"No, I promised. Besides, it's not good for me to be lazy. I'm much better when I keep on doing things all the time. Good night, Biddy dear."

"Good night, darling!"

They kissed each other quietly.

"She'll guess that I know something if I'm not very careful," the Little Flapper told herself in anguish; but she had to restrain herself forcibly from springing up and following the woman she adored. It would be such a relief to tell her the truth—to say: "I know all about it! I know what you're going to do, but don't do it, darling! I beg of you, don't do it!"

But Biddy was afraid. There was something different about Marna tonight—something that seemed to keep her at arm's length.

"At any rate, I can get up early in the morning," Biddy thought, faintly comforted. "I can be up long before she is."

She lay awake for hours, listening to little sounds about the house, longing for daylight to come, but in the end, just when the first pale streak was showing round the edge of the curtains, Biddy fell into exhausted sleep, from which she was only roused by an insistent tapping at her door, and her name being called by one of the maids.

"Miss Biddy! Miss Biddy!"

"Come in!" Biddy murmured drowsily; but before the girl could obey, the Little Flapper was out of bed and had opened the door herself.

"Why, what's the matter?" she asked in a scared voice. She was half-asleep still, and for a moment she had forgotten the events of the night before.

The maid looked uncomfortable.

"It's nothing, miss—only it's late, and both you and the mistress being still asleep, and Harnigan in trouble about the car, not knowing what to do——"

"Harnigan!"

The name was like a key opening a locked door in Biddy's mind. In a flash she was fully awake. She caught up her dressing-gown.

"What is the time, anyway?" she asked in a quiet little voice. "And what's the matter with the car? And who wants it so early?"

"It's half-past nine, Miss Biddy, and——"

"Half-past nine!"

"Yes, miss, and the car was ordered for nine o'clock punctually, so Harnigan says, but there's something wrong with it, and——"

"There's the small car," the Little Flapper said.

"The master's taken the small car, miss. He's been gone an hour or more to golf, and the mistress isn't awake yet. She left orders that she wasn't to be disturbed, and Harnigan's that worried——"

"I'll go and see," Biddy said.

Her heart was pounding as she went to Marna's room and gently knocked, but there was no reply. The maid had followed her, vaguely disturbed and the two girls looked at one another silently for a moment before Biddy asked:

"Who told you not to disturb her?"

"The mistress herself last night, miss."

"But Uncle George——"

"Mr. Paget slept in his dressing-room, Miss Biddy."

"Oh!" Biddy hesitated yet another moment, then she turned the handle of Marna's door and entered.

The room was in darkness, but although she could not see that the bed was empty, the Little Flapper knew it instinctively. There was a feeling of desertion in the room—almost as if someone had just died there, so Biddy thought in terror—and for a moment she felt as if she must scream or cry out before, with a desperate effort, she pulled herself together and tip-toed back to the door.

"It's all right—she's still asleep," she whispered with cold lips. "Tell Harnigan he need not wait. I'll explain. She won't want the car yet, I know."

"Very good, miss."

The girl went away, looking relieved, and Biddy shut the door of Marna's room and stood leaning against it with a little sick feeling.

She had failed, after all. Marna had gone!

"Why did I go to sleep? Why did I?" the Little Flapper asked herself frantically. "And oh, what shall we do?"

She moved slowly across the room and drew back the curtains. The sun was shining brightly now, and when with shaking hands Biddy opened the window, the morning air on her face felt fresh and cool, and suddenly Biddy thought of the sea—and of Hugh Hubbard.

What happiness for Marna if she had gone with him! How could one blame her?

Then she thought of George Paget—dear, unselfish George—and a crashing sense of tragedy fell upon her heart. It would kill him when he knew; he trusted Marna so utterly, loved her so profoundly.

The Little Flapper looked round the room with piteous eyes. It seemed impossible that Marna would never come back again, the room was so much a part of her. The slippers she had worn at dinner last night lay carelessly on the hearth-rug; her brushes were still on the dressing-table; her powder-box and scent-bottles—— The Little Flapper gave a rush towards them as, propped against one, she saw a letter.

It was addressed simply "George," but to Biddy it was a death-warrant, telling her that her worst fears were realized, and that this was indeed the end—Marna had gone!

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE TURN PALE WHEN FRIGHTENED

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

The emotion of fear causes violent and radical changes in the body. In fact it is these changed and characteristic physical conditions which produce the mental state that we call an emotion. The quality of the emotions known as anger, joy, disgust, elation, etc., is determined by the bodily and mental conditions brought about by the given circumstances.

One of the important changes recognized in fear is pallor, but there are many others.

In fear the heart is stimulated to greater activity through a chemical substance secreted by the adrenal glands. This gland, which lies just above the kidneys, is about the size of a horse chestnut. Adrenalin, the material it secretes, has the power to change the chemical form of the blood so as to contain more energy. This increased energy is obtained from the sugar stored up in the liver for just such emergencies.

Other changes affect the arteries and blood vessels. Those leading to the stomach become smaller, allowing little or no blood to go there and the churning movements stop completely. The fear situation represents an emergency, in which it is more essential that the brain and muscles be working at top speed than that food in the stomach be digested.

In response to the general order for mobilization, we turn pale when frightened. Not only the skin of the face, but also the skin of the entire body grows white. This is also done through the influence of adrenalin which makes tiny blood vessels in the skin contract and shrink, thus releasing the blood contained in them, and creating the white appearance.

The real purpose of this strange phenomenon, really a precautionary measure, is obviously to reduce the dangers of excessive bleeding in case of scratches and wounds that are likely to follow every primitive occasion for fear.

Turning pale in fright, then, is evidence that your organism is taking every precaution to hide away as much of the precious life fluid as possible, just as a country over-run by a hostile army seeks to hide its treasures from the enemy.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write care of this paper, and send stamped envelope for reply.

W. A. MEETING.

Dunsford Church Society Re-elects President and Treasurer to the Executive.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DUNSFORD, Jan. 7.— St. John's branch of the Women's Auxiliary held their annual meeting on Wednesday, January 2, at the home of Mrs. W. B. Kennedy. An excellent report of last year's work was read by the secretary-treasurer. The former president and treasurer were re-elected. Mrs. Jack Elliott was elected vice-president and Miss Pearl Brien was elected secretary for the coming year. After the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess and a social hour was enjoyed.

VETERANS' PLEA FOR BEAUTY

(From the Montreal Witness)

It is gratifying to see questions of public taste asserting themselves among the banalities of our commercialism. Ex-service men's organizations have too often got into the hands of the professional patriot—the hundred per cent American or the hundred percent Canadian, to the detriment of their reputation for seeking anything more noble than group interests. In contrast to this, the action of the Canadian Legion of Peterborough has given expression to this consciousness of beauty that is growing amid our industrial materialism. Some time ago it insisted on the return of certain German guns to Confederation Square in that city which had been unceremoniously scrapped by some committee of the City Council. The trophies, whatever their merit, internationally speaking, deserved at least better respect than that. Now the same group is making aesthetic protest against spoiling the scenic beauties of the city by the ill-considered erection of industrial plants. It is at the moment a question of a projected gasoline station on the same Confederation Square in the centre of the city. But the efforts of the soldiers now embrace a general scheme for the preservation, as far as possible, of the amenities of the city and its surroundings. A resolution from such a quarter is not likely to be treated with disrespect. In these days when the old demesnes of England are being ruthlessly cut up into garden plots for the sustenance of a multiplying population, are indeed being taxed off the face of the land, and the ancient hedge rows being for like need shorn down, there is naturally a very live movement in that country for the preservation, so far as possible, of England's old world charm.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SNOW HOUSE.

(Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Sometimes Mr. Whitewash, the Polar Bear gentleman, would shuffle over to Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow to play checkers. Then, again, Uncle Wiggily would go to the ice cave of Mr. Whitewash to play tiddily winks. But the rabbit gentleman always wore his fur coat when he visited the Polar Bear, so he was almost as warm in the ice cave as was Mr. Whitewash himself.

But whenever the Polar Bear gentleman came to the hollow stump bungalow to play checkers there were always about thirteen twenty little rabbit boys and girls climbing around under the chairs or crawling beneath the table and getting tangled in Uncle Wiggily's paws or the paws of the Polar Bear. Then Uncle Wiggily would say to his wife:

"My dear, can't you take the children away while Mr. Whitewash and I play checkers?" And Mrs. Longears might say:

"Oh, but the little dears are so fond of you!"

"I love them, too!" Mr. Whitewash would growl, not because he was angry but because Polar Bears always growl when they talk. "Let them stay," he would say to Mr. Longears, and even then Jingle or Jangle or Buster or Custer might jiggle the table and knock the checkers off the board. And that made Uncle Wiggily nervous.

So the rabbit gentleman was sometimes glad when he could go to the ice cave to play tiddily winks because Mr. Whitewash did not have a lot of little Polar Bears crawling under the chairs and table to tangle in his paws.

Still, and for all that, of course Uncle Wiggily loved his forty twelve or thirteen little bunny boys and girls. But he didn't like them to crawl over his legs when he was playing checkers with Mr. Whitewash.

So one evening when the Polar Bear gentleman had come to the bungalow to play and when Skipper and Skupper and Wingle and Wangle (to name only a few of the little rabbits) had been crawling around on the floor beneath the checker table, at last Uncle Wiggily said:

"Dear me! This is too much! I must build myself a snow house where I can go in the evening and have a little peace and quiet when I play checkers with Mr. Whitewash. Yes, I must have a snow house!"

"I'll help you build it!" growled the Polar Bear.

"We'll come and play in it!" laughed Jingle and Jangle and Buster.

Uncle Wiggily looked surprised and then he had to laugh and so did Mr. Whitewash and they went on playing the checker game, but there was a lot of trouble, for Tooter and Scooter were playing tag around one table leg and they jiggled it and the checkers bounced off on the floor so you couldn't tell whether Uncle Wiggily won the game or whether Mr. Whitewash did.

"This settles it!" cried Mr. Longears. "I shall build my snow house tomorrow and after that, Mr. Whitewash, we'll go in there by ourselves and play checkers."

So the next day, when the little bunnies had gone to school, Uncle Wiggily and Mr. Whitewash went in the back yard and made a snow house. It was a cute little house, quite large enough for the Polar Bear to get in, however, and it had a roof on and a door and a window. In the window were sheets of ice instead of glass and there was a piece of carpet for the door.

"Ah, now we can have peace and quiet!" said Uncle Wiggily that night as he and the Polar Bear sat down in the snow house at a table made from ice to play checkers. "The children can't bother us here."

"They didn't bother me much!" chuckled Mr. Whitewash. "I love 'em!"

So the two friends played checkers in peace and quiet, but, all of a sudden, there was a sniffing, snuffing sound at one corner of the snow house and Uncle Wiggily, who was just making himself a Checker King, looked around and whispered:

"What was that?"

"Only the wind!" growled the Polar Bear.

"It didn't sound like the wind," spoke Uncle Wiggily.

"Well, maybe it was some of your little bunny boys or girls skipping around outside your snow house to see how it looks," said the Polar Bear, pulling his fur coat closer about him, for the snow house was cold. "Go on—play checkers!"

So Uncle Wiggily made himself a Checker King and he was just going to move it when, all of a sudden, the sniffing snuffing sound at one corner of the snow house became louder.

"I'm sure that isn't the wind," said Uncle Wiggily. "I'm going to see what it is. It isn't any of my little bunnies, either. They're all in bed." So he got up to go to the window to see who was making the sniffing snuffing sound.

LACE'S IMPORTANCE

This lace collar and cuff set, lace vestees and touches of lace set into black or other dark satin or silk frocks prove lace is more important this year than it has been for 15 years.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

Collar and cuff set of cream lace worn with brown crepe satin frock, fastened at the front with rhinestone buckle.

Beige, cream or ecru collars and cuffs are usually more becoming than those of pure white, but almost any sort of collar and cuff of lace, lawn, organdie or mull is more becoming than none at all, and I for one am glad that they have come back into favor again. Of course they are a nuisance, for they have to be kept in the pink of condition and they do add to the fussiness of dressing. They certainly give a decided advantage to the girl who is willing to take pains with her wardrobe.

I cannot name a single one of the notable French dressmakers who has not made use of these accessory collars and cuffs in recent displays of new frocks. Trim linen collars and cuffs are added where a tailored appearance wants to be maintained they are used on many sports frocks, afternoon frocks increase their feminine aspect by the addition of these accessories in fine lace, and even some of the evening gowns have deep berthas or panel collars of lace or embroidered net.

The sketch shows a collar and cuff set that gives distinction to a new frock of brown crepe satin and the detail sketch below shows, I think, quite clearly how it is made. Lace about four or five inches wide was selected—enough of it to go rather snugly around the wrists with French seams and to follow the outline of the v-neck with ends.

The cuffs consist of straight pieces with seams taken so that the cuffs taper to the wrists slightly, and they are made just large enough to be drawn over the hands. A convenient arrangement is to keep them separate from the blouse and to draw them over the ends of the sleeves after the blouse is put on. They may then be fastened at the top by little ornamental pins. The collar is attached to the neckline and the ends are mitered. They are drawn through a small ornamental buckle of metal or mother-of-pearl.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

There are just two kinds of meat to consider, a good cook told me the other day. "Tough meat and tender meat," she added, before I had a chance to ask for an explanation.

But from the point of view of the one who eats the meat, there should of course be but one sort of meat. One hears all sorts of strange dietary doctrines nowadays, but I have never heard any one advise eating meat as tough as possible.

It is agreed that tough meat is just as wholesome and just as nourishing as the sort that is tender from the first. Tender meat comes from the parts of the body that have less exercise—and hence have thinner connective tissues. Tough meats come from the parts that have abundant exercise. The reason why the breast and wings of chickens are so tender is because these birds don't do much flying.

Long, slow cooking is needed to make touch meat tender, so if you are planning a stew or other type of meat dish that may be cooked in this way don't waste your money on higher-priced, tender cuts. Some women boast that they use the best cut of round steak even for stews. They might just as well use a tougher cut if they know how to cook it.

The old-fashioned practice of beating tougher cuts of meat with a beef mallet before cooking is a good one because this treatment tends to break down the fibers. This should be done on a floured board and the flour that catches the juice should be used with the meat.

THE SKIRT PROBLEM.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—A grave problem confronts the Madras courts. Mrs. Hilaria Moursund, an Indian Christian, has filed an action against the superintendent of Malabar Mission High School because her daughter's skirt was lengthened at school. She says the skirt was an heirloom and the "stretching process damaged it to the extent of more than $25."

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

WHEN COLD BATHS HELP

I have written before about the mistake some folks make in taking the early morning cold bath, especially in cool weather.

The reason being that the blood pressure is low at this time, and the loss of more animal heat at this time, while it gives a nice reaction temporarily, nevertheless leaves these individuals tired by 10 o'clock. However, this does not mean that you cannot gradually accustom yourself to the morning cold bath. The suggestion was that if enough warm water were put in the bath to about cover the ankles, the cold shower could be taken by almost everybody.

However, where cold baths are used in treatment, as at Battle Creek Sanatarium, Dr. W. H. Riley points out that much benefit may be derived therefrom. The baths are usually about one minute and the water from 55 to 90° F. They produce two results. First, there is a depression because it depresses the activity of the tissues, and organs of the body to which it is applied. Second, is an exciting effect which stimulates the functions and tissues of the organs. It is, of course this stimulating effect which is beneficial.

These beneficial effects are brought about through the nervous system. When impressions of cold are made upon the skin, nerve impulses travel to the spinal cord and brain. These impulses set up impulses in cord and brain, and they send out impulses to the internal organs thus stimulating the action of the internal organs.

Dr. Riley tells us that a pale inelastic skin, with the circulation of the blood much below normal, can be simulated and its nutrition improved by the cold bath in a way that nothing else can do. The tone of the muscles of the body is improved by this short cold bath, and an actual increase in the muscle's ability to work has been definitely shown.

The cold short bath increases the force and lessens the rate of the heart beat, increasing the tone of the heart muscle. With the lungs, as you know, the first half minute the cold bath increases rate of the breathing, and it becomes irregular and shallow, but in the second half minute the breathing becomes regular and deeper, and the lungs more completely filled with air.

However, Dr. Riley warns us not to take the cold bath when the body is already cold, when the body is tired, or in conditions of shock or collapse. In heart or kidney ailments the cold bath is unsafe. Also that neither very young or very old individuals should take these short cold baths.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

SOME people have the faculty of saving themselves a lot of work, while others seem deliberately to go about making themselves a lot of unnecessary trouble.

The orderly housekeeper is the one who keeps things picked up and as a result does not need to do such an endless amount of cleaning.

One woman says, "Eternal vigilance in the way of looking ahead is the secret of the art of saving work."

The old maxim, "A place for everything and everything in its place," is as valuable to-day as ever, for if we look ahead we will find that time will be saved if we know where to find things when we need them. Work will also be saved by putting things where they belong right away, thus saving the extra emotions of picking them up from where they have been put for the time being.

That reminds me of the story of the women who was always putting things somewhere until she had time to put them away. She had just finished having her front hall all re-decorated with the stairs dressed over and a new rug to adorn the floor.

One day she remembered a black handbag that she thought she would polish and set the necessary bag and bottle of polish at the top of the stairs awaiting her descent.

But—before she was ready to go down, her small grandson, playing in the hall, caught the bottle with his toe and sent it to the bottom of the stair—the cork of course, having to come out before it reached half way down.

You may imagine the result!

The newly-applied wallpaper, the stairs and the beautiful new rug were beautifully "embroidered" with "jet black, guaranteed not to rub off."

Of course, that part of the hall had to be re-papered, the rug sent to the cleaners but to this day it still bears the fatal marks.

You will notice that it was her grandson who had the misfortune to do the fatal work, but if that woman was old enough to be a grandmother wouldn't you think that she was old enough to have learned some lesson about setting things down until she was ready to use them?

I suppose if she is doing some particular job, the routine housework is let drop until a more convenient time.

But there is one woman in particular on whom I have had occasion to call on a Monday morning, who once apologized for her lateness in commencing to wash. "But," she said, "I never like to start until I have all the breakfast dishes done, the beds made up and some of the things necessary for the preparation of the dinner ready."

Then there are some houses too, that look frightfully disorderly on the same morning. "I wanted to get my washing done, so I just let everything go."

The art of saving work takes in another fundamental principle. It is, whatever is done shall be done well. When any task is handled with about fifty degrees of efficiency, it has to be done over again at an early date, and so double effort is constantly required, and one never has the satisfaction of having things done in the way they ought to be.

By a little thought and foresight many extra motions can be saved. A woman who does her work with great ease never goes from one part of the house to another without looking to see if there is anything which needs to be taken along.

We often hear the statement, "I try to make my head save my feet." How true, and some of us would surely profit by it. It is a good habit to cultivate.

The art of saving time is dependent also a great deal upon a regular program.

We see a woman going down street without a shopping list—by the way that would have been just the thing for the housekeeper for Christmas, wouldn't it?—she goes into two or three stores, but comes out with only one thing when she really intended to get three. She isn't likely to accomplish much on that shopping trip, is she?

Knowing what we want to do and doing it is part of the secret of looking ahead, for how are we going to do quickly those things which need to be done if we do not map out a route by which to travel day by day and week by week?

Of course, just now, when so many people are ill in Peterborough, sometimes whole households at once, things are sure to lag and it is often a great while before mother feels able to get things going in routine order again.

Mother has, too, had the sick ones on her mind while trying to do the work, and anxiety is oftentimes harder than work. So give mother a chance if her usual routine has got a bit twisted.

Anyway the art of saving time is one of the finest and most profitable to cultivate. It pays in many ways, not the least of them being satisfaction.

DAILY READING

JANUARY 7, 1929

Today I am giving the neighbors two poems contributed by neighbors. The first is Rudyard Kipling's "The Flowers," sent to me by "Mack," and the second is "Be Economical of Mother" sent by "Just Thankful."

THE FLOWERS

Buy my English posies!
Kent and Surrey. May—
Violets of the Undercliff
Wet with Channel spray:
Cowslips from a Devon Combe—
Midland Fuze afire—
Buy my English posies
And I'll sell your heart's desire!

Buy my English posies!
You that scorn the May,
Won't you greet a friend from home
Half the world away?
Green against the draggled drift,
Faint and frail and first—
Buy my Northern Blood-root,
And I'll know where you were nursed:
Robin down the logging-road, whistles,
"Come to me"!
Spring has found the Maple-grove, the sap is running free;
All the winds of Canada call the ploughing rain,
Take the flower and turn the hour, and kiss your love again!

Buy my English posies,
Here's to match your need—
Buy a tuft of royal Beach,
Buy a bunch of weed
White as sand of Muisenberg
Spun before the gale—
Buy my beach and lillies
And I'll tell you whence you hail!
Under hot Contantia, broad the vineyards lie
Throned and throned the aching berg props the speckless sky;
Slow below the Wynberg fire trails the tilted wain—
Take the flower and turn the hour, and kiss your love again!

Buy my English posies!
You that will not turn—
Buy my hot-wood Clematis,
Buy a frond o' fern
Gathered where the Erskine leaps,
Down the road to Lorne—
Buy my Christmas Creeper
And I'll say where you were born!
Westaway from Melbourn dust holidays begin—
They that mock at Paradise woo at Cora Linn—
Through the great South Otway gums sing the great South Main
Take the flower and turn the hour, and kiss your love again!

Buy my English posies!
Here's your choice unsold!
Buy a blood-red Myrtle-bloom,
Buy the kowbai's gold
Flung for gift on Taupo's face,
Sigh that spring has come—
Buy my clinging myrtle
And I'll give you back your home!
Broom behind the windy town; pollen of the pine—
Bell-bird in the leafy deep where the ratas twine—
Fern above the saddle bow, flax upon the plain—
Take the flower and turn the hour, and kiss your love again!

Buy my English posies!
Ye that have your own
Buy them for a brother's sake
Overseas, alone:
Weed ye trample underfoot
Floods his heart abrim—
Bird ye never heeded,
Oh, she calls his dead to him!
Far and far our homes are set round the Seven Seas;
Woe for us if we forget, we who hold by these!
Unto each his mother-beach, bloom and bird and land—
Masters of the Seven Seas, oh, love and understand!

SILVER WEDDING

The silver wedding takes one back twenty-five years and is carried out in almost the same manner with the exception, of course, of the ceremony itself. All the guests present at the wedding with the bridesmaids and groomsman assisting, should be present at the anniversary celebration. There will be some who will not be able to be present and then there will be younger members of the families too.

The wedding gown worn twenty-five years before should if possible be worn by the bride of a quarter of a century. If the attendants are unable to receive with the bride and bridegroom, six young girls, possibly daughters and their friends, might be chosen. These bridesmaids will be dressed alike with silver bandeaus and may or may not carry flowers, while the bride should carry a replica of the original wedding bouquet.

The entertainment will practically look after itself. An orchestra could be provided behind a screen of evergreens, playing old songs during the afternoon.

The dining-table for the wedding breakfast will be set as for an ordinary wedding reception, with a handsome lace cloth, and the usual array of plates, napkins, silver, etc. The centerpiece might be a grove of tiny pine or evergreens about four or five, set quite close together in the middle of the table. The little trees are hung with 'silver moss' which is used to trim Christmas trees. The trees are arranged in a circle with a mossy glade in the center, and in this glade stand two tiny dolls, dressed as a bride and groom.

Silver candlesticks with white candles, one at each corner are joined with silver ribbons. Silver dishes hold the sandwiches, little cakes, white-iced candies, nuts, etc. About the foot of each candlestick are piled small boxes containing the wedding cake. These are tied with narrow silver ribbon and have the initials of the bride and bridegroom entwined as well as the date of the wedding, twenty-five years before, and the present date.

There is also upon the table a huge, white-iced bride's cake with the initials and dates on it in silver. The bride, of course, cutting the first slice before the guests are served. Fruit punch is on a side table and coffee may be served also. Individual ices in the shape of wedding bells are served as soon as the bride' cake is cut.

The serving may be done by maids or the bridesmaids for the occasion may attend to the needs of the guests.

The invitations are engraved in silver in the form of the wedding invitation, although the wording is somewhat different.

Have you celebrated your silver wedding anniversary? Or any other anniversary that the neighbors might be interested in? Why not write and tell us about how your guests were entertained?

BE ECONOMICAL OF MOTHER

(Contributed by "Just Thankful.")

The farmer sat in his easy chair,
Between the fire and the lamplight's glare;
His face was ruddy and full and fair,
His three small boys in the chimney-nook
Conned the lines of a picture book;
His wife, the pride of his home and heart,
Baked the biscuit and made the tart,
Laid the table and steeped the tea,
Deftly, swiftly, silently.
Tired, and weary and weak and faint,
She bore her trials without complaint,
Like many another household saint;
Content, all selfish bliss above,
In the patient ministry of love.

At last, between the clouds of smoke
That wreathed his lips, the husband spoke;
"There's taxes to raise and int'rest to pay,
And if there should come a rainy day
'Twould be mighty handy, I'm bound to say,
To have something put by; for folks must die,
And there's funeral bills and gravestones to buy,
Enough to swamp a man pretty nigh.
Besides, there's Edward and Dick and Joe
To be provided for when we go."

Dick and Edward and little Joe
Sat in the corner in a row;
They saw the patient mother go
On ceaseless errands to and fro;
They saw that her form was bent and thin,
Her temples gray, her cheeks sunk in;
They saw the quiver of lip and chin—
And then, with a warmth he could not smother,
Out spoke the youngest, frailest brother:
"You talk of saving wood and ile,
And tea and sugar, all the while,
But you never talk of saving mother!"

SHORT STORY

"Tom, dear, I really do think you are perfectly wonderful. Any girl ought to be glad to marry you. But I just can't say 'yes' now. You'll have to give me time to think it over."

Gladys Drake, standing there before Tom Gafney on the veranda with the misty moonlight falling on her face and hair, was replying to Tom's proposal with a composure that surprised even herself. She permitted Tom to take her hands in his and when he drew her to him and kissed her she did not draw away.

A little later Gladys sat before her dressing table, looking at her reflected image with curiosity and surprise. "It never rains but it pours," she told the girl in the mirror. "Any time last winter I'd have been perfectly blissful to have become engaged to Tom—or Walter—or even Rodney—and now they have all proposed on the same day and I don't know what to do about it."

Walter's proposal had come by mail and now Gladys drew the letter from her jewel box and re-read it. Her answer she had sent off by the afternoon mail. "Walter, dear," the letter had run, "I really do think you are perfectly wonderful. Any girl ought to be proud to marry you, but I'll just have to think things over."

If she had answered Walter's letter earlier in the day, her reply would have been different. It was not until Rodney had come in the early afternoon that it had occurred to Gladys that she would like to think matters over. Rodney had sat with her on the shaded veranda and, reverently holding her hand in his, had told her of his love for her. In some ways Rodney was not so attractive as Walter—but Rodney had a great deal to offer. Rodney had come and sat beside Gladys on the wicker settee, drawn her to him and kissed her cheek.

"I shall never love any one but you," he had said. "Gladys, I cannot live without you."

"Rodney, dear," said Gladys, taking his big hand in her small one, "Rodney, I really think you are perfectly wonderful. Any girl ought to be glad to marry you. I know I could love you. You'll have to give me time to think it over." And shortly afterwards Rodney had gone and Gladys had hurried to her room to write her letter to Walter.

And now Gladys sat there before her dressing table reviewing the proposals of the day. She looked at her reflected image to see what change had come over her—what fascination she possessed to account for this perplexing state of affairs.

To Gladys the difficulty lay not in deciding to marry any one of the three—but in deciding not to marry the other two. They were all so wonderful—and she liked them so much that she didn't want to hurt their feelings or cut herself off from their friendship. So Gladys sat there thinking and ended by writing a letter to Molly Fredericks, an old school friend. Molly, like herself, had never married and Molly was truly charming. She asked Molly to come and stay a week with her—there would be a dance or two and if Gladys played her cards right one of them—Tom or Rodney or Walter—would fall in love with Molly. That at least would dispose of one of them—painlessly and forever.

So Molly came and Gladys planned her campaign. Molly's visit extended to two weeks and still the festivities went on. One night Gladys and Molly sat talking—Molly sitting looking a herself in Glady's dressing table mirror.

"I'm in a terrible quandary," said Molly. "Tom Gafney made love to me tonight. Tom is perfectly wonderful. He told me you had thrown him down for Walter. The funny thing is that Walter told me you had thrown him down for Rodney and Walter wants to come and see me next month. Walter is perfectly wonderful and so is Rodney and I believe I told you that Rodney proposed last week. It wouldn't be so bad—only I had promised to marry Harold Granger—a sort of cousin of mine. He's coming on tomorrow, you know. Harold is wonderful, too—only we have known each other so long and we sometimes scrap. If I could just dispose of Harold I think I could figure things out with the rest. I hate to hurt Harold's feelings—"

"Perhaps I'd do as a consolation prize for Harold," suggested Gladys, rather meekly.

"That's precisely what I was thinking," laughed Molly. "It does seem so silly and old-fashioned to turn a man down flat when you might go on being friends with him. Perhaps I can transfer Walter to one of my sisters. Then it would be a toss-up between Rodney and Tom for me. I think I could find some one for Rodney—if you'll be nice to Harold. He's really perfectly wonderful and any girl ought to be glad to marry him."

A week later Harold sat beside Gladys in the darkness of the vine-covered veranda. "You are the only girl I really ever loved," he said. "Gladys I want to marry you." He drew her to him and kissed her cheek with reverence.

Gladys heaved a little sigh as she held his hand in hers and said: "Harold, I really do think you are perfectly wonderful. Any girl ought to be proud to marry you. But I've just promised to marry Tom Gafney. I didn't know I loved him till Molly tried to get him away from me. Perhaps after all you'd better marry Molly yourself."

Dietetic Dissertations

(Specially Written for The Examiner.)

O, some has meat, and canna eat,
And some can eat but lack it;
But we has meat and we can eat,
So let the Lord be thankit.

In the Christmas season—or its aftermath—the significance of Bobbie Burns' grace is probably more fully realised than at other times. A Thanksgiving speaker one said that the best way of expressing gratitude for our blessings was by using them well. Are we thankful for efficient stomachs?

True, a talk on diet at this festive time is about as appropriate as gray hairs in a rumble seat. It would take all the romance from our Christmas dinner if we stopped to consider the percentage of digestibility or caloric value of dressed fowl, nuts, plu pudding or mince pies. Santa Claus is no friend of the dietitian. St. Valentine who merely tries to standardize the shape of our culinary products is not so bad, and it would almost seem that St. Patrick with his insistence on the "wearing o' the green" for our dining tables had an inkling of the importance of vitamines and mineral matter; but Santa revels in a heavy meal and apparently defies the dietitian or the vegetarian to produce a healthier specimen than himself.

Yet, some there be who, though possessing full measure of the spirit of reckless generosity (often considered synonymous with the Christmas spirit) cannot follow Santa's gluttonous lead. In one case a milk and egg diet is being adhered to right through the holiday by a man who is not a hospital patient, and another family is substituting chicken stew for roast fowl as the main dish of the Christmas dinner out of deference to a convalescent member. Still another woman tells me that ice cream is her traditional Christmas dessert.

The Christmas colours give wonderful scope for salads, green and red jellies, pimento, cranberries or maraschino cherries plus a little ingenuity and artistry are all that is necessary to produce holly or poinsetta salads. Also, if the children can be persuaded to substitute fruit or fruit confection for the ubiquitous candy at times, their digestive organs will be benefitted.

The following salad is one which looks at home in a dining room in its Christmas dress:

Cranberry Salad.

1 pound gelatine
1½ cups water
1 cup sugar.
1 pint cranberries
¾ cup diced celery
⅛ teaspoon salt
Nut meats.

1. Cook cranberries in 1 cup water until soft, stir in sugar and cook 5 minutes.
2. Add gelatine which has been soaked five minutes in ½ cup water. Stir until dissolved. Strain.
3. When thick stir in celery and salt, turn into wet pan. Chill.
4. When firm, mould, cut in squares, place a whole nut meat on top of each square.
5. Serve on lettuce leaf. Garnish with mayonnaise.

Note: 1 cup white grapes or diced apples may be used instead of celery, or combine with sliced bananas and oranges.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., January 7 (Canadian Press). — A feature of the local grain trade on Saturday was the good inquiry for No. 2 Canadian Western oats for seeding purposes, but owing to the very light offerings from Winnipeg buyers found it difficult to fill their requirements. On account of the further weakness in wheat futures at Winnipeg spot prices were again reduced one cent per bushel. Car lots of Manitoba No. 6 wheat sold at 96c and feed wheat at 92c.

The demand from the United Kingdom and the Continent for spring wheat flour showed some improvement and a moderate amount of business was done. The local trade was also good and prices were firm. The movement of winter wheat flour continued slow but prices ruled steady.

The millfeed trade was moderately active and prices were unchanged. A fair trade was done in standard grades of rolled oats and the undertone to the market was firm.

The weakness that characterized the local egg market last week was continued on Saturday, and jobbing prices for all grades of fresh and storage were reduced another one to five cents per dozen. The receipts were 1,133 cases.

A fairly active business was done in butter, and prices were well maintained. Receipts were 59 packages.

The trade in cheese continued quiet, but the undertone was steady. Receipts were 141 boxes.

The demand for potatoes was inactive, but values were unchanged. Prince Edward Island Green Mountains sold at 88c, and Whites at 84c per 90 pounds, in bags.

Canadian beans were unchanged at $5.25 to $5.40 per bushel.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, January 7 (Associated Press). — Right-about-face action in the wheat market late on Saturday sent wheat prices down to an all-round new low record for the season. Chicago wheat traders switched suddenly to the selling side on account of weakness which developed in wheat values at Winnipeg after an early bulge here that was due to a brisk advance in corn owing to stormy weather west and to drought reports from Argentina.

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, ⅝c to ¾c to 1⅛c net lower. Corn finished at ¼c to ½c net gain, oats ½c to ⅝c to ¼c up, and provisions varying from 22c decline to a rise of 10c.

At first the corn market dominated wheat action, but the reverse was the case as the day drew to an end. Stormy weather sweeping eastward aross the corn belt and doing much to hoist corn prices was subsequently emphasized as a bearish factor relative to wheat, the reason put forward being that domestic winter wheat would benefit from a general snowfall which was reported. Over and above this circumstance, however, was the fact that weakness of the Winnipeg wheat market appeared to be related to selling here from houses with connections north-west and to slowness of export demand on Saturday for wheat from north America, whereas Argentina was continuing to offer wheat to Europe at below a parity with other countries.

Meanwhile, advances in corn prices went to within a fraction of the topmost level yet this season. Best figures, however, were not maintained owing to increased profit-taking by holders and as a result of late weakness in wheat. During the advances in corn, much notice was taken of a statement that corn supplies on ocean passage are sufficient for only one month's requirements in Europe. Besides, Argentine despatches on Saturday told of serious complaints of drought detrimental to growth of the new Argentine corn crop which is now at the critical state of development.

It was also pointed out that Argentine corn shipments are decreasing, that export premiums for United States corn at the Gulf of Mexico on Saturday were ¾c to 1c a bushel higher, and Chicago was being outbid for corn 1c to 2c downstats in Illinois. On the other hand, offerings of corn on Saturday to arrive in Chicago were larger, especially offerings from Iowa. Oats held within narrow limits, but averaged higher with corn.

Wedding Bells

EDGAR—POTTS

PRITCHARD—POTTS

MARMORA, Jan. 7 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Royal Hotel was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, when Gertrude Bernice, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Potts, became the bride of Thomas Edgar Pritchard. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a yellow georgette dress bouffant style, uneven hemline, with panels of silver lace and caught here and there with bunches of flowers. Her stockings were white and she wore white kid shoes. She also wore a crystal choker, the gift of the bridegroom and carried pink carnations and fern.

The bridesmaid was her sister, Myrtle, who wore pearl taffeta, bouffant style with overskirt of tulle caught with flowers. Her stockings were peach and she wore colonial pumps with silver buckles. She carried pink carnations and fern. Her gift from the bridegroom was a rose pearl on an amber raise. Gilbert Pritchard of Toronto, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. He received as bridegroom's gift, a gold tie pin.

The officiating minister was the Rev. C. J. Backley, pastor of Marmora United Church.

The bride was the recipient of many useful and beautiful gifts, among them being pieces of silver and lamps.

Dinner was served to over thirty guests. The happy couple left later in the day on a honeymoon which will take in Toronto, Sarnia and other western points. On their return they will reside in Marmora.

OBITUARY

MARGARET COURTNEY.

(Examiner Correspondence).

MOUNT PLEASANT, Jan. 7.—Word was received on Sunday morning of the death of Margaret Courtney, which took place on Sunday in London, Ontario. Miss Courtney was a life-long resident of Mount Pleasant, but had been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. H. Hope in London for the past three weeks.

The remains are being brought from London. Funeral announcement will be made later.

THOMPSON J. McPHERSON.

Interment took place at Warkworth cemetery and the service conducted by Rev. Gordon Duncan of the Presbyterian church.

THOMAS LYNCH

HASTINGS, Jan. 7.—The death occurred on Sunday, December 30, of Thomas Lynch, Hastings' oldest resident, after an illness of about six weeks. He was 90 years and 6 months old and came to Canada from Rochester, N.Y., with his parents when a child and spent the remainder of his life in Hastings and vicinity.

Left to mourn his loss are his two daughters, Mary at home and Mrs. Brazin (Clara) of Richmond Hill and two brothers, William, of Hastings, and Edward, of Rapid City. His wife, whose maiden name was Mary Healy, predeceased him twenty-four years ago.

The funeral took place on January 2 to Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, where Requiem High Mass was sung by Rev. Father McGuire, and burial was made in the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

The pall bearers were six nephews of the deceased, Edward and Thomas Lynch of Hastings; Gilbert and James Faux, of Percy, and Thomas and Albert Lynch, of Asphodel.

JOSEPH HICKS.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 6. — Joseph Hicks, aged resident of the township of Seymour, died at his home in Seymour West, late on Saturday night, following an illness of about four weeks. Mr. Hicks had not been in the best of health for the past year, but had been able to be about till a few weeks ago. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Emmanuel Hicks, and was in his 74th year. For several years he lived in the United States, but for the past thirteen years had resided at the homestead in Seymour West. His wife predeceased him several years ago. He is survived by one son, Ross, and two daughters, Nellie and Mrs. Garry Murphy, of Newark, N.J. Another son, Thomas, is now deceased. There also survive, two brothers, Thomas and Peter of Seymour, three sisters, Mrs. Culkeen of Seymour, Mrs. Annie Lemyre, resident in the United States: and Mrs. William Young of Gravenhurst.

The late Joseph Hicks was a member of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church. The funeral service will be held from that church on Tuesday morning at nine o'clock.

OFFICERS SEIZE HANNAH'S CARGO

850 Cases of Beer and Liquor Taken From Boat at Erieau.

ADRIFT TWO WEEKS.

LONDON, Ont., January 7 (Canadian Press). — Provincial Police seized the rum-running cabin cruiser Hannah with its cargo of 850 cases of beer and liquor when it docked at Erieau, Ont. The boat is now under heavy police guard. According to Inspector H. Gardiner, it has been found that a part of her cargo was missing, and evidence that a quantity of the liquor had been disposed of recently was discovered. The cruiser was brought to her home port after being adrift with her crew of three men on Lake Erie for two weeks.

LIBRARIAN REPORTS INCREASE IN BOOKS

"During the year the increased circulation has made its mark in the larger percentage of books that have needed repairing. Many which had outlived their usefulness for library purposes were passed on to institutions that asked for them, and to invalids.

"There was less mutilation noticed in the reading-rooms, but there were two or three cases of vandalism and theft in the Reference section. It is gratifying to record, however, that the damage done was not irreparable, as duplicates can be secured at comparatively small cost of the volumes that were mutilated.

Children's Department.

"The Children's Department has shown a corresponding increase for the year as the figures given below will indicate. There has been little or no trouble experienced in this department and the children have shown themselves eager to avail themselves of the privileges offered to them and have behaved themselves in a praiseworthy and orderly fashion.

"During the year 674 borrowers' cards have been issued to fresh patrons of the library. Of these, 296 were men and 378 women. This is an increase over the preceding year of 69.

"Three hundred and thirty-five books of fiction were retired during the year and 15 books of non-fiction.

"The following are the returns for the Juvenile Department:

	1927	1927
Fiction	16,013	16,534
Biography	1,214	1,216
Religion	456	337
Sociology	3,090	2,984
Philology	3,725	4,635
Nat. Science	2,064	1,617
Useful Arts	1,275	1,066
Fine Arts	683	457
Literature	1,004	353
Travel	1,967	2,110
History	965	658
Reference	2,791	3,581
Magazines	1,154	999
	36,401	37,227

"In this case, as in the adult section, the Reference Department has catered to many enquirers in the sections devoted to Fine Arts, Sociology and Useful Arts.

"The increase in circulation was 826. The reading-room attendance, 12,164. Number of applications for cards during the year, 672. The story hour attendance averaged 32. There was one talk to a visiting class from the schools; attendance, 83.

"In conclusion, gentlemen, I beg to tender to you, on behalf of the staff, and for myself, our sincere thanks for your kindness and the sympathetic interest you have accorded to our work."

Three Cars Meet in Collision On Main Street at Campbellford.

CAR SLIDES INTO DITCH.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 7.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Rain falling on pavement covered with a few inches of well packed snow left the streets of this town in a very dangerous condition, from Saturday evening till yesterday afternoon when the temperature dropped to below the freezing point and left them in a covering of solid ice, only slightly less slippery than they had been the previous day. Pedestrians were hard pressed to decide whether to risk walking on the sidewalk or out on the street. Business was as usual during the afternoon Saturday, but with the coming of the rain in the evening, there was a considerable falling off of trade and several merchants closed their places of business before the usual closing time.

Traffic moved at a snail's pace. But this did not serve to entirely avoid accidents. About nine o'clock, Saturday evening, three cars met in collision at the corner of Front and Bridge streets, all of them suffering slightly from the impact. The collision was sort of a progressive affair. S. H. Neale was approaching the intersection from Front street, north. Ernest Lee was on the Bridge street, a through street, proceeding east. Both cars were travelling slowly. Neale's car struck Lee's and sent it over against another car which was driven by a man named Baker from Springbrook. After the tangle had been straightened out, there were a few bumpers missing, but otherwise no damage was done.

Slides Into Ditch

On the Hastings road there is a long series of down grades extending for more than a mile. Part way down this hill, and just in the steepest part, a driver lost control of his car which had come down slowly till then, and after turning twice around the car slid into the ditch and against a bank without doing any noticeable damage or injuring any of the occupants.

Still another car coming from Belleville was turned completely over when it skidded on the icy road near Myersburg and went over a five-foot bank. The driver was proceeding without chains and hugging the gravel on the edge of the road for safety and traction. A billet of wood was in his path. But the wheel pushed it instead of going over it and the car began to slide toward the ditch. When it stopped, it had turned completely over. Fortunately there was little damage done to it except a broken running board and a small dent in one fender. With the assistance of four or five ment, the car was righted and driven to town.

FALSE ALARM

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 7. —(Examiner Staff Correspondence).—The fire brigade responded as rapidly as the icy streets would permit when there was an alarm sent in at twelve-ten yesterday afternoon. The alarm came from ward one, but was apparently another false one since no fire could be located although the truck cruised the vicinity of the box for some time before returning to the station.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENTS

Birdsall's School.

The annual Christmas concert and tree of Birdsall's school, was held on Thursday evening, December 20, under the direction of the teacher, Miss Wilma Humphries. Fred Faux acted as chairman for the program. Recitations were contributed by Donald Clysdale, Rita Faux, Ethel Mortlock, Virginia Lobb, Isabel McColl, Mary Birdsall, Harold Bray, Bert Mortlock, Edith Mortlock and Alice Post, Everett Elmhurst, Helen Bray, Arthur Hook, Jessie Sloan, Herman McColl, Annie McColl and Jack Barrie. There were a number of songs, including "I'm Sorry for John," by three young men; "Seven Happy Cooks," by seven girls and songs by Edith and Bert Mortlock, and songs by the school. The Welcome speech was made by Mary Birdsall. Dialogues included, "Boarding House Tidbits," "Bridget's Mistake," "The Minister's Mistake," and "From Pumpkin Ridge." Other numbers on the program were a violin selection by Fred Mortlock; pageant, "The Crowning of Canada," by the pupils; Garland drill by eight pupils; mouth organ selection by Everett Elmhurst, and pantomime, "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

At the close of this program, Santa Claus distributed the gifts from the Christmas tree.

Leafs Defeat Ottawa - C.G.E. Hockey Schedule Opens

BAILEY TALLIES FOR LEAF CLUB

Ottawa Maintains Strong Offensive But Could Not Overcome Victor's Lead.

RANGERS BATTLE TO TIE.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press). — The Maple Leafs at the Arena Gardens on Saturday night scored a 3 to 1 victory over their old rivals, the Ottawa Senators, in a fast, exciting and occasionally rough National League hockey fixture. The game drew another capacity crowd.

Frank Nighbor, the Ottawa veteran centre player, was missing from the visitors' line-up.

Though the locals secured a two-goal margin early in the third period, Ottawa kept within striking distance by a determined offensive which produced a goal by Touhey. Until Art Smith bumped and crashed his way right to the goal-mouth and beat Connell for the third Toronto score, the result was in doubt. Toronto's two other goals were got by Carson and Bailey.

Officials—M. J. Rodden and George Malinson.

Battle to Scoreless Tie.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—The New York Rangers and Americans, group leaders in the National Hockey League, battled to a scoreless tie in the third game of their intra-city series Sunday night. It was their second draw of the season.

Through the last half of the game, the Rangers had a slight advantage in the play, sending their attack storming down on the American net, only to lose the puck or to see Worters turn it aside. In the extra frame the Americans resorted to shots from the blue line, playing as if satisfied with the draw.

BRUINS BEAT PIRATES 3-2

Eddie Shore Again Stars As Boston Defeats Pittsburgh Crew.

SCORE ON COMBINATION.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 7.— (Canadian Press.)—The Boston Bruins outfought the Pittsburgh Pirates all through a heated and furious struggle to win by a 3 to 2 score here Saturday night in a National Hockey League contest. Eddie Shore was again the hero of the Boston victory. With the score two all late in the final period, he and Mackay broke through the Pittsburgh defense together, Mackay carrying the puck. His shot hit the back boards but Shore was able to fight off McKinnon and Smith, who tried to check him out, and cross over in time to play the rebound into the Pittsburgh net for the winning score.

With a pair of Bruins off the ice for illegal play during the final minute, Pittsburgh was given a chance to score again. The Pirates, however, wasted so much time getting their drive under way that the final whistle sounded before they could seriously threaten the Boston goalie.

Mackay put the Bruins out in front in the second period when he caged Weiland's pass but Milke ran wild through the Bruins a minute later to even the tally.

In the third period Gainor started the scoring with an unassisted tally but White offset this goal by caging Cotton's assist.

The line-ups:

Pittsburgh.— Miller, goal; Smith, left defence; McKinnon, right defence; Frederickson, centre; Milks, left wing; Darragh, right wing; spares, Dury, Cotton, White, McCurry, Holway, McCaffrey.

Referees—MacKenzie and Ritchie.

Summary.

First Period.

No score.

Penalties—Fredrickson, Smith, McKinnon, McCaffrey, Weiland, Shore.

Second Period.

1, Boston, MacKay, (Weiland), 12.35.

2, Pittsburgh, Milks, 14.40.

Penalties — Gainer, Shore, Smith, Frederickson, Drury, McKinnon.

Third Period.

3, Boston, Gainor, 4.52.

4, Pittsburgh, White, (Cotton), 15.50.

5, Boston, Shore, (MacKay) 17.42.

Penalties—McKinnon, Shore, Clapper, E. Gainor, Weiland.

RICKARD MADE MILLIONAIRES OF TWO HEAVY WEIGHT CHAMPS

Promoter Was Financial Life-saver To Many of Broken Wrecks of Fight Game.

AMASSED HUGE FORTUNE.

Lost Money in Mandell and Tunney-Heeney Fight Last summer.

at the championship he lost to Tunney in 1926.

Other possibilities as the new president of Madison Square Garden appeared in John Chapman, head of the six-day bike race industry, and Colonel John S. Hammond, in charge of the Garden after Tex left for Miami Beach to stage the Stribling-Sharkey match. "Mike" Jacobs, confidante of Rickard, also may be considered for the post.

Before Tex Rickard ever thought of promoting a boxing match his career had stretched through a string of story-book adventures from the plains of Texas to the gold fields of Alaska and back to the gambling halls of Nevada.

He was born in Kansas City, Mo., January 2, 1870, but his father moved to Sherman, Texas, when the only son, George L., was four years old. The youngster grew up on a cattle ranch at Cambridge, Tex., and was riding herd in Renrietta after his father died when Rickard was ten years old.

Joins Gold Rush.

After several years as a cowboy and later town marshal of Henrietta, young Rickard joined the rush to the Klondike in Alaska in 1893. He landed with another cowboy at Juneau, lugged his sleds through the Chilkoot Pass and 300 miles across lakes to the head of the Yukon, and promptly "struck it rich" in the famous Bonanza strike.

With a profit of $60,000, Rickard set up a gambling hall and saloon at Dawson. In one night, a band of lucky miners wiped him out playing roulette, and he was forced to cut wood for five months at $15 a cord for a living. He swung his axe at the side of Rex Beach, noted novelist, until 1899, when he hiked to Nome and set up another saloon and gambling hall with only $35 capital.

In four years Rickard, now known throughout Alaska as "Tex," made $500,000, most of which he lost on barren gold claims. Tiring of Alaska, Tex returned to San Francisco, then to the Tenepah and Goldfield section of Nevada, in 1903, with $60,000, all that was left of the half million, and started another "recreation hall" in Goldfield.

Rickard came east to take over the old Madison Square Garden in 1920, an arena then considered a "white elephant." Within a few years he lifted fight promotion to record levels, built the new Madison Square Garden and made a big business of boxing.

Sets New Record.

His greatest successes were Gene Tunney's heavyweight title battles with Jack Dempsey at Philadelphia and Chicago, with gates running over $2,000,000. He promoted the battle in which Jack Dempsey won the title from Jess Willard at Toledo in 1918, and from that time on staged every heavyweight title match. Dempsey's title defence against Luis Firpo under Rickard's direction drew over $1,000,000 and the Dempsey-Carpentier fray over $1,500,000.

Through his boxing activities and other investments, Rickard is believed to have amassed a fortune of several million dollars. He owns cattle ranches in South America.

Rickard's chief delight in his promotional ventures, came through the attraction of society to the beats he promoted.

There was a side of Rickard, the man who could whip into line the toughest fistic prospect that ever lived and keep him there, that the public rarely saw. His death will mean the loss of a friend and counsellor to hundreds of old timers in the fight racket and to many of the broken wrecks of fistiana he was a financial life-saver.

Widows of former fighters always were able to call on him in time of need and the man whose Midas touch turned boxing into one of the bonanzas he sought in Alaskan and Nevada goldfields never refused to aid those in need. Scattered through New York are hundreds of veterans who owe their jobs to Tex.

Rickard's success as a promoter was founded on a principle of "pay as you go," and never fail to make good on a promise, financially or otherwise. Where boxing had been a game that demanded the closest scrutiny of box office receipts and sometimes the assistance of the sheriff in collecting the fighters' share of a purse, Rickard worked on a different plan.

Funeral on Wednesday.

NEW YORK, January 7. (Canadian Press.) — Funeral services for Tex Rickard, are to be held here Wednesday at noon. Burial will be in Woodlawn cemetery.

The body will arrive here to-morrow morning. Until the funeral it will lie in state in the chapel of Campbell's undertaking parlors.

Pall bearers will be: Jack Dempsey, John M. Chapman, Richard F. Hoyt, William F. Carey, Col. Hammond, Matthew Brush, James I. Bush, Harvey Gibson, John Ringling, Walter Shields, James A. Farley, William Muldoon, George E. Brower, Walter Camp, John R. Kilpatrick, Sidney R. Kent, D. W. Dilworth, J. Ernest Richards, John R. Dillon and Sheldon Fairbanks.

Feared Surgeon's Knife.

NEW YORK, January 7. — Canadian Press. — If Tex Rickard had not feared a surgeon's knife more than he did appendicitis, he might still be alive to-day.

Rickard had suffered attacks of appendicitis from time to time for the last 12 years. Dreading an operation Tex avoided it, by repeated applications of ice packs during each attack.

Just before the Dempsey-Carpentier fight at Jersey City in 1921, the promoter was stricken with a particularly violent attack. Physicians eased the pain with ice packs, but advised Rickard to undergo an operation.

But Tex could not see it that way. "They'll never get me with their bowies," the promoter used to say. "They can shoot me, but not cut me."

DOMINION ENTERS

Canada Decides To Challenge For Davis Cup in American Game.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—At the regular meeting of the council of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, held here yesterday, it was unanimously decided to challenge for the Davis Cup in the American zone, and Canada's entry was cabled to the French Lawn Tennis Association in Paris.

Entries this year follow the precedent set last year by the French association, and must be filed in Paris this month instead of in March, as was the case when the cup was held by the United States. The dates for the challenge in Paris have been announced as July 26, 27 and 28. The first round in the European zone has to be concluded by May 7th, but the first round dates for the American zone have not been fixed yet.

CANUCKS BATTLE TO SCORELESS TIE

Canadiens and Maroons Fail To Sink Tally in Overtime Tilt.

MONTREAL, January 7. (Canadian Press.) — Canadiens and Maroons —local National Hockey League entrans—battled to their second successive scoreless tie of the season here Saturday night. Seventy minutes of rugged hockey failed to produce anything but a couple of offside goals, one by each team, both of which were scored after the officials' whistles had blown for offside plays.

The game was somewhat more open than the previous scoreless contest between the two teams, but tight defensive hockey was still predominant, neither team really opening up at any stage of the game. Owing to their fear of giving the opposition a break, which would pave the way for a goal, and one goal would have loomed large to either team at any stage of Saturday's struggle.

Both illegal goals came in the first period, Joliat beating Benedict for Canadiens, and Ward getting one past Hainsworth in the Canuck net. Both efforts were glaringly offside, however, and neither team had the slightest excuse to protest either decision.

Failure to win the game shunted the Maroons to third place in the standing of the Canadian section of the League, as the Toronto Leafs, who previously had been tied with the Maroons in second place, scored a 3 to 1 victory over the Ottawa Senators.

While the game looked to be evenly fought throughout, the French-Canadians really had more success than did the Maroons in getting at close quarters with the opposing goalie. This knack of being able to fathom the Maroon rearguard on occasion failed to have the desired effect, however, as the veteran Benedict, back in the Maroon net, after a two game absence, was in perfect form, and turned back the thrusts that did trick through his defencemen. At one time during the first period, the Canucks had a splendid chance to take a lead. Both Smith and Siebert were in the penalty box at the time, while the Canucks were at full strength. The remaining Maroons, however, made a gallant stand and held on until the return of their team-mates. Over-anxiousness at this time cost the habitants several perfect scoring chances. Eighteen minor penalties were meted out by the officials during the contest, while Pete Lepine, sub Canadien centre, was fined $15 during the first period for insubordination to Referee Laflamme. The latter had penalized Lepine for a minor infraction, and as he stooped to pick up the puck, Lepine knocked it out of his reach.

Over thirteen thousand fans witnessed the third local intra-city tilt of the season.

The teams:

Maroons	Position	Canadiens
Benedict	goal	Hainsworth
Dutton	defence	Manthe
Siebert		Burke
Smith	centre	Morenz

DRAFTING ROOM WHITEWASHES TOOL MAKERS IN OPENING TILT OF C. G. E. HOCKEY SCHEDULE

Fans Provided With Peppy Hockey Program at Brock Street Rink.

ENGINEERS WIN 5-0.

Office Plays Superior Hockey To Defeat the Machine Shop 4-1.

The C.G.E. Shop Hockey League opened the schedule on Saturday afternoon at the Brock Street Arena, with a bill of four games that provided a big crowd of enthusiastic hockey fans with a peppy program of speedy puck chasing, clever stick handling, and a few bumps and spills that only tended to emphasize the clean brand of hockey that was a feature of the playing throughout.

The biggest upset of the day came in the second game when the Drafting Room applied a liberal dab of whitewash to the topnotch Tool Room team, taking them into camp to the tune of 3 to 0.

The Tool Room, last year's champions, trotted out their same old, brilliant and smooth combination and team work, but when they got near the goal, either forget their fancy stuff or else it was spoiled by the whirlwind charges which the Drafting Room forward made, sweeping back on their checking expeditions. The winners' defence also played a big part in keeping the champions out, forcing the Tool Room gunners to do most of their shooting from long range. When they did get in, Bill Jackson rose to brilliant heights to prevent scores. Jackson had many times more work to do than did Jones, the Diemakers' goalie, as the Drafting Room did not do much shooting, except when a real scoring chance offered.

Tool Makers Force the Play

The Tool Makers took the puck from the face-off with a spurt that lasted for the whole of the initial period and for the greater part of the time had the edge on the play, buzzing around Jackson like angry bees, and holding the play in the winners territory as was evidenced by the fact that Jones had but one shot to bother with which missed the net entirely while Jackson was kept on the jump to turn eight hot ones aside. Ray Epps, the lanky Tool Room centre man, missed a fine chance when he broke through in a neat individual rush only to miss the net. Carroll was treated to a rest for boarding Thornton in the middle of the period but the spurt of the Draftsmen when the Tool Room was one man shy was of no avail against the clever work of Hatton and Epps. Soon after this Jackson put in a few mighty busy minutes, due to the fast pace set by the opposing forwards, until Swanger drew a minor penalty for bodying, when the pace slackened slightly the Tool Room falling back on the defensive. The session ended with no score.

Draftsmen Set Pace.

The second stanza was a torrid one from bell to bell, the Drawing Makers opening up with a fast pace and in the space of a few seconds hurled four shots at Jones, one of which almost rolled in when he fumbled it, but recovered in time, making a forward pass to Hatton who carried the puck along the boards, but was robbed of a goal when Jackson made a wonderful stop of a corner shot. The Tool Makers worked hard to capitalize on their combination plays, but their brilliance was counteracted when Dors. Davis took a loose puck behind his own net and in a lone rush, with some clever stick-handling, converted it into the first tally with a whistling ankle-high drive that gave Jones no chance. The torrid pace continued, with both sides being dangerous often, Swanger and Corkery playing great defensively. One spill in this period came when Hatton and Corkery attempted to stop Davis, who slipped through, the two Tool Room players piling over each other, and another time Palmer described a nice swan dive over Corkery's head as a climax to a bodycheck. Jones was called on to handle eight drives in this period, while Jackson stopped four.

Third Period Speedy Affair

The last period was equally as speedy as the first two, the Tool Room being kept in hand by the consistent and tenacious checking of Thornton, Allin and Masterson, who spoiled numerous rushes and combination plays in mid-ice. Masterson broke away through centre and snapped the puck over to Allin in front of the Tool Room defence, and Corkery was a trifle slow with his poke check, allowing Allen to whip the disc past Jones for the second counter. The Tool Room uncovered several clever three-men combination plays, Connors sniping in a hot drive at Jackson, who fell on the puck to save. The Tool Room lost a good chance to tally near the end of the frame when Epps missed the net after taking a perfect pass from George Williams. Kearns picked up a loose puck in centre ice, outskating the forwards and by a spasmodic burst of brilliance worked in on Jones to find the net with a low corner shot to register the third marker. The Tool Room forwards assisted by the clever work of Mickey Williams, battled hard for the rest of the period, but Bill Jackson rose to the occasion in superb form, while Eric Howe and Thornton were the feature performers in the defence of their citadel.

The teams:

Drafting Room.—Goal, Jackson; defence, Davis and Howe; centre, D. Allen; wings, Thornton and Palmer; subs., Kearns, Masterson.

Tool Room.—Goal, Jones; defence, Swanger and Corkery; centre, Epps; wings, Carroll and Hatton; subs, A. William, W. Williams, Connors and Gordon.

Referee.—"Waddy" Kenneally.

Summary

First Period:

No score.

Second Period:

1.—Drafting Room, D. Davis.

Third Period:

2.—Drafting Room, Allen (Masterson)

3.—Drafting Room, Kearns.

Penalties—Carroll (2), Swanger, Allen.

Engineers versus Wire Department

Sterling goalminding and neat passing combined to gain for the Engineers hockey team a decisive victory over the Wire Department in their first game of the Shop Hockey League of the C.G.E. at Brock St. Rink on Saturday afternoon.

Cameron, who guarded the net for the winners, proved to be a stone wall in front of the Wire sharpshooters who were unable to pierce his guard from any angle. The play was quite even in the first period, the Engineers bunching a little, but trying hard to work their combination plays, while their opponents seemed content to make lone rushes, whipping the disc at Cameron in long shots from outside the defence which were easily handled. As the game proceeded the Engineers seemed to find themselves and taxed Wilson with some close-in shots which he blocked nicely, while Hedger and Eddie Williams showed flashes of brilliance in individual rushes, Hedger working in on top of Cameron on one occasion but the Engineer goalie saved the day by falling on the rubber, Hall incurred the wrath of the referee with slugging tactics which earned him three trips to the penalty box.

Sinks First Tally

The final period, showed a burst of speed by the Engineers, and a few minutes after the start Archambault slapped the puck home for the first tally after a lone rush along the boards. Hall brought the Engineer's total up to two when he grabbed a loose puck in front of the goal for a perfect opening. Jack Killoran and Fanjoy completed the rout the former getting two counters and the latter one before the end of the session.

Jack Killoran, fast wing man was the best player on the ice working with cool deliberation on the defence and splendid effectiveness on the attack. Other Engineer performers who shone throughout were, Fanjoy, Hayes, Archambault and Doddridge who was very effective individually. Although these men stood out for the winners there wasn't a weak link in the chain, the entire squad working well.

Eddie Williams was easily the best player for the Wire with Hedger and Sutherland teaming up well. Caladine received a few jolts in the first which slowed him up considerably, while the rest of the team although playing fair hockey individually lacked combination.

The teams:—

Wire Department.—Goal, Max Wilson; defence, Dunfield and Sutherland; centre, Ed. Williams; wings, Hedger, Les. Calladine; subs, Lennon and Broadley.

Engineers.—Goal, Cameron; defence, J. Ault, Doddridge; centre, Hall; wings, Hayes and Killoran; subs., W. Ault, Fanjoy and Archambault.

Summary

First Period

No score.

Second Period

No score..

Third Period.

1. Engineers Archambault.
2. Engineers Hall.
3. Engineers Killoran.
4. Engineers Killoran.
5. Engineers Fanjoy.

Penalties.—Hall (5), Helger, Dunfield, Calladine, Williams.

Referee.—Bill Jackson.

Office Defeats Machinists

The machine shop and office hockey teams in Group 2 of the C.G.E. Shop League, clashed on Saturday afternoon in the opening game of the schedule which resulted in a 4 to 1 victory for the latter team.

The winners displayed good combination and fast skating from the initial face-off showering Clair McGillen, Machine Shop net guardian, with a regular barrage of shots in the first period, while Tommy Miller, the office goalie, was only called on to turn one shot aside.

Weir, Saunders, Playford and Tuck worked well together for the office, Saunders getting two of the goals in the first period, being assisted by Tuck in the first. The Machine Shop players although displaying some nice work individually, lacked the finish to the playing which was a feature of the winners' style. Miller turned in a neat card for the office, making a sensational stop in the second period when J. McCullough weaved his way through in a lone rush only to be halted by Miller who rushed out, spoiling the shot. He did not have nearly as busy a session as McGillen in the Machine Shop net who blocked 27 shots and missed four, two of which were unplayable.

Ashmore and Dave McCullough were the stars for the machinists, the former showing no partiality in his liberal display of body-checking. McCullough played a good game but certainly lacked his last year's speed and back checking ability.

The teams:

Machine Shop.—Goal, Clair McGillen; defence, Ashmore and Marchen; centre, D. McMullough; wings, J. McCullough, W. Ridley. Subs., C. Little, Busby, O. McCullough, Watkins.

Office. — Goal, Miller; defence, Beavis and Weir; centre, Tuck; Wings, Saunders and Playford; Subs. Northrop, Whatley and Cy. Hall.

Summary:

First Period.

1. Office Saunders (Tuck)
2. Office Playford (Saunders)
3. Office Saunders

2nd Period

4. Machine Shop O. McCullough

3rd Period

5. Office Cy Hall.

Penalties.—Marchen, Weir and J. McCullough.

Referee: Jack Killoran.

FAMOUS HOCKEY GAMES OF PETERBOROUGH TEAMS

By F. D. C.

A notable year in Peterborough hockey history was 1912 when the Bearcats as the junior team of that season was known reached the O.H.A semi-finals.

This year saw the debu of Joe Dwyer as a goal keeper, the rookie goalie developing into a star before the race was half over.

The Bearcats ran into the same kind of luck as hockey teams have during the present season. They were without ice for practice until the series was about to open and a team had to be picked out of a squad of some thirty candidates after one hour's scramble. That team went into action the next night, turning in a victory and with one exception, the addition of Fred Denison, fought its way to the second last stage in the junior race.

Their first game against Cobourg at Brock street rink had some interesting features.

The Cobourg crew, with five of their previous year's team in action were expected to be too strong for the inexperienced Peterborough youngsters but the latter showed unexpected speed and cleverness and jumped into the scoring column right off the reel. They were all over Cobourg in the first half, outscoring the surprised visitors by 5 to 1 and half way through the second half were leading by 8 to 3 and looked to be on Easy Street.

And then all at once the visitors decided to test Dwyer on long shots and the kid goalie promptly blew up. Jimmy Freeman, the ace of the visitors, took a chance on a long one from the penalty box and scored. A minute later he drilled in a second one from the centre of the rink.

Fortunately Rollie Weir picked this spot to score the Petes' last goal on a pass from Cook and it was worth a million for Cobourg ran in three goals in a row, leaving the score 9 to 8 for the Petes. Dwyer drew a penalty for slashing and his teammates had to battle desperately to prevent the Lakeshore youngsters grabbing off the tieing goal.

It was a narrow squeeze for the local crew in their first start.

The line up:

Referee—Harvey Sproule.

To-morrow—The game that won the Peterborough juniors of 1912 their nickname of "Bearcats."

FALLS BLANKS OLYMPICS 2-0

Niagara Breaks Winning Streak of Canpro League Leaders.

BISONS LOSE OUT 2-1.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—Niagara Falls broke up the winning streak of the Detroit Olympics here last night by taking a 2-0 decision. It was the second shut-out defeat of the season for the league leading Olympics and came at a time when they were aiming at their thirteenth victory in the Canadian Hockey League campaign.

Abbey Cox Stars

BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—Great goaltending by Abby Cox enabled the Windsor Bulldogs to hold their bare margin over the Bisons and win by a 2 to 1 score at the Fort Erie Arena Saturday night. Cox, by brilliant efforts, blocked a number of clever Buffalo shots which would have swamped the visitors' goals.

CAMPBELLFORD PLAYS STIRLING

Sextettes Meet To-night in Opening Clash of Trent Valley League.

ICE ARENA OPEN.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 7 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Davidson's Arena was officially opened for skating for the season on Saturday night. The ice was in excellent condition and had been used for three days previously for hockey practice. The finishing touches were put on the curling rink and curling will begin to-night. Arrangements are being completed for a three-day local bonspell to start the season. The hockey team will go to Stirling to-night to meet the sextette from that town in the first clash of the season in the Trent Valley League. There has always been the keenest rivalry between the two teams and a good game is expected. If gossip is an authority, every hockey fan in town is planning to be present at the game. The schedule was supposed to start on the second day of the year, but conditions would not permit the games to be played. There are already three postponed games in the League.

The rings, tees, hog lines and hacks have all been marked out and the ice is ready for play. The games will start to-night. Before the games begin, there will be a meeting in the members' room to select the rinks for the season and to appoint skips for the district and tankard games. The schedule for the opening bonspeil will be drawn up as well. The bonspeil is scheduled to start Tuesday and continue till Thursday. Prizes will be awarded the winners of the primary and also the consolation.

LOYOLA DEFEATS BOSTON.

BOSTON, Jan. 7. — (Canadian Press.)—The powerful Loyola University hockey sextette from Montreal defeated Boston College six to nothing here last night in a game featured by the exceptional stick work of Haynes, the Canadian centre and captain, and Power, his left wing. Boston College was outclassed at every stage of the game although Morance at left defense.

BOWMANVILLE HERE TO-NIGHT

Will Tangle With Petes in First Intermediate Battle of Season.

FAST GAME EXPECTED.

The Petes and Bowmanville hook up in the first Intermediate battle of the season at the Brock street rink to-night, and the fans can expect to see a real hockey match.

The Petes showed great form in the last work out, the forwards were breaking fast for combination dashes down the ice, the defence were breaking up the attacks well and Jack Lebarr was practically unbeatable in the nets. Abbie Rose, the blue and white mentor, expressed himself as being well pleased with the team and forecasted another win for Peterborough.

Bowmanville come here without much being known of their true strength but they have been practicing every night since the coming of ice and they are expected to have a strong team.

The Petes will appear in their new uniforms which although blue and white, have two shades of blue, a light blue and a navy, which combines to make a snappy uniform.

The puck will be thrown to the teams at 8.15 and the battle will be on.

The following players will take part in to-night's game: Jack LeBarr, Bert Hall, George Lackey, Ted Lebarr, C. Kenneally, S. Maudsley, I. Dundas, E. Foley, F. Cripps, and E. Williams.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

The Petes are all set to meet Bowmanville to-night at the Brock in the first Intermediate game. The ice is fast and a good game is expected.

The locals were working some clever combination in their last practice under the tuition of Abbie Rose. The whole squad were hitting in all almost mid-season form.

The City League gets away to flying start this week with the first games being scheduled for Friday night at Brock Street Rink. All the teams have had several workouts and the teams seem to be very evenly balanced.

* * * * * * *

The big upset of the opening games of the C.G.E. Shop League was the defeat of the champion Tool Room team by the representatives of the Drafting Room. All the fans confidently expected last year's winners to step in and draw first blood but the Drafting Room puck chasers soon took command of the play and notched out a victory.

* * * * * * *

Marmora plays Lakefield at Brock Street Rink Wednesday night and Walter Jackson will be handling the bell. If the teams in this league can turn in as close games as the memorable Lakefield-Havelock struggles of last year the fans will certainly be on hand to see every battle.

* * * * * * *

Local fans will get a chance to get a line on the Lindsay Juniors this year by watching the outcome of the Bobcaygeon-Lindsay game that is to be played in 'Cayeon to-morrow night. Elwood Coombs said that the Lindsay Juniors were a strong outfit this year and that he expects big things of them.

Tex Rickard, the colossus of sport and the greatest sport magnate this continent has ever seen, is dead. Rickard took a gamble with death and underwent a surgical operation although he had an unnatural fear and dread of the surgeon's knife. He had planned to give up the burden of his business very shortly and begin to play, enjoying the freedom and fun that he had missed while a lad.

* * * * * * *

The passing of Tex Rickard also meant the passing of Jack Dempsey from the sporting picture. It is not likely that Dempsey will ever step into a ring again.

* * * * * * *

The New York Rangers and the Americans battled to a scoreless tie after 70 minutes of fast hockey before 18,00 fans, who jammed the Gardens. The only vacant seat was the box of Tex Rickard, which was draped in mourning and the players wore black bands as a mark of respect for his memory.

Irvin Bailey kept up his scoring form by shooting in the Leaf's second goal on Saturday night to help in their 3 to 1 victory over the Ottawa Senators. The Leafs as a result of the win are in second place in the group standings.

* * * * * * *

The Canadiens and Maroons battled seventy minutes to a scoreless tie, the second such game this season, on Saturday night. Neither team really opened up and defensive hockey was the order throughout.

JUNIORS PLAY BOWMANVILLE

Local Team Will Play Their First Game of Schedule To-morrow.

READY FOR TILT.

The Peterborough Hockey Club's good junior team play the Bowmanville Juniors in their first game of the season at Brock Street Rink to-morrow night. The local team, with several hard practises behind them, are already to swing into action.

The Petes are composed of a team of experienced players, most of them not being new to O.H.A. ranks. They do not lack for material and have a host of good youngsters in their fold. The team will be picked from the following players: Sam Jones, Jim Gillespie, Doug. Hatton, Pat Calladine, Bernie Jones, Jim Ellis, Bill Cripps, Vern Dallin, R. Creighton, G. Merrett, and H. Epps.

ENGLAND TO PLAY TWO MORE MATCHES

Team Receives Congratulations of Friends For Retaining Championship.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 7 (Canadian Press Cable)—Having won the third cricket test match here with Australia, the rubber of the series, so dramatically, and being safely in possession of the symbolical championship "Ashes" one more, the members of the English team were taking things easy yesterday, reading the many cables of congratulations. Among the first to be received was a message from Premier Stanley Baldwin. The tourists have a number of more or less minor teams to play until January 25, when they engage South Australia at Adelaide as curtain raiser to the fourth test match.

With the rubber of this tour's series in their pockets, England will now go after the decision in the next two test matches in order to wind up the tour and to be on a fifty-fifty basis with Australia as regards wins in all tests. Two wins will effect this for them.

The English team need a rest as the bowlers have had a bad time of it. Harold Larwood, one of England's fast trundlers, has been slipping since the second test in December. He has a sore back and a strained ankle and he gave out in the second Australian innings here. He will be given treatment for a couple of weeks and nursed back to strength, as his absence from the team seriously unbalances the attack, while his batting has several times been required in a pinch.

OLD RIFLEMEN ARE BARRED

Important Changes Made in Rules of Kolapore Cup Contest.

LONDON, Jan. 7 (Canadian Press Cable)—Canada will be deeply interested in an important change just effected by the National Rifle Association in the conditions of the shoot for the famous Kolapore Cup at the annual Bisley meeting of the Association, when riflemen from the services in all parts of the Empire gather. This change bars from the Mother Country team men who have shot for three previous occasions in the match. Overseas teams have often felt over of such hardened marksmen as the Mother Country is able to place in the field. Last year the Mother Country with veteran shots took up the cup from Canada, whose team won it in 1927, 1926, and 1925.

The regulation will bar from future Kolapore shoots many famous marksmen including A. G. Fulton, H. G. Burr, Sergeant Rowland, Dr. Kelly, Col. Marchment, H. Douglas, Major Rankin and J. Runciman.

Otherwise the program for the 1929 meeting is much the same as last year. It will be held from July 8 to 20, inclusive.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

BILLIE DOVE SCORES SUCCESS IN STRANGE, DAZZLING ROMANCE, "THE YELLOW LILY," WEEK'S OUTSTANDING FILM

Star Gives Exquisite Performance in Fascinating Story of Aristocratic Hungary—Clive Brook Scores—Directed by Alexander Korda, Famous for "Helen of Troy."

How they make love in Hungary! That remark, highly exclamatory in nature, will be heard frequently around the lobby of the Regent Theatre after the local film patrons have seen some exotic love and intrigue in "The Yellow Lily."

Billie Dove, ravishingly beautiful always, and especially so under a new incandescent lighting system used for the picture, stars in this First National picture. Opposite her, poised and distinguished, is Clive Brook in the uniform of an Hungarian archduke.

"The Yellow Lily" was adapted from the play by Lajos Biro, famous Hungarian playright. Alexander Korda, famous Hungarian(directed it. Many Hungarian actors appear in it, and all the costumes and properties, together with several technical experts, were imported directly from Magyar land for the picture!

We may vouch for the realism of the Hungarian atmosphere in "The Yellow Lily" therefore, and its exotic love-making, and plotting must be the real thing in that colorful land.

Miss Dove secretly loves Brook, the worldly-tired, somewhat notrious Archduke of the story. He finishes an affair with an actress, meets the heroine, and pursues her. She loves him despite his many unsuccessful attempts to secure her without benefit of clergy. In defending her honor and her brother against him, she wounds him, and is placed in prison for it. From there on, the plot gets more and more exciting—but telling the story would spoil the climax, which is a smashing one!

One of the striking features of "The Yellow Lily" is the picturesque types of its supporting actors, and their fine performances. Gustav von Seyffertitz, Jane Winton, Nicholas Soussanin, Marc MacDermott, Charles Puffy and Eugenie Besserer have the principal supporting roles.

"The Yellow Lily" is ideal for Billie Dove's talents. And it should please and thrill everyone who admires the beautiful and accomplished star, and who are intrigued by romantic love stories with action and suspense.

AT THE CAPITOL.

EMIL JANNINGS IN "THE PATRIOT" AT THE CAPITOL TONIGHT SCREEN'S GREATEST DRAMATIC ACTOR, GIVES WONDERFUL PERFORMANCE.

Truly "The Patriot" is one of the leaders in screen achievement. This wonder film opens at the Capitol today and from all advance reports it is a masterpiece.

Headed by the incomparable Emil Jannings, "The Patriot" swings along in a smooth manner resolving from one sequence into another with as fine a climax ever portrayed by any group of players. Jannings is superb, and gives us a characterization that will be long remembered. He has achieved the absolute pinnacle of dramatic perfection in this picture.

The great actor portrays Mad Czar Paul, Autocrat of all the Russians. He was a most fascinating figure, so historians tell us, and Jannings has succeeded in capturing the spirit of his character. Mad Paul had the heart of a child, and the brain of a tiger. Jannings portrays both.

There are others in the cast too, who add to the film triumph. Florence Vidor is delightful as the Countess Ostermann; Lewis Stone as Phalen, and the leading figure in the conspiracy has done his best work to date; Neil Hamilton as the Crown Prince Alexander gives a very human character. Others who contribute are Vera Vorinnan and Harry Cording.

Ernst Lubitsch directed this epic, and it must be said the European director has succeeded in bringing to the screen the famous stage play by Alfred Neumann in a most successful manner, perhaps eclipsing any picture he has made since coming to these shores. It is easy to discern that Lubitsch and Jannings have thrown their every resource into this one film.

Seldom have the patrons of this city been privileged to witness such a picture as "The Patriot." It is the peer of them all from every standpoint.

AT THE GRAND.

"OLIVER TWIST"

The stark reality and horror of some of the great moments in "Oliver Twist", its "crook" characters and mystery, were too much for the era in which it was first proposed to offer it as a stage story. Now it comes to Grand Opera House on Wednesday, January 9th, and there is no question but that it will thrill and sway as great an audience as will any other play of the season.

The change in outlook is due to several things; the public is accustomed now to "crook" and mystery dramas; much of the realism on which Dickens is happily gone; and the world to-day does not desire to hide its sore spots as it did a couple of generations ago. But the greatest reason is that Dickens wrote for all time, and no law or ruling could keep his stories in the background.

It is true that "Oliver Twist" has tragic moments that bring a lump to the throat, that it has dramatic moments that almost lift the hair, but it is withal so imbued with the charm of Dickens that it stands out for all time as a classic. It is crammed with characters of love, to laugh at, to hate, to arouse the mind.

Bransby Williams makes his present tour with an exceptionally strong company, and is himself fresh from a season in the Old Country in which he has added fresh laurels to his name. Playing the cunning fiendish Fagin one moment, and back on the stage in almost no time as Grimwig, involving an absolute change of mental process, costume, speech, appearance, he gives in "Olive Twist" a performance that is fit to rank among the best ever seen here.

Betty Booth is back with the company and Oliver Twist is seen in a character which she has completely mastered and in which she gives an outstanding performance. Miss Kathleen Saintsbury, who inherits her histrionic ability from her famous father, grips the imagination with her presentation of Nancy. Lodge Percy, Leonard Turner, and several others well known in London round out a splendid company.

An interesting feature of this production of "Oliver Twist" is the manner in which it has been fitted together to run in chronological order to its climax, the extraneous dialogue and scenes being shortened to a pantomime-like set of "cameos" in which the story is well strung together with all the boring passages eliminated.

Bransby Williams, of course, is a great attraction in any of the many roles he has played, but in "Oliver Twist" he does his best Dickensian work, and he has chosen for his local appearance exactly what he would have been asked to play had

"A BILL OF DIVORCEMENT."

Saturday night's inclement weather interfered with the attendance at the Grand on Saturday night, but those who braved the elements to see Gordon McLeod and his capable company in Clement Dane's clever play, "A Bill of Divorcement," were amply rewarded.

The vehicle used by Mr. McLeod on this occasion was a smart and powerful play in which Miss Dane handled a series of gripping social complications in a manner that was full of interest. The action revolved around the Fairfield family, the father of which, returning from service in France as a mental case, and confined to an asylum, managed to make his escape sixteen years after and find his way home. Naturally his arrival created consternation as his wife, after divorcing him, was about to remarry, and there were other complications that caused trouble.

This smart play gave Mr. McLeod and his well-balanced company full scope for their artistry, and the presentation was even more enjoyable than "Elizabeth's Prisoner," in which the McLeod players were seen here earlier in the season. Mr. McLeod scored an individual triumph as Hillary Fairfield, a role in which he has won laurels on both sides of the Atlantic, and in which his splendid talent was displayed to the greatest advantage. Miss Lilian Christine gave an admirable performance and Aubrey Mallalieu, Heather McIntyre, Olive Walter, P. Kynaston-Reeves, and other members of the cast were of great assistance.

PETERBORO POULTRY SHOW

Opens To-Morrow

January 8th, 1929

and continues

WEDNESDAY THURSDAY

in the

MARKET HALL

WITH A HIGH-CLASS EXHIBIT OF POULTRY IN ALL CLASSES,

and the citizens are cordially invited to attend, not only from the city but from all the surrounding district. It is most interesting and instructive.

The Peterborough Poultry Show is an established institution of more than a quarter of a century, is growing all the time, and is essential as well to users of poultry products as well as to producers. Make it a point to attend.

Admission is Only 25c.

EGGS FOR HATCHING SHOULD BE SELECTED

Only Eggs of Standard Size, Shape and Color Should Be Incubated.

Just because a hen is a high producer does not mean she should be used as a breeder. The kind of eggs she lays is equally as important as the number. We must not lose sight of this fact when saving hatching eggs.

In selecting hatching eggs, color, shape, size and shell texture are things to watch. While color has no direct effect on hatchability, it is undesirable to incubate off-colored eggs because the factors for shell color are inherited, and the consumer prefers a uniform product. Only eggs of good color should be set.

Avoid Incubating Poor Eggs.

Shape of an egg is another inheritable characteristic. Mis-shapen eggs very often hatch quite well and apparently hatch into strong husky chicks, but in using them you are intensifying the undesirable factors responsible for poorly shaped eggs.

Egg size is also inherited. Needless to say, every breeder should discard small eggs when picking hatching eggs because most markets are discriminating against them. Aside from the fact that egg size is inheritable eggs of standard size as a rule produce chicks that have a better start in life and grow more rapidly.

Shell imperfections may not be inheritable but interfere with the hatchability. For example, thin shelled eggs ordinarily evaporate too rapidly. Select eggs that are strong, sound in shell texture, and free from ridges, cracks and transparent spots. Eggs with good shells indicate that the hens which layed them were properly nourished and in good health.

Gather Eggs Frequently.

Good eggs often become poor hatching eggs simply because they do not receive proper attention while held for incubation. Gather eggs as soon as possible after they are layed and place them where the temperature remains 50 to 55 degrees. Holding an egg at a lower temperature than 50 degrees is apt to chill the germ, while if it is held at a higher temperature than 55 degrees development of the germ starts. In either case it proves to be a direct injury when the egg is incubated.

Cleanliness is also important. Never handle hatching eggs with oily or dirty hands, and be sure that the nests have clean material in them. Dirty nests mean dirty eggs and clean eggs have to be cleaned with a cloth before putting in an incubator the protective coat of the shell is removed, and as a result evaporation may be too rapid.

The fresher an egg can be placed in an incubator, the better. Eggs should not be held over ten days at the most, because the hatching quality decreases rapidly after that time.

RETIREMENT IS SUGGESTED

Sir Charles Madden, First Sea Lord of Admiralty, Wants Position Reviewed

LONG NAVAL CAREER.

(By Thomas T. Champion, London Manager of the Canadian Press.)

LONDON, January 7. — A report that Sir Charles Madden is retiring in June from the position of First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, is described as premature.

Sir Charles, it seems, is anxious his position be reviewed, inasmuch as he does not desire to stand in the way of younger men.

Sir Charles, who is 66 years old, succeeded Earl Beatty in May, 1927, after Earl Beatty had completed seven years in the previous November. This being the maximum period an officer is allowed to serve on the Admiralty Board except under special circumstances. Upon appointment, Sir Charles was the senior and most experienced officer whose qualifications were then discussed. At the outbreak of the war he served on H. M. S. Iron Duke as chief-of-staff to Earl Jellico, his brother-in-law. They served together until 1916, including the Battle of Jutland.

For the last two years of the war, Sir Charles was second-in-command of the Grand Fleet, with his flag on H.M.S. Revenge. When King George visited the fleet in 1922, he sent Sir Charles this message:

"It is especially gratifying to me to inspect the fleet before you haul down your flag after a long and remarkable career. You have achieved what is a unique record in modern times in having served continuously afloat as a flag officer for no less than ten and a half years, including the whole of the war."

TWO GO DOWN WITH STEAMER

German Freighter Sinks 500 Miles Off Coast of Newfoundland.

SHIP STANDS BY.

BREMEN, Germany, Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—All but two members of the German steamer Roedelheim, which sprang a leak about 500 miles east of Newfoundland, were rescued yesterday by the American steamer Saguache. The men lost were the third engineer and the ship's carpenter, who were drowned.

Word of the disaster was received by the owners of the German freighter in a wireless message from the captain of the Saguache. The message told of the rescues and said that the German freighter had sprung a leak during a storm, making it imperative to take off the crew, as the vessel was doomed.

The American captain added that he would land the Roedelheim's crew either at Portland or Halifax. He placed the scene of the disaster at 44 degrees west longitude north latitude, which is about 500 miles due east of Cape Race.

PRIMATE IS RECOVERING

Bulletin States Archbishop of Canterbury Making Favorable Progress Towards Recovery.

REQUIRES REST.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—(Canadian Press).—A bulletin signed by his physician, Dr. Whitehead Reid last evening indicated that the Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury, is recovering from his illness of the last few weeks.

The bulletin said: "The Archbishop is making a favorable progress toward recovery. As a result, however, of consultation with Lord Dawson of Penn and Sir Hugh Rigby (who are also attending the King in his illness) it has been decided His Grace must refrain from public engagements for a few weeks and until his health and strength have been completely restored.

POULTRY SHOW OPENS TUESDAY

Continues Wednesday and Thursday—Public Urged To Attend.

BIG ENTRY LIST.

The entries for the Peterborough Poultry Show are of such a large number as to guarantee a first class exhibit of high class poultry.

The one thing that will now assure the success of the show is the attendance of citizens from the city and from the farms and surrounding towns and villages.

The Poultry Show is of sufficient importance and interest to draw a large attendance.

AMULET

We were informed by telephone from Rouyn Saturday that diamond drilling towards the "E" body of Amulet has now reached a depth of approximately 75 feet, and it is expected that the favorable horizon will be reached by the first of next week.

TECK-HUGHES

New York advices state that Teck-Hughes have declared their regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents a share payable February 10th to shareholders of record aJnuary 17th.

LAKE SHORE

Good progress is reported as being made with mill additions at Lake Shore, which may be expected to increase production within the course of the next two months. In the meantime, rapid headway is being made in underground operations which will put the mine in splendid shape for any increased production desired.

AMITY

According to advices received from Boston Creek Saturday, heavy mineralization and stringers of chalcopyrite were encountered in cutting the station at the 475 foot horizon. This is a most significant feature, as the vein was believed to be at least 30 feet away, and is thought to have widened considerably. Similar conditions existed at the Patterson of the same district, where 20 feet of mineralization was cut when very high grade copper ore was encountered.

GRANADA

Crosscutting on the 625 foot level of Granada has entered a porphyry zone, which is considered a very favorable feature. It was near this formation on the first level that the best values were obtained, and the No. 2 vein should shortly be encountered at the 625. Drifting has started on the No. 2 vein at the 375 level, and on the same vein at the 500 drifting has progressed approximately 40 feet.

DOME

Although production at Dome last year was slightly off from the year 1927, it now appears that net profits for 1928 will exceed those of the previous year, as we understand that costs will be shown as less than $3.80 a ton against $4.06 for 1927.

NEWBEC

A report from Rouyn Saturday states that shaft sinking recommenced Saturday at Newbec, which was closed down for the holidays. Some mineralization was cut in the shaft before operations ceased and future work is looked forward to with much interest.

VALUES LOWER ON STANDARD

Downward Price Movement Prevails While Losses Distributed Over Broad List.

FEW GAINS MADE.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7.— (Canadian Press.)— A downward price movement prevailed on the Standard Mining Exchange throughout the morning session here to-day. Gains were few while losses were distributed throughout the listed and unlisted securities.

Noranda sold heavily for a loss of 1.00, closing at noon at 64.00. Lake Shore dropped 65 to 20.00; Sudbury Basin 50 to 8.50; Nipissing 35 to 3.40; Pend Oreille 75 to 11.25 and Falconbridge 45 to 6.30. Jackson Manion went down to 25, a loss of 7 points; Central Manitoba sold at 65, down 5; Abana at 3.5, down 4, and Mandy Mines at 1.30, down 10.

Amulet gained 4 to 3.29; Ajax Oil 4 to 50; Clericy 2 to 34; Hollinger Consolidated 25 to 9.25; Kooteney Florence 1 to 21; Macassa 25 to 37; Sherritt Gordon 5 to 6.90; Premier 10 to 12.30, and Wright-Hargreaves 20 to 2.40.

Barry Hollinger went down 8 points to 32; Bathurst 3¼ to 27½; Bidgood 5½ to 48; Graham 4½ to 26; Malartic ½ to 69; Murphy 4 to 59; Newbee 2 to 38; Sylvanite 25 to 2.15, and Teck Hughes 10 to 9.05.

TORONTO MARKET REMAINS IRREGULAR

National Steel Car Gains— Trading in International Nickel is Inactive.

TORONTO, Jan. 7.— (Canadian Press.)—The irregularity of the past few days continued on Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. National Steel Car began an early rise on the curb and jumped to 122¾, but had receded at noon to 118¾, a net gain of 13¼ points.

Trading was not so active in International Nickel and the issue dropped ¾ to 54½. Maple Leaf Milling gained five points to 151, Lobiaw 2 to 102½, Canada Bread 3 to 140. Brazilian was in demand and went up 3½ points to 79¼. McKinnon Industries dropped 3 to 72. Walkers ½ to 81; Weston 2 to 98; Moore Corporation 1 to 35, and Goodyear 3 to 235.

Super Petroleum advanced 2 points to 32 while Imperial Oil dropped ¼ to 97¾; International Petroleum 3-8 to 34½, and British American Oil 1 to 53.

Northern Bakeries dropped ½ to 38½; Standard Paving 1 to 29 and Canada Dredge ½ to 64.

Durant Motors gained 1 point to 19½; Dominion Power 1 to 94; Honey Dew 18 to 41; Gypsum and Albastine 1 to 76 and Hayes Wheels ½ to 49¾.

INDUSTRIALS DROP LOWER

Selling of Shares Reflects Uneasiness Over Credit Situation.

ON NEW YORK EXHANGE.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 7.—(Canadian Press.)— Alternate periods of weakness and strength characterized to-day stock market, but the line of yleast resistance was the down side. While pools succeeded in marking up about a dozen specialties to new high records, there was rather persistent selling of many of the popular industrials, reflecting uneasiness over the credit situation. Trading was only moderate in volume.

Call money, which fell from 12 to 6 per cent. last year, renewed at 7 per cent. with a fairly plentiful supply of funds available at that figure. Some bankers expected the rate to work lower in view of the heavy liquidation that has taken place in the market in the last few days.

There was little in the day's business developments to affect the price movement. A small advance in refined sugar, effective to-morrow, was announced by leading refiners. Domestic Copper was quiet with prices firm. A gain of about 100,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation is expected in the monthly tonnage report on Thursday.

A break of nearly 25 points in Radio Common, which sold down to 35 as against a high of 410 last week, unsettled the market in the early afternoon. Wright Aeronautical converted an early gain of 5 points into a loss of 6¼, Greene Cananea Copper clipped 7½ points, Montgomery-Ward 5½, Union Carbide 5 and General Motors, Kennecott, Anaconda Copper, Chrysler fell back 3½ points and U. S. Steel Common).

Earlier in the session, there was a brisk demand for the lead shares, National moving up 3 points to a new high at 154 7-8 and St. Joseph climbing 3½. Studebaker, with an early gain of 4½ points, and the establishment of new high records by Pierce Arrow common and preferred attracted attention in the motor group. New peak prices since 1927 or longer also were established by Commercial Investment Trust, Beacon Oil and a few others.

Severe Cold In West Affects Wheat Values

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—Influenced by severe cold weather in domestic winter wheat territory and by unexpected price upturns at Liverpool the wheat market here averaged higher early to-day. Falling off of the amount of wheat on ocean passage was reported and also decreased offerings from Argentina. Chicago wheat opened ½ to ¾c up, but later reacted somewhat. Corn stated unchanged to ¾c advance and subsequently held near to initial figures. Oats were firm. Provisions likewise tended upgrade.

ONE KILLED IN WRECK

PHILADELPRIA, Pa., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—One man was killed and five others, all trainmen, were injured when two locomotives collided early to-day on the New York division tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad in Frankford.

The dead man was Walter Campbell, 50, of Bristol, Pa.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

HIGH COUNCIL MEETS TUESDAY

Air Suppressed Excitement Exists As Delegates Assemble For Big Conference.

EVANGELINE HAS MAJORITY.

LONDON, Jan. 7 (Canadian Press) —There was an air of suppressed excitement to-day at the headquarters of the United States delegates to the High Council of the Salvation Army where preparations were being made for to-morrow's momentous meeting at which the question of the future leadership of the Salvation Army will be discussed.

Officers were coming and going constantly for conferences with Commander Evangeline Booth. Her official spokesman decline to see anyone, and it was obvious that the extreme delicacy of the position was acutely realized in all quarters.

The family aspect of the situation complicated decision on whether General Bramwell Booth will continue to lead the Army, although a majority of the commissioners were agreed that the larger issue of the Army's future was the predominant one.

It was claimed to-day among those favoring the removal of General Booth, that a majority now favors such a step and formation of a new and democratic government. It was regarded by them as certain, however, that Mrs. Bramwell Booth and her daughter, Miss Catherine, would canvass votes for the present head of the Army in order to increase the nine sure votes that he now possesses.

There has been some talk that General Booth might leave his sick room and make a dramatic descent upon the council meeting at Sunbury, but a high official thought that it was improbable that he would be able to make the trip.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—Brigadier E. C. Slattery, Divisional Commander here of the Salvation Army who was suspended on January 4, for criticism of the high council, was quoted to-day as saying:

"My suspension from duty for championing the cause of General Booth and the present constitution of the Salvation Army is almost unparalled. I am strongly opposed to the high council mode of procedure. The trouble is due to a small section of the Army which seeks to wrench the leadership from General Booth, when he is unable to defend himself."

BANK BANDIT TAKEN BY POLICE

Clinton Jones Wanted On Charges of Attempted Murder and Armed Robbery.

HOLD-UP AT HAMILTON.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—Wanted here on charges of attempted murder and armed robbery and also wanted in connection with robbery of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in Hamilton, Clinton Jones alias "Red Duke," has been captured in Buffalo and held by request of the Toronto police.

The Toronto charge against him arises out of his alleged participation in the hold-up of Loblaw's Groceteria, Danforth avenue, on Christmas eve, 1927, when William Arrowsmith, a clerk, was shot and badly wounded, and John Mitchell, manager, was clubbed with a revolver.

Y.W.C.A. WEEK'S ACTIVITIES.
All classes at the Y.W.C.A. are again in full swing after the holidays, and many new activities are planned which promise a most interesting program of all-round activities. Come in and let us tell you about all the good times planned. A "Y" ticket means a year of healthy exercise, intellectual and spiritual development, fun and friends.

Gymnasium Campaign.
The annual Gym. campaign commences this week and each class is appointing its representatives and planning to have its team bring in the most new members. The gym. girls will welcome every new girl to any class and promise her a good time as well as a healthy time. Gym. classes—Build you up physically, wake you up mentally, fill you with enthusiasm and joy of living, develop your morale by the promotion of courage, loyalty, fair play, and team work. Join a gymnasium class now. Special awards for girls bringing in most new members. Come on—let's start right away.

Basketball.
All members of the Basketball League are reminded of regular practices this week and league games on Friday evening at 8 p.m. Special executive meeting will be held to-night at 7.30 to arrange schedule.

Educational Classes.
Several new classes will commence this month, including Red Cross Home Nursing Course, Wood Carving Class, Ukulele Club, and a New Basketry Class. All interested in these classes are asked to register this week, as it is hoped classes will commence next week. Lectures and other classes to be announced later.

Y.W.C.A. Clubs.
The Wohelo Club will enjoy a special New Year's Party this Wednesday evening. All members are requested to be present and to bring a friend. The Old Country Club and Girls' Auxiliary will not meet until next week. The Saturday afternoon clubs for girls 4 to 14 will have a Surprise Meeting this Saturday 2 to 4 p.m. New members welcome.

CANADA DID NOT ASK FOR CHANGE

Canadian Association Satisfied With Rules Governing Kolapore Cup Competition.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—Canada did not ask for any change in the conditions of the Kolapore Cup. This was made clear in a statement made by Col. R. J. Birdwhistle, secretary of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association, to-day. A Canadian Press cable of Saturday announced that the National Rifle Association, the governing body of the Bisley rifle meet at which teams from all portion of the Empire gather, had altered the rules governing the Kolapore match so that riflemen who had already competed three times for the trophy would be ineligible for the Mother Country team in the future. The reason given for the change was that "overseas teams have often felt over-weighted when pitted against a body of such hardened marksmen as the Mother Country is able to place in the field."

"We object to the inference that Canada is not ready to meet the best team the Mother Country can produce," said Col. Birdwhistle. "The Canadian team won the Kolapore Cup in 1925, 1923 and 1927 and on nine previous occasions. The Canadian Kolapore Cup teams have never expressed a desire to shoot against a restricted Mother Country team, and it is felt that if the new regulation is carried out there will be very little object in taking part in the competition.

The Kolapore Cup represents the short range team championship for the British Empire, being for teams of eight men. Unlike a number of other team matches, however, in which England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales each have a team, the Kolapore team is styled the Mother Country team and is selected from the best of the competitors from all these countries.

OBITUARY

MARGARET ANN COURTNEY
(Examiner Correspondence.)
MOUNT PLEASANT, Jan. 7. — The funeral of the late Margaret Ann Courtney will be held on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 9, at 2 o'clock from the family residence at Mount Pleasant. Interment to take place in Shield's cemetery.

MISS ELIZA TWOMEY.
One of the oldest residents of the district passed away on Sunday evening in the person of Miss Eliza Twomey, 14 Kirk Street, at the St. Joseph's Hospital, after a short illness. Miss Twomey was eighty years of age, and was born in Ennismore, where she passed nearly all her life coming to the city four years ago.

She leaves to mourn her loss a wide circle of friends and two brothers, Lawrence L. Twomey of Ennismore and John Twomey of Wisconsin.

The funeral will take place from the residence of Stephen Corkery, 472 Reid Street, to St. Peter's Cathedral at 8.45 on Tuesday morning, and thence to St. Martin's Cemetery, Ennismore, for interment.

MRS. MARGARET McFADDEN
The death took place this morning at her residence, at 452 Elm street, of Margaret McFadden, widow of the late Martin McFadden, who predeceased her in 1926.

The late Mrs. McFadden was one of the senior members of the community, and her passing will be mourned by many old friends who remember her as a warm friend and kindly neighbor. She was possessed of a very cheerful, sunny disposition, a charitable, optimistic outlook on life, and during her long residence in the city made a large circle of faithful friends.

Survivors are two sons: the Rev. V. G. McFadden of Trout Creek, and J. Gerald McFadden, proprietor of the firm of M. McFadden and Sons, undertakers, this city; also one daughter, Miss Gertrude, at home.

The funeral will take place at nine o'clock on Wednesday morning from St. Peter's Cathedral, to St. Peter's cemetery for interment.

MRS. A. A. HARDIE.
Pinch Miller received word yesterday of the death in hospital in Los Angeles, California, of his daughter, Ada (Mrs. A. A. Harvie) after an illness of seven months' duration, following an apoplectic stroke.

The deceased is survived by her husband, and one son, Stanley, her father, Finch W. Miller of this city; and two brothers in Peterborough, Thomas and Walter; also three other brothers: William, of Rochester, N. Y., and George and Fred of Chicago.

VETERAN DIES.

WINNIPEG, Man., January 7. — Canadian Press. — W. H. Nesbitt, veteran of the Riel Rebellion, and a resident of Winnipeg for the past 46 years, is dead here to-day. Born in Templeton, Que., he came west in 1862 and had not missed a decoration day parade in 44 years.

Famous Actor Is a Rotarian

Rotarians will be especially interested to learning that Bransby Williams, famous British character actor who is playing in "Oliver Twist" at the Grand on Wednesday evening, is a Rotarian himself, a member of the London, England, Club.

LOCAL SPORTSMEN WILL BE THERE

Peterborough To Be Represented at Game Fish Conference.

It is expected that two or three representatives of the local Fish and Game Association will attend the conference with the Ontario Government Game Fish Committee in Toronto on Wednesday, when delegates from all parts of the province interested in the game fish situation are to be present.

UNITED STATES DELEGATES ARE IN CAPITAL

prevention will be placed before the Canadians who, headed by Dr. O. D. Skelton, Under-Secretary of State for External Affairs, comprise W. Stuart Edwards, Deputy-Minister of Justice, R. W. Breadner, Commissioner of Customs, G. W. Taylor, Commissioner of Excise, E. Hawkin, Assistant Deputy-Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and F. W. Cowan, Chief Preventive Officers.

The personnel of both parties to the conference is purely departmental, from which it is gathered that a considerable portion of the discussions may be taken up with exploring ways and means of further improving the existing methods as agreed upon between the two Governments previously. Neither party has any power to commit the administration of either Canada or the United States to any agreement. The Americans have come to Canada with certain suggestions designed, from their point of view, to curb liquor smuggling from Canada into the United States. One is that Canada should refuse clearance to vessels carrying liquor from Canadian to United States ports, and another is that violators of the American Volstead Law should come under the provisions of the Extradition Treaty.

What attitude the Canadian delegates will take has not been disclosed. But it is understood that they quite appreciate the difficulty of complying with a request which would have the effect of restraining the trading activities of an industry which, in Canada, is legitimate. It is realized that since it is lawful in Canada to export liquor, many grave difficulties would arise if restrictive provisions were to be written into this law in favor of any one foreign country.

The American delegates to-day were guests of Hon. William Phillips, United States Minister to Canada, and this evening will attend dinner tendered by the Canadian Government.

LAKE NAVIGATION INTERESTS MERGE

Five Towing and Wrecking Companies Forming Marine Combine.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 7—(Canadian Press)—The recent acquisition of the Sincennes-MacNaughton tug lines by the Ross Playfair interests, controllers of Canadian Vickers and many other subsidiar plants on the St. Lawrence, the Great Lakes and the winter ports was only a preliminary for the linking up of five more organizations of a similar nature on the Great Lakes, according to a report received here, says The Montreal Star to-day.

The Reid Towing and Wrecking Company, and the Dominion Towing Company, the latter located in Fort William, are the two latest companies to join with the combine which is now acquiring many of the marine facilities of Canada. It is stated, says The STAR, that a merger of five towing and wrecking companies on the Great Lakes, is pending, if not completed, but no details of the scheme have yet been made known.

"Only one wrecking and towing company on the GrGeat Lakes is stated to be out of the merger, this being the Donnelly Company, who are against it," says The Star.

Representations have also been made to the Canadian Pacific, owners of the Quebec Towing and Wrecking Company, to sell this company to the Ross-Playfair interests, and negotiations are also under way with regard to the sale of the shipyards at Halifax, and the Davie Shipbuilding Company, at Quebec, says The Star.

THREE SUSPECTS HELD BY POLICE

Believed To Have Connection With Robbery of Lawlor Bread Company.

LUGGAGE SEIZED

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—Three men were arrested at Sunnyside Station to-day and are being held for questioning in connection with the Lawlor Bread Company hold-up a week ago Saturday night. Their grips and luggage were seized and are being searched at police headquarters. Their names were not divulged.

—This is the first arrest in connection with the Lawlor hold-up in which $3,500 was stolen by a gang of three men.

DIGGERS HOLD MASS MEETING

Prospectors Object To Government's Restrictions On Large Diamond Fields.

POLICE ON GUARD.

PORT HOLLOTH, Union of South Africa, Jan. 7. Canadian Press Cable via Reuters.) — Crowds of prospectors and settlers of the Namaqualand Territory streamed into this town today for the critical meetings in connection with the Government's restrictions on digging in the large diamonds fields near here. A large body of police was placed on guard over the diggings, which are also surrounded by a seven foot barbed wire fence. Smaller parties of police are scattered over the 20 mile area of the field.

So far everything is peaceful and indications are the meetings will be orderly. The leaders will advocate adherence to lawful methods on the part of the disappointed would be prospectors and will urge if the government's reply to future communications is unsatisfactory, further representations should be made.

SAILOR LOSES LIFE.

Falls From Crow's Nest of Vessel While at Sea.

HALIFAX, N.S., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—Charles Cretot, a French sailor, on board the Red Star liner Arabic, which arrived here to-day, was killed yesterday morning at sea, when in attempting to leave the ice-coated crow's nest, he slipped and fell, landing on a winch and breaking his neck. A wife and children survive in France.

Woman Doctor Descends Into Scotch Coal Mine Where Two Men Operating a Drill Were Electrocuted

GLASGOW, Scotland, Jan. 7.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The first instance of a woman doctor descending a coal mine in a sudden emergency occurred to-day at Cambuslang, Lanarkshire, where two men named Connor and Loughrie, working with an electric driller, were electrified.

Dr. Anne Mitchell, local general practitioner, descended the mine forthwith accompanied by Father Galbraith, Roman Catholic priest. For two hours she worked below. She succeeded in reviving Loughrie, but Connor was past medical aid.

An additional poignant feature of the tragedy was the fact both men were working for the first time after a long spell of enforced idleness, and their shift would have finished less than an hour after.

Connor's brother and father-in-law were both killed in mining accidents, and Loughrie's father-in-law was killed in a pit immediately after returning from Buckingham Palace, where he received the Victoria Cross post humously awarded his son.

FOUR PRISONERS ESCAPE IN SIXTY YEARS

KING'S CONDITION HAS SATISFIED BRITISH PUBLIC

His Majesty Passed, a Quiet Day Yesterday, Evening Bulletin Stated.

ONE ISSUED DAILY.

Hon. R. B. Bennett Visits the Prince of Wales at York House.

LONDON, Jan. 8. — (Canadian Press). —The British public to-day accepted the complete recovery of King George as a foregone conclusion. The tense solicitude which formerly characterised the crowds around the gates of Buckingham Palace has disappeared.

Last night's bulletin said:

"The King had a quiet day. There is no change to report in His Majesty's condition. The next bulletin will be issued tomorrow evening."

It was explained for the benefit of the public that the words "no change" did not imply that the King's condition was unsatisfactory but meant that he was holding his own. It was expected to-day that in the long climb to convalescence a stage which has not yet been reached, there might be several days when no definite improvement would be recorded. As long as there is no setback and the king maintains his strength, it was felt that his doctors would be satisfied.

The return to the issuance of only one bulletin a day as at Christmas time was taken as an indication of the doctors' confidence.

This condition of affairs was regarded with satisfaction at the palace and a feeling of optimism was prevalent.

That the king's condition was not changed was considered as a definite indication that His Majesty was not on the down grade but continued on the up grade.

Princess Mary and her husband, Viscount Lascelles, left London to-day for Goldsborough Hall, Yorkshire home.

The day was uneventful at the palace, the regular doctors, Lord Dawson of Penn, Sir Stanley Hewett and Sir Hugh Rigby, had their usual consultation in the morning but Lord Dawson did not pay his customary afternoon visit. Queen Mary went for her regular drive between 3 and 4 p.m.

The Prince of Wales spent more than a busy morning at York House receiving visitors after having attended to various business affairs.

Among the callers was Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the Conservative party in the Canadian Parliament whose home is in Calgary near the Prince of Wales' Canadian ranch. He remained with the Prince a long time.

Veteran Is 80 Years Old

John Nugent, Former Druggist, Celebrates His Birthday To-day.

BORN NEAR LINDSAY.

Came To Peterborough in 1885 and Opened Fifth Local Drug Store.

At his home, 535 Water Street, a tall, quiet dispositioned man is to-day observing his 80th birthday. He is John Nugent, known throughout the district as a druggist in this city since 1885, and known to a circle of closer friends as one who has lived as a good citizen and possessing many commendable traits of character. "I may not look eighty years of age, and, when I haven't got this bit of hoarseness, I don't feel that old either," he told The Examiner smilingly.

Born Near Lindsay.

Mr. Nugent's entire life has been spent in this part of the province, he having been born in Ops Township, near Lindsay. His father, Thomas Nugent, was the first governor of the Victoria-Peterborough counties jail in that town, and, together with George Matthews, served in the "Home Guards."

John Nugent, when a young man, served his druggist apprenticeship with the Lindsay firm of Coulter and Chambers, and after more than seven years spent in business in Fenelon Falls, came to Peterborough in 1885, opening the fifth local drug store despite pessimistic predictions of business failure on the part of those who considered the field already well served. Failing to secure quarters on the main street, he opened a store in the Lynch block, and in the course of the next few years several of the present druggists served their apprenticeships with him. "Now there are sixteen or more such stores in Peterborough, but I wouldn't have traded my business for any of them," proudly declared Mr. Nugent.

His Veteran's Jewel.

While he has always been interested in his business and has made a large connection of acquaintances through that channel, Mr. Nugent is also decidedly proud of and has achieved high degree in his identification with two societies—he is the oldest, with the exception of one, local Oddfellow, and a member of Court Peterborough Foresters. It was while he was encamped with the 45th Regiment (of Lindsay) at Crawford's Grove, that he took part in the opening of the Peterborough Order of

CONTESTS ARE CLOSE IN MANY MUNICIPALITIES

Several New Members Will Occupy Seats in the 1929 County Councils.

BRECKENRIDGE IS RETURNED

Big Turnover is the Result of the Contest in Seymour Township.

Voters of the rural municipalities went to the polls yesterday to elect their reeves, their councillors and in some cases their Hydro commissioners. New faces will be seen on the county councils of both Northumberland and Durham and Peterborough as a result of yesterday's vote, for in several cases the old men were left behind and a new candidate will take their place. There will be new reeves in the Peterborough Council from Asphodel, Norwood, Havelock and Smith as the old men in each case did not contest the elections. Norwood had a three-cornered contest with Robert Tedford polling more votes than the other two candidates. Asphodel will send to the Council Adam Humphries, who defeated W. E. Pakenham at the polls. Havelock will be represented by R. Sanderson, and with three polls to hear from, Reeve F. Breckenridge has a comfortable majority over ex-Reeve W. E. Griffiths in Belmont and Methuen. Douro, Dummer, Otonabee, North Monaghan, Chandos, Burleigh and Anstruther, Ennismore and Lakefield will all be represented by the reeves of '28 as these were returned by acclamation.

H. Coons, last year's deputy in Smith, has moved up to the senior position, and as a result of yesterday's vote, Gordon Fitzgerald will be the junior member.

John Perrin will represent South Monaghan in Northumberland and Durham, and N. R. Hart won by a big majority over W. F. Elliott in Murray. W. B. Orme, reeve of Seymour, went down to defeat yesterday when he lost to George S. Vanvolkenburg in a hard fought contest. In Percy, W. H. Wilson received a big majority for reeve over his two opponents, W. E. Hermiston and K. A. Hykes. According to last night's result, two men tied for third place in the Percy Council, each having received 328 votes.

Walter Chesterfield was defeated in Cramahe Township by two votes over W. Murphy. Jeff. Ashmore won out in Emily, while Reeve G. B. Airhart, a former warden of Hastings County, was returned for the tenth time in Marmora Village. T. E. Laycock won out in the township over W. D. Nickle. Manvers re-elected Fred. Gray to the reeveship.

The results in the various municipalities are as follows:

AT MILLBROOK.

Reeve—W. T. Wood, (accl.)

Council — T. Stinson, 216; J. R. Eakins, 182; T. I. Bentley, 162, and W. E. Ball, 158.

The two defeated candidates, Thomas Ingram and V. C. Lambert, received 126 and 86 votes respectively.

ASPHODEL TOWNSHIP.

Adam Humphries won out over W. E. Pakenham for Reeve by a majority of 115 votes. The vote at the different polls was as follows:

	Humphries.	Pakenham
Westwood.	63	14
Valleau	47	18
Howson's.	65	55
English's.	35	8
Total	210	95

The council, Lewis Bevis, Samuel Buck, Gordon Girven and Charles Breckenridge, were elected by acclamation.

AT LAKEFIELD.

Reeve—C. S. Tanner (accl.)

Council—William Tedford, 222; J. T. Strickland, 152; Steven Harrison, Parent Teacher Council Wages War On 'Scanty Attire' Girls Must Wear More Clothes and Use Less Cosmetics

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 8.—More clothes and less cosmetics for the girls in Kansas City, Kan., schools are urged by representatives of 10,000 members of the Parent-Teacher Council at Northwest Junior High School.

Health and economy were the considerations taken as a basis for adopting a resolution against scanty attire and gaudy faces. The resolution reads, in part:

"We are recommending that extreme high heels be discarded, that silk stockings be abandoned for more substantial and economical hosiery, and that no rouge or lipstick be used, for if our youth is fed plenty of fresh fruits and green vegetables these cosmetics are not necessary.

"Further we are urging that more healthful underclothing and no expensive sleeveless dresses be worn. These are not hard and fast rules, as 'thou shalt,' but simply an appeal and a program of health for the parent of this fine youth of our community.

SIR JOHN AIRD IN HIS ANNUAL ADDRESS TO DIRECTORS OF BANK PREDICTS PROSPERITY FOR 1929

Pulp and Paper Overproduction Is Dry Spot On Horizon.

IN UNPROFITBLE CONDITION.

Governments Should Follow Forestry Policy of European Countries Declares President.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8 (By the Canadian Press).—Addressing the annual meeting of the Canadian Bank of Commerce to-day, Sir John Aird, in his presidential address, predicted unless Canada failed to profit by the warnings of experience, he saw no reason why the prosperity of 1929 should not equal or surpass that of 1928. He coupled this, however, with the observation that pulp and paper over production was the [illegible] on the horizon of the [illegible] tion," and a warning [illegible] financial houses [illegible] power to "restrain the speculative tendency within reasonable bounds."

Referring to the pulp and paper situation, which is at present the subject of conferences of manufacturers in Montreal, Sir John said it "seems inexcusable" that an industry in which more than half a billion dollars of capital was invested, which employed many thousands of people, and the products of which ranked second in value among Canada's principal exports, should be in an unprofitable condition through overproduction and competition, making it necessary to "sacrifice" the product at "bargain prices."

Sir John said it ought not to be a task of too great difficulty for the Governments of the provinces principally interested to follow the experience of European countries which had put the administration of their forests upon a proper scientific basis which would provide for the utmost economic utilization of all forest products and their permanent production. He regarded it as satisfactory to see that Premier Ferguson of Ontario and Premier Taschereau of Quebec had moved promptly to seek a remedy and express hope for satisfactory results.

In warning against over-speculation, Sir John said it was well to remember that a rise in stock prices did not in itself increase the wealth of a country.

"In so far as it is done to inflation of credit it amounts simply to a revaluation on paper, largely made in anticipation of what the future may bring," Sir John continued. "If these anticipations are realized all goes well; but, too often, the reverse is the case. The supply of credit from the banks should be raised, not on mere anticiaption of future wealth, but on that which is actually in existence, and which can be utilized for the increase of bank reserves. On this basis alone can a sound expansion of bank credit take place."

PURCHASE EQUIPMENT.

Gordon S. Matthews was re-elected chairman of the Utilities Commission at the first meeting of the year 1929 held in the Commission board room yesterday afternoon. Mr. Matthews was complimented by his fellow commissioners and a very successful year was forecasted with him back at the helm of affairs.

A letter was read from the Hydro Electric Commission of Ontario in which was enclosed a credit note for $21,576.55 representing the difference between the actual cost of the power to the local commission and the amount paid as per power accounts rendered for its fiscal period ending October 31, 1928.

It was resolved that in accordance with Section 89 of Chapter 57 of Revised Statute of Ontario the H. E. P. C. be requested for a special order authorizing the local Utilities Commission to use its monies received from the sale of the rural electric lines and the motor generators set and its surplus from last year's operations or so much thereof as may be necessary for the purpose of re-building and extending the electric distributing system and equipment and various changes in the street lighting system of the city as requested by the City Council; and also for the purchase and installation in the sub-station of a transformer and other needed equipment to help the electric service to city users.

HIGH COUNCIL GATHERS FOR CONFERENCE

Two Great Questions Come Up Before Leaders of the Salvation Army.

HELD IN SUNBURY COURT.

General Bramwell Booth Is Unable To Attend On Account of His Recent Illness.

SUNBURY-ON-THAMES, England, Jan. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Possibly that a decision might be reached by the high council of the Salvation Army some time to-night on the question of the future leadership of the Army was advanced in a well-informed source late today.

It was stated that thus far there had been no balloting on the question of General Bramwell Booth's fitness and competence to continue as leader of the Army.

SUNBURY-ON-THAMES, England, January 8 (Canadian Press). — The High Council of the Salvation Army met here to-day to reach two momentous decisions. These were whether the venerable head of the organization, General William Bramwell Booth, should remain in the powerful and responsible post or should step down because of being incapacitated by age and illness, and whether the present constitution of the Army should be broadened.

The scene of the meeting was a chamber in Sunbury Court, the Army's staff training institute.

The mansion itself, standing well back from the road, lent itself well to the isolation which the powers of the Army desired for their proceedings. The care with which it was guarded as the councillors gathered promised well for the preservation of the atmosphere of secrecy.

Officers On Guard.

Uniformed Officers were posted here and there among the bare limbed trees of winter time surrounding the mansion while [illegible] joined by policemen stood guard outside the gates. Each person approaching had to apply at a wicket and satisfy the Army guards that his or her credential were correct. The gates were then opened to admit the applicant if all was found to be right.

One of the earliest arrivals was Catherine Booth, the aged General's daughter who has been prominently mentioned as his successor if the present regime is victorious in the struggle, and no exception was made in her case. She as well as the others was required to produce the special permit necessary for anyone to gain admission.

In one case, however, the bars to the secluded mansion were let down without question. This was when Mrs. Bramwell Booth and her daughter, Colonel Mary Booth, drove up to the gates.

The General as had been announced was too ill to leave his seaside retreat and come and take up the cudgels for himself as, with his well-known fighting spirit, he would like to have done. But in his stead, the General's wife appeared to lead the fight for him. Her private car driven by a Salvation Army Officer, was observed as it neared the gates which were immediately opened and the automobile passed through.

Commander Evangeline Booth, head of the United States delegation and leader of the movement for a reform of the administration system, reached Sunbury sometime before the hour set for calling the Council to order. Other delegates including the rest of the Americans came along at short intervals.

It was understood when the meeting began that all 63 members who were expected to attend the meeting were on hand.

Splendid Record Held

Escape of John Parks Was the Fourth in Past Sixty Years.

TWO CAPTURED.

Third Was Killed On Freight Train and Parks Still Remains At Large.

The escape of John Parks early Friday morning, January 4, from the Peterborough County Jail marks the fourth successful break for freedom that has been made in over sixty years through those thick walls and iron bars, that keeps all but the most adventurous prisoners securely confined.

Indeed those other three escapes spreading over a period of half a century are in no ways less sensational or daring than the recent one of that most experienced jail bird and jail breaker John Parks, alias J. Williams, alias Walter Bernard, who cut his way to freedom through four steel bars, while the other prisoners slept the dreams of the innocent in their comfortable quarters, then scaled the wall, stole a car and departed to places unknown.

If Parks is not caught a precedent will be broken in connection with prisoners who have broken loose from the local jail, since all three of the former jail breakers were swiftly caught. One however was killed while trying to flee to safety, when he fell from a freight train on which he was beating his way to Toronto and was run over by the wheels.

First In 1904

The first successful escape that is known to have been made from the jail was in 1904, when a man from the northern part of the county, whose name has since been forgotten, made a break for freedom late one night, cutting his way in the same manner as Parks. However he was only at large for a week, being apprehended north of Lindsay and brought back most unwillingly to the jail again.

Break of George Clarke

Perhaps the most daring escape ever made from the jail was that of George Clarke who made his break for freedom at about 6.30 the evening of July 19, 1914. Clarke was an American, a plumber by trade and he was awaiting transportation to Central Prison Toronto, there to

SON RETURNS HOME TO FIND HOUSE ON FIRE

Mr. and Mrs. George Baumhour and Four Children Were Asleep at Time.

INFANTS CARRIED OUT.

Firemen Are Unable To Save Small House On Lansdowne Street.

George Baumhour, his wife and four children, sleeping peacefully in their home at the corner of Western Avenue and Lansdowne Street continuation, narrowly escaped with their lives when an older son, Edward, arrived home at midnight, or very early this morning, to find the upper part of the house in flames. Awakening the family, he and the father and mother carried the children to safety while the frame dwelling burned like tinder, casting a bright red glow skyward that attracted a large crowd of city folk, not yet retired. The family later took advantage of the hospitality of a neighbor, while a chemical unit and men of the city fire department was soon on hand. However, the flames had gained a too extensive lead, and their efforts were turned to the saving of a driving shed at the rear of the property.

Speaking of the cause of the fire, the son Edward expressed his belief that overheated pipes had been responsible, and this was confirmed by Fire Chief George Gimblett this morning. The house and all its contents save one suitcase and a trunk, were destroyed.

Clothing Bursts Into Flames.

Vergil Carr, one of the members of the Fire Department, had a narrow escape from being burned to death while fighting the fire. In spite of the zero weather, the heat was so intense that Carr's clothes burst into flames, and only the quick work of some of his mates saved him.

Carr was around at the rear of the building, the [illegible] falling thick around him, and the heat was such that of a sudden the bottom part of his trousers and waterproof coat caught fire. The foam machine was turned on him, but not before the back of his coat had burned right up to his shoulders and his trousers up to his knees.

The coat, when The Examiner saw it this morning, showed how narrow had been its wearer's escape. The whole back part of it extending to the shoulders was burned through and it is long past repair or further use.

CONDITIONS IN AFGHANISTAN SHOW GRADUAL IMPROVEMENT

Rebels Are Believed To Have Shelled Kabul On New Year's Day.

VILLAGE BOMBARDED.

Former Colonel of Afghan Army Joins Rebel Forces and Captures Fort.

PESHAWAR, India, Jan. 8. —(Canadian Press). — Lorrie arriving from Al Ahmed Khan, former governor of Kabul who is now commanding at Jalalabad, for a load of gasolene and camel caravans coming from the same quarter to-day indicated a gradual improvement of the road to the Afghanistan city.

All was reported to be quiet at the Afghan cities of Kandehar and Ghazni. The telegraph line between Kabul, Kandehar and Quetta has been cut.

It was stated that King Amanullah of Afghanistan had agreed to the abolition of conscription and also to lift the band from foreign Mullahs entering his country.

Shelled First of Year.

LONDON, Jan. 8. —Advices to-day's Daily Express stated that rebels had shelled Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan. The Culcutta correspondent of the newspaper said that he had received letters dated December 31 and January 1, by air from Kabul telling of the shelling. Since then nothing has been learned as to the effect of the shell fire nor the extent of the damage caused.

The Express said that Gholum Obi, a former colonel in the Afghan Army, had joined the rebels and captured a fort four miles north-west of Kabul. With the captured artillery the rebels opened fire on the capital while batteries loyal to King Amanullah replied from a mountain post.

Other advices on the Afghan situation said tha the King's artillery had bombarded a rebel village on January 1. While the firing was in progress, Amanullah rode through the bazaars

England's Oldest Man Is 107 Years Old Today

LONDON, Jan. 8. — (Canadian Press Cable).— William Walker, believed to be England's oldest resident, celebrated his 107th birthday today. He received a presentation from the Lord Mayor of Nottingham.

Walker started work as a bricklayer when he was 12 years old, earning more than a guinea ($5.25) a week. When he was 84 years old he went on strike for more money and when the strike proved unsuccessful, he decided not to work any more.

22 LIVES ARE LOST IN CHILEAN VOLCANO

Five Families Are Reported Missing After Volcanic Eruption.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 8 (Canadian Press).—With five bodies recovered from the ruin caused by the eruption of the Chilean volcano Calbuco, near Lake Llanquihue, it appeared possible to-day that the lava had taken a toll of 22 lives.

Despatches from Puerto Mont said that Carbineers had unconfirmed reports that five families, totalling 22 persons, were missing. These families live in the region which was heavily damaged when the volcano poured lava and ashes over it. Other despatches said that many injured had been taken from the stricken area to Puerto Varas, across Lake Llanquihue.

The disturbance was stated to be subsiding to-day. The threatened district is largely settled by Germans and the people were regaining tranquility with the lessening of volcano activity.

PLANE SERVICE FOR WINNIPEG

New Service With United States Points Will Be Established Soon.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 8 (Canadian Press).—Air express and passenger service between Winnipeg and United States points, connecting with the air services of that country, will be established within 30 days on at least a tri-weekly basis to begin with, according to an announcement made here last night by Captain P. T. McCarty, president and operating manager of the International Airways, Inc., of Seattle. It would be operated in co-operation, he said, with the Western Canada Airways, Limited, of Winnipeg. Omaha and Winnipeg would be connected and branching out from either Fargo or Waterton, North Dakota, would connect with Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Friendly Society Is Formed To Enable Wealthy Persons To Distribute Their Fortunes For Social Purposes

LONDON, Jan. 8.—(Canadian Press Cable).—A new friendly society, Neighbors Limited, has been formed for the purpose of enabling wealthy persons to distribute their fortunes for social purposes.

One of the founders of the society is Viscount Ennismore, aged 22, the socialist son of the Earl of Listowel. He has renounced his title and says he is practically disinherited. Henceforth he intends to take a bed and sitting room in London, live on three pounds sterling weekly, and take a philosophy degree.

Under the constitution of the society the members thereupon receive three pounds weekly, and married persons four pounds, plus ten shillings for each dependent child.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN ROOM

Montreal Homicide Squad Look For Husband of Victim—Wounds About Head.

TELEPHONE CUT.

MONTREAL, Que., January 8 (Canadian Press). — Mrs. Arthur Ritchot was attacked to-day by a man wielding an axe, receiving wounds about the head from which she died shortly afterwards.

The entire homicide squad from police headquarters was searching for the woman's husband, Arthur Ritchot, a 29-year-old laborer. According to the police the attack took place at about 8.30 a.m. The telephone wires leading to the apartment on Ontario Street where the couple lived were cut.

The alarm was given by a neighbor who missed Mrs. Ritchot during the morning. Police found the woman lying grievously wounded on the floor which was covered with blood. Bare footprints in the blood, corresponding, according to the police, with the size of Ritchot's shoes, led to a search for the husband.

Heavy Snowfall Causes Water To Rise Three Feet

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 8 (Canadian Press).—In addition to piling up two feet of badly drifted snow on the country and city roads, holding up vehicular traffic and isolating many sections, a blizzard which had raged in the district for sixty hours, with no signs of cessation, has backed the water up in St. Mary's River until it has gained nearly three feet in depth.

RETIRING GOVERNOR OPENS LEGISLATURE

Second Session of Quebec's Parliament Is Opened By Hon. Narcisse Perodeau.

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 8 (Canadian Press).—The second session of the 17th Legislature of the Province of Quebec will be opened at 3 o'clock this afternoon by His Hon. Narcisse Perodeau, retiring Lieutenant-Governor. Mr. Perodeau will be succeeded in his office next Thursday by Sir Lomer Gouin, former Premier of Quebec and former Minister of Justice at Ottawa.

The House, having been brought up to full strength through three by-elections during the recess, will consist of 74 Liberals and 11 Conservatives. The new members are Amedee Caron, who succeeded his father as member for Magdalen Islands, the father, Hon. J. E. Caron, Minister of Agriculture, having moved up to the Legislative Council, retaining his portfolio; Oscar Drouin, who was elected in Quebec East, and the Mayor of Montreal, Camillien Houde, who returns to the House after an absence of approximately two years. Mr. Houde is a Conservative. The two other new members are Liberals.

GIANT PLANE IN AIR OVER 150 HOURS

Question Mark Completes Long Endurance Flight Early Yesterday Afternoon.

GREAT ACHIEVEMENT.

One Large Motor Went Dead and Other Was Rapidly Failing.

LOS ANGELES, Calf., Jan. 8—(Canadian Press). — The endurance flight plane, "The Question Mark," glided to a perfect landing here yesterday afternoon after a historic and record-smashing flight of 150 hours, 40 minutes and 15 seconds.

The end of one of the greatest flights in all aviation history came after a crew of five weary men had fought constantly against time and motors which piled trouble in a heap upon them an hour before landing, thirty hours before, their work seemed near an end when the motors balked, but the trouble cleared away and the flight went on. As though in protest to the great strain placed upon them, the motors finally sputtered, one went" dead" and with another rapidly failing, they forced the nose of the ship earthward.

Refueling In Route.

Head and shoulders above their achievements is placed a now proved theory—that refueling of airplanes while en route is practical. This, army officers said, was the major purpose of the flight, and its success was regarded as phenomenal.

At the end of the flight Major Spatz exclaimed. "We are feeling fine. We could take of immediately if the motors would run."

Lieutenant Halverson was afflicted with a slight cold, but otherwise the crew showed little apparent ill effects.

Not one of the five, though worn looking, faltered. Major Carl Spartz, commanding officer, Captin Ira C. Eaker, Lieutenants Harry A. Halverson and Elwood R. Quesada and Staff Sergeant Roy Hooe walked to a waiting car which carried them to a hangar and then to Clover Field, Santa Monica, Calif., for an official physical examination.

Just what happened aboard the "Question Mark" was told by Lieutenant Quesada in simple words as he lounged in the automobile speeding to the medical base.

"Just as I left the controls at 1 o'clock this afternoon, Captain Eaker took the wheel and the left motor went dead. We sent Sergeant Hooe out on the catwalk, but his weight was too heavy in the unstable condition of the "Question Mark."

"We knew then that the flight was over. We dropped the gas within two or three minutes after we had taken it."

Figures On Flight.

The story of the record endurance flight of the airplane, 'Question Mark' is shown at a glance in the following summary:

Start of flight—January 1; 7.26: 46 a.m.

End of flight—January 7, 2.07::01 p.m.

Time in air—150 hours, 40 minutes, 15 seconds.

Distance in miles covered—Approximately 11,500.

Gasoline consumed—262 gallons.

Contacts made with refueling planes—About 36.

Supplies and fuel transferred to plane —42,000 pounds.

Type of plane—Standard army foker C-2 transport.

Expansion of wings—71 feet.

Wright whirlwinds.

Type of motor—Standard army.

Horsepower—225 each.

Average speed—70 miles.

Maximum speed—121 M.P.H.

Average altitude—3,800, maximum 6,600.

Revolution by three motors—42,-522,000.

BIG RESPONSE TO RELIEF FUND

Lord Mayor Fund For Out of Work Reaches Two Million and Half Mark.

GREAT DEMAND.

LONDON, Jan. 8 (Canadian Press Cable).—The Lord Mayor's fund for the relief of unemployed miners has reached approximately £450,000. The question is, what form of assistance ought to be provided from the fund?

At present the need for the necessities of life is so great that it demands the major part of the attention of those administering the fund. While this need must be met as soon as possible; it is realized something should be done to provide some forms of really productive work for some of the unemployed.

The Lord Mayor of Newport proposes that the fund should be utilized partly in the definite provision of work, rather than in doling out temporary relief.

Some dissatisfaction is being expressed in mining circles because at present the Lord Mayor's fund applies only to South Wales, Durham and Northumberland. The fact that the method of controlling and administering the fund is still undecided, is also causing discontent, as it leads to a lack of co-ordination, with the result that some persons who have not lost work are receiving relief, while some who are out of work are getting nothing.

CHIMNEY FIRE.

Campbellford Brigade Receives Call To Residence of Jabez McCulloch.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 8. —(Examiner Staff Correspondence). — A blazing chimney at Jabez McCulloch's residence, Canrobert Street, was the cause of the fire alarm at three o'clock yesterday afternoon. The fire brigade responded and kept close watch on the fire which did no damage, and accordingly, was permitted to burn itself out. The alarm was telephoned to the fire station and although the bell was rung as usual, firemen at work close by did not hear its call. In the opinion of several of them, something ought to be done to make the alarm sound more clearly. Several suggestions have been put forward in an unofficial way. One is that the town invest in a siren which will be easily heard in every corner of the corporation.

OLD RESIDENT DIES IN CAR

John Hooper McWilliams Was Being Brought to City by Dr. Moore of Lakefield.

AUTOMOBILE SKIDS.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 8 (Examiner Correspondence). — His heart believed to have been weakened by an attack for the "flu," from which he was suffering, John Harper McWilliams, aged 65 years, being brought to Peterborough on Friday by Dr. H. E. Moore, died of shock soon after their car skidded into the ditch near Mr. Bickell's farm, at about one o'clock. Though he denied feeling the effects of the accident, his death took place almost immediately after he had been transferred to W. J. Gill's car. Mr. Gill, who resides in Smith township, happened along soon after the first car had encountered trouble.

Mr. McWilliams was born near Norwood and for the last fifty or sixty years has lived in Lakefield. He was the first lockmaster of Lakefield locks and held this position for about 15 years. He retired about 10 years ago and lived at home with his daughter, Mrs. Walter Preston.

His wife, whose name was Jane McElwain, predeceased him about 30 years ago.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Amy McCormick and Mrs. Walter Preston. There are also three sons, Robert J., of Bolivar street, Peterborough; Matthew H., of Toronto; and Fred W., of Detroit.

The late Mr. McWilliams was a strong Liberal in politics, and took a great interest in Dominion and municipal affairs.

He was a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters and a life-long Presbyterian.

The funeral will be on Wednesday afternoon, January 9, from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Walter Preston, Queen street, Lakefield, to the Lakefield cemetery.

MANY MISHAPS ON ICY ROADS

Several Cars Reported To Have Run Into Ditch at O'Donnell's Hill.

MADOC BUS DISABLED.

(Examiner Correspondence).

MADOC, Jan. 8. — Many automobile accidents are reported over the week-end owing to the icy condition of the roads.

O'Donnel's Hill seems to have been an unlucky spot and several cars were reported as piled in the ditch there. Four were reported at one time.

The Belleville-Madoc bus was disabled and had to be towed in. Bird's car came to grief there and had to have assistance.

Falls On Ice.

J. H. Woods, of Ivanhoe, fell on Saturday night, in front of Naylor's garage, striking his head and was unconscious some hours. He was removed to his home on Sunday afternoon but his condition is still serious.

Schools Re-Open.

Madoc public and high schools opened yesterday morning, the Public School with its full staff of teachers. J. B. Hough reporting for duty after his serious illness and operation. The High School with the absence of one teacher, M. Hammond, recently appointed to the staff being ill. Mr. Hammond will not be on duty until next week.

The Weather

Last night the temperature was down to seven degrees below zero. This is the first occasion this winter of below zero. Considerable snow has also fallen and there is now sufficient for fair sleighing.—W.P.

MRS. ANNIE WELLMAN CELEBRATES 90TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

Aged Woman Spends Occasion at Home of Her Son in Marmora.

RESIDES WITH DAUGHTER

Recalls Early Days of Farming in Rawdon Township.

MARMORA, Jan. 8.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The ninetieth anniversary of her birth was celebrated at the Royal Hotel on Friday by Mrs. Annie Wellman mother of Thomas E. Potts, the proprietor. Mrs. Wellman has been residing for the past few years with a married daughter at Mount Zion, situated between Trenton and Frankford. Her visit to the village was of twofold significance. She arrived in time to celebrate Christmas and her stay over enabled her to celebrate her ninetieth birthday on the eve of her granddaughter's wedding. This delightful old lady, who is in wonderful possession of her faculties, was born on the 4th concession of Rawdon township, the fifth child of Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Barnum.

Parents Were Pioneer Settlers.

Her father, though born in the United States, came to Rawdon township with his parents when a young boy, receiving all his schooling in that township. Mrs. Barnum on the other hand was a native of Rawdon township. She was a daughter of a branch of the Bartley family, pioneer settlers in that district. Mr. Barnum farmed steadily through life and lived to be ninety-two years of age. Mrs. Wellman, who confesses to not having been healthy when small, looks to-day very robust for one of her years. Asked if she liked sewing, she replied that she had never been very keen on it but years ago she used to spin and from early life she has been a knitter. She has never used spectacles in her life. She declared: "My sight is perfectly good and I can knit as good now as when a girl. I have no trouble in threading a needle either."

She has been twice married. Her first husband, William Potts, died about twenty-six years ago. There were six children of that marriage. Frederick Potts, the youngest son, served in the Great War and returned to a thankful mother with a scarred leg and affected vision. "He went gladly", she said, "but many was the night I walked the floor thinking of him. I was knitting socks all the time I could spare and sending all I could to the boys." Mrs. Wellman recalled her ecstasy of delight in hearing of the Armistice being signed. Speaking of the war led to thoughts of more distant days.

Farmers Held Military

She recalled what fourscore years ago were termed training days in Rawdon township. For three consecutive days, the farmers went to a certain field on the concession in which the Barnums lived and attired in white shirts and white pants went through their drill. It would be in May or June when the weather was getting warm and wives and children would attend as interested spectators. The toll gate near her home was also an object of interest, it being kept by a lame man who bore the name of Simmons. Seventy years ago Mrs. Wellman worked at the old Mack Hotel, later known as the Pringle House, which fell prey to fire some years ago.

This building stood on or near the site of the residence at present occupied by William Flynn. Mrs. Wellman spent four years at this hostelry long before the advent of silverware and when the establishment was the rendezvous of shantymen, who made Christmastide and other festivals merry with violin, song and dance. The proprietor was

FLU EPIDEMIC LESS SEVERE

Outbreak Was Reported Quite Serious in Village of Fenelon Falls.

SEVERAL DEATHS

LINDSAY, Jan. 8—(Examiner Correspondence).—With the advent of real cold weather the flu epidemic seems to be abating in Lindsay and district, although the situation in some centres is still quite serious.

Dr. Blanchard, M.O.H. for Lindsay authorized the opening of the schools on Monday, which was a week later than the scheduled date. The epidemic has been quite serious in the village of Fenelon Falls, three or four cases of the flu terminating fatally. The schools and other institutions were closed and entertainments and social events cancelled. In the Haliburton districts the ravages of the flu were quite serious. The doctors were unable to attend to the many calls and it was impossible to obtain nurses for the more serious cases. In fact the scarcity of nurses was seriouly felt throughout the district.

Dr. Galloway, of Woodville, informed your correspondent on Saturday that the epidemic was quite severe in the village and district, pneumonia having developed in a number of cases. In one home, for instance, three members of a family were ill with pneumonia.

DR. H. N. YOUNG IS COMING TO CITY

Son of Medical Officer of Health Will Practice in Peterborough.

Announcement was made yesterday of the coming to Peterborough for professional purposes of a Peterborough young man in the person of Dr. Herbert N. Young, son of Dr. T. W. H. Young, local Medical Officer of Health.

Dr. Young, Jr. has been practising medicine and surgery in Millbrook for the last three years, and having decided to invade the larger field, is taking up residence at 204 Reid Street. He is a graduate of Queen's University, has served as a house physician and surgeon at Kingston General Hospital, and in like capacity at the Rome State School in New York State. This, in addition to his three years' experience in Millbrook, should fit him to build up an encouraging practice here.

Freezing within a few hours after placing concrete interferes with the chemical reaction between the water and the cement and makes the concrete much weaker.

The palatable way to take Yeast

Soak a cake of Royal Yeast with a little sugar in a quarter of a glass of tepid water over night. Stir well, strain and drink the liquid. Many people prefer to take it in orange juice.

ROYAL YEAST CAKES

ASPIRIN

To break a cold harmlessly and in a hurry try an Aspirin tablet. And for headache. The action of Aspirin is very efficient, too, in cases of neuralgia, neuritis, even rheumatism and lumbago! And there's no after effect; doctors give Aspirin to children—often infants. Whenever there's pain, think of Aspirin. The genuine Aspirin has Bayer on the box and on every tablet. All druggists, with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) indicating Bayer Manufacture. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assure the public against imitations, the Tablets will be stamped with their "Bayer Cross" trademark.

VEIL OF SILENCE SURROUNDS CAMPS ON EVE OF OPENING DAY

High Council of Salvation Army Commences in Session To-day.

GENERAL NOT PRESENT.

Powerful Weapon For Bramwell Booth's Following Is Found in Bulletin.

LONDON, Jan. 8.— (Canadian Press.)—A veil of silence was drawn over both camps in the Salvation Army controversy on the eve of the meeting to-day of the High Council, which is to decide whether General Bramwell Booth is to continue as Commander-in-Chief of the organization. It was borken only by a bulletin issued by Dr. John Weir, physician to the Prince of Wales, and Dr. Ernest Wardlaw Milne, regular adviser to the General. In it they said that the General's mental capacity has been unimpaired by his long illness and that he would be ready to resume his work in six months.

The medical pronouncement also stated that the Commander was "well able to give decisions and advice on important matters."

This was recognized by both sides as a strong weapon for the adherents of the General, and one of the officials at International Headquarters said last night:

"I shall be the most surprised man in the Army if General Booth is not adjudicated fit to continue his leadership."

The medical certificate revealed, nevertheless that Bramwell Booth was too ill to attend the Council meeting at Sunbury-on-Thames with safety.

Booth To Send Message.

It was officially stated at International Headquarters that the leader would send a message to the Council, but there was no hint as to its import. He will be kept in touch with the proceedings by his wife and his daughter, Catherine, who will have at their disposal a direct telephone between Sunbury House and the Booth cottage at Southwold. They intend to use this means of communication in order to obtain advice and instruction from the General.

It was also learned that Commander Evangeline Booth, the General's sister and leader of the element which seeks reform in the Army constitution, intends to address the Council several times.

She is expected to emphasize that there is no desire on the part of her faction to weaken in any way the international solidarity of the Army.

Only 63 members of the High Council gather. The absentee is Commissioner William E. Oliphant of London, who is in the South of France on sick leave. His absence means that General Booth needs only 16 instead of 17 votes to retain his leadership. Nine of these are assured in the four members of his immediate family and five commissioners from International Headquarters in London.

Deep secrecy is to surround the Council proceedings. Once the Councillors have entered the grounds they will not be expected to leave until the meeting is over. Newspaper reporters will be rigorously excluded.

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

OLD HOME WEEK

June 29th to July 7th

OBJECTIVES OF CITIZENS:

(1) To bring back every person who was born or lived in Peterborough City and County, with their families.

CHURCH SOCIETIES HOLD JOINT MEETING

MEMBERS CHOSEN FOR COMMITTEES

Cavan Church Societies Decide To Hold Social in Near Future.

CAVAN, Jan. 8.—(Examiner Correspondence).—On Thursday afternoon a joint meeting of the W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid was held at the parsonage. Mrs. A. B. Kennedy conducted the meeting of the Ladies' Aid. Part of the business was the completing of the devotional, flower and visiting committees, convenors for which had been appointed at the previous meeting.

The personnel of the committee is:

Devotional—Mrs. R. Matchett, Mrs. R. S. Staples and Mrs. J. C. Swain.

Parsonage—Mrs. Hunter and Mrs. F. M. Staples.

Flower committee—Mrs. Carpenter and Mrs. Albert Tinney.

Visiting Committee—Mrs. R. S. Staples, Mrs. J. C. Swain, Mrs. James Douglas, Mrs. R. Matchett and Mrs. A. Byers.

It was decided to hold a social, the ladies to provide the supper and the men be requested to furnish the program, the date and admission fee to be decided later. The Rev. F. Carpenter was named as convenor to make arrangements with the men for the program. Mrs. James Douglas, Mrs. A. Tinney, Mrs. D. J. Hunter and Mrs. Harry Tinney were appointed a social committee to plan and manage the supper.

The members of the Aid provided lunch for the congregational meeting held on Monday evening, January 7.

Rev. Mr. Carpenter announced that the Quarterly Board which was to have been held on Friday evening in Mount Pleasant, was postponed for a week.

W.M.S. Meeting.

Mrs. R. S. Staples, president of the society, presided for the meeting of the W.M.S. In using the regular W.M.S. program, the review of the annual report had to be omitted as the report had not been received.

Mrs. Swain reported that during the past year there were seventeen members in the W.M.S., many of whom had been life members. The allocation was $60 and this was raised, with a small amount remaining in the treasury.

Suggestions were asked for to make the Auxiliary more efficient in prayer, membership and in raising money. Some helpful suggestions were received along these lines.

Mrs. Albert Tinney read a leaflet on "Stewardship" and Mrs. Staples read an article on Missionary Hospital work in Africa. Rev. Mr. Carpenter related some experiences told by a returned missionary and his wife of the marvellous success of the work of our medical missionaries and nurses. The pastor closed the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. R. Matchett will be hostess for a pot luck dinner to be given some time during the month. The following names were drawn to participate in the dinner: Mrs. Rowen, Mrs. James Douglas, Mrs. Bradburn, Mrs. Braithwaite, Mrs. Card, Mrs. Kincaid, Mrs. William Nill, Mrs. W. Seymour, Mrs. E. Papineau, Mrs. Cobbly and Mrs. William White.

Immigrant Wants To Join Police Force

CREWE, England, Jan. 8.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—"I got fed up doing point study duty so decided to try Canada for a change. Nothing ever happens in Crewe, anyhow," declared Frank Smith, policeman of Crewe, who sailed under the new ten pound rate on the steamship Laurentic. Smith thinks he will have no difficulty in joining a Canadian police force, and hopes to join the Halifax police.

POULTRY SHOW IN MARKET HALL

High Quality Seen in Exhibits Although Number Is Reduced.

CHAMPION BIRDS.

The Peterborough Poultry Association opened its annual Winter Show this morning and the Market Hall resounds and echoes to the shrill crowing of hundreds of roosters and contented clucking of the biddies.

Although the show this year has not as many birds entered as in former years, yet the quality is higher than the record set by previous shows. The number of the fowls exhibited was greatly reduced because of the "flu" epidemic which has kept many exhibitors at home, and also because of the slippery and almost impassable conditions of the roads in many parts of the county. Lorne Hutchinson, of Warkworth, one of the biggest poultry men in the district, and who annually sends hundreds of birds to the Peterborough Show, had sent in an entry of 200 birds, but some days ago he was stricken with the "flu,' and neither he nor his poultry were able to make the trip. This case has been duplicated in several instances, which all combined has kept the show below normal in numbers.

Higher in Quality.

Yet in quality and number of varieties the show is even in advance of any previous year. The birds are in their prime at the present time of year, and certainly many of them appear to be champions. There is the biggest exhibit of rabbits this year that the show has ever had.

Some of the largest exhibitors from the district are: Frank Andrews of Norwood, Billy Abernethy of Campbellford, William J. Munro of Grafton, one of those who have sent birds to the Peterborough Show for many years and who this year is on hand with a fine exhibit of Blue Andalusians that will take some beating; Arthur Wilson of Port Hope, William Jenkins of Cobourg and W. H. Bowhey and Mr. Weir of Agincourt.

The judging commenced this afternoon and will extend until tomorrow afternoon. The show has two high grade judges who are well known in the poultry game throughout the province in Herbert Worrington of Cornwall and Arthur Tyson of Guelph.

SIX YEAR OLD GIRL IS SLAIN

that ensued. The dogs pulled the tot's overcoat over her head and dragged her down in the snow. No words can picture the struggle that followed, with the child battling against the dogs, who possibly committed murder in a spirit of play.

In the nearby house no cry was heard, although both Germaine's parents and other members of the family were there at the time and possibly could have saved the child's life had they been aware of the struggle being enacted in the snow beyond their sight.

So far as the Chief of Police here is aware, the dogs had never given any previous trouble. He added that there was no police dog or husky strain in the mongrels, nor had they been fed anything which might have made them ferocious. The two dogs are to be done away with immediately, the police state, and an autopsy will be performed upon their bodies. Both provincial and Kirkland Lake Police are investigating the case.

The coroner viewed the body of little Germaine to-day and adjourned the inquest until Thursday evening.

SMALL CHILDREN ENTERTAINED

Party Held in Basement of St. George's Anglican Church.

GIFTS FOR EVERYONE.

St. George's Church basement presented a lively scene on Thursday afternoon when the babies of the Font Roll with their mothers were entertained at a Christmas Party.

Invitations had been sent out to every child under six years of age who had been baptized by the Rector, Rev. J. L. Hughes during the 4½ years of his ministry here. About fifty mothers and babies were present, a number being prevented through sickness. They were received by the Rector and Mrs. Hughes in the absence of Mrs. Huxley, Little Helper's Secretary. Toys of various kinds had been provided for the little ones to play with and these were taken full advantage of. The hymn "Once in Royal David's City" was sung followed by prayer, and a talk about the Font Roll by the Rector. The families were introduced to each other by means of a Roll Call, this causing great merriment.

A bountiful supply of dainty refreshments was provided by some of the members of the Senior W. A., Mrs E. J. Brown, Mrs. T. Monk, Mrs. J. Brownlie and Mrs. R. King. The children sat on a rug and enjoyed their milk, sandwiches, biscuits, and cake, the mothers equally enjoying their cups of tea. Two small Christmas trees held gifts of toys for the children, these being a joint contribution of Mesdames Brown, Brownlie and Monk. These ladies gave much time to sponsoring the event. Each child received a gift, and also a candy stick, the latter being kindly donated by H. Davidson. This is the third "Little Helper's" Party held at St. George's and each has exceeded the previous one in success.

ONTARIO PLANS TO SECURE AREA

Arrangements Are Being Made To Take Over the Last Unceded Indian Territory.

128,320 ACRES.

TORONTO, Ont., January 8 (Canadian Press). — Arrangements are now being completed by the Federal and Provincial authorities whereby the last unceded Indian territory in the whole Dominion of Canada -128,320 square miles of it, from the Albany River north to the Manitoba boundary—will be bought by Ontario by treaty, in June next.

Geographically speaking, this great area, with its mineral possibilities and forest wealth, now belongs to the Province, but in every other respect it is still legally "redman's country." The steady northerly development of Ontario, more than anything else, it is understood, makes necessary its early acquisition as Crown property.

Signing by the Indians of the treaty now in preparation—an adhesion, really, to treaty No. 9, under which the Province some years ago, acquired all Indian lands south of the Albany—will occupy at least two weeks' time, will entail penetration by the Provincial Air Force plane, carrying the Queen's Park and Ottawa officials negotiating the treaty, of water routes and areas never before visited by fliers, and should provide one of the most graphic stories ever written into the annals of this or any other Province.

CANADA NEEDS GREAT BRITAIN

Declares Beverly Baxter of London Daily Express, Addressing Toronto Canada Club.

TORONTO, Jan. 8.— (Canadian Press).—Beverley Baxter, Managing Editor of the London Daily Express, who has came back, temporarily, to his native Canada before the Canadian Club yesterday discussed the question "Does Canada Need England?" His answer was a distinct affirmative, but it was equally true, he said, that England needed Canada and Canada's youthful vigor.

"Perhaps," he said, "the war spirit is over in the world. I wish to God it were so. Perhaps it is. But when you see France arming with the enthusiasm and the vigor and the squander of a Napoleon again, it is very disturbing and I think Canada must face the problem."

"To my mind the greatest menace facing the British Empire is British foreign policy. I believe Sir Austen Chamberlain's rise to power has been a political tragedy, and I say that conscious of the fact that Austen Chamberlain is one of the finest men, most honorable men that British public life ever produced. Think of his blunders. He is obsessed with Europe. He can see nothing but Europe. His great father, Joe, 25 years before his time, said: 'Get out of Europe.' What nation ever had a heritage like the British Empire? and then his son, coming through Canada a few weeks ago, says in Ottawa: "We cannot get out of Europe.' That is a cry of a weary man unable to size up the changing trend of affairs."

OBITUARY

S. J. BEST

OMEMEE, Jan. 8 (Examiner Correspondence).—It was with deep regret that the citizens of Omemee and district learned of the death of the late Samuel J. Best. The deceased, who was in his 75th year, had been in failing health for some months, and about a week ago contracted a cold, which along with other complications, hastened his passing. The late Mr. Best was a life-long resident of Emily township, having been a successful farmer before retiring to make his home in Omemee, some twenty years ago. He was an active member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and although he led a simple life, he was highly esteemed and well known by a large circle of friends.

The funeral, which was held from his late residence on Friday afternoon was largely attended. Rev R. F. Scott, of Cannington, a former pastor, conducted the service, assisted by Rev. J. A. Kennedy. Rev. Scott spoke very feelingly of the life of the deceased in the course of a lengthy discourse.

Left to mourn his passing is the sorrowing widow and one daughter, Amy; also two brothers, William of Omemee, and Josiah of Mount Pleasant.

Many floral tributes bore mute testimony of the love and esteem in which he was held.

Interment was made in Emily Presbyterian cemetery.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Ernest Best of Eldon, James Donaldson of Peterborough, Dr. Jamieson of Millbrook, Arthur Jamieson of Bethany, Everett Hayes, and Edward Best of Omemee.

MRS. EMMA [illegible]

OMEMEE, Jan. 8 (Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Mrs. Hunt of Toronto was held upon the arrival of the 11.15 C.N.R. train from Toronto, on Thursday. Rev. A. T. Weir, rector of Christ Church, conducted the service at the grave.

The late Mrs. Hunt, who was 84 years of age, was the youngest sister of the late William Neil. After her marriage, she resided in Port Hope until the death of her husband, when she moved to Toronto to live with her daughter, Mrs. Irwin. The deceased lady had been an invalid for some years.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Richard Poast, Isaac Fee, William Irwin and James Bushnell.

A grandson, Clarence Irwin, and Mrs. Irwin of Toronto, accompanied the remains.

Interment was made in Emily cemetery.

GEORGE HENRY MOORE.

The death occurred at Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, of George Henry Moore on January 1 after a prolonged illness. The deceased was thirty-one years of age and the beloved husband of Georgia Moore.

The funeral service was held at his late residence, 88 Birmingham street, New Toronto, on Friday, January 4, and interment was in Prospect cemetery.

YOUNG PEOPLE ENTERTAINED

Concert and Motion Picture Program Presented in United Church Hall.

AT DUNSFORD.

DUNSFORD, Jan. 8.—A concert and motion picture entertainment was given in the United Church hall on Friday evening by the young people of the congregation assisted by M. H. Winter, B.A. of Lindsay, Agricultural representative, for Victoria County. The program consisted of an address by Mr. Winter in which he pointed out the necessity of farmers sowing clean seed in connection with which the speaker stated that any farmer who desired might send an ounce of clover or alsike seed or a pound of coarser grains down to Ottawa to the Government officials and have them tested for foul seeds free of charge until after the first of February and by this means it was possible to ascertain the quality of seed to be used in the spring. Mr. Winter also emphasized the value of selecting a certain breed of cattle and developing that strain, and what is true of cattle is also true of poultry. "In every case," he said, 'it pays in the end to raise pure bred stock."

Mr. Winter showed a number of motion pictures which were very instructive and entertaining. There were some of mounted cavalry, apple growing and packing, stock judging, ostrich farming and a couple of reels illustrating popular sports.

The young people put on a dialogue entitled. "A Changed Housewife" which represented the folly of a mother being so particular about her home and furniture that she eventually drove the members of the family to spending their evening in the saloon. Through a book agent who left a good book which the housewife read she saw her mistake and was influenced to change her ways.

Mrs. I. E. Thurston sang, "Keep on Hoping." Mrs. Vernold Thurston sang, "Take Me Back to Dear Old Childhood" and Delmer Thurston sang, "Press Me to Your Bosom Once Again."

Miss Eleanor Thurston gave two very pleasing readings.

A group of ladies sang a chorus entitled, "Poor Old Maids." Instrumental music on the spoons, violin and harp was furnished by Robert Graham and Alvin, Thomas and Elmer Kennedy.

YOUNG FARM HAND IS BEING SOUGHT

Farmer and His Wife Are Found With Bullet Wounds in Their Heads.

CANAL FULTON, Ohio, Jan. 8. — (Canadian Press).—A young farm hand, known only as Edward, was sought to-day in connection with the slaying of John Oser, 30, well-to-do Canal Fulton farmer, and his wife, Bertha.

The bodies were discovered yesterday morning by the Osers' six-year-old son, George. Oser lay dead in his milking shed with a bullet wound in his head and the body of his wife, clad only in a nightgown, was found on a rock pile behind the garage with her head crushed and also pierced by a bullet.

Short of Breath Smothering Feelings Choking Sensation

SKATING RINK FOR ROSENEATH

Will Use Floor Space of New Agricultural Building For Rink.

DISTRICT NEWS.

ROSENEATH, Jan. 8.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The frosty weather has put mirth and muscle into the young men of the village in fact many of the older men are interested in the flooding of the new skating rink. For several years the young people have worked to try making an open air rink, but it never materialized owing to heavy snow storms. This year is more promising with the use of the new agricultural building which is 110 feet long and 60 feet wide, and will when completed make an up-to-date skating rink. If the weather remains cold the ice will harden and will be in readiness within a few days.

The Athletic Association is not sparing any efforts to have one of the best rinks available for the winter evenings. Tickets and music will be arranged for when the ice is in condition to skate on.

CATTLE THIEF IS SENTENCED

Sisters Intervene and Penitentiary Term is Not Handed Out by Court.

STOLE 19 HEAD

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Jan. 8 (Canadian Press).—Leonard Evans, farmer and cattle dealer of Iona Station, near here, was convicted and sentenced to-day by Judge J. G. Kerr, Chatham, to two years less one day in the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph, for the theft of nineteen steers on August 8 last.

The case was brought to a dramatic climax, when, just as His Honor was naming a three year sentence in Portsmouth Penitentiary. Mrs. Marjory Gingles, Toronto, and Miss Patricia Evans, St. Thomas, sisters of the accused, leapt to their feet, the former crying: "My brother has five children dependent on him, Your Honor—you are sentencing them, too."

Crown Attorney McCrimmon intervened and stated he would be satisfied with a sentence of two years less one day under the circumstances. Judge Kerr agreed to the reduction.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 8, 1929

REV. DR. BLAGRAVE HONORED.

The selection of Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, vicar of St. John's Church, to give a three months' series of lectures to the students of Berkeley Divinity School at New Haven, Conn., is an honor to Dr. Blagrave himself, to St. John's Church and to Peterborough.

For the first time this distinction has been given to a Canadian.

It has been the custom of Berkeley, an institution affiliated with Yale University, to bring a prominent British clergyman to give the annual course of lectures, and the fact that on this occasion, instead of looking across the Atlantic to select its lecturer, Berkeley has instead gazed northward and chosen Rev. Dr. Blagrave is a fine tribute to the latter's scholarship and theological training.

His fellow-citizens will congratulate the vicar of St. John's upon the splendid honor of being the first Canadian to be chosen for this most important and honored appointment, and unite in the hope that his three months' sojourn in New Haven will be of benefit and value to himself as it will undoubtedly be for the students before whom he will lecture four or five times each week during the course.

THE FISHERY CONFERENCE.

The open session of the Ontario Government Game Fish Committee to-morrow should be full of interest to the people of this Province—and it is to be hoped will develop some constructive suggestions that will lead to an improvement in fishing conditions throughout Ontario.

Members of the committee are to be congratulated upon their efforts to get the fullest possible information in regard to the game fish situation.

To-morrow's conference will bring together, for example, representatives of anglers' organizations, fish and game associations, as well as individual sportsmen, resort owners and guides from every fishing district in the Province.

These delegates, men in touch with conditions and alive to the need of conservation, should be in a position to supply the committee with much valuable data to be added to the fund of information already gathered by the committee itself in the course of a tour of Ontario.

The official report to the Minister of Mines and Fisheries will be based upon a study of all the material that has been gleaned in various ways, and is expected to include a large number of suggestions seeking to improve fishing conditions in Ontario—an improvement that is imperative if tourist traffic into this Province is to be kept at the level reached during recent years.

CREDIT FOR MRS. MORRIS.

In an incidental reference during the course of an address to the Rotary Club yesterday, Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., paid a merited tribute to the pioneer work in the interest of vocational training performed by Mrs. W. R. Morris.

The lady member of the Board of Education was among the first to realize that modern conditions require more varied educational facilities than were considered necessary a decade or two ago, that secondary schools should provide opportunities for the boys and girls who plan to enter industrial or business life, and not merely academic training for those whose goal was one of the professions.

Mrs. Morris threw herself into the fight for vocational training with characteristic energy and thoroughness at a time when the public was lukewarm in its attitude toward the question, and when support for her vision of technical education could not be termed encouraging.

Now that much of what she aimed at has been accomplished and splendid facilities are available for pupils who want vocational training, it is but simple justice to point out that Mrs. Morris deserves general thanks for her persistent advocacy of the policy that has finally been carried out.

THERE ARE STILL FOLKS WHO READ.

The annual report of the Peterborough Public Library furnishes proof that reading is not yet a lost art in this city, albeit the fascination of the radio, the movies and other entertainment might lead to the conclusion that books are no longer in keen demand.

In fact, Librarian F. M. Dela Fosse is able to show a record circulation for last year, the adult department reporting 98,076 books taken out in 1928, as compared with 76,070 in the previous year, while the juvenile library also had a greater circulation than in 1927.

A pleasing feature, too, is that while books of fiction continue to be most popular, the increase in circulation was not all recorded in the fiction department, but was spread over nearly all the other book classes, with splendid gains recorded in biography, travel and history.

Increased use of reference books and of the reading rooms and a greater number of new borrowers are points in the librarian's report that show that Peterborough's fine library continues to increase its usefulness to the people of Peterborough.

The greater interest shown in the library is gratifying.

No money spent by the city earns greater dividends in the form of culture and entertainment than does the annual appropriation to the library budget, and it is a source of much satisfaction to learn that the advantages the institution offers are being more and more utilized by the community.

UNFIT FOR THEIR JOB.

By way of welcoming the New Year, two Detroit policemen took their revolvers out of their holsters and began to fire indiscriminately into the air and into the ground. As a result, one man was shot in the shoulder, and another, only twenty years of age and on the threshold of life, was shot through the head and died on the sidewalk.

"Sure we were shooting to celebrate the New Year, and maybe one of the bullets by accident hit these boys," they said. "But maybe it was some other fellow's bullet. There was lots of shooting in the neighborhood last night. It's sure too bad, but if it was us it was just an accident, and we didn't mean to do anybody any harm."

Such was the bland and unconcerned explanation they gave to their superiors. The nature of it seems little different from the irresponsible excuses of a child or a moron who brandishes a revolver, not knowing it was loaded.

That such men should be in the police at all is beyond the comprehension of people on this side of the border. Canadian citizens cannot picture members of its police force using their revolvers for dangerous skylarking in busy streets.

The city of Detroit appears to need a stricter mentality test for its police candidates. If these men are not sub-normal, the tragedy of New Year's night suggests that the indifference to life among the criminals the force exists to suppress has spread to the force itself.

Moreover, the fact that "there was lots of shooting in the neighborhood that night," is evidence that the citizens of Detroit are altogether too free with their shooting irons.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Discoursing recently on "The Writing of History," Mr. Philip Guedella, whose contributions to that branch of literature entitle him to speak with some authority on the subject, took occasion to remark that to the present generation of readers history seemed, in a marked degree, to have lost its appeal. If he did not go so far as to suggest that Clio had been dethroned, he appeared to be satisfied from his own observation that the art which entranced and instructed our forefathers through the medium of a Gibbon, a Macaulay, or a Carlyle, had fallen upon evil days and was no longer appreciated.

The reproach is not new. For many years, the writers and teachers of history have been lamenting the decadence of a taste which runs to "best sellers" in fiction and neglects the work of those who seek to revivify the past. It is not long since a member of the American Historical Association bemoaned the fact that while the old historians "lived like pro-consuls over provinces of literary expression," those of the present day exercised no greater influence than that of "hard working centurions," who found it difficult to make ends meet.

In the discussion of the question of what the public reads it may be that sufficient consideration is not given to the distinction between the number of books that are bought and the proportion that is borrowed, for the influence of the public libraries is a factor not to be overlooked. Nor may it be altogether irrelevant or unkind to suggest that if the modern historians fail to command the patronage and appreciation enjoyed by their predecessors, it is, perhaps, because they are afraid to confess that "the fault is not in our stars, but in ourselves, that we are underlings."

But another element in the case is the fact, increasingly recognized, that a knowledge of history may be gained from other sources than ponderous historical treatises in sets of so many volumes. As a guide to the past and a method of approach to historical study, biography has acquired a growing popularity; encyclopaedias and works of reference of every sort offer to the student and general reader a ready means of access to what the ages teach, and it can hardly be called a degenerate taste that finds more of the charm and glamour of history in the informative essay than it does in an elaborately documented text-book.

Nor is it by the study of literature alone that the historic sense may be cultivated. The past can be made to live again as vividly in objective form as in the printed page. A striking illustration of what may be accomplished in this direction is supplied by an exhibition now open in the London Museum, in which has been brought together a collection of objects of interest associated with the Mother of Parliaments, and particularly with the Prime Ministers of Britain, during the past two hundred years.

The pageant of Parliamentary history, from Sir Robert Walpole to Stanley Baldwin, is here presented in a diversity of curios, pictures, and personalia, not only of rare value in themselves, but of a quality still richer in their individual relation to great men and memorable events. Interesting as it is to read the descriptions by historians of how celebrated statesmen looked, it is even more interesting to see them as they appeared in the flesh to the artists of their time; and in the London exhibition there are on view portraits of all the Prime Ministers, save one, since Walpole.

More impressive still are the personal touches and sense of reality conveyed by the display of articles that belonged to the various Prime Ministers and other Parliamentary celebrities. Here is the copper pan in which Pitt brewed the posset that he drank after a late night in the House; there, a cocked hat that once adorned the head of Wellington. One of the most dramatic incidents of Parliamentary history is vividly recalled by the appearance of the dagger which Burke dashed on the floor of the Commons in a paroxysm of eloquence. Disraeli is brought nearer by a glimpse of the unfinished manuscript of a political novel in which he designed to pillory Gladstone; and a little known page in the life of the latter stands revealed in some juvenilia of his Eton days.

If, as Macaulay claimed, it is the duty of the historian "to make the past present, to bring the distant near, to place us in the society of a great man, to invest with the reality of human flesh and blood beings whom we are too much inclined to consider as personified qualities in an allegory, to call up our ancestors before us with all their peculiarities * * * to show us over their houses, to seat us at their tables, to rummage their old-fashioned furniture," etc., then, the London Museum authorities in presenting so realistic a picture of Parliament and the Premiership, are performing a function as truly historical as it is unusual and attractive.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

After all this has somewhat of the appearance of a regular Canadian winter.

Premier Ferguson keeps in touch with public opinion, even to the extent of getting the "flu" when other people have it.

The outbreak of measles in the central part of the city has assumed serious proportions. The only remedy is a strict observance of the quarantine regulations.

The fishery conference may divulge some data on the best fishing grounds that will be of service to keen anglers.

Reading is increasingly popular, according to the Public Library report. And yet the circulation last year did not represent more than six books per capita for Peterborough's population.

A Thought

Psalm xxxiii:13 — "The Lord looketh from Heaven. He beholdeth all the sons of men."

The Lord hath established the mighty, and set him his place apart,
He knoweth his sorrows and struggles, his strength and weakness of heart.
The Lord taketh toll of his riches, his power of hand and brain,
Whether his life be of blessing to others, or lived for his selfish gain.
And the Lord hath created the poor man, and said "I was poor as thou,
And know what it is to labor and live by the sweat of My brow."
He seeth his needs and temptations, whether he rise or fall.
The Lord God knoweth His children, and loveth them one and all.
Judgeth, and tryeth them wisely, just what each one can bear,
Helpeth them in their weakness, hearkneth to every prayer.
One is as dear as another, and they that walk in the night
Are just as close to their Father as those whom He blesseth with light.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Wednesday, January 9, 1929.
(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syn.)

Days marked by luck appear to be indicated for the next few days in which there will also be many hazards. Astrologers foretell startling events.

This should be a day favorable to new business projects, and it is well to push all important matters.

Merchants and manufacturers should benefit from orders that promise expansion of their fields of profit.

Whatever concerns commerce is well directed, and all who have oil interests are especially fortunate at this time, astrologers announce.

Legislation affecting the manufacture and sale of beverages is forecast and stringent measures to prevent the use of alcohol are indicated by the stars.

Despite prognostications of unusual storms at sea, much ocean travel is foretold for all the winter months.

Again there is a good sign for weddings to-day. Brides and bridegrooms have the promise of wealth as well as happiness.

This should be a fairly auspicious date for betrothals, although peril lies in the fact that the stars are supposed to make persons appear more charming than they are in reality.

Actors and actresses are well directed to-day which presages recognition for young players.

Return to popularity of romantic and poetic dramas is prophesied as one of the reactionary evidences of the new year.

Under this planetary government, a critical attitude of mind may be produced. Husbands may not appear at their best under the mental microscopes of their wives.

Trouble involving the Monroe doctrine is foretold for next month when international problems may arise.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of much good fortune in the coming year. Churchmen whould be especially lucky.

Children born on this day probably will be normal, well-balanced, and physically strong. These subjects of Capricorn efficiently serve humanity. They are able to carry out large projects and are generally fine executives.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE FROWN

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

The frown is said to be something left over from our animal ancestors. In the lower animals it has its counterpart in the snarl and growl and other evidences of extreme displeasure, such as the arching of the back.

This is a warning to the offender to take care. The object is to impress, to strike terror, and to secure submission.

The frown does not add to the beauty of the face. It is not meant to. It is meant to give a ferocious aspect. The ordinary dog has a savage and wolf-like appearance when he snarls and growls. His features become distorted. His teeth are bared to show his powers, and his determination to use them.

The frown and its accompanying manifestations of ferocity often serve as a useful bluff to scare off the enemy, and avoid a fight. Sometimes the bluff fails. Perhaps the animal is too mad to be satisfied by merely scaring off his enemy, especially if it is to serve as prey. In such a case the frown and snarl do good service in getting up steam, and arousing the anger emotions. No animal can be effectively mobilized as a fighting machine without a little preliminary warming up. That is why the element of surprise is so important in all warfare. The surprised enemy has not time to get set for what is ahead, becomes panicky, and is sometimes too dazed to offer any resistance.

The purely animal function in frowning has little room in modern life. Men have almost no occasion for personal combat, and hence little need for exercising the frown as a means of striking terror in the heart of an enemy, and of getting up steam for a fight. Now and then a prize fighter finds it useful before the fight starts to give his opponent the evil eye and a nasty frown for the psychological effect. Arrogant boasting is an essential psychological effect. Arrogant boasting is an essential part of this propaganda. Among the present crop of contenders for the heavy-weight championship there is one who has a reputation for practicing such tactics. From all accounts, he is fairly successful.

We frown in response to a feeling of displeasure. It is essentially a reflex act, and quite automatic except in so far as we have learned to control it in the interests of polite society. We use the term frown figuratively to show our dislike and opposition to what offends us. To frown on a style, a person, or an idea is to show extreme displeasure, and an attempt to squelch it on the spot.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write care of this paper, and send stamped envelope for reply.

THE LUCKIEST LADY

Ruby M. Ayres

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XXVII—TOO LATE

It is said that only a strong man can run away from a woman who loves him, and whom he loves, but Hugh Hubbard had never realized his own weakness until he knew that by his own action he had made it impossible to see Marna again.

A dozen times on his way to Southampton he felt that he must go back—that it was impossible to continue the journey. A dozen times after he reached the hotel where he was to stay the night he very nearly decided to cancel his passage and return to London.

He paced his room all night long, suffering more now he was away from Marna than he had ever suffered when he was with her.

He had thought to save them both pain by avoiding a further goodbye, and knew that he had but made matters worse; he knew that even as he was suffering so she must be suffering also, and the thought was unendurable.

What was she thinking of him? What was she doing with the long, terrible night which one moment seemed as if it would never pass, and the next as if it was rushing away on merciless wings, speeding them both nearer to an hour when there would no longer be a hope of meeting one another—only miles of seas and separation.

"I can't leave her—I must go back!" So Hubbard told himself again and again, but he knew its hopelessness. How could he deliberately smash up his friend's life? The thing was an impossibility.

In vain he argued with his conscience that it had been done thousands of times before, and would be done again. In vain he argued that everyone had a right to happiness. Why was love given to men and women, if they might not take it?

"I can't leave her. I will go back in the morning." So he told himself as he paced the room, but in the morning he knew he could not; he knew that he must go on, and take the only honorable course left to him. And yet honor seemed such a small thing when he remembered the way Marna had looked at him the last time they met—the way she had turned from him after Saunders had told her that his sister was sailing on the same boat.

That had been their goodbye; he would always remember her with that tragedy of pain in her eyes, which she tried so hard to disguise. As if Saunders' sister was anything to him! As if any other woman in the world was anything to him, or ever would be!

"I must go back," he told himself passionately for the thousandth time. "I can't leave her. I must go back!"

But in the morning he was one of the first passengers to board the Karmala, although down to the last moment he was pretending that it was not too late—that at the eleventh hour he could still change his mind, still go ashore again; that he meant to go ashore again; that he could not leave Marna behind; how could he leave her behind?

And to the end he stood by the gangway, his heart torn, his brain on fire and confused.

Perhaps she would come to the boat to see him before he went? He tried to believe that she would, hoped passionately that she would, and the next moment scorned himself for the futility of such a hope. How could she come to him when he had left her without a word of farewell?

People were going ashore. Close beside him a woman was sobbing and clinging to a man's arm. Hubbard glanced at her, and quickly away again. He could not go on; he must go back; what did anything matter but the woman one loved?

"I will go back!" he told himself feverishly, and he went down to his cabin, and began to throw back into his suitcase the few things he had already unpacked.

Nothing mattered but Marna! Nothing mattered but that she—— The ship was moving!

Hubbard stood very still, listening to the sounds of departure, the running feet on deck, and the blast of the ship's syren.

It was too late!

He turned and rushed up the companion.

Not yet too late—not yet!

But there was a wide gap of water between the ship and the quayside, and already it was hardly possible to distinguish figures left behind.

White handkerchiefs waved; voices called across, trying in vain to bridge the ever-increasing space.

On the quay a group of people were gathered round someone—a fainting woman—probably the one who had cried so and clung to the man's arm, Hubbard thought.

He leaned on the ship's rail and strained his eyes to the shore.

It was too late to go back now. They had both got to go on, on their separate ways, he and Marna, and God alone knew if they would ever meet again!

He stood on deck till the coastline had faded out of sight, then he turned away with a little shiver.

It was all over; there was nothing left but an empty future.

A man beside him spoke abruptly with blunt emotion.

"My last glimpse of England for many a long day."

"Mine, too," Hubbard answered.

They stood silently looking towards the empty skyline, then the other man said again:

"Rotten business—eh?"

"Yes, if you leave anyone behind," Hubbard answered.

He felt his companion's eyes upon him as he said gruffly:

"I'm not lucky enough. But I saw rather a pathetic incident just before we sailed. By the way, I nearly lost the boat. You saw, I suppose? I motored in from Lyndhurst this morning—been staying there—and something went wrong with the car. You saw the rush I had to get on board, I suppose?"

"No. I was down below."

"Well, I only just did it by the skin of my teeth. They were hauling the gangway up when I made a dash for it. There was a woman who wanted to do the same thing—not a passenger, but she kept saying she must see someone on the ship. She hadn't got a ticket, or a permit, or whatever you have to have, and anyway she was too late. I felt sorry for her—attractive woman—looked frightfully ill, too. Don't know where she came from. Should liked to have helped her find the man, whoever he was, but I was in a dashed hurry myself, and there was a crowd of officials keeping her back. Poor little devil! Believe she fainted when she saw them haul the gangway up. Rotten business eh, going off to the other side of the world?"

"Yes."

"Been away before?"

"All my life, more or less."

"You're used to it, then."

"I suppose I should be."

The two men looked at one another with friendly eyes.

"Might as well exchange names," the elder man said gruffly. "Got to be neighbors for six or seven weeks, I suppose. My name's Blackwell—James Blackwell."

"Mine's Hubbard—Hugh Hubbard—what's the matter?"

"Nothing—only—that little woman I was speaking about just now. I heard her tell the official chap who stopped her coming aboard that she wanted to see someone of your name—'Hubbard,' she said. I heard her say it several times. Of course, it may be some other Hubbard—not a very uncommon name—eh? I only just mentioned it. Sorry if I—"

Hubbard turned on his heel and walked away.

So, after all, she had come to say goodbye to him, and he had not seen her!

He went down to his cabin and locked the door; then he sat down on the edge of his bed and hid his face in his hands.

She had come to say goodbye, and he had not seen her! Over and over again he kept telling himself that.

He suddenly visualized the little group of people round a fainting woman on the quayside. Had that been Marna? He remembered how she had fainted the first night he came home. It tore his heart to remember Mrs. Blair's blunt indignation:

"Where are George Paget's eyes, that he can't see how ill she looks?"

Was that true? Was she ill—really ill?

She had come to say goodbye to him, and he had not seen her, and with every moment now the distance between them was widening; already it was impassable—a gulf of eternity between his life and that of the woman he loved.

If only he had said goodbye to her—if only they had just had one last moment together.

He had been a blind fool to leave her as he had done—a blind selfish fool.

And now it was too late.

Life was a cruel jest, a cynical riddle to which no man ever finds the answer. One had just to go on hoping, looking vainly forward to the realization of happiness, until the end of the road was reached and the great farce played out.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS— by John Hix

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE APPLE PIE

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate)

Last night, if you remember, I told you how Uncle Wiggily built himself a snow house so he and Mr. Whitewash, the Polar Bear gentleman, could sit in it to play checkers in peace and quiet away from the forty-sixteen little bunny boys and girls of Mr. Longears. And all of a sudden, while Uncle Wiggily and Mr. Whitewash were playing in the snow house, they heard outside a sniffing, snuffling sound.

The Polar Bear said the sound was the wind or else some of the little rabbit children trying to peek in, but Uncle Wiggily was sure it was something else, and it was.

For soon after Mr. Longears, with the help of the Polar Bear, had made the snow house, the Woozie Wolf and the Fuzzie Fox saw the rabbit gentleman go in. They didn't see Mr. Whitewash on account of his fur being light, the same color as is ice and snow.

"We have a good chance, now, to catch Uncle Wiggily," said the Wolf.

"How?" asked the Fox.

"Why," growled the other Bad Chap, "there he is, cooped up in that snow house. And it's a dark night. All we have to do is to go there, scratch a hole through the side of the snow house and pull that rabbit out. Then we'll have something good to eat."

"Come on! I'm with you!" snarled the Fox.

So the two Bad Chaps crept closer and closer to the snow house and then they began to sniff and snuff. So it was this sniffing and snuffing sound that Uncle Wiggily heard and not any noise made by the wind or by the little bunny boys and girls shuffling around to peek in the window made of slabs of ice.

So Uncle Wiggily walked on the tips of his paws inside the snow house until he reached the window made of ice, and then holding his front paws around his eyes to keep out the light of the firefly lantern he and Mr. Whitewash was using to play checkers, the rabbit gentleman looked out into the dark night.

"I don't see any wind making that sniffing, snuffing, snaffing noise," said Uncle Wiggily to Mr. Whitewash.

"You can't see the wind," growled the Polar Bear.

"I don't see any of my little bunny boys and girls shuffling around, either," went on Mr. Longears.

"Well, what do you see?" asked Mr. Whitewash, giving himself a Checker King. "Who is making that sniffling, snuffing sound?"

"My goodness! It's the Fox and the Wolf trying to get in my snow house!" cried Uncle Wiggily. And just then the two Bad Chaps, having tried to claw a hole in the snow house, started to make a fire of wood to melt it, for they found that the snow and ice sides of the house had frozen so hard that they couldn't be clawed through.

"We'll smoke that rabbit out!" growled the Wolf, blowing the fire with his breath to make it hotter.

"Sure!" growled the Fox, throwing more wood on the blaze.

"Let me get out of the door and I'll fix those Bad Chaps!" growled Mr. Whitewash, for the Fox and Wolf didn't know the Polar Bear was in with Uncle Wiggily. "I'll claw them! I'll paw them! I'll squeeze them! I'll feeze them!" cried Mr. Whitewash.

But there was no need to do this, for all of a sudden the fire which the Bad Chaps had made outside the snow house melted one corner of it. The snow and ice melted into water and when the water splashed into the fire it turned into hot steam, like that which comes out of the tea-kettle spout. And this steam from the melting corner of the snow house puffed in the faces of the Bad Chaps and burned them so that they ran away howling and yowling and they didn't get Uncle Wiggily after all.

"It's a good thing they ran away!" growled Mr. Whitewash, as he came outside. "Else I'd have chased them. Put out the fire, Wiggy, and we will finish our game of checkers."

"All right," said the rabbit. "But before I put out the fire I think I'll bake an apple pie. Or, rather, I'll ask Nurse Jane to come over here and make an apple pie for us. I'm hungry."

"So am I," said Mr. Whitewash, laughing. "Playing checkers always makes me hungry."

So they pulled the fire away from the snow house that it might not melt it any more and pretty soon Nurse Jane came over with apples and sugar and crust and on the blaze the Bad Chaps had started the muskrat lady made a fine apple pie which the bunny and Polar Bear ate as they played checkers far into the night and had a fine time.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

THE SLEEPLESS

This is the hardest time, the night,
When all the world may sleep and rest,
While we must fight the lonely fight
Of those by bitter thoughts possessed.
Surrender seems so tempting then,
In those dark hours before the dawn,
The dawn we know shall come again
When we must rise and still fight on.

And yet the cure is not so rare,
The remedy so hard to find;
A walk each day in God's good air,
(A weary body rests the mind),
A frugal diet, humble taste,
And then in something to excel,
The many things we do in haste
Less worthy than a few done well.

And when we turn the key once more
And shut the lingering shadows out,
So we must learn to shut the door
Of memory on fear and doubt.
We'll drop the garments of the day
And don the garments cool and sweet,
Shut all the ugly thoughts away.
And turn the lovely thoughts to meet.

DEPARTMENT PLANS TO BUILD SUBWAYS

Elevated Crossings Will Be Built in Several Parts of Province.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Numerous plans and estimates have been completed for the construction of subways by engineers of The Ontario Department of Highways with the view of eliminating as many level crossings possible in the province, it was announced at the parliament buildings yesterday.

An elevated crossing will be constructed near Burlington on the Niagara Falls highway in addition to the elimination of the dangerous level crossing on the Kingston road near Rosebank. It is estimated that the cost of this work will run as high as $200,000. The work will be started this summer. The construction of a subway at Shannonville is also receiving consideration.

Construction is carried out by the Ontario Government and repayment made in the form of grants from The Dominion Government to the amount of forty percent. The Ontario Government pays forty percent of the work and the municipality twenty percent.

Despite the inclement weather, the Booster Night held last evening by the Men's Club of St. John's Church was a great success. The program, joined in with great enthusiasm by those present, and in charge of Messrs. W. G. Howden, H. Lemmings and the president, Mr. C. Coleman, consisted of carpet bowling, music and old time dances, the evening concluding with the service of dainty refreshments. Excellent music was provided by Jack Marshall and his orchestra, consisting of Clifford Rusaw, N. Duranceau and H. Hotston. A vote of thanks to the orchestra was proposed by F. Dainton and seconded by H. Lemmings. An expression of sympathy was also voiced by the gathering to the secretary, Mr. George Groombridge, who is ill. The Vicar of St. John's, the Rev. Dr. Blagrave, came in during the evening and received many congratulations on the honor recently conferred upon him by the Berkeley Divinity School at New Haven, Connecticut.

ABOUT BEING IN LOVE.

"Dear Marion,

First of all, excuse this poor writing, but I am a poor writer. I like your page best of all, and you sure must be a wonderful woman. I would like to meet you. So would others, but we know that is hopeless beyond words, isn't it? Here's my problem:

I see a boy every day at school, and I worship him. Of course, no one else knows but me. He is very good-looking, mannly, and respectful. He does not seemter care for girls, but some way or otherhoe seems as if he would care to get acquainted with me. I detest letting any one know I want to get introduced to him, but I would like to know him very much, without lowering myself in his mind. What can I do?

Also, there is another boy who likes me, but I do not care for him so much. As girls say, 'I don't see what you see in a mug like that.' He is decent and respectful. Not homely, but a good, honest, outright look. Should I encourage him and learn to like him, or just pretend?

Sincerely yours,
CASSANDRA."

Dear Cassandra,

You say you see a boy at school and "I worship him." Pardon me, my dear, for contradicting you but you do not worship him, but rather an idea. You do not even know him so how can you be so very much in love. You have merely built up around this boy all the perfections you desire in one of the opposite sex. You think he would like to get acquainted with you; well, if he is very anxious, you may rest assured he will find a way. "What can you do" Just do nothing.

About that other boy who likes you, but whom you do not care for—if you must have a boy friend just remember that 'a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush,' and retain his friendship if you can, but do not 'pretend' anything.

Why all this worry about the boys? You admit you are a poor writer. Why not devote a little more time to your writing and other studies and you will have less time to worry about the so-called stronger sex.

Cheer up, Cassandra, Mr. Right will turn up in time enough and he will do the seeking of an introduction, not you.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

THE new spring coats, frocks and millinery have not yet made their appearance in the stores, and so what I am writing about fashions may not be altogether the correct prediction.

* * * * * *

Before talking about fashions, I would like to remind the readers of the contest which is now on and which everyone should join in. The subject is an interesting one, and when the letters are published I am sure they will be equally as interesting. The contest does not close until January 12, so there is yet time to enter.

* * * * * *

Of course, every woman in Peterborough desires to be smartly dressed. The fact of knowing that you are this—smartly and correctly attired—gives you poise and self-confidence.

* * * * * *

The quest for becoming clothes has led to subdued colors and clinging fabrics. Materials have at no time been lighter in weight, nor less bulky. Even tweeds, which heretofore were not used because of their bulky appearance, are becoming to almost any figure and are used a great deal.

* * * * * *

A distinct departure in fashions is the tendency toward the fitted effect, and one of these is the princess silhouette, which follows the lines of the figure and in some cases shows formality in fluttering circular godets used in many ways.

* * * * * *

The yoke hipline, shirred waistline and bias lines are also chic details of the mode. Fashion has broken away from the straight lines to the silhouette, which is even seen in sports dresses.

* * * * * *

There is much interest shown in the slim hips and in the dipping graceful hemlines. In almost every case, the frocks are fitted in some manner.

* * * * * *

One of the most conspicuous style features is the circular skirt, and one of the most becoming is the one-sided flare which varies the one-piece dress.

* * * * * *

One finds, when looking over the many frocks displayed in our many stores in Peterborough, that girdles encircle the hips in gypsy fashion and fasten with a rhinestone or other jewelled buckle. In some cases the girdle ties in a bow with the ends hanging below the hemline, making it uneven.

* * * * * *

The placing of the belt is an interesting feature of the smarter sports frocks. Every effort is being made to raise the belt to a higher waistline.

* * * * * *

There is a particular appeal in the new, smart woollens. Their lightness of weight and their pretty colorings make them attractive. Their light weight, together with their warmth, make them ideal for general wear.

* * * * * *

At one time, shoppers in Peterborough could not purchase woollens in other colors than tan and brown, and then, too, they were bulky when made up. But now woollens may be bought in all the soft colors and are much less bulky, but yet the warmth is still there.

* * * * * *

For the informal dress that one considers a necessity in the wardrobe, a jersey frock is a good choice. Since beige is very fashionable one might choose a frock of beige jersey, or in the other fashionable colors of red, green and black.

* * * * * *

Afternoon frocks are frilled, flounced and tiered—sometimes straight and often they follow the princess line. Among the afternoon dresses which I happened to notice was one with a molded effect, having a round neck, long sleeves and a tiered skirt of three flounces. These seemed to be shorter in front with a girdle fastened around the hips with a small rhinestone buckle.

* * * * * *

If you have visited many of the social functions held in Peterborough during the past season, I am sure that you have noticed many black evening frocks. Some women consider the black dress, whether for afternoon or evening wear, indispensable to the wardrobe.

* * * * * *

This year at least one-half of the evening frocks are black. A black chiffon evening gown is considered to be very fashionable. A very chic afternoon frock is one made of black georgette or crepe satin. At one time georgette went out of fashion, but at present there is a revival in georgette for daytime and evening wear.

* * * * * *

There is a charm about lace that recommnds it for the formal frock. One on display had a girdle twisted in Vionnet manner and bound around the slender hips of the frock, which was in one-piece style.

* * * * * *

The majority of the coats are on straighter lines, and there are many women who prefer coats like this. Astrakan is the favorite flat fur for trimming, while the fluffy fur is used for formal wear.

* * * * * *

Jewellery is now considered very much a part of the ensemble. Costume jewellery may be purchased in colors to match your ensemble, and it adds to the attractiveness of the gown with which it is worn. Amber, jade and aquamarine stones are very popular.

* * * * * *

Shoes are simple in appearance. Pumps are favorites with many women for daytime wear, and when possible, black is worn. In cases where black cannot be worn, shoes are worn in colors to match the dress.

* * * * * *

The new spring millinery is just making its appearance in Peterborough. One day this week a grey felt and straw hat was noticed. The bottom part, including the rim, was of straw and ran up in points to meet the felt and was stitched with grey yarn.

DOROTHY IN THE GARRET

In the low-raftered garret, stooping
Carefully over the creaking boards,
Old maid Dorothy goes a-groping
Among its dusty and cobwebbed hoards;
Seeking some bundle of patches, hid
Far under the eaves, or bunch of sage,
Or satchel, hung on its nail amid
The heirlooms of a bygone age.

There is the ancient family chest,
There the ancestral cards and hatchel;
Dorothy, sighing, sinks down to rest,
Forgetful of patches, sage, and satchel.
Ghosts of faces peer from the gloom
Of the chimney, where, with swifts and reel,
And the long disused, dismantled loom,
Stands the old-fashioned spinning wheel.

She sees it back in the clean-swept kitchen,
A part of her girlhood's little world;
Her mother is there by the window, stitching;
Spindle buzzes, and reel is whirled,
With many a click; on her little stool
She sits, a child, by the open door,
Watching, and dabbling her feet in the pool
Of sunshine spilled on the gilded floor.

Her sisters are spinning all day long;
To her waking sense, the first sweet warning
Of daylight come, is the cheerful song
To the hum of the wheel, in the early morning.
Benjie, the gentle, red-cheeked boy,
On his way to school, peeps in at the gate;
In neat, white pinafore, pleased and coy,
She reaches a hand to her bashful mate;

And under the elms, a prattling pair,
Together they go, through glimmer and gloom—
It all comes back to her, dreaming there
In the low-raftered garret room;
The hum of the wheel, and the summer weather,
The heart's first trouble, and love's beginning,
Are all in her memory linked together;
And now it is she herself that is spinning.

With the bloom of youth on cheek and lip,
Turning the spokes with the flashing pin,
Twisting the thread from the spindle tip,
Stretching it out and winding it in,
To and fro, with a blithesome tread,
Singing she goes, and her heart is full,
And many a long-drawn golden thread
Of fancy is spun with the shining wool.

Her father sits in his favorite place,
Puffing his pipe by the chimney side;
Through curling clouds, his kindly face
Glows upon her with love and pride.
Lulled by the wheel, in the old armchair
Her mother is musing, cat in lap,
With beautiful drooping head, and hair
Whitening under her snow-white cap.

One by one, to the grave, to the bridal,
They have followed her sisters from the door;
Now they are old, and she is their idol—
It all comes back on her heart once more;
In the autumn dusk the hearth gleams brightly,
The wheel is set by the shadowy wall—
A hand at the latch—'tis lifted lightly,
And in walks Benjie, manly and tall.

His chair is placed: the old man tips
The pitcher, and brings his choicest fruit;
Benjie leans in the blaze, and sips,
And tells his story, and joints his flute;
Oh, sweet the tunes, the talk, the laughter!
They fill the hour with a glowing tide;
But sweeter the still, deep moments after,
When she is alone by Benjie's side.

But once with angry words they part;
Oh, then the weary, weary days!
Ever with restless, wretched heart,
Plying her task, she turns to gaze
Far up the road; and early and late
She harks for a footstep at the door,
And starts at the gust that swings the gate,
And prays for Benjie, who comes no more.

Her fault? Oh, Benjie! and could you steel
Your thoughts toward one who loved you so?
Solace she seeks in the whirling wheel,
In duty and love, that lighten woe;
Striving with labor, not in vain,
To drive away the dull day's dreariness;
Blessing the toil that blunts the pain
Of a deeper grief in the body's weariness.

Proud, and petted, and spoiled was she;
A word and all her life is changed!
His wavering love too easily
In the great, gay city grows estranged.
One year; she sits in the old church pew;
A rustle, a murmur—oh, Dorothy, hide
Your face, and shut from your soul the view!
'Tis Benjie leading a white-veiled bride!

Now father and mother have long been dead,
And the bride sleeps under a churchyard stone,
And a bent old man, with grizzled head,
Walks up the long, dim aisle alone.
Years blur to a mist; and Dorothy
Sits doubting betwixt the ghost she seems
And the phantom of youth, more real than she,
That meets her there in that haunt of dreams.

Bright young Dorothy, idolized daughter,
Sought by many a youthful adorer,
Life, like a new-risen dawn on the water,
Shining an endless vista before her!
Old maid Dorothy, wrinkled and gray,
Groping under the farmhouse eaves,
And life is a brief November day,
That sets on a world of withered leaves!

Yet faithfulness in the humblest part
Is better at last than proud success;
And patience and love in the chastened heart
Are pearls more precious than happiness:
And in that morning when she shall wake
To the springtime freshness of youth again,
All trouble will seem but a flying flake,
And lifelong sorrow a breath on the pane.

Laxative For Baby That "Stays Down"

Baby's tiny system rebels against castor oil and strong purgatives; but here's a medicine that just suits him. And it does the work quickly and so gently that Baby doesn't feel it. Fletcher's Castoria is soothing cross, fretful babies and children to sleep and making the feverish, constipated, upset ones well and happy. In millions of homes today. Castoria is purely-vegetable, harmless and endorsed by the medical profession. Avoid imitations. The Chas. H. Fletcher signature marks genuine Castoria.

Members of the Local Council of Women who are in Toronto today and tomorrow, attending the annual meeting of the Provincial Council in the Ford Hotel, will have an opportunity of taking part in discussions ranging about some interesting problems that affect women.

A suggestion has been made to have a special committee of the National Council of Women, to inspect moving picture films and report back on their findings. This would mean a closer supervision of the movies, because the fiat of such a committee would have its weight with women in all districts where a Local Council functions.

The Ottawa Local Council has taken up the question of looking more carefully after the boys and girls who are brought out to Canada, and then left to their own devices. A number of recent instances where suicide followed a long course of neglect and loneliness and sometimes harsh treatment at the hands of those who were employing such young people, has aroused the Council to this action. Just what line this supervision would take is not yet indicated, but the members feel that something should be done to prevent these young boys and girls from taking their own lives rather than competing with conditions in an inhospitable and often cruel land, so they are asking the Federal Government to supply more adequate inspection, supervision and encouragement for such immigrants.

Another resolution has to do with a consideration of hours of labour for women and girls in industry. It appears that complaints have been made as to the hours that feminine workers are expected to labour and the matter is referred to the sympathetic consideration of the Local Councils.

This question brings to mind the assertion of a local visiting speaker this week, a very eloquent preacher from Montreal, who decried the system of making children work so hard that they lose the necessary recreation that belongs to their life at that early period. He spoke of David Livingstone, many years ago, working from six o'clock in the morning until ten o'clock at night, from the age of ten years on and of the prohibitory legislation which had to be passed and enforced before employers of child labour would desist from such sweating activities.

A third resolution has to do with a request to the Provincial Government to establish a school for delinquent girls of the province, similar to the one now in use at Bowmanville for boys. This has nothing to do with the establishment of a school for the feeble-minded, which is said to have been promised at an early date.

Anyone who saw the boys from Bowmanville during their visit here to successive Kiwanis Fairs and watched them perform in various skilful gymnastic feats, would realize just how much a province might be saved by turning such strong animal spirits and mischief-making potentialities to a good use rather than in letting them run wild for prison material in later years.

An instance of a lack of forethought in addressing New Year mail caused a slight financial loss to a local young lady this week, besides delaying the card on its way to its consignee. Putting the name and "Toronto" on the letter, with the necessary stamp, she intended to look up the street number, but neglected to do so before dropping it in the mail box. However, it had a return address inside and so came back home several days later, with two cents postage due on it. She paid four cents altogether to have that letter go to Toronto and return promptly to her own home.

He was a brilliant and vital speaker. He held his local audience enthralled while he drew a poignant word picture for them. Speaking of the play life of the child, he said it was a necessary stage in its development. Then he recorded the fact that his own childhood had been one lacking the element of play. Sunday in his North of Ireland home had been a day of prayer and psalm-singing. He deplored the fact that play had not been a prominent factor in his early days and said he had made up for it later, when he seized every opportunity for recreation. But while he talked, he gave to his hearers a demonstration of magnetic and compelling power and influence and also of a happy and sunny nature. He wasn't such a bad advertisement after all for the sort of life he depicted, which lacked much of the element of play that is stressed so much nowadays.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

I read your page every night with profound interest. I often wonder what I did before it was started. I saw the contest on "A New Year's Resolution" announced and I have enclosed an entry.

As my letter is very insignificant, I will close now. I remain, as ever,

An admirer,
Beverley."

Thank you, "Admirer." Do you wish to have your pen name changed to "Beverley"?

Please tell me if the resolution you sent is original.

"Dear Marion:

I want to wish you "A Happy New Year" and to thank you for not only the thought you give in your writings but the thought such brings out by your noble effort.

City. Beth.

That is nice of you, 'Beth,' 'and I appreciate it a lot.

"Dear Marion:

I'll bet the fellows who read your page think that I'm an old ladies' man, but let them think—I dont care.

I am enclosing a little ditty of my own composition. It is just a rambling role of nothingness but maybe it will go. Poetry is my pet hobby and a present I have about fifty poems ready for publication—but no one wants my line of bunk.

Hope you and the neighbors enjoy the 26 lines.

Sincerely,
Respect."

Marion's Mail

There's a page in our local paper,
We call it "Marion's Mail."
It is a page of helps for women,
To it all neighbors hail.

We welcome correspondence
From your and your family, too,
Just pick yourself a pen-name
And join our happy crew.

Give us your tips and recipes,
These we all can use;
But don't you knock our Marion
Or you'll get some good abuse.

From neighbors in our district wide
The good souls love this page;
Which is just what we've wanting
Since back in the stone age.

Although this page is meant for ladies,
We men can get some tips
Of how we can serve our doubles
And avoid a lot of nips.

Ask your wife or sweetheart
Just what she thinks of this—
The Examiner's choicest page;
I'm sure she will not hiss.

For here, on this, the ladies share
In local point of view;
She knows that she is getting what
The neighbors mean for you.

—"Respect."

Thank you, "Respect," for your letter and poem. That girl will be prouder than ever to-night!

Bluebird: The letter to which you refer was printed, and "Bluebird" has been booked as your pen-name for some time. I am saving your last letter for the "New Year Resolution" competition.

"Dear Marion:

You are certainly living up to the spirit of neighborliness, especially since your neighbors are becoming more numerous day by day. I also enjoy the readings you select, especially the one from 'Helen's Babies,' Cicero's oration on 'Old Age' and the selection from "Decameron.' I might name several others; in fact, I like all of them.

I am enclosing a contribution for the 'Little Songs of Love' column, or do they have to be original? Many of them seem to be. And, as usual, I am enclosing the coupon. Last time I forgot the stamp, so am sending double this time.

May 1929 be the best year you've ever had; but not the best that is to be.

Marie Christine."

Thank you, "Marie Christine" for the nice things you write, for the poem, and for your good wishes. The poem will be used on Saturday. I am so glad that you like the Daily Readings.

"Dear Marion:

Since the 'flu" and sickness has been raging in the country places as well as in the cities, I find patients will gain their appetite with giving them a variety of liquids or soft diet. A very useful utensil in a home is a food-chopper. In making vetgetable soup I put through the chopper, carrots, onions, potatoes, cabbage and turnips having already partly cooked the beef which will be ready to take from the pot when vegetables are partly cooked and will save either from sticking to the pot. Vegetable soup made this way is most delicious, appetizing and wholesome.

Jay Jay."

Thanks for your valuable hint, "Jay Jay." The soup must be very appetizing, and I'm sure neighbors will wish to use your recipe. Your pen-name has been registered.

"Dear Marion:

I am sending you my New Year resolutions, but do not publish them unless you care to; but it really did me good to put them on paper, and it impressed them on my mind.

I wonder, Marion, if you could tell me the names of any firms that pay for verses of Easter cards, or how do they get their verses? I would like to make some money and thought perhaps in this way I could do so.

I wonder if I can change my pen-name from Dorrie to Bluejay or Kingfisher?

I like your page better every night and I am enclosing a stamp for any helps you have on hand.

Sincerely yours,
Dorrie."

Your pen-name has been changed as requested, and you are now "Bluejay." You will see advertisements in music and women's magazines giving you the information you require. Thanks for the nice things you write.

Marion.

NORWOOD VILLAGE.

Robert Tedford will be the new reeve of Norwood, winning out yesterday in a three corner contest with a majority over the other two candidates. Norwood faces 1929 with only two members for council instead of four as there were only two qualified at the recent nominations. Nominations will immediately be called to elect two councillors for the village.

K. F. Kempt won out over William Portway for the vacant position on the Hydro Board.

The poll yesterday was as follows: For Reeve, Robert Tedford, 149; Tom Morrison 72 and Richard Dean 71.

Hydro Commissioner—K. F. Kempt 172 and William Portway 114.

The two councillors who qualified are William Parcels and Samuel Wildman.

The school trustees who were elected by acclamation are: H. Goden, T. Lumsden and K. G. Thomson.

Manvers Township

There was keen interest in the election in Manvers and in spite of the inclement weather there was a large vote cast. Fred Gray was re-elected reeve by a majority of 12 votes over Bert Richardson. Reeve Gray polled a total of 444 and Bert Richardson received 432 votes.

The following are the results 320, Charles McNeill—386, Edward William McMaster—168, O. H. McGill—361.

Cramahe Township

W. Murphy was elected reeve of the township of Cramahe, having a majority of only 2 votes over Walter Chesterfield. Reeve-elect Murphy polled 338 and Walter Chesterfield received 336 votes.

Charles Quinn was given an acclamation for deputy-reeve.

The following are the results for the council: Ray Darling led the polls with a total vote of 464; George Walker being close to him with 455 votes; Leslie Campbell was well up with the leaders with 428 and Sam Rice had 167 votes.

Smith Township

The only contest in Smith Township was that for Deputy-Reeve and Gordon Fitzgerald received a majority of 98 votes over Allan B. Mann at the polls.

The following are the results by polling divisions:

	A. B. Mann	G. Fitzgerald
Millburn's School	63	41

Henry D. Coons received an acclamation for Reeve when J. A. Middleton resigned and refused to run for office.

The councillors also received an acclamation and the 1929 council will consist of George Mullen, Herbert McConkey, and Vivian Millburn.

Reeve G. B. Airheart won out by the close majority of 11 votes over A. H. Connor for the reeveship of Marmora Village for the year 1929. Mr. Airhart has been reeve of Marmora for the past nine years and is now entering his tenth term. Three hundred and seventy five votes were polled in the village being about 75% of the total vote. For Council, J. Reid headed the polls with 221 votes, A. Burridge was second with 204 votes, D. E. Bell third with 170 votes, and F. N. Marett fourth with 168 votes. The defeated candidates were F. S. Johnston, who came within one vote of tieing with Mr. Marett, the fourth man polling 167 votes and H. W. Sabine with 132 votes.

Reeve Airhart polled 188 votes and A. H. Connor 177. William Knox, the oldest man in the village, being 89 years, polled his vote.

Marmora Township.

T. E. Laycock with 232 votes, was elected reeve of Marmora township yesterday, over W. D. Nickle, who polled 167. A very small vote was polled on account of the icy roads. W. Billings headed the polls for council with 252 votes, then came J. Downard, 251; O. Leonard, 246; and L. E. Leal, 210. The defeated candidate was J. I. McCoy, who polled 147 votes. The oldest men voting were James E. Bailey, at poll No. 2, who is 86 years old, and John W. Wiggins at number 6, who is over 80. Valentine Tennyson, the oldest man in the township intended to poll his vote but was unable to on account of the bad roads.

Belmont and Methuen

With three small polls in the north of the townships to hear from which will hardly change the results of the election, Reeve F. Breckenride was elected over ex-Reeve W. E. Griffiths. Mr. Breckenridge having a majority of 59 votes. C. P. Steenburg headed the polls for council with 222 votes. E. Spencer was second with 173, N. Whitney third, with 160, and G. B. Sanders fourth with 155 votes. The four defeated candidates were O. Wright 148, P. Fry 128, H. Vansickle 128, and E. Hubble 87.

Havelock Village

The new reeve of Havelock will be R. Sanderson who defeated E. J. Leeson at the polls yesterday by a majority of 85 votes. Mr. Sanderson polled 229 votes and Mr. Leeson 144. The council are E. Seeney, a new man on the board, headed the polls with 208 votes; J. Howe, 195; H. Gordon, 194, and A. Spencer, 193. The three defeated candidates were S. F. Joyce, 189; A. Matheson, 174; and D. McAdam, 119.

South Monaghan

John Perrin defeated Wilbur Wood at the polls in South Monaghan for reeve of the township in 1929. A big vote was polled although the roads were very icy and the weather disagreeable. For Council, Fred Smithson headed the polls with 183 votes, David Moncrief was second with 168, James McRoberts third with 175 votes and Wilbur Barnard fourth with 162.

The defeated candidates were Howard Barnard, 135; William McElroy, 97; Robert Pue 132, and Fred Waterman, 158.

The result by pools:

MURRAY TOWNSHIP.

The elections in Murray Township created a great deal of interest, as there was a contest for every office.

N. R. Hart received a big majority over W. F. Elliott for Reeve, polling a total of 508 against Elliott's total of 245.

The results for Deputy-Reeve were very close, Herman Morrow only getting a majority of 34 over Gideon Way. Morrow's total votes were 368 and Gideon Way's total was 333.

G. R. Ireland led the polls for the Council, getting 495 votes. Sam Milligan received a total of 405, Walter Priddy 355, and J. N. Dalmas 222. The first three are the successful candidates.

ALNWICK TOWNSHIP.

There was a stiff race in the municipal elections for Alnwick Township, and there was keen interest, although the total votes cast were rather below normal.

Gordon Parker was elected Reeve, receiving a total vote of 140, getting a majority of 11 over John Drope, who polled 129 votes.

For the Council Albert Halspead and Wilber Smith were tied for second highest with 175 votes apiece. The following are the results: James Webb 191, Albert Halspead 175, Wilber Smith 175, William Arnold 143, Ernest Primlin 143. The first four are the successful candidates.

PERCY TOWNSHIP.

There was a big contest in the municipal elections of Percy Township. W. H. Wilson received a big majority for Reeve over his two opponents, W. E. Hermiston and K. A. Hykes. He received a majority of 225 votes over his nearest rival, W. E. Hermiston, polling a total of 415 votes.

C. H. Curtis was elected Deputy-Reeve by a big majority over O. F. Laver.

A peculiar state of affairs exists for the Council. There were four men running for three vacancies, and the last two candidates received the same number of votes, 328. Alfred Merill headed the polls with 434 votes; James Lemay was next with 386, and the other two candidates, J. M. Greenley, and Wm. Partridge received the same total, 328. It is likely that there will be a recount the father of the late Charles McWilliams. Seventy years ago Mrs. Wellman was the cook at the aforementioned hotel.

CELEBRATES 90TH BIRTHDAY

On the eve of her ninetieth birthday she was to be seen cooking supper for the guests of the Royal Hotel. Forty years ago, sixteen hotels lay between Marmora and Stirling whereas to-day you cannot find a fourth of that number. Mrs. Wellman throughout life has attended many 12th of July celebrations. There was always a little dread of her mind because every child to the youngest would be taken with herself and husband so that no one was left at home to take care of the house. The manufacture of home-made ox carts out of elm is also a distinct recollection of hers. As a girl she took her part in riding horseback but horse racing lost its attractiveness for her as on one occasion she fell and injured her nose.

Though a good cook herself for all those years, she has come to the realization that there are good cooks to be found in younger generations than her own and of her grandson, Gerald, chef at the Royal Hotel, she says: "His pies are good." Her second husband, Samuel Wellman, passed away four years ago.

Get a fair return on your heating investment by burning Ford Coke

Product of the Ford Motor Company

A LARGE item in the cost of your home is your heating system. That's an investment in comfort. Be sure you get the comfort you've spent your money for. Use Ford Coke.

It produces a quick fire to warm your house rapidly on bitter mornings. It requires attention but twice a day. It burns without any smoke or soot. And unless you use a wasteful draft, it will not clinker.

When you buy Ford Coke you buy heat in efficient and labor-saving form. The two combined mean real comfort. You can have this comfort at a distinct saving on your fuel bill. Remember, you pay for weight when you buy fuel. But what you want is heat. Ford Coke is practically all heat! Telephone your order.

CHURCH SOCIETY APPOINTS DELEGATE

Much Business Discussed at January Meeting of W.M.S. at Dunsford.

(Examiner Correspondence)

DUNSFORD, Jan. 8.—The January meeting of the W.M.S. was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Silas Thurston with nineteen ladies present. The newly elected president, Mrs. Thomas J. Thurston, occupied the chair. The treasurer's report showed that the allocation for last year had not been quite reached. Mrs. F. E. Gordon read the 34th Psalm for a bible lesson. Prayer was offered by the pastor Rev. J. F. Everson. Mrs. Silas Thurston sang a solo entitled, "Over the Line." Mrs. J. F. Everson was appointed to represent the society at the annual Presbyterial meeting to be held in Cannington on January 23. A paper entitled, "The Joys of Christmas" was read by Mrs. J. J. Thurston. Mrs. W. M. Thurston gave a paper on Africa the mission field which is being studied by all auxiliary members this year. Mrs. J. F. Everson read a paper on "China in the past." In this paper it was stated that China has made but little progress in state conditions during the past one hundred years. Although a thousand years ago China had moral standards in many respects equal to those of christian people yet because of a lack of scientific knowledge and environment she perpetuated her superstitions and when Western science and methods knocked at her door, because of self-sufficiency on the one hand and ignorance and superstitious fears on the other the people did not bid them welcome. Six-sevenths of China's population are living in one-third of its area. There are less than eight thousand miles of railway and only a few miles of good motor roads in China. Because of a lack of railways it costs as much to transport wheat, from Shensi in China to Hankow a distance of 600 miles, as it does to carry it 13,000 miles on Canadian railways and steamboats. China is in urgent need of 50,000 miles of railways which with motor roads would open up vast areas and thereby increase trade and lessen poverty.

The chapter of the study book, "Drums in Africa" was given by Mrs. W. F. Thurston and set forth the prevailing conditions among the unchristianized in that country. The Februrary meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. J. J. Thurston, Mrs. W. M. Thurston is to have charge of the bible lesson and Mrs. Milburn Thurston is to synopsis the chapter in the study book.

Mrs. Silas Thurston served lunch at the close of the meeting.

Rink Opened

The rink opened for skating on Wednesday night with a large crowd present. The curlers took possession on Thursday night and pronounced the ice in splendid condition. William Meyers is the new caretaker.

Families Ill With Flu

The flu has reached this vicinity and within the past week several families have found it necessary to call a doctor. It does not seem to be of the malignant type as none of the cases as yet reported have been of a serious nature.

How I Was Freed of Hemorrhoids

after 25 years of suffering

"I had protruding piles or hemorrhoids for over twenty-five years," writes Dr. H. S. Hussell, Graduate Veterinary Surgeon, of Upper Chaslo, N.B. "I bought medicines from all parts of the world and went under the knife twice—at Portland, Maine, and Sherbrooke, Que. I had spent hundreds of dollars and was about to go to the hospital at Campbellton, N.B., for another operation, but was in such a weakened condition that the doctor advised me to wait a few days.

"My wife happened to pick up Dr. Chase's Almanac and read about someone being freed of piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment. I got a box, was so much better next day that I ordered three more boxes. In one week I was able to resume my practice. It is now four years since I have felt any effect of the piles, so I feel justified in believing the relief permanent."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is the standard, time-proven treatment for piles or hemorrhoids. Dr. Hussell's experience is similar to that of many thousands of people who have been positively freed of piles by this soothing, healing, antiseptic ointment. All dealers or The Dr. A. W. REPORTS READ AT ANNUAL MEETING

Millbrook United Church Society To Install New Bellows For Organ.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 8 (Examiner Correspondence):—The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. V. C. Lambert on Thursday afternoon, the retiring president, Miss M. E. Needham, taking the chair for the opening business session of the gathering.

Reports were received showing that flowering plants and baskets of Christmas cheer, had been sent to shut-in and sick members at the Yuletide season, and that the amount due, $61, on the lateral drain to the parsonage cellar had been paid out of the Aid funds. Mrs. Garside reported that the new damask cloths for use on Communion Sunday had been purchased, and would be ready for use on January 6, when the Sacrament will be obeserved.

A new electric blower for the church pipe organ, replacing the bellows now worn out, will be paid for by the Society out of the funds on hand, when it is installed; this is a necessary repair and will do away with the method of pumping the organ by hand, which has been the practice since the instrument was installed when the church was built more than forty years ago. A committee from the trustee board has the matter in hand.

Reference was made to the death of R. W. Clarke, of Weyburn, Sask., a former resident of Millbrook, and one who gave himself unstintingly in service to the church. On motion, it was decided to have the secretary send a letter of sympathy to Mrs. Clarke, and the family.

In vacating the chair for the Pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, to conduct the election, Miss Needham thanked the officers and members for carrying on so efficiently during her frequent absences throughout the year, and congratulated them on the splendid work which had been harmoniously accomplished, closing her brief remarks with best wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

The election resulted as follows, voting being by ballot without nomination:

Honorary president, Miss M. E. Needham; president, Mrs. J. McKnight; vice-president, Mrs. R. H. Edmunds; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. C. C. Garside; secretary, Mrs. Fred Smith; treasurer, Miss May Duncan.

Reports submitted by the secretary showed 71 members on the roll; 8 regular and 3 special meetings held; 2 members lost by removal, and 3 new members! 1 new member, Mrs. Lambert, was received at Thursday's meeting.

The treasurer's report gave a total of more than eight hundred dollars raised in the twelve months, and a balance on hand of $213.77.

Miss Duncan's invitation to hold the February meeting at her home was accepted. Mrs. Lambert, assisted by her mother, Mrs. C. Millard, of Oshawa, served refreshments at the close of the meeting, the formal vote of thanks being sponsored by Miss Burnham and Mrs. Garside.

Personals

Miss Josephine Sutton, R.N., left on Thursday for a short stay in Toronto and New York, after which she will accompany a patient to Florida for the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Whyte left this week for Windsor, where they expect to reside; the former having secured a position in that city.

Much sympathy will be felt for Messrs. Harry and Bruce Dawson, the death of whose mother, Mrs. James Dawson, at Peterborough on Friday of last week, occurred at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. James Perrin.

JAMES KEENE IS RE-ELECTED HEAD

Reports Read at Meeting of Trinity United Sunday School.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Jan. —At the meeting of the executive of Trinity United Sunday School, held on Wednesday evening, James Keene was re-elected superintendent for the coming year. Reports were received from the secretary and treasurer and from the different departments after which Rev. G. W. Rivers took charge of the election of officers which resulted as follows:

Superintendent, James Keene; assistant superintendent, George Huffman; secretary, Mrs. Charles Derry; assistant secretary, Hrs. R. Wellman; treasurer, Mrs. G. Huffman. All teachers were re-elected.

It was decided that promotion be made the first Sunday of the year and that William McBain be appointed as assistant teacher of Rev. Mr. Rivers' class. A Young Men's Class will be formed as soon as possible and a suitable teacher will be found for the Boys' Senior Class.

The general work of the Sunday school was found to be very encouraging and attendance was good, several pupils from each class meriting attendance certificates.

Warkworth

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, January 8.—There is a lot of sickness in this vicinity. Several cases of flu and a few cases of mumps have been reported.

Christmas Entertainment.

The entertainment which was postponed from Christmas night until New Year's night on account of illness of some of those taking part, was a splendid success. The main feature of the program was a four-act comedy entitled "The Country Doctor," the cast for which is as follows:

Thomas Britton, M.D., the village doctor—O. E. Kelly.

Petes Win Decisive Victory Over Bowmanville

LOCALS PLAY OFFENSIVE GAME AND SCORE FIVE COUNTERS IN SECOND PERIOD TO TAKE LEAD

Intermediates Break Losing Streak That Has Beset Peterborough in O.H.A. Hockey.

FINAL SCORE 7-3.

Lebarr Adds Strength To Defense That Was Wobbly at Times.

After an opening session that left them trailing on the light end of a 1.0 count—a period in which there was much experimentation and flashes of play that promised to become decidedly interesting, the Peterborough Intermediates of 1929 stepped into command of the situation in the early minutes of the middle session, and before the invading Bowmanville entry had figured out a defence, ran in a trio of counters to which they added a fourth and a fifth before the gong which ended the period. That break, and a similar one which injected a lot of scrap and two goals into the closing stanza, put the Petes off on the right foot in the season's race by a final count of 7-3, the visitors going scoreless after getting two in the second. Their win over the hard-working Bowmanville outfit boosted their prestige considerably among the crowd of home town fans, which was quite as large, if not slightly larger, than that which witnessed the opening junior game a few nights ago.

Whether or not the Petes at last cast off their losing jinx with the discarding of the old uniforms in favor of the neatly designed new ones which they donned previous to last night's encounter, the local squad proved interesting material for consideration from the fans and from their opponents. Jack Lebarr, taking his net-guarding assignment most seriously, put the needed touch on a defence that was sometimes wobbly, but nevertheless determined, while out in front, his brother Ted, teaming with George Lackey, backed Foley, Maudsley and Dundas. Cripps and Kenneally appeared in the relief role.

Visitors Take Lead.

Referee McFadden, of Oshawa, gave them the bell about 8.30, and while the Petes were finding themselves, the visitors tossed in an attempt at combination that netted them their first goal, and incidentally the first of the game. Densen did the trick when he rushed with Osborne who flipped him the rubber from the corner. That started a tussle which, but for inaccurate gunning on both sides, might have been punctuated by goals as well as by the four penalties meted out to Sailor Maudesley, Foley, Moise, and Hooper.

At that, the visitors proved themselves worth watching, and the fans chose among them, the heavy-haired Hooper, whose chief stock in trade was a bullet shot that rattled off the boards and bricks ineffectually his marksmanship being decidedly off color. He found the nets once for a tally in the second.

Petes Take Lead.

Almost as quickly as had come the first goal of the game, came the Petes' first counter in the second period, for Lackey picked up the rubber on the first rush, climbed, dived and zoomed his way through and found the nets with a shot from the blue line. His running mate LeBarr made it two in a row when he took a pass from Foley after they had worked well into the enemy territory, a half minute later. Then Maudesley got the habit and waltzed through for his first, and his team's third counter.

LeBarr had been penalized and had again gone into action when Osborne carried the rubber into a corner and passed out to Hooper, who drove it home, seven minutes after the start of the period. But with their team within striking distance, Densen and Moise drew penalties, and when Osborne took a three-minute session on the bench. Ted LeBarr and Foley combined and the former beat Colwell for another goal. Moise redeemed this to some extent when he took a pass from Densen and shot, the puck going in off LeBarr's skate.

The fifth Peterborough goal came a minute before the gong while Cameron and Maudesley were resting for an altercation along the right wing.

Both Teams Tied.

While there were patches of open play with both outfits on the offensive, the third period also brought the first defensive hockey of the evening, the Petes showing an inclination to follow instructions to get back. Nevertheless, they took the offensive with good results, and Foley did a neat bit of work for the sixth Peterborough goal, after serving a penalty. He was indebted to Dundas for the pass.

Then Kenneally, playing his first Intermediate game, pulled one of the bright spots of the evening when he carried the rubber through the entire opposition and climbed in on Colwell who had little chance to save. There was only a minute to go and the gong found both teams in centre ice territory.

For the visitors, the veteran Moise, Cameron and Osborne showed to good advantage while the afore-mentioned Hooper was decidedly prominent. The Petes, on the other hand, were decidedly collective rather than individual in their work, though the Lebarr brothers, Maudesley and Foley had, perhaps, the most chance to show to advantage.

The teams:

Bowmanville—Goal, Colwell; defense, Hooper and Densen; centre, Luxton; wings, Osborne and Moise; subs, Cameron, Turner and McMullen.

Peterborough—Goal, J. Lebarr; defense, Lebarr and Lackey; centre, Maudesley; wings, Foley and Dundas; subs, Cripps and Kenneally.

Referee—McFadden.

PILOT OF BASEBALL CHAMPIONS FACED WITH INFIELD POSITION

Joe Dugan, Who Has Held Position For Yankees Not On Line-up.

ROBERTSON MAY FILL PLACE

Huggins Expects To Have No Trouble Filling Rest of Sacks.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 7.—(Canadian Press.)— Miller Huggins, manager of the world champion New York Yankees, may know who will play third base for him next season—no one else does. The manager who will assign the difficult position apparently is more interested at the moment on keeping a golf ball on the confines of St. Petersburg greens.

Joe Dugan, who has played third base for the Yankees in five world series, will not be among those present when "Hug" calls the roll at St. Pete. To replace "Jumping Joe" on the face of available returns, the little strategist has Gene Robertson, who played 70 games at the position last year, Mark Koenig, if another shortstop is developed in the spring, and Julian Vera, who has been acquiring experience in AA leagues for two years.

Leo Durocher can play shortstop and Lyn Lary comes well recommended from Oakland but has yet to earn his big league spurs.

When Manager Huggins is conceded only one infield problem, it is assumed that Tony Lazzeri will be himself again at second base. He was troubled with a bad shoulder last year. If the injury should persist, Durocher would have to be thrown into the second base opening.

Gehrig At First Sack.

There will be no argument at first base with Lou Gehrig playing the bag and pounding out home runs and George Burns in reserve to hit doubles.

There will be no outfield revision. Babe Ruth, Earl Combs and Bob Meusel are intact and the substitutes of last year, Ben Paschal and Cedric Durst again will stand and wait.

Benny Bengough, John Grabowski and Bill Dickey will be the club's trio of catchers unless Arndt Jorgens, an Oklahoma player, can fight his way in.

A line-up of pitchers includes five left handers, indicating a battle of southpaws on the side. Herb Pennock, Tom Zachary and Fred Heimach are holdovers and Ed Wells, former Major Leaguer, but later of Birmingham, and Lee Craig, another Oklahoma city product, are additions.

Pennock's arm kept him out of the game late last season and Wilcy Moore, a sensation in 1927, fell by the wayside with a bad arm in 1928. Pennock thinks he is right again but Moore will not hasard a guess until the sun shines bright in his old Oklahoma home.

Waite Hoyt, George Pipgras, Henry Johnson, Myles Thomas and Al Shealy are other veterans who will be back.

Note.—This is the first of a series of stories dealing with mid-winter prospects of major league baseball clubs. Other will follow from day to day.

O.H.A. Executive Refuses To Re-open Cases of Walkerton and Ingersoll.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8.— (Canadian Press.)— The executive of the Ontario Hockey Association at a meeting held last night, refused to reopen the cases of Leonard Trushinski of Walkerton, and Ralph Beemer, of Ingersoll. Neither player is eligible for O.H.A. competition this winter.

Ambrose Whinfield and Harvey Silverthorne of Owen Sound, who asked for permission to play with Markdale were refused certificates, as the rule affecting their case applies only to villages.

Tunney Grieved Over Death of Rickard; Says His Passing Will Be Loss To Public

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Jan. 8.—(Associated Press).—I'm very grieved to learn of Tex Rickard's untimely death and sympathise with Mrs. Rickard and their little daughter in their great loss.

Tex Rickard was a man of genius in his way. He made a place for himself through his education of the public to his idea, that no man ever before has held and one which it is quite doubtful will ever be held again by any individual.

His passing is a great personal loss to many people of whom I am but one.

The retired heavyweight champion did not learn for more than a day of the death of the man under whose promotion he won his title and twice defended it.

Tunney, with Mrs. Tunney is at St. Moritz enjoying the winter sports and difficulty was experienced in locating him. The Associated Press finally reached him by telephone to inform him of Rickard's death. Tunney said that he was "inexpressibly shocked" and at once dictated his tribute.

FAMOUS HOCKEY GAMES OF PETERBOROUGH TEAMS

By F.D.C.

The Peterborough Juniors of 1913 earned their nickname, the Bearcats, by reason of a thrilling battle they fought on Lindsay ice to beat the Midgets 10 goals to 9. In that struggle the young Petes showed so much fight and determination that one venerable Lindsay fan was heard to say: "They're a regular lot of bearcats"—and the name was at once adopted and stuck to the team for the rest of the season.

It was a sensational battle.

Most of the Petes were playing their first game away from home but they played like demons for every minute of a game that was packed full of excitement. Neither team spared itself and each was willing to risk a goal anytime for the hope of getting one. Packed defences were unheard of in those days and it was a continuous up and down tussle. Three times in the first half Lindsay shoved in front and three times the Bearcats overhauled the enemy and drew up on even terms. The score was tied at 1-1, 3-3, and 5-5, the latter being the half time figure.

Throughout the second half the excitement was at fever heat, although the Petes were never headed again after they scored the first goal in the closing session. They added another in seven minutes putting them in front 7 to 5, but Lindsay got their sixth right after. Another for Peterborough, then another for Lindsay, leaving it 8 to 7.

In the next three minutes the Petes scored twice, giving them three counters ahead. But back came the Midgets with a smart pair of goals with the Petes playing four men against six on account of penalties.

The last Lindsay goal came with two minutes to play and only a marker down the Midgets fought like wild men to pull up even but the Bearcats held them out and won 10 to 9.

Denison, the Lindsay rover, was the star for the losers, scoring six goals while Art Hall got five for the Petes.

The teams:

Lindsay—Goal, Henley, McMahon; cover, McConnell; rover, Denison; centre, Scott; right wing, Mercer; left wing, McIntyre.

Referee—Harvey Sproule.

To-morrow—The Bearcats-Orillia game of 1912.

It was decided Augustus Keeler may play with Gananoque and Jas. Sutherland, Jr., with Kingston.

RICKARD'S BODY LIES IN STATE

Promoter "Sleeps His Last Sleep" in Madison Square Garden.

BURIED ON WEDNESDAY.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 8. — (Canadian Press).— In the very centre of Madison Square Garden, the dream of a sport mansion that came true, the body of Tex Rickard will rest in state to-day.

Surrounding only by those who knew him best, the remains of the greatest boxing promoter in history will lie beneath the rafters of the palace he helped to put together with his own hands. "Sleeping his last sleep," he will rest where the ring, symbol of his greatest success, usually stands. They believe at the Garden that Tex would have liked that.

The body arrives to-day and lies in state until Wednesday when public will be admitted. Late Wednesday he will be buried.

So that the period of mourning will be complete, Col. John S. Hammond, appointed to-day by the board of directors of Madison Square Garden corporation as acting general manager to replace Rickard temporarily, postponed a hockey game scheduled for Tuesday night between the Rangers and Canadiens and an amateur boxing show set for Wednesday.

No attempt was made at the meeting of the directors to name a permanent successor to Rickard. The board adopted a long resolution expressing sorrow at the death of their president and lauding his ability and sportsmanship.

While the funeral train sped northward from Florida discussions as to Rickard's successor, tempered on all sides with expressions of sorrow, were lost in preparations for the return of the dead "chief". Most prominent were the names of Jack Dempsey, who was Rickard's firm friend, and who was with him when he died, Tom McArdle, present matchmaker at the garden, and Colonel Hammond. While appointed only temporarily, the latter said he would "hold the job until removed."

Fight Results

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 8.—(Canadian Press.)— Sid Terris, one-time famed "Ghetto Ghost," danced and jabbed his way to a close decision over Jackie Pilkington of New York, in a fast ten-round bout at the St. Nicholas Arena.

In the past, scores of thousands of buyers seeking the greatest dollar-value, have purchased Plymouth—on the basis of simple comparison and contrast with other cars in its price range.

At these new lower prices, the contrasts that Plymouth presents—in all-round economy of operation and upkeep, combined with full-size, weatherproof hydraulic 4-wheel brakes, modern engineering, impressive power and performance—are even more conclusive, even more emphatic of the Chrysler management's determination to give quality and value far in advance of anything else in the lowest-priced field.

This most significant reduction in Plymouth prices is thus in keeping with Chrysler ideals, while passing on to purchasers the benefits that accrue from hugely increased production.

See the Plymouth! Drive it—and try to match it in quality and value. We believe you will find these new low prices remove Plymouth further than ever from any other offering in the greatest motor car market.

NEW MANAGER FOR CARDINALS

St. Louis Club Will Start 1929 Baseball Season With Revamped Infield.

SIGN NEW PLAYERS.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 8. —(Canadian Press). — The St. Louis Cardinals, National League Champions, will start the 1929 baseball season with a new manager in Billy Southworth, a revamped infield and possible one change in the outfield.

Although eight players have been disposed of since the club captured the 1928 pennant, the prospects are that the start of the new race will see all but two of those classed as last year's regulars in Red Bird uniforms. These are Walter Maranville, shortstop, sold to Boston, and George W. Harper, outfielder, traded to the Braves.

All mainstays of the 1928 pitching and catching staffs are to report for training this spring. The hurlers are Grover Cleveland Alexander, Jess Haines, "We Willy" Sherdel, Clarence Mitchell and Fred Frankhouse. James Wilson probably will again carry the burden of catching.

Tommy Thevenow, short-stop, has been traded to the Phillies and Charley Gilbert, a youngster from Rochester, is slated to fill the gap at short left by the departure of Tommy and Maranville. He has been described by big league veterans as another Larry La Joie, fast and a slugger.

Charley Selph, a young second baseman from Houston, is expected to replace Frankie Frisch at second. He is rated as a hard hitter and the Cards are banking on him to strengthen the infield. Frisch volunteered to move over to third to make room for Selph.

Under present arrangements, Jim Bottomley, first baseman, is the only infielder of last season's team who will return to his old post.

Manager Southworth has announced he will be a candidate for a regular place in right field, replacing Harper. However, Young Ernest Orsatti, Minneapolis star who performed brilliantly in right field last season, is expected to give the boss a contest for the job. Taylor Lee Douthit and Charles Hafey, slugging regulars of last season's outfield, probably will be back in their old positions.

Note:—This is the second of a series of stories dealing with Mid-winter prospects of major league baseball clubs. Others will follow day to day.

SHELLING CAPITAL.

Despatches from Kabul State Forces Fighting Near Capital City.

LONDON, Jan. 8 (Canadian Press) —A Calcutta dispatch to The Express says that the Afghanistan rebels are shelling the capital, while the batteries of King Amanullah are replying from a mountain post. This information was brought from Kabul by airplane.

Sholub Obi, former colonel in the Afghan army, is reported to have joined the rebels. Snow on the foothills has melted and a night attack on the capital is expected.

BILLIE DOVE MORE FASCINATING THAN EVER IN NEW FILM

Regent Audience Applauds Beautiful Star's Latest Vehicle "The Yellow Lily"—Clive Brook Opposite Miss Dove.

Why resort to mythical kingdoms for film romance, when there is a real kingdom so rich in exotic color as Hungary?

"The Yellow Lily," Billy Dove's latest starring vehicle for First National, give the American film audience all that it could possibly wish in the way of picturesque, alluring foreign locale, striking human types, quaint customs, and "different" love-making!

The beautiful screen star, as all those who have seen "The Yellow Lily" at the Regent Theatre agree, is at her best as a Hungarian maiden who is pursued, "by fair means and foul," by an Archduke. Miss Dove gives a truly great performance. So does Clive Brook, who plays the Archduke.

Alexander Korda directed the picture, which was adapted from Lajos Biro's stage play of the same title. The plot is full of thrills and new twists, and there's an exotic flavor even in the fine photography. Striking character types abound in the cast and colorful costumes, imported from Hungary, carry on the spectator's illusion that he is in the land of the Magyars.

Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Jane Winton and Nicholas Soussanin vie for histrinoic honors at the head of an unusually large and notable supporting cast. Charles Puffy, Marc MacDermott, Paul Vincenti, Eugenie Besserer, Yola d'Avril, Anna Varney and other players of real talent are found in roles of varying importance, giving fine performaances.

"The Yellow Lily" is a distinct treat for the American film audiences; strong in plot interest as well as color, it is an ideal vehicle for the beautiful

AT THE CAPITOL.

EMIL JANNINGS IN "THE PATRIOT""

Imperial Russia, the "White Russia" of the days of the Czarist regime, away back in the centuries when Paul First, son of Catherine the Great, terrorized his native land, is the scene of "The Patriot," with the superb character actor, Emil Jannings, as the mad Czar.

This German star stands head and shoulders above other actors in the manner of his presentation of dramatic and thrilling roles He makes the man he is portraying a living, suffering being that controls the silver sheet of the film, rather than being controlled by it. This slobbering hulk of an emperor, with his disordered hair and fat, thick-lipped face, is so different in appearance from other character parts enacted by Jannings that one cannot imagine it is the same man who takes the role of the mad Paul, crazed by fear of assassination, giving way at moments to fits of horrible cruelty that alternate with equally insane moments of childish laughter. One has to see "The Patriot" to appreciate the calibre of its main actors, for Lewis Stone is almost as good as Jannings in the part in which he has been cast, that of Count Pahlen, Minister of War, and trusted friend of the mad Czar. But Stone gives at times an impression of theatrical and posing that is always absent from the acting of Jannings. Florence Vidor also, as the heroine, the Countess Osterman, "moves through the picture like a beautiful dream," as the advance notices so aptly put it. She is stagey at all times, but very lovely and an excellent foil for the two outstanding masculine roles. Neil Hamilton has a minor role, well played, as the young Crown Prince, Alexander.

The story is sombre and heavily dramatic at all times. The insane Czar casts his shadow over the piece. Flying behind lashed steeds through the streets of St. Petersburg, aware of the menace that lurks for him behind some maddened peasant's casement, he orders that all windows and doors be locked at his approach and goes through deserted streets, while his guard shoots down any chance, luckless wanderer.

It is in this way that Count Osterman is killed, husband of the lovely Countess, who is conducting an affair with Count Pahlen of which her husband is ignorant.

But Pahlen is the patriot supreme. Imbued with an idea that the mad Czar must be deposed and the young Crown Prince placed on the throne, to save "Holy Russia" from the ravings of a degenerate, he becomes the closest friend of the Emperor, who trusts him absolutely. Then he plots his death and even sacrifices his own mistress to the cause.

When Pahlen leaves the Countess and the slobbering monarch together, she weeps in fear and the befuddled Czar allows her to depart. Here is where the madman dominates the picture absolutely. With the genius which belongs to him, Emil Jannings has taken the character of this childlike, idotic tyrant and made it somehow a role that has its moments of extraordinary nobility. In his love for Pahlen, the man who betrays him, in the grief that overmasters him when he finds his trust broken, in the majesty with which the fat figure, in its dressing-gown, keeps at bay the horde of murderous officers who come to slay him, sitting on his imperial throne and invoking the divine right with which he believes himself endowed, in these episodes the madman is the hero of the piece and the patriot who kills him for the good of his country, is the villain.

There is a curious letting down of dramatic interest in the anti-climax of the picture, in the scene in the throne room where Pahlen leaves his comrades, after inciting them to revolt, and comes only after the tortured Stephen has killed the Czar with his own hands. Then Pahlen orders Stephen to shoot him, and the picture ends on the gloomy note that has dominated it.

It is a marvellous production, however, one of the greatest films that has been seen here in a long time, and the genius of the German actor gives it a living force that is extraordinary.

ARCHBISHOP ASKS FOR AID

Voluntary Contributions Called For in Aid of Separate Schools.

APPEALS TO LOYALTY.

TORONTO, Ont., January 8 (Canadian ress). — An appeal to the loyalty of Roman Catholics for their educational system is being relied upon by Archbishop Neil McNeil to ensure the continuance of the Roman Catholic Separate High Schools The maintenance of these schools has become a pressing problem ever since the Privy Council ruled in the celebrated Township of Tiny case that support for them could not be required from the public funds. The suggestion has since been made that a tax for their support should be included in the Separate School rate. This idea is rejected by the Archbishop, however, who, in a pastoral which he has caused to be read in the churches, states that reliance will be placed upon voluntary contributions.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

The Peterborough Juniors hope to continue the success gained this year by winning over Bow. manville in their first game here to-night.

The Petes last night with the score 1 to 0 against them at the end of the first period went on a scoring rampage in the second and ran in five goals in quick order to put the game safely in the win column.

* * * * * * *

Bowmanville combined their attacks better and worked to better advantage as a team, but even at that, after the first period they were never dangerous. However the Petes need to stress combination and team play in their practises.

* * * * * * *

The front line of Maudsley, Foley and Dundas all played a great game, although some of these players could be criticised for wandering away from their positions. "Chuck" Keneally making his Intermediate debut went down alone in the dying minutes of the game to stretch the twine.

* * * * * * *

Jack Lebarr turned in his usual steady and reliable game in goal and Bowmanville was robbed of goals repeatedly by the fine work of the Petes' net guardian.

The Peterborough Canoe Company's team have withdrawn from the senior City League, but it is likely that their place will be taken by the entry of a team representing a club of George Street Sunday School. This club was desirous of entering at the beginning but it was felt by the executive that no more than six teams could be accommodated and unwillingly they refused their entry.

The first basketball game of the season will be the game between the P.C.I. Old Boys and the P.C.I. team. This is coming to be an annual event and gives the Collegiate team a chance to guage their strength. It is expected that the Garnet and Grey team will have an extensive season of play in the new basketball league that is in progress of being formed which will have representatives from the Collegiates in the Central Ontario.

Frankie Collins was prominent on the front line of the Willowdale Intermediates in their 1 to 0 defeat of the fast Newmarket team. The game was one of the best that has been played in the O.H.A. this season and Collins travelled with all his old speed.

Frank Nighbor, great centre player of the Ottawa Senators, is through if reports concerning his "trick" knee are to be believed. Nighbor during his heyday had no peer as a forward and his rushes and speed scored many goals and kept the Senators in the front rank. Nighbor's knee has been troubling him for the past few seasons and it has now reached such a condition that it was found necessary to place it in a plaster of paris cast and it will be weeks before Nighbor can return to the ice. Meanwhile the Senators are on the hunt for a smart forward to replace Nighbor and bolster up the attacking division of the team.

LONE BANDIT LOOTS BANK

Michigan Bank Robbed Of $10,000 By Thief Early To-day.

BINDS CSHIER.

BLISSFIELD, Mich., January 8 (Canadian Press). — The First National Bank here was robbed of approximately $10,000 about 8 a.m. today by a man who held up Harold Moore, assistant teller, when he came to open the bank for business. Moore said that when he came to the bank he found the bandit waiting in the lobby. The man forced Moore to open the front door of the bank and then ordered him to open the vault. The time lock on the vault was set for 8 a.m., and Moore was able to open it. The bandit then bound the assistant teller with leather thongs and put him into a telephone booth, ransacking the vault at his leisure.

ASSOCIATION MEETING.

Stormy Weather Hinders Attendance at Queen Alexandra School.

The stormy weather of last evening interfered somewhat with the attendance at the regular meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association, held in the kindergarten room, with the president, Mrs. R. Parnell, in the chair.

The regular routine business session was followed by an interesting musical program and social hour. The program consisted of readings by Mrs. Karl Simpson, Mrs. J. C. Woods and little Margaret Wise, harmonica selections by George Hall, Stuart Clarke, Tom Martin and Keith Jarvis.

The attendance picture was won by Miss M. Morrow's room. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Stanley Kingdon.

to impress upon the people that the situation was not dangerous.

A despatch from New Delhi, India, yesterday, said that fighting between loyal troops and rebels was expected to be renewed last Thursday but had not begun although it was likely to start at any miment.

The Afghan Legation has received an official telegram, dated at Kabul last night, stating that the rebel forces in the northern province were again being bombarded by artillery and that they were dispersing further to the north.

The message added that the situation at Kabul and in the provinces was normal and that the Governor of the eastern province of Jalalabad was successfully continuing negotiations with the Shinwaris.

EXHIBITION TILT FOR SATURDAY

P. C. I. and Collegiate Old Boys To Tangle in Basketball Fixture.

McLEISH TO HANDLE BELL.

The local Collegiate basketball team is scheduled to meet a team of ex-collegians on Saturday at 2.30 in the new gym. in the Collegiate, in an exhibition game. The P.C.I. boys are going to be up against a hard schedule this winter when they enter the Inter-Collegiate group, and they are counting on this game for some real competition before entering on their League games. Most of the C.O.B.'s have not handled a basketball for some years, and it will be more or less a contest between determined youth and sage experience. "Scotty" McLeish is going to handle the whistle, which is a sure promise of a clean, fast game. While not yet definitely decided upon, it is likely the line-up will be:

C.O.B.—Forwards, "Bim" Sturgeon and Harold Dormer; centre, Charles McLeish; guards, Hec McLeod and Newt Hamilton.

P.C.I.—Forwards, Keith Copping and Howard McDonald; centre, Wilf Preston; guards, Dick Greene and Pat Hall; subs, Art Goheen, Zimul Levine, Headley Vickers, Gordon Roper.

SIR THOMAS WHITE APPOINTED LEADER

Will Head Strong Tory Organization of 25,000 Workers in Liverpool District.

LONDON, Jan. 8. — (Canadian Press Cable). — The election of Sir Thomas White to the leadership of the Liverpool and District Conservative Party in succession to the late Sir Archibald Salvidge is of considerable moment to the party at large, for thanks to Salvidge's intense energy the Liverpool Conservative Party, with its 25,000 active workers has long been to the forefront of the tory democratic movement.

Sir Thomas White until a few days ago was unwilling to assume the position, distrusting his own merits against those of a possible rival, but the nomination was submitted by Sir Muspratt, who would have been the next popular choice.

Sir Thomas, like Salvidge, rose from the ranks both in business and political life. Although a testotaler, he holds a license and a few days ago was appointed joint managing-director of the brewery of which Salvidge was chairman and managing director.

No. 10 Downing Street, the English Prime Minister's official residence, was originally designed by Sir Christopher Wren.

IT PAYS TO HATCH EARLY A PART OF NEXT YEAR'S LAYERS

A Good Chick Starter Simplifies Raising Early Hatched Chicks.

There has been a great deal said for and against early hatching.

Up until a few years ago most poultrymen were very much against early hatching, principally because they could not raise the chicks. It really was useless to attempt to raise chicks out of season. With our better understanding of nutrition, good chicks can now be raised at any time of the year and in any kind of weather.

Offset Drop in Production

In the fall there is always a period when production drops off. The old stock is going into a molt and new crop of pullets have not started to lay. Hatching early a part of the pullet crop will give you young stock which will start laying in early fall and in that way avoid a slump in production. This should be of particular interest to anyone who is selling eggs to a fancy trade as it is very difficult to hold customers when you cannot supply them with eggs the year around.

There is a danger of early pullets molting. In many instances this could be avoided by merely getting the pullets to their permanent quarters before they come into production and giving them proper care and feed. Even if they do molt we believe that a lot worse things could happen. Early pullets make excellent breeding stock because they have had a chance to develop a large frame which generally means bigger eggs and larger, healthier chicks.

Provides More Breeders

Early matching not only helps to maintain production in the fall when egg prices are on an upward trend, but also gives extra breeders. In almost every community to-day there is a hatchery ready and eager to get all the hatching eggs it can from good stock.

It isn't any more difficult to raise early hatched chicks than to raise May chicks with a good Chick Starter which contains cod liver oil or fish liver meal. It doesn't matter when the sun shines or not, or when chicks can get outdoors, either or both of these are used in a well bal... cod liver oil ... give the ch... feed. Ju... and pro...

MARK STREET HAS EXCELLENT YEAR IN 1928

Forty - Seven New Members Were Added to Session Roll of Church.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Congregation Raised $18,202.62 for Building Fund During Past Year.

The annual meeting of the congregation of Mark Street United Church was held on Friday evening, January 4th, 1929, with a large attendance and a splendid spirit of optimism amply justified by the reports of its various organizations.

The report of the Session showed that 47 had been added to the membership and an average of 98 had partaken of The Lord's Supper at the three communion services. The treasurer's report showed $2,163.33 raised for local expenses and a small balance on hand after all bills were paid. There was sent to the treasurer of the M. and M. Fund $315.25. The organizations of the congregation reported money raised as follows:

Ladies' Aid, $904.01; Sunday School, $898.10; W.M.S., $179.50; Mission Circle, $75.30; Mission Band, $25.49; Young People's League, $64.85; Boys' Club, $76; Choir, $169.28; Dramatic Club, $212.85. The total subscription for building fund $31,961.62 and the amount paid in cash, $18,202.62.

John Speer finding it necessary to resign as treasurer of the Building Fund, William Tinker was elected to fill the vacancy.

The officials of the congregation are as follows:

Treasurer, Wm. Scott; secretary, Wm. Tinker; session, J. Speer, A. W. Gamble, C. Howson. Wm. Tinker and S. Matchett; stewards, K. Throop, Wm. Scott, V. Boorman, A. J. Throop, G. C. Aker, E. Wand, W. J. Pomeroy and L. Agnew; building committee, Wm. Scott, E. Wand, Wm. Tinker, K. Throop, J. L. Welsh, with G. A. Gillespie, W. G. Morrow and Dr. J. E. Middleton as advisory members; treasurers of building committee, Wm. Tinker and V. Boorman; trustees, Wm. Scott, J. Speer, K. Throop, E. Wand and Wm. Tinker; ushers, S. Matchett, T. Holden, Max Pomeroy, Cleve Robb, H. Hunter, K. Throop, G. Hurl, and F. Stephenson; choir director, V. Boorman; Sunday school superintendent, A. W. Gamble; president Ladies' Aid, Mrs. A. J. Throop; president W.M.S., Mrs. A. E. Thornley; president Mission Circle, Mrs. C. Barringer; president, Young People's League, Cyril Agnew; auditors, A. J. Throop and L. G. Pearse.

FIRST BUILDING PERMIT ISSUED

H. T. Hickey Will Build New Dwelling On Homewood Avenue.

WILL COST $3,800.

For the first time since the beginning of the new year, a building permit has been issued from the City Engineers' office, H. T. Hickey being the recipient. Mr. Hickey is building a dwelling on Lot 30, plan 144, on Homewood avenue. On a concrete foundation a structure 36 feet long and 23½ feet wide, and of two storeys, containing six rooms, will be erected. The outside walls will be of brick veneer, the inside of lath and plaster. Asphalt slate roofing will be used, while the new dwelling will also have hardwood floors with pine trim, and will be heated by means of a hot air system. An electric fireplace is to be installed also.

Mr. Hickey has estimated the cost at $3,800 and expects to have it finished by May 1, 1929.

POLICE FAIL TO LOCATE ROBBER

Orville Shaw Still Remains at Large—Escaped From Chatham Jail.

CITIZENS ARMED

GULPEH, Ont., Jan. 8.—(Canadian Press).—After an all day search in the swamps of Puslinch, where it was thought Orville Shaw, the Skunk's Misery robber and Dick Brennan who escaped from the Chatham jail several days ago, were thought to be hiding, provincial police gave up the search, convinced that he had gone to new pastures. Two police, well armed, visited a score of shacks in the swamp and not a trace was seen of either of the fugitives from justice. It is thought their food supply became exhausted and as every shopkeeper and citizen of the district was prepared to battle with them should they return, it is felt they have left for safer hunting grounds.

LINDSAY PLANT CLOSES DOWN

Boving Hydraulic and Engineering Company Ceases Operations.

LINDSAY, January 8.—(Examiner Correspondence).— This town has suffered another serious industrial setback in the closing down of the plant of the Boving Hydraulic and Engineering Company, which located some fifteen years ago in the old Madison Williams foundry under most promising auspices. The local plant was an offshot of the parent plant in Sweden, several well known Canadians having become financially interested in the concern. It had several well-known European engineers on its staff and during the first years of its operation prospects were most promising. The company acquired considerable property along the waterfront for anticipated extensions, but the war came on and like many other industrial concerns, it suffered seriously. It is also understood that the company was rather unfortunate in its competition for contracts for hydraulic machinery with similar firms. The firm was given a fixed assessment by the town, but there is at present outstanding taxes amounting to $7,000. The plant has been dismantled of its machinery, and is at present idle, although the town is hopeful of being able to induce some concern to locate in the building.

News From the Mines

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

International Nickel

We are informed that during November operating net profits of International Nickel were close to $1,500,000. In view of the fact that Nickel controls the world's supply of nickel, and in a short time will undoubtedly produce as much, or more copper than any copper mine in the world, and since precious metals alone should more than pay for all costs, the shares do not even now appear to be over-valued.

Consolidated Smelters

This company is quietly but consistently acquiring control of important properties in the British Columbia and Ontario mining fields. In view of the present earnings of the company, and the fact of the shares being very closely held, we look for considerably higher prices over the next twelve months.

Mining Corporation

A very significant feature at the Murray property of Mining Corporation is the fact that the shaft is now being sunk in the Norne diabase, and is now down 415 feet. It should be remembered that all of Noranda's orebodies lie immediately east and west of this diabase dyke, and a similar situation could very easily exist at the Murray property.

Central Manitoba

According to late reports on Saturday, the shaft on the Tene Six property of Central Manitoba is now down approximately 250 feet and drifting has been carried out for some 247 feet east and west in 223 to 225 ore. These values are obtained over a width of four feet and are the best yet had at this mine. This development is probably the most important in Central Manitoba's history. As the Tene Six shaft is located approximately three-quarters of a mile from the mill, an aerial tramway is now being erected to transport the ore.

Mayland

According to reports from our Calgary office, Mayland is looking decidedly good. Some 1,550 feet of oil is now standing in the hole and it is believed that the lower Horne sands were just penetrated on Friday afternoon. It is possible they may have to go another 100 to 200 feet before big production is obtained. In view of the low capitalization and prospects, the shares at present levels appear to merit well considered attention.

Ajax

It was stated yesterday morning that an inspector of the Department of Mines visited he Ajax No. 3 well on Saurday and made several tests. The results of the investigation was very satisfactory, as the open flow of gas from the well was found to be at the rate of 1,000,000 cubic feet every twenty-four hours.

Bunker Hill Extension

Although having examined close to 150 properties located in various parts of the Dominion, we are informed that the Bunker Hill Company is actively engaged in only one property, a copper prospect in New Brunswick. The company is believed to have approximately $350,000 in the treasury, and has a large field staff out in search of likely looking prospects.

Clericy

Diamond drilling is proceeding at two properties of the Clericy at West River and Thor Lake, Frechette township. The second hole just completed at West River is reported as showing excellent mineralization and surface work on Frechette property has indicated a substantial body of ore. Rumors persist that a large copper company is negotiating for possession of the holdings.

McMillan

The ore cut at the 535 foot level on No. 2 vein is officially reported as showing improvement in grade and width. All assays so far taken of this vein have revealed values in excess of commercial grade. The pyrite carries good values while two samples of the arsenapyrite yielded $56 and $54 respectively. Diamond drilling has started about 1,300 feet

CALGARY OIL GOSSIP

Royalite No. 14, Lubricator now definitely side-tracked.

Home No. 1—Held up with twisted rods.

Royalite No. 13, should soon be in production.

Devenish No. 3 is at 1,435 feet.

Drill being moved from Vulcan to Spooner. Vulcan likely to go on drilling.

No. 1 with cable tools.

Spooner No. 2 should be in time within ten days.

McDougal No. 2 boilers have been moved back to a safe distance and should be drilling immediately.

British Dominion drilling at 3,360 feet. Casing almost to bottom of hole.

Eastcrest—Drilling out cement.

Model No. 1 held up to some extent by caving. Are casing now as they go along.

McLeod No. 3—No success yet.

Deliveries of crude oil and crude naphtha to Calgary refineries for December totalled 47,505 barrels, breaking previous record by 434 barrels.

Okalta No. 1 produced 11,296 barrels during the month.

Nickel Exports For 1928 Show Huge Increase

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 8 (Canadian Press).—The exports of all grades of nickel for the month of December, 1928, as reported by the Dominion Government, amounted to 7,912,300 pounds, valued at $1,992,961, against 6,907,700 pounds with a valuation of $1,420,473 in December, 1927.

For the twelve months ended December 31, the total exports of all grades of nickel amounted to 97,166,700 pounds, which is an increase of 26,496,000 pounds above exports for a similar period in 1927; value was over 21 million dollars.

International Trade Shows Big Advance

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 8.—(By the Canadian Press).— Canada's trade with United States advanced over $126,000,000 during the first eleven months of 1928. The total up to November 30, 1928, was 1,324,429,671 as compared with $1,197,983,733 for the same period in 1927. Figures were made available yesterday at the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Imports amounted to $815,225,755, an increase of $109,000,000. Exports were $509,203,916 or $18,000,000 heavier than the 1927 period.

In the imports, the largest items were: iron and its products, $280,418,409;; non-metallic minerals, including coal, $126,935,527, and agricultural and vegetable products $103,983,102

Wood and paper contributed the highest figure to exports with a total of $236,465,346. Animal products amounted to $89,949,066 and agricultural and vegetable products $57,172,007.

For November alone trade totalled $111,596,563 of the amount $65,514,520 was imports and $46,122,042 exports.

Footwear Production Increases For Year

OTTAWA, Jan. 8. — (Canadian Press). — Footwear production in Canada for the first eleven months of 1928 totalled 16,744,787 pairs, an increase of 850,101 pairs over the total for the same period in 1927. Figures were published yesterday at the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

During November production exhibited the usual seasonal recession. The figure of 1,555,467 pairs was a decrease of 15 per cent from the preceding month and a decrease of three and one half per cent from November 1927.

Imports were lower and exports higer for the month. Imports were 69,291 pairs. This was 12,283 pairs less than October and 3,821 pairs below the total for November, 1927.

Exports amounted to 15,774 pairs. This was heavier by 5,598 pairs than the preceding month and 2,782 pairs higher than same month a year ago.

CHICAGO WHEAT VALUES HIGHER

Market Strengthened By Reports Large Quantity of Grain Sold To Great Britain.

PROVISIONS EASIER.

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 8.—(Canadian Press).— Wheat prices went upward here early today, helped by strength shown by the wheat market at Liverpool. In this connection, reports were current that the Canadian Growers' Pool had sold large quantities of wheat to Great Britain. Opening ¼ at ⅝c to ⅝c up. Chicago wheat later reacted somewhat. Corn was inclined to sag except at the outset, starting unchanged to ⅛c higher, and then showing a slight decline. Oats held firm. Provisions were easy.

SEVERAL CANADIAN DISTILLERS MERGE WITH TORONTO COMPANY

Hiram Walker-Gooderham and Worts, Ltd., Will Hold Trade Monopoly.

REPORTED ON WALL STREET.

Believed United States' Financial Interests Are Sponsoring Project.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 8. — (Canadian Press).—A merger of several Canadian distillers with Hiram Walker-Gooderham and Worts, Ltd., of Toronto, Ont., giving the latter concern a practical monopoly in spirit and industrial alcohol manufacture in Canada, was reported today in Wall Street. United States financial interests who recently acquired a substantial interest in Hiram-Walker, were said to be sponsoring the project.

Sir Edward Mackay, English banker, recently conferred with United States interests regarding a proposed merger of the Walker Company with Consolidated Distillers, Ltd., and Brewers and Distillers, Ltd., of Canada.

No new financing is reported required in the event of the consolidation.

FIRMER TONE MAINTAINED ON TORONTO CURB

Gains Outnumber Losses Which Are Scattered Throughout the List.

HIRAM WALKERS LEAD.

Oil Issues Remain Strong and Good Advances Registered.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8 (Canadian Press).—A firmer tone was maintained during the early session of the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Gains outnumbered the losses and ranged as high as six points. Slight losses were scattered throughout the list.

Hiram Walkers took an early lead on the listed board and climbed to 85 in active trading. It had sagged to 84 at noon, however, a net gain of 5. Brazilian was another strong issue but was unchanged at noon after the price had fluctuated between 80 and 81.

Gypsum and Alabastine gained 6 points to 83; Cockshutt 1 to 45; B. C. Power 1¼ to 56¼; Canada Car and Foundry 1 to 125; Bell Telephone 2½ to 169; Building Products 1¼ to 44; Photo Engravers, 1 to 40; McKinnon Industries, 2 to 72; International Nickel dropped 1¼ to 54¼; Shredded Wheat 1 to 94; Massey-Harris ¾ to 93, and Burt 1 to 87.

Oil issues were strong and good gains were registered. British-American went up ½ to 54; Imperial 1 to 100; North Star Oil 1.00 to 10.00; International Petroleum 3 to 57½, while Service Station dropped ½ to 37, and McColl-Frontenac ¼ to 32. National Steel Car went down 2 to 116¼ and Northern Bakeries ½ to 38½.

PRICES UNCHANGED ON CATTLE MARKET

Trade Opens Slow On Toronto Exchange—Hog Prices Unsettled.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8 (Canadian Press).—Trade opened slow on the Toronto Live Stock Exchange, with prices unchanged. Handyweight steers sold at $8.50 to $10.75. Good cows brought $7.50 to $8.75. Baby beef sold up to $15.00.

Calves were strong at $15 to $16 for choice.

Hogs were unsettled, with packers bidding $9.50 f.o.b. for selects or $10.50 off car.

Lambs were steady at $14 to $14.50. Good light sheep sold up to $7.50 per cwt.

Cattle receipts 1,267. Quotations:

Heavy beef steers, $9.50 to $11.

Butcher steers, good to choice, $10 to $10.75.

Butcher cows, fair to good, $6 to $7.50.

Good to choice, $14.50 to $16.50.

Quotations, off car: Select bacon, $10.50. Good ewe lambs, $14 to $14.50.

REGISTRAR NAMES INTERIM RECEIVER

Sutherland & Partners of Standard Stock Exchange Co Into Bankruptcy.

TORONTO, Jan. 8. — (Canadian Press).—N. L. Martin was yesterday appointed interim receiver of the assets of Sutherland & Partners, Limited, members of the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange, in an order granted by N. J. Riley, registrar in bankruptcy, at Osgoode Hall on application of S. J. Birnbaum, counsel for Jack Brill, of Toronto.

Brill states in his affidavit that the defendant's company is indebted for amounts totalling more than $4,000 and various shares of stock undelivered which he has been unable to obtain. According to his affidavit, Brill states that Hugh H. Sutherland, senior member of the company, and trading through his ownership of a seat on the exchange, was suspended from the Exchange on January 4 because of his alleged inability to complete clearing house payment.

LEADING ISSUES ACTIVE ON MARKET

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8.— (Canadian Press.)—Prices had a downward trend during the morning on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange but activity in leading issues continued high. Noranda fluctuated between 62.50 and the noon price was 63.75, a net gain of 25 cents. Lake Shore went down 75 to 19.25.

McIntyre gained 25 to 21.50; Amulet 19 to 3.49; Baldwin ⅛ to 3¼; Granada Rouyn 1 to 22; Howey Gold 4 to 1.20; Hollinger Consolidated 5 to 9.00; San Antonio 1 to 25; Vipond 3 to 88; Wainwell Oil 5 to 24; and Central Manitoba 5 to 70.

NEW YORK MARKET REMAINS UNEASY

NEW YORK, Jan. 8. —Frequent shifts of speculative sentiment characterized to-day's stock market, with the general tendency again downward. A heavy opening was followed by a brisk rally around mid-day which failed to hold despite the energetic efforts of pool operators to revive bullish enthusiasm. "Bear" selling by floor traders was an important factor in the day's liquidation.

Uneasiness over the credit situation was accentuated by the comment of leading executives at the Annual National Bank meetings held here today. Most bankers confidently looked forward to a continuation of good business but emphasized the danger in a possible credit strain. President Charles E. Mitchell of the National City Bank told his stock-holders that "experience teaches us that the danger to every period of prosperity lies in the development of over-confidence, and a consequent tendency to unwise use of credit."

Call money renewed unchanged at 7 per cent. which rate many bankers regard as a normal level for an indefinite period.

MRS. JOSEPH MILLS ELECTED HEAD OF LADIES' AUXILIARY

Excellent Progress Is Reported By Women's Branch of Canadian Legion.

THIRTEEN NEW MEMBERS.

President John R. Heron, In Address, Pays Tribute to Splendid Work of J. Abraham.

Mrs. Joseph Mills was re-elected president of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion, at the annual meeting held last evening in the Auxiliary Rooms of the Canadian Legion. The meeting was preceded by a very enjoyable supper, an event which forms a portion of the program of the annual meetings of the Auxiliary, and strikes the note of companionship and enthusiasm which pervaded the work of this society throughout the year.

Reports showing excellent progress made during the year were given by Mesdames E. Dormer (visiting), E. Houghton (sewing), M. Budd (representative to the Local Council of Women) and A. Clark, who reported many social activities during the year.

Mrs. M. Porter took the chair for the election of officers, as follows: Honorary President, Mrs. W. R. Morris; President, Mrs. J. Mills; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. W. Hughes; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. E. Tamblin; 3rd Vice-President, Mrs. J. McKinstry; Secretary, Mrs. R. Bugg; Treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Devall; Social Convenor, Mrs. A. Clark; Visiting Committee: Mesdames Millard, Dormer, Walton, Porter, Dummitt; Sewing Committee: Mesdames Chambers, Houghton, Meeks, Waterman, Rowe.

Secretary's Report.

The report of the secretary, Mrs. R. Bugg, was concise and as businesslike as always. Ten meetings were held during the year, with good attendance. Thirteen new members were received, making a total of fifty-eight now on the roll. During the year, interesting talks to the members were given by Mrs. W. R. Morris and Mrs. J. F. Allan. Many social activities took place and the members, in a body, attended memorial services for General Haig in All Saints' Church and the Armistice Day services in the Capitol Theatre.

Special references was made to the loss, through death, of one of the most energetic and devoted members, the late Mrs. W. Stanley.

Delegates to the meeting of the Provincial Command were Mrs. J. Mills and Mrs. E. Houghton, the latter bringing back a very interesting report of the proceedings. Mrs. Mills made 102 visits during the year and 58 letters were sent out by the secretary, Mrs. R. Bugg. The bazaar was a financial success.

Splendid Supper.

The supper, which was served at prettily decorated tables arranged in the main hall of the building, where the vivid paper hangings of the recent Tennis Club Dance added a bright note of color, was a delicious repast, served by Mesdames A. Clark, A. Devall and W. H. Pereyer. The president of the Auxiliary, Mrs. J. Mills, was in the chair, and guests present were the president of the Canadian Legion, John R. Heron, the vice-president, Dr. N. H. Sutton, also Mrs. Heron and Miss Cathleen McCarthy.

Mrs. Mills, regretting the unavoidable absence of the honorary president, Mrs. W. R. Morris, and of Captain Abraham in the past year as president of the Legion, and with regard to his work as chairman of the relief committee.

President Speaks.

President John Heron, rising to respond to the toast to "Our Guests," proposed by Mrs. Bugg, also referred to the splendid work for the Legion done by Captain Abraham. Through his efforts, current debts hampering the advancement of the men's organization at the beginning of last year, were cleared up, and the society was thus enabled to "get off on the right foot this year." He had also done much in the way of relief work among returned men and their dependents.

Referring to the necessity of caring for the temporal wants of returned men and their families, President Heron said another activity stood head and shoulders above all the efforts of the Legion. That was "a great and sacred duty and a privilege won through our common sacrifice and mingled blood, to keep green the memory of those who had fought and died in the Great War."

"It develops upon us to maintain the memory of those fallen comrades of ours, as well as looking after the wants of others who came back broken and in need."

In conclusion, President Heron asked for the assistance and co-operation of the members of the Auxiliary, in carrying out the program of the Legion for the forthcoming year.

The first vice-president, Dr. N. H. Sutton, spoke briefly, remarking on the interest which was taken by the older members of the Legion in the inclusion of fresh, new blood in the ranks of those who have kept their shoulder to the wheel in the past and have done what they could to assist returned men. The force of the united effort which has been made to be faithful to the charge laid upon them in the Legion and to bring justice to those who fought and bled for the cause of right, will do much to remind forgetful governments of the wants of their soldiers.

"More power to the Ladies' Auxiliary," said Dr. Sutton, bringing to an end his brief remarks.

The toast to "The King," which opened the short addresses of the program immediately following the supper, was proposed by Mrs. W. Hughes, and responded to with the singing of the chorus of the National Anthem, Mrs. R. Bugg playing the piano.

The program ended with a message from Mrs. Mills to the members of the Legion, when she asked President Heron to convey to them the good wishes of the Ladies' Auxiliary for the coming year.

Donations made to the Auxiliary during the past year are acknowledged from the following: Red Cross Society, Dr. and Mrs. G. S. Cameron, the Thursday Club, the Peter Robinson Chapter I. O. D. E., the Otonabee Chapter I. O. D. E., Mrs. W. R. Morris, Mrs. A Mowat, Mrs R. Harstone, Mrs. H. W. Morphet, Mrs. G. Duncan, Mrs. W. Conway, Mrs. R. M. Waddell, Messrs. R. E. Layfield and Harold Conway.

FINE RECORD HELD BY JAIL

spend a six months sentence for theft.

Being short of men Jailer Nesbitt had taken the cook out to do some work and put Clarke in his place, as cook in the kitchen. In some manner the prisoner obtained a saw or some other sharp instrument equally good for cutting steel and in the only window in the kitchen he sawed off one of the small upright bars and through a very small opening he managed to get through the window. He tied a cotton sheet to one of the top bars of the same window and by its aid, he was able in some unaccountable way to get it fixed to the window above or to the top of the Hough wall, which runs around the jail yard to prevent prisoners escaping further if they should happen to break jail. Clarke must have climbed up the sheet and then got on the wall from which he dropped to freedom.

The prisoner picked a most opportune time for escaping as Jailer Nesbitt and Turnkey Ray were at their tea after having seen to the feeding of the prisoner.

How he obtained the sheet may be explained by the fact that every Saturday the bedding of the prisoners is taken out to the jail yard for an airing, and Clarke must have smuggled one of the sheets into the kitchen for his escape; but where he obtained the tools to saw off the iron bar is still a mystery.

Before he escaped the prisoner sprung the lock in the room where his clothes were put, after they donned their prisoner garb and thus he was at large in his ordinary street outfit.

Killed Near Toronto.

Clarke however did not enjoy his freedom for long, because early Sunday morning he was found on the C.N.R. embankment, near Swansea, just outside of Toronto, with both his legs amputated. It is supposed that he was riding a freight in his efforts to escape and a sudden jolt dislodged his hold and he fell to the tracks and was run over by the train. He was taken to Parkdale Hospital where he died with words maintaining that he was not Clarke, escaped Peterborough convict, still on his lips.

However, proof of his identity was found on him, which belied even his dying words, in the form of two letters. One of the letters was addressed to George Coates, West Scranton, Pa., and it was written by his mother. Coates had apparently been in trouble on two former occasions and had served terms in jail.

Selyeh's Break; May, 1925.

Isaac Mitchell Selyeh was convicted on March 18 in the local police court for trying to obtain money by false pretences, namely, from Morris Atkins and A. Cherney. He had also stolen a car in Marmora, and for both charges he was sentenced to six months in the jail.

On Sunday, May 18, 1928, about noon, Selyeh made his escape in the following daring manner:

Selyeh walked out of his cell and reached the reception room where prisoners are welcomed to the county jail.

Here he obtained keys which gave access to the store-room, where he recovered his clothes, and obtained a rope. He trespassed on the women's cell, where he fastened one end of the rope and threw the other over a wall at the north end of the jail. Then he slid down to freedom. All this, according to the jailer, done in broad daylight sometime after dinner.

The escaped man was handicapped by a withered right limb, only half of his foot remaining.

However, in spite of his withered foot, the prisoner made clear his escape to Marmora, where he was caught the next day and brought back to complete his sentence, with another six months added to it for attempting to escape.

Obituary

ELSIE DIXON.

Elsie Dixon, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Dixon, passed away Saturday afternoon at the family residence, Hall's Bridge, Harvey Township. The funeral was this afternoon from Belleghem's Funeral Home to the Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. HERMAN WILSON

The funeral of the late Mrs. Herman Wilson took place yesterday from her late residence, No. 2 King George street with interment in Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Mr. Dudgeon of St. James Church officiated.

The pall bearers were: Percy Atchinson, William Wood, David Manley, Roy Pilling, T. Busly, L. Johnson.

FLORA DAVIS

The funeral of the late Flora Davis took place Friday, January 4th from the family residence to the Little Lake cemetery; Vimy Ridge Lodge L.O.B.A. taking part in the service there. The officiating clergymen were Mr. Marshall from the Dufferin street Baptist Church, Toronto, assisted by Mr. Harton of Park street Baptist Church. The pallbearers were her three brothers, Gordon, Harold and Clair; Robert Davis of Toronto, Fred Edwards and Dick Martyn of this city. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

MRS. T. THOMAS.

The death occurred very suddenly, this morning, after a long and severe attack of nervous disorder, Mrs. T. Thomas, formerly Elizabeth McLaren, in her fiftieth year. Mrs. Thomas was born in Melbourne, Australia, coming to Peterborough from Ottawa with her husband, Quartermaster Sergeant Instructor Thomas, a few years ago.

The late Mrs. Thomas is survived by three sons, John Frederick, Charles McLaren, and George Walter. There will be a short service at the home on ... evening at 8.30 and the body will be taken to the family plot at Beachwood cemetery, Ottawa, for interment.

WEDDING BELLS

PRESTON—SNELGROVE.

A very quiet wedding was solemnized on January 1st, at Mark Street United Church parsonage, when Marian Etta, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Snelgrove of Fraserville, and John Walter Preston, of Lakefield, were united in marriage. The Rev. A. E. Thornley officated.

ROGERS—McILWAIN.

A quiet wedding took place on Saturday afternoon when Jean Madeline McIlwain, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. McIlwain, 127 Romaine St. became the bride of Mr. William Russell Rogers, of New York City, only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Rogers of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. H. Dudgeon of St. James United Church at the parsonage. The bride wore a gown of pale green georgette with grey shoes and stockings and hat to match. Hhe boquet was of Ophelia roses. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Kathleen Cooney and Mr. Carl McIlwain, brother of the bride, acted as bestman. Immediately after the ceremony, the bride and bridegroom left for a short honeymoon to Toronto and Buffalo.

O'TOOLE—LYNCH.

The Sacred Heart Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday morning when Mary Loretta, daughter of Mrs. Hannah Lynch, Otonabee, was united in marriage to Vincent T. O'Toole, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Toole, also of Otonabee.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. P. J. Lynch, brother of the bride, assisted by Rev. J. J. O'Brien. Two small cousins served in the Sanctuary. During mass pretty solos were sung by Miss Helen O'Toole, cousin of the groom.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Frank Lynch, wore a gown of rose biege georgette with hat and shoes to match and a seal coat. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. She was assisted by her sister, Kathleen in orchid georgette with seal coat and metallic hat. The groom was assisted by his brother, Alphonse O'Toole of Cleveland.

After the ceremony wedding dinner was served to the immediate friends. Afterwards the young couple left amid showers of confetti for a short honeymoon.

IN MEMORIAM

LOWES.—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, William Lowes, who died January 8th, 1926.
It's three long years ago to-day
Since the one we loved was called away.
A loving husband and father, so kind and true,
In life we will remember you.
He had a nature you could not help loving,
And a heart that was purer than gold;
And to those who knew him and love him
His memory will never grow old.

INQUEST IS OPENED INTO OTTAWA CASE

Former New York Gunman is Shot On Street of Capital.

STATEMENT IS MADE.

Brother-in-law Claims He Shot Man To Protect Sister and Mother.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 9.—(Canadian Press).—An inquest was opened this morning into the death of Pietro Parrotta said to be a former New York gunman and convict who was shot and killed last night. He was 36 years of age. His brother-in-law, Bruno Messina gave himself up to the police shortly after the shooting and in an interview published to-day Messina confessed that he shot Parrotta to save his sister, Parrotta' wife, from being forced to go to New York to enter the underworld of that city.

Messina told the authorities that he had served overseas with the 3rd Toronto Regiment and was wounded twice. When he returned to Canada he married. Later he heard that his sister, Angela who was living in Italy had married Parrotta, Parrotta after six months left his wife and went to New York. He had lived in the United States when a boy but had returned to Italy when the war broke out. He sent money to his wife for a time.

Given Three Years

For taking part in a hold-up, Parrotta was sentenced to a term of three to five years in Dannemora, State Prison in Clinton N. Y. Meanwhile Messina was successful in getting the immigration authorities to allow his sister, Angela to come to Canada. Then he sought to have Parrotta released, hoping to re-unite the couple. Parrotta was released about three months ago and came to Buckingham, Que., where Messina was working. Parrotta only worked two days when, according to Messina's statement, he said there was not enough money in it and he could get money much easier in New York.

Messina claimed his brother-in-law beat Angela when she refused to go with him to New York where "He would dress her up fine and introduce her to men with money." The sister had asserted she would rather die than enter that kind of a life He had later beaten Messina's mother and threatened him.

Yesterday morning, Messina said Parrotta was in a bad temper. When Messina came home after buying his mother a coat, he stated he found Parrotta beating the little girl while his wife and mother-in-law stood by crying bitterly. Parrotta told them to shut up or he would slash them, Messina declared.

DESCRIPTIVE SCENES IN PARKS' SENSATIONAL JAIL BREAK

FACTORS THAT PLAYED A PART IN PARKS' DRAMATIC ESCAPE AND SUBSEQUENT EVENTS

When John Parks sawed through the bars of his jail cell last Thursday night and cleared a twenty-foot wall he led the police officers and civilian posses a merry chase to the home of his girl friend, where he once again slipped from their grasp. (1) A barred window of the local jail similar to the one through which Parks sawed his way to liberty. (2) Alex. C. Parks, convicted of theft of an automobile, who engineered the escape. (3) The jail wall, twenty feet high, which the escaping man cleared after maneuvering the cell window. (4) Sheriff F. J. A. Hall. (5) The jail from which Parks made his get-away. (6) Pearl Bowerman, seventeen-year-old girl friend of Parks, at Aylmer, whom Parks visited following his escape. (7) The Bowerman home at Aylmer, where Parks, with his shoes off and feet in the oven, was surprised by officers and from where he slipped through their fingers.

POULTRY SHOW IS BIG SUCCESS

Eight Hundred Fowl Are On Exhibit in Market Hall This Week.

COMPLETE JUDGING.

One of the most successful shows in the history of the Peterborough Poultry Association in point of quality of the birds exhibited is now being held at the Market Hall. Over eight hundred fowl are housed in comfortable wire pens under the big roof, and, even to one not learned in the art of judging the hens, the standard and high class of the exhibits is at once noticeable.

Practically every breed of hen from the popular breed of White Leghorns and Rocks, down to the most fanciful Houdan and Guinea hens are on show.

The judging were completed late this afternoon and local exhibitors maintained the reputation of this district by carrying off many of the prizes.

Some of the breeds are particularly fine this year, a new standard of quality being set up in the Blue Andalusian class. The whole north end of the building is taken up with the exhibits of bantams, which include the cocky game breed and docile, be-feathered little Cochin.

OFFICER DENIES SPECIAL STORY

Michigan Central Constable Tells of Escape of Parks From Police Posse.

NEVER SAW GIRL.

Indicating that St. Thomas and Aylmer Ontario police are not entirely satisfied with colorful descriptions of the recent escape through their hands of Jack Parks, alias Williams, Peterborough jail breaker, an officer of the Michigan Central Railroad police has written saying the special story was "ridiculous in its entirety, untruthful and very unfair." He goes on to quote the paper as saying that Provincial Constable Shervill said to Parks in the Bowerman home. "Listen guy, I thought you were in jail" and that Parks grabbed his hat and coat and ducked out of the door; also that after the officers had gone to St. Thomas, he returned and there he and the girl sat arms around each other, in front of the stove.

The officer writes that at no time did any of the officers even see Parks, nor was the man in any house with the Bowerman girl; she was not at Aylmer as stated, but at St. Thomas. An account which the officer terms to be a true one, accompanied his letter, and a part of it, bearing on the parts objected to in the second story, reads as follows—

"Provincial Constable D. C. Shervil, who organized the posse with Captain H. O. Taylor of the M.C.R. police department said Saturday morning, that they believed they missed Parks by about three minutes. They arrived at a farmhouse south and east of Aylmer, shortly before 11 o'clock Friday night and learned that Parks had just left there, stating that he intended fixing a punctured tire on the car in which he made his wild dash across Ontario from Peterborough and Oshawa. Constable Shervill stated that occupants of the farmhouse told the police that Parks had rushed into the house about half an hour before, dripping wet and exhausted. He had taken off his shoes and socks and had sat with his bare feet in the oven of the stove. He seemed very uneasy, the police were informed.

Learning that they had missed their quarry by minutes, the police posse, after telephoning to the Aylmer police to be on the look-out for the fugitive, started a search of the district. Constable Shervill stated that he believes at one time Parks was hiding in an old barn as they approached it and that at another time he was crouched at the bottom of one of the high ditches, as they passed along the road. The district was searched under difficulties, as much of it is heavily covered with underbrush and contains much swamp land. It was an ideal place in which to hide.

Fondness for a young lady whose home is near Aylmer, is believed to have lured Parks back to this district. The police officers were aware that he had been keeping company with the young woman and acting on this knowledge, they visited her home, early Friday evening. They were told that Parks had been there but had just left for St. Thomas where the young woman is now employed. After notifying police Constable Shervill and Captain H. O. Taylor of the M.C.R. police department, motored back to the city and located the young woman. Constable Shervill reported that she admitted that Parks had been to see her and said that he had left, stating that he was making for the United States. City police officers were enlisted in a hurried search of the city, then the officers returned

FIRST DAY OF HIGH COUNCIL IS OCCUPIED IN ORGANIZATION; GENERAL HAS TEN SUPPORTERS

No Statement is Made On Critical Question Before Salvation Army Leaders.

LEADERSHIP DISCUSSED.

Commissioner Hay Favors Far Reaching Reforms in Government of Army.

SUNBURY-ON-THAMES, Eng., Jan. 9 (Canadian Press).—The Reformist party in the Salvation Army High Council, headed by Evangeline Booth, was understood this afternoon to have 53 members on its side, as against ten non-Reformists headed by Mrs. Bramwell Booth, wife of the General, and Catherine Booth, his daughter.

It was stated that thus far there had been no vote on the fitness of General Booth to continue as head of the army. Whether this division of 53 to 10, which would mean his deposition, would persist when that question arose, was unknown.

It was understood that the councillors have been seated in the Council Chamber in accordance with their leanings. That is the Evangeline Booth group is all together while the ten Bramwell Booth supporters are sitting side by side. At the latest reports Mrs. Bramwell Booth had not made any statement before the Council but was awaiting developments.

Catherine Booth and some of her father's supporters held frequent conferences to-day in her cottage across the road from the Council building.

The Salvation Army solicitor was present at to-day's session of the Council when Commissioner Catherine Booth hurried to her cottage for the conference after luncheon, there was a grave expression on her face, from this head-quarters under the shadow of the mansion where the Council sessions are being held, it is understood there is constant telephone communication with General Booth and the telephone bell within the cottage could be heard ringing at frequent intervals.

A solid day of routine organization, the High Council of the Salvation Army to-day was understood to have begun discussion of the fitness of General Bramwell Booth, leader of the Army, to continue in office in view of the condition of his health.

It was understood that this question, the chief reason for which the High Council was summoned, was taken up during this morning's session, but nothing was divulged officially.

Elects President.

The Council adjourned for lunch at 1.00 p.m. The Reform party in the Salvation Army was believed in some quarters to-day to have scored an in-

Teach Judges In Austria How To Operate Cars

VIENNA, Jan. 9. — Austrian judges having to deal with cases concerning automobile driving (especially automobile accidents) will be taught at the expense of the state how to drive a car, before commencing to condemn the ever-increasing number of auto criminals.

This wise decision was announced by the Austrian ministry of justice, which, however, refused to answer the question when the same theory will be applied to other sorts of crime.

KIWANIS CLUB HELPS SCHOOL

Ontario Members Contribute Another $5,000 To Bowmanville Boys' Farm.

PART OF ACTIVITY.

TORONTO, Jan. 9 (Special). — On behalf of Ontario Kiwanis Clubs, the Government of the Province was presented on Tuesday afternoon with a further payment of five thousand dollars in connection with Kiwanis Lodge, one of the splendid buildings comprising the Boys' Training School at Bowmanville.

Honorable Lincoln Goldie received the deputation, which consisted of W. R. Cockburn, Toronto, chairman of the Kiwanis Bowmanville committee; W. Y. Mills, Kingston, immediate past governor of the Ontario-Quebec Maritime district; and J. Smyth Carter, Toronto, lieutenant-governor of the northern division of this district.

In presenting the cheque, Past Governor Mills assured the Provincial Secretary of the earnest ambition of Kiwanis to assist in placing and keeping in touch with the boy graduates of the school. Hon. Mr. Goldie expressed thanks for the interest which Kiwanis had manifested during the past several years in this project, and happily looked forward to a continuance of the same interest in even larger measure.

One of the objectives of Kiwanis International is the welfare of the underpriviliged child and the work done at Bowmanville school fits in admirably with that program.

WORKMAN LOSES HIS LIFE IN WAREHOUSE EXPLOSION

British American Gasoline Station Blows Up in the City of Ottawa.

FIRE HARD TO FIGHT.

String of Empty Railway Cars Beside Tanks Are Partially Destroyed.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 9. —(Canadian Press). — Alexander MacKenzie, of this city, lost his life this morning in a gasoline explosion and the ensuing fire in the warehouse of the British American Oil Company, Preston St. The property loss is estimated at about $40,000.

Mr. MacKenzie was the only person in the building when the explosion took place. The immmediate cause was gasoline on the warehouse floor, the fumes of which probably ignited from the furnace and resulted in an explosion which blew off a large part of the room of the one-storey building and wrecked the side wall. The body of Mr. MacKenzie was found, badly burned, on the platform with his feet inside the door. It is thought that he was stunned by the explosion and never knew what had happened. Clifford Lahey, driver for one of the trucks, was in the building just a minute before the explosion.

The fire was a difficult one to fight owing to the burning oil and gasoline being carried by the water. A string of empty railway cars on the siding caught fire when burning oil was carried under them but only two cars were damaged.

Between the warehouse and the railway tracks are four large steel tanks for gasoline, with a capacity of about 30,000 gallons, but these were not filled to capacity. From these tanks an underground pipe leads to the warehouse for filling iron drums for delivery in small lots. It is thought that the gasoline spilled on the floor was from a leaky valve in this feed pipe.

139 Families Are Put On 5,761 Acres Of Land

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 9. —In less than 10 months of operation in Ontario the Canada Colonization Association has placed 139 families on 5,671 acres of farm lands, according to W. C. Kent, the Hamilton representative. The largest deal involved the Hyman farm at Harrow, on which 12 families have been located —all of them being British. The objective for the year had been set at 125 families, but this figure had been exceeded before the firt nine months had passed.

MEASLES CASES ARE INCREASING

Approximately Forty Have Now Been Reported To Dr. T. W. H. Young.

LACK OF CAUTION.

With two and three cases of measles being reported daily, the total number now existent in the city of Peterboro is approximately forty, according to the Medical Officer of Health, Dr. T. W. H. Young.

In discussing the spread of the disease, the M. O. H. pointed out that in many cases, there is a continued lack of caution on the part of those having the disease and contacts in the same house, and that while the health officialh might placard these houses, they cannot take it upon themselves to "sit" on their door steps to keep them in."

GOVERNMENT PREPARED TO ACCEPT PROPOSALS

Sportsmen From All Parts of Province at Session of Game and Fish Committee.

SITUATION SERIOUS.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 9.—(Canadian Press)—Sportsmen, representatives of Anglers organizations, fishing clubs, resort owners, and guides from all over the province, were present in force this morning at the opening of the concluding session of the Ontario Game and Fish committee, in the parliament buildings.

Hon. W. Finlayson assured the meeting of the good wishes of the Prime Minister who he said was prepared to accept any feasible and practical proposals that might be put forward. The province of Ontario said Mr. Finlayson was so enormously rich in forests and game, that people had grown up to look on timber, game and fish as something they did not have to worry about. People would have to be acquainted with the fact that if they were going to go on as they were doing, the fishing industry would very soon be wiped out altogether Too much was expected from legislation and the enactment of regulations, and what was necessary above all was the education of the public opinion.

Hon. Finlay McDiarmid, chairman of the committee pointed out that the people of the province were beginning to realize the seriousness of the situation. There was no doubt at all but that they were on the verge of game depletion.

C. W. Warburton, representing the Federation of Anglers, said the government was somewhat disposed to avoid responsibility, and throw it back on the people out the people expected leadership from the government, and would abide by any laws that were enacted, (applause). They could not he said, make progress without paying attention to the scientific aspect of the matter and in this respect they were fortunate in having the assistance of Professor B. A. Bensley.

Mr. Warburton, then read the recommendations of the association.

J. B. Brady of Timmins, said his branch of the association was responsible for the suggestion that the whole question with respect to fish ladders, should be reviewed. Speaking of local conditions, he said the Mattagami River was formerly the finest trout stream in the country. There was not a fish ladder on the river, and fish were unable to reach

PHYSICIANS SATISFIED WITH KING'S PROGRESS

Princess Mary Carries Encouraging Message To Children's Fancy Dress Ball.

PASSED FAIR NIGHT.

LONDON, Jan. 9. —(Canadian Press). — King George's physicians to-day continued satisfied with his condition and it was generaally recognized that only slow progress could be expected under the present circumstances.

Princess Mary carried the encouraging message that the King was recovering to persons conducting a children's fancy dress ball which she attended at Harrowgate yesterday. The cheerfulness with which she shared in the festivities reflected the growing, if cautious, optimism prevalent in the royal family and palace circles generally.

The Dukes of York and Gloucester continued on their shooting holiday at Sandringham. The Queen had as her only companion at dinner the Prince of Wales, Prince George being absent owing to a slight indisposition.

Passed Fair Night.

It was authoritatively learned at Buckingham Palace shortly before noon to-day that King George had passed a fair night and his condition was unchanged.

The King's doctors Sir Stanley Hewett, Sir Hugh Rigby and Lord Dawson of Penn, consulted as usual this morning, but as was the case yesterday, no official bulletin was issued. This discontinuance of the morning bulletin was regarded as in itself a favorable sign even though recent statements by the doctors have indciated no change in the King's condition.

This stationary period was pointed to as emphasizing the warning that the King's progress in regaining his strength after his long and exhausting illness must necessary be slow.

Another stereotyped medical bulletin on the condition of the King was issued at Buckingham Palace, last night. It was signed by Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson of Penn.

The public showed a distinct decrease in interest in the case yesterday and is beginning to adopt the view that so long as "no change" is recorded there's no occasion for anxiety about the King.

Authorities Searching For Missing Husband

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 9. — (Canadian Press) —Detectives investigating the death of Mrs. George Schnabel, whose body was found in a field at Cornwall, Ont., last week, after being missed from her west end home since September 3, and also investigating the mysterious disappearance of her husband, stated yesterday that they had secured several promising clues as to the whereabouts of George Schnabel. The woman's husband disappeared from Montreal three months after his wife was reported missing.

DENIAL IS MADE BY DELEGATES

Story of Canada Refusing To Accede To American Request Is Denied.

HAVE NO AUTHORITY.

OTTAWA, Ont. Jan. 9.—(Canadian Press).—The Canada-United States anti-smuggling conference today issued a denial of statements appearing in a morning paper that the Dominion will not accede to the request of the American delegation for refusal of clearance to liquor cargoes for the U.S.

"The statement of the conference reads as follows:

"The statement in a morning paper that intimated had been given by the Canadian delegations to the conference that the Dominion would not accede to the request of the U. S. that Canada should prohibit the issuance of clearance papers to liquor-laden vessels bound for the U.S., is without foundation."

"It was made clear at the beginning of the discussion that the Canadian delegates had not authority to speak for the government. They have not formulated any report or recommendation and any discussion which has hitherto taken place has been for the sole purpose of obtaining an exchange of opinion as to how any change in the existing arrangements would operate."

VETERAN'S JEWEL PRESENTED TO BROTHER FRANK WISE, P.G.

District Deputy Grand Master Conducts I.O.O.F. Installation Ceremony.

GAVEL GIVEN LODGE.

Wood Was Secured From Olive Tree Which Grew in Bethlehem.

The installation of officers of the two local lodges of the Independent Order of Oddfellows took place on Monday evening in the I.O.O.F. Temple, after the routine business of Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, had been transacted.

This ceremony was in the able hands of District Deputy Grand Master H. A. Fallis, Millbrook, and the members of District Committee, No. 44, and was carried through with promptness and despatch, and at the close a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the installing officer and his suite.

Past Grand Master J. A. Tully, of Toronto, then called on Brother Frank Wise, P.G., to come forward, and in a pleasing and witty address, and emphasizing Brother Wise's long service and valuable assistance in carrying on the work of Otonabee Lodge, referred to the great pleasure it gave him in being the happy medium of presenting to Brother Wise, on behalf of the lodge, a veteran's jewel, also expressing the wish that he be long spared to wear it.

Brother Wise made a suitable acknowledgment, which was followed by generous applause.

District Deputy Fallis here stated that he also had a pleasant duty to perform on behalf of Mrs. Alfred Gaskins, of Auburn, New York U.S.A., and made the presentation of a handsome presiding officer's gavel to Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, in memory of her late husband, Brother Alfred

Robbers Force Entry Into Liquor Store

SAULT STE. MARIE., Ont., Jan. 9.—(By the Canadian Press).—Warrants were issued to-day for the arrest of two men suspected of complicity in an attempted robbery at the Government liquor store here last night, when the thieves were interrupted in their effort to get away with twelve cases of liquor.

135 DEATHS WITHIN WEEK

Flu Epidemic Is Said To Be Abating in Toronto and Province.

13 DIED LAST NIGHT.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 9. —(Canadian Press). — Further improvement in the influenza situation in this city, which has claimed 135 lives within a week, was noted to-day with decreases in the number of deaths and the number of new cases admitted to hospitals.

Only thirteen deaths were recorded over night at the City Hall. One was from influenza, ten from flu-pneumonia, and two from pneumonia. Only eighteen calls for nurses were received yesterday.

Dr. W. J. Bell, Deputy Provincial Minister of Health stated to-day that reports from district officers throughout the Province received at the Parliament Buildings, to-day confirmed the belief that the epidemic was abating. Medical authorities said that the present type of influenza is of shorter duration than any encountered in the past.

CANADA WILL REFUSE TO STOP LIQUOR EXPORT

Dominion Officials Believe Such Policy Would Make Coast Smuggling Cove.

CONFERENCE BEING HELD.

American Delegate Quotes Figures in Support of Plan To Prohibit Export.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 9 (Canadian Press).—Canadian delegates to the Canada-United States anti-smuggling conference at the initial meeting yesterday intimated their rejection of a suggestion by the American representatives that Canada should refuse clearances to vessels carrying liquor to the United States. Official statements were issued last night on yesterday's proceedings by delegates of both countries. The conference is to be continued to-day.

In dealing with the proposal voiced by the United States representatives for the refusal of clearances to vessels conveying liquor to the American Republic, the Canadian statement reads:

"In connection with the suggestion for the refusal of clearances to vessels carrying liquor, attention is called by some members of the Canadian delegation to certain administrative difficulties which might arise, particularly by the driving of the export of liquor under cover and diffusing it over wider border areas. A further exchange of concrete illustrations was given, showing the length to which the people interested in the liquor traffic had gone to get their consignments."

Big Increase.

The anti-smuggling treaty of 1924 had not filled the purpose for which it had been designed, he declared, although Canada "had fully and faithfully discharged the obligations which she assumed under the present treaty." The ineffectiveness of the treaty, Admiral Billiard went on, was illustrated by the fact that the total value of whiskey declared in accordance with Canadian regulations for export had increased from $12,572,011 for the fiscal year 1925-26, to $18,380,070 for the year ending March last. "May I be permitted to say, however," he concluded, "that we shall continue to be good friends and good neighbors, no matter what may

LINES WAITING AT CARDIFF OFFICE

Increase in Men For Farm Settlement in Canada is Expected.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 9 (Canadian Press Cable).—Emigration queues are forming outside the new emigration offices of the Canadian government at Cardiff, according to advices coming from South Wales. The office, which was only opened Monday, is reported to be besieged by young men, many of them coal miners, anxious to make a new beginning in the Dominion.

Authorities, both British and Canadian, expect heavily increased migration of British farm settlers to Canada in the spring. Negotiations are underway between the two governments, it is understood, looking to the movement of 6,000 trained and partially trained men for farm work in April.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 9 (Canadian Press).—Pressure is high on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, while a disturbance of increasing intensity is centred over the south-west states. The weather has been mostly fair and cold from the Ottawa Valley eastward, while snow has fallen in the Georgian Bay region, Manitoba, and Southern Saskatchewan.

Forecasts.

Lower Lakes Regions—South-westerly shifting to south-easterly winds, and becoming strong; snow, probably turning to rain to-night and Thursday.

Georgian Bay—North-easterly to easterly winds, with snow or probably part sleet to-night and Thursday.

MINISTER PLANS TO RESTRICT IMMIGRATION FROM EUROPE

Hon. Robert Forke Has Decided To Decline the Renewal of R. R. Agreement.

CURTAILMENT THIS YEAR.

One Year's Notice Must Be Given Railway Companies of Cancellation.

OTTAWA, Jan. 9. —Telegraphic advice reached Ottawa, yesterday from Winnipeg that Hon. Robert Forke, the Minister of Immigration, is planning to restrict immigration from Central and Southeastern Europe.

It could not be learned here whether the Minister intends applying some kind of quota law to people from the non-preferred countries, but it is understood he will decline to renew the railways continental agreement which expires on Oct. 1, 1930.

One Year's Notice.

The agreement is subject to cancellation at any time on one year's notice and the Minister has the absolute right to suspend the agreement either for a stated or indefinite period if the railway companies fail to implement the provisions of the pact or if labour conditions in Canada demand such action.

The agreement in question is the one which permits the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways to bring agriculturists, agricultural workers and domestic servants who are mentally, morally, physically and industrially fit, and of a type suitable for permanent settlement in Canada.

It was made on Sept. 1, 1925, for a period of two years and renewed on Oct. 1, 1927, for three years, but with certain changes due to public opinion, which demanded restriction of the influx from non-preferred countries. This influx has been increasing at such a rate that more Continental Europeans have been arriving in Canada during the last two or three years than Britishers and the department now feels that the time has come to apply further restrictions.

Speaking at Winnipeg of affairs in his own department, Mr. Forke announced that immigration of Central Europeans would be curtailed this year He hoped for increased immigration from the British Isles. Immigration authorities were cognizant of public opinion in Canada not being favorable to large percentage of the annual inflow being from non-preferred countries.

LOYAL FORCES ARE REPULSED

Rebels Are Reported To Be Gaining Ground in Afghanistan.

DETAILS NOT AVAILABLE.

NEW DELHI, India, January 9 (Canadian Press). — Messages from Kabul, Afghanistan to-day indicated that rebels were gaining ground and pushing back King Amanullah's troops in the neighborhood of the capital. The messages said that the rebels were attacking from a north-westerly direction.

PESHAWAR, India, January 9 (Canadian Press). — A battle between Afghan rebel forces under Bachai Sakao and King Amanullah's troops has been under way since Monday, ten miles from Kabul, Afghanistan. So far the king's troops have had the advantage, but details were not available to-day.

LONDON, January 9 (Canadian Press). — An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Peshawar to-day said that one rebellion in Afghanistan had been quelled that of the Shinwari tribe which centred around Jalalabad.

After the distribution of a large quantity of gold the Mohmands and Khuhuanis sided with King Amanullah at a special gathering of chiefs which impressed the rebels effectively. With a view of pleasing the Shinwaris to enable them to boast of what was really an empty victory the Mohmands and Khuguanis retired from Jalalabad, leaving the Shinwaris in full possession.

FRENCH PLANE DROPS INTO SEA

Five Men Lose Their Lives Testing Out New Naval Ship.

ONE BODY RESCUED.

SAINT-RAPHAEL, France, Jan. 9.—(Canadian Press). — Mystery to-day surrounded the plunge of a French naval plane during a test flight which carried 5 men with it to their deaths. The machine, a large all metal trimotor seaplane, was being subjected to trials by Lieutenant Campardon, chief testor of the Naval Air Depot. He was accompanied by Lieutenant Requin and three mechanics.

The seaplane was flying at a height of 300 feet, 4 miles off the coast when suddenly it was seen to plunge head long into the sea, sending up an immense column of water. Launches dashed to the rescue. The machine was found 15 feet below the surface.

The rescuers were only able to recover the body of Lieutenant Requin.

Twenty-five To Thirty Were Injured in English Train Wreck Last Night.

ENGINEER KILLED.

ASH CHURCH, Eng., Jan. 9.—(Canadian Press)—Working all night by the light of flares and acetylene lamps, rescue workers today had recovered four bodies from the wreckage of a passenger train which crashed into a freight train last night. Twenty-five to thirty persons were injured in the wreck which occurred in a thick fog just outside of the station.

The coaches of the express train were crushed and torn into strips. Wreckage was piled high across the railway. The work of rescue was hampered by fog and frost.

The engineer of the express train was killed as were three passengers. The victims were found buried beneath tons of wreckage.

The scene of the accident was 30 miles from Charfield where last October, fifteen person were killed and 30 injured in a train wreck.

Special Bureau Will Not Supercede Institute

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 9.—(Canadian Press.)—The Department of Agriculture will not supercede the Women's Institute branch by a special bureau, Hon. John S. Martin stated yesterday before a deputation from the United Farm Women of Ontario. Mr. Martin, however, gave assurance that he would endeavor to form a measure of co-operation that would ensure the United Farm Women the same work now being provided for the Institutes.

ONE KILLED SIX INJURED

Man Is Knocked Down By Fire Truck On Toronto Streets.

STREET CAR CRASH.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 9 (Canadian Press) —One person was killed and six injured in two accidents here yesterday. Edward Hughes, 49, was struck by a fire engine as he was crossing the street in the downtown district and although rushed to the hospital he died soon after being admitted. No blame for his death was attached to the crew of the fire engine.

Another fire engine was also involved in the other accident, which injured six people, one seriously. The engine crashed head on into a street car which was moving across the street interesection and thus blocked the passage of the fire truck. The crew of the fire engine were flung headlong from their car and had to be removed to the hospital, where is was found that one of them was in a serious condition, and may die.

OFFER MADE TO ALBERTA

Dominion Will Turn Over Natural Resources Along With $562,500 Subsidy.

RESULT OF CONFERENCE.

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 9 (Canadian Press).—All the natural resources except National Park areas to be turned over in toto to the province; annual cash subsidy of $562,500 to be paid in perpetuity, and school lands and funds to be administered in accordance with the provincial laws.

These are the main terms of a new offer that has been received by the government from Hon. Mackenzie King, in behalf of the Dominion Government, for the transfer of Alberta's public domain. The offer is a follow-up of the recent conference in Ottawa and in general accords with what the Prime Minister at that time told the Alberta ministers would probably be offered.

REAL ACTORS.

BERLIN, January 9. — Berlin has a group of actors and actresses that produce impromptu plays. The audience is requested to supply the title of an imaginary play. The troupe at once produces the play, making up the plot and conversation as the play proceeds.

TREE ELECTROCUTED.

NEW YORK, January 9. — A white oak tree in the Botanical Gardens here was struck by lightning. Immediately, a change could be noticed. The leaves started to wither and in a short time it presented an autumnal appearance in contrast to the bright green of the rest of the grove. The ring count of the tree showed it to be 200 years old.

LEGISLATION FOR ONTARIO ASSEMBLY

Government Will Submit Bill To Ratify Old Age Pensions at Coming Session.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 9 (Canadian Press).—A grist of fairly important legislation, in the form of government and public bills, will be presented to the Assembly at the coming session which opens Jan. 30.

Government bills are to include the old age pension measure; providing for additional aid to the Ontario Research Foundation, and important revision of the Hospitals Act. There is a possibility of amendments to the Inn Keepers' Act, and the announced increase of gas tax requires change of the statute. Amendments to the Liquor Control Act if any, will be of a minor nature, Premier G. H. Ferguson has intimated.

A bill creating a racing commission for Ontario may be submitted, but it is understood that the matter is not yet definitely settled. Recommendations by Judge Godson, arising out of the Hollinger fire, may require some legislation.

A bill providing for licensing of real estate dealers, is regarded as likely to be introduced. The measure was asked for by the dealers in September, 1927, and consideration was then promised. The object is to protect the profession and the public against unscrupulous operators.

A somewhat similar measure has been urged by the Architects' Association. It is proposed to require registration, with a suitable examination provided for, though members of the profession now practising would not need to undergo any test.

Organized Labor is asking for licensing of barber shops. Institution of the three-platnoon system for firemen, equivalent to eight-hour day, is also sought, as well as changes in the Workmen's Compensation Act and Mothers' Allowance Act.

A proposal for the bonding of lawyers to give protection against defalcation in respect to trust funds, also comes from Labor, but so far as can be learned at this stage, the government does not regard the need as urgent, on account of the matter having been taken up direct by the Law Society.

Extension of the Minimum Wage Act to apply to boys, was urged by Labor in January, 1927. Recently a report was submitted to the Government by the Minimum Wage Board, dealing with the matter, but neither Hon. Forbes Godfrey nor Premier Ferguson seem favorably inclined toward legislation.

A score of private bills have been or are being advertised. Among the new applications is that of Brockville Loan and Savings Company, to carry on the business of a trust company, change its name and increase authorized capital stock from $500,000 to $1,000,000. Leamington seeks to confirm a drainage by-law; Essex Border Utilities Commission asks confirmation of the purchase of Walkerville water system and the entry of Sandwich South to its jurisdiction. Port Arthur applies for a declaration of title as to water lots conveyed to W. S. McEwen, validation of tax sales up to last January, and confirmation of a by-law guaranteeing securities of the General Hospital up to $200,000.

EXHIBITION CANCELLED

LONDON, Jan. 9.—One Mr. Fitzgerald, of Barnet, was growing a giant pumpkin for exhibition at a fair. He provided every care that could be given a pumpkin and it grew ponderous. Then one day, Fitzgerald went out to inspect the pumpkin and found that his Persian cat had scooped out a cavity in it and had taken possession with a litter of four kittens.

"Flu" Epidemic at Thomasburg - Cavan Youth Awarded Prize

SERVICES IN TWO CHURCHES ARE WITHDRAWN

Much Sickness in Thomasburg District On Account of Influenza Epidemic.

ACCIDENTS ON HIGHWAY.

Several Cars Reported in Ditch at Blakely-Lee Road Crossing.

THOMASBURG, Jan. 9.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The influenza epidemic is raging here as well as in many other places and the local doctor is busy day and night. In one house there were as many as seven persons ill at the same time. Services in the two local churches were withdrawn on Sunday and the public school has been closed.

Many Accidents.

The roads in this district were very slippery by the rain on Saturday evening, resulting in many accidents. The corner between Mr. Blakely's store and Mr. Lee's house is a particularly bad place for the cars. Early on Sunday morning a car driven by Mr. Lovabond turned on this corner and backed into Mr. Lee's yard, breaking off two fence posts and the gate.

Another car driven by Mr. Reid broke a post on the verandah of Mr. Lee's house, when the driver lost control of the car.

Several other cars were reported in the ditch and one owned by Mr. Thompson had a wheel broken off.

PLAYWRIGHT PASSES AWAY

Henry Arthur Jones Dies At Hampstead of Lung Congestion.

AUTHOR OF 70 PLAYS.

LONDON, January 9. —(Canadian Press).—Henry Arthur Jones, author of 70 produced plays, is dead at the age of 77. He died at his home in Hampstead last night of a lung congestion.

Of late years Mr. Jones had been writing of social questions rather than for the theatre, and in the latest edition of 'Who's Who,' he described his recreation as "Hunting Sedition." In 1920-21 he carried on a vigorous newspaper polemic against Bolshevism and against the views of H. G. Wells and George Bernard Shaw. Some of these were published in the book, "My Dead Wells."

The father of Henry Arthur Jones was a farmer and his mother a farmer's daughter, and it was not until he was 18 years old that he first set foot in a playhouse, being brought up according to strict puritan traditions. At the age of 16, however, his reading in the Restor Dramatists inspired him to write his first play.

MISSION BAND HOLDS MEETING

Reports For Year Read at Meeting of Millbrook Society.

DISTRICT NEWS.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 9.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The annual meeting of the Sunshine Mission Band was held at the church on Monday afternoon, the two superintendents, Mrs. M. McDowell, and Mrs. V. C. Lambert, being in charge.

Reports received showed that the work had been carried on successfully throughout the past twelve months, the meeting being well attended, and the interest of the boys and girls well sustained. The sale of candy and flowers, with a thankoffering received at Easter, and again on a Sunday morning early in December at a public worship under the Band auspices, and the usual Christmas entertainment, had been the means used to raise the funds; the total amount for the year is approximately $80.00, this including the fees and mite-boxes.

The list of officers for the current year includes:

President—Bryer Edmunds.
Vice-President—Madeline McDowell
Secretary—Bonna Clarke.
Treasurer—Reg. Edmunds.
Pianist—Mary Burnham.

The practice of remitting thirty dollars to continue the upkeep of the Millbrook Sunshine Cot in the Women's Hospital, Chentu, West China, will be carried out again this year, the Mission Band having carried on this special piece of work for several years, Miss May Mitchell having been the superintendent when this support of the cot was undertaken.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Ware, who have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Nattress, over the Christmas holiday season, returned to their home in Indiana last week, their niece, Myrtle Nattress, accompanying them for a visit.

Presentation Made.

Miss Ethel McKnight, teacher at Whitefield's school, was the recipient of a big box of Laura Secord chocolates following the public meeting of the Cavan township ratepayers on Monday, December 31, when the Baptie Scholarship prizes were presented, her pupil, Jessie Armstrong, who held first place, making the gift to her teacher as a token of love and appreciation of her fine services. In thanking the clerk, after the presentation of the cheque, Miss Jessie attributed the major part of the credit for her high standing to the patient and effective work of her teacher.

Miss Margaret George, of Bowmanville, is at the home of her brother, J. H. George, Anne street, where she is receiving all possible care and attention on account of serious ill health; the trip from Bowmanville was by ambulance.

Mrs. C. Millard, of Oshawa, who was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Lambert, at the Christmas season, left for Los Angeles, California, on Monday of this week, expecting to remain for the remainder of the winter.

The medical health officer, Dr. H. A. Turner, has given permission to hold the Biblical drama, "The Dream of Queen Esther", within the next two weeks, the dated decided upon being Friday, January 18. The original date was New Year's night, but on the advice of Dr. Turner public gatherings were discontinued for a time. The entertainment will be in the United Church at 8 p.m.

POLES DISLODGED.

Saturday Night's Storm Caused Trouble On Telephone Line.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., January 9 (Canadian Press). — Owing to the fact that foreign buyers failed to respond to local bids the export trade in grain here yesterday was extremely dull.

In the domestic cash grain market a stronger feeling prevailed for lower grades of Canadian Western oats, and prices were marked up 1 to 1½c per bushel, and Manitoba feed barley was one cent per bushel higher at 75c.

The demand for spring and winter wheat flour was fair and values were unchanged.

The millfeed trade was dull and featureless. A moderate amount of business was done in standard grades of rolled oats and prices were firm.

Further weakness developed in the jobbing egg market, and values were again declined. The receipts were 1,834 cases.

There were no new developments in the local butter situation the undertone being steady with a fair volume of business passing. Receipts were 45 packages.

The trade in cheese continued quiet, but prices were well maintained. Receipts were 201 boxes.

The inquiry for potatoes showed a decided improvement and a moderate trade was done at steady prices. Prince Edward Island Whites sold at 84c, and Green Mountains at 86c per 90 pounds, in bags. New Brunswick Green Mountains were offered at 65c per 90 pounds, in bulk.

Canadian beans sold at $5.25 to $5.40 per bushel, wholesale.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, January 9 (Associated Press). — Better export demand together with diminishing receipts both in the United States and Canada, helped bring about a material advance of wheat values yesterday. Reports that heavy rains had broken the drought in Argentina acted meanwhile as a check on returns in the corn market.

Closing quotations on wheat were strong, ¾c to 1c to 1¼c net higher, with corn unchanged to ¼c up, oats showing ¼c to ¾c to ⅞c advance, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 2c.

Evidence at hand that export business in wheat from North America is of greater volume than current estimates would indicate tended from the outset yesterday to lift wheat prices here. The fact that Liverpool quotations had an upward start was also regarded as significant in view of despatches received saying there was relatively little pressure to sell either from Canada or Argentina, but that the Canadian Growers Pool had disposed of large quantities of wheat at London, that the Orient was taking liberal amounts of wheat and flour from Vancouver, and that Australian shipments to India continue.

European takings of North American wheat yesterday were reported as about 700,000 bushels in addition to 1,000.00 0bushels the day previous.

Indications were also that domestic milling demand was of fair volume, and that the movement of wheat from rural sources in this country as well as in Canada is letting up. Primary arrivals of domestic wheat yesterday were less than the total a year ago, and latest figures of Canadian country marketings showed a decided falling off. Under such circumstances, wheat future delivery contracts here closed at virtually the day's topmost level.

Corn prices had a firm undertone, despite news that rains were benefiting corn crop growth in Argentina. The cash corn trading basis here was in some cases one cent higher, country offerings were light, and only 191 cars of corn arrived in Chicago yesterday against 387 cars a year back. Predictions of rain or snow counted likewise as a steadying factor. Cereal interests were buyers of oats.

Provisions acted easier, responsive to downturns in the value of hogs, with hedging sales noticeable in lard.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 9. —(Canadian Press.— Egg markets continued weak yesterday and values are still declining.

MONTREAL.—This egg market continues weak and prices are still dropping. B. C. eggs are being sold on spot at extra 41-43c, first 30c, pullet extras 35c. Ontario prices are 1-2c lower. Storage eggs are jobbing here at extras 31c, first 27c, pullet extras 23c. Trading is dull and stocks continue to accumulate.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

TORONTO, Jan. 9.—Butter prices showed no change in uneventful wholesale trading yesterday, dealers again quoting No. 1 pasteurized creamery solids at a range of 41 to 41½ cents a pound, delivered in Toronto. The bulk of trading was in No. 1, although there was no perceptible easing of values in lower grades. The fact that additional supplies of New Zealand butter are momentarily expected lends an uncertain aspect to the market.

Dealers continued to quote No. 1 creamery prints at 44c to 45c to the retail trade with No. 2 prints at 42c to 43c. The distributive movement of butter was generally quiet.

Easiness in the undertone of the egg market reflected a rather light buying interest on the part of retailers, while wholesale receipts showed no decline in volume. Fresh and storage grades were both quoted nominally at unchanged prices of 45c to 46c a dozen for fresh extras, delivered in Toronto. Fresh firsts were 35c to 36c on the same delivery basis, while sales to retailers were made unchanged at 55c to 56c for fresh extras in cartons and at 45c to 46c for firsts.

Storage egg quotations stood at 36c to 39c a dozen for extras in cartons, to the retail trade, with firsts at 34c to 36c.

Cheese market conditions were extremely quiet and nominal values showed no change from the week's opening level of 21¾c a pound for Government graded No. 1 waxed, new large cheese, delivered in Toronto.

There was no change in the poultry situation, supplies continuing to move into storage at unchanged prices.

ANNUAL CONCERT.

New Year's Concert Held Under Auspices of Omemee A.Y.P.A.

OMEMEE, Jan. 9.— (Examiner Correspondence).—The A.Y.P.A. of Christ Church held its annual entertainment on New Year's night. Owing to the influenza, the attendance was small but the entertainment was of the highest order.

The Toronto Ladies' Trio provided a musical treat of rare charm, the program being divided into three parts. The first part was composed of songs of one hundred years ago with costumes in keeping with the time. Part two opened with a clever sketch entitled "Sir Peter and Lady Teazel" taken from "The School of Scandal" by Sheridan followed by a musical program taken from the time of George III. Part three was given over to songs of the present day, the talented ladies appearing in beautiful evening gowns. This part ended with a sketch "The Duchess Goes Shopping" and closed the evening's splendid entertainment.

Skating Enjoyed.

R. H. Williamson, the new caretaker of the skating rink, is working hard to get a good sheet of ice formed, but in the meantime a rink has been cleaned off on the pond and is affording the young people much pleasure. Each evening a huge bonfire provides light and heat to numerous holiday visitors and lovers of this healthy sport.

Prayer Offered.

The week of prayer is being observed in Trinity United Church, commencing on Monday evening. The Bethel young people will have charge of the service on Thursday evening.

The prize was awarded on the results of a written composition based on the trip to the Royal Winter Fair.

REPORT READ AT MEETING

W. M. S. of Omemee United Church Holds Regular Meeting at Parsonage.

DISTRICT NEWS.

OMEMEE, Jan. 9.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The regular meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church, was held at the parsonage on Thursday afternoon, with the new president, Mrs. Blanchard, presiding. Reports were given and several items of business transacted. The treasurer's report showed that $331.98 had been sent to the Branch treasurer, together with $90 from the Mission Band.

It was decided to observe the World Day of Prayer on February 15, which day is set apart by the Dominion Board, and to extend an invitation to the Presbyterian and Anglican Societies to join in the services. It is the aim of the society to do more practical work this year, and accordingly, a sewing meeting will be held once every three months when articles and quilts for the bale will be made.

A card of thanks from Mrs. W. J. MacPherson, of Woodville, was read by the Missionary Monthly Secretary, Mrs. H. Lamb, who reported a gain of six subscriptions over last year to the monthly magazine.

Several members were in favor of discontinuing the refreshments, but no decision was made. The raising of money by means, other than the bazaar was discussed and several suggestions made, but the matter was left until next month.

Mrs. J. Bushnell read the scriptural reading and the devotional leaflet entitled, "Stewardship in the Soul of Religion" was read by Mrs. H. Lamb. The remainder of the devotional exercises was a questionaire on the annual report which was led by Mrs. Blanchard and answered by the members, thus bringing each lady in closer touch with the work of the W.M.S.

Mrs. C. L. Morcombe and Miss Lila Parsons contributed a pretty vocal duet.

Bailieboro

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 9.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The wind storm of Saturday night and Sunday did no great damage in this district. Boards were blown from barns, limbs from trees and fences were blown over, but no serious damage is reported.

Mr. Keith Barnard, M.B.P. returned from Toronto on Tuesday, after attending the Eighth Older Boys' Parliament.

Mr. Roy Rutherford, who has been spending the holidays the guest of his mother, has returned to Knox College, Toronto.

Mr. Herbert Dean leaves this week to accept a position in Oshawa.

Miss Loretta Barnard has returned to the teaching staff at Allanburg.

Mr. Karl Lang leaves this week to take a position in Oshawa.

Mr. Harold Lackie has returned to Victoria College, Toronto, to resume his studies after spending the holidays the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Lackie.

Obituary

WILLIAM PEARCE.

MARMORA, Jan. 9.—The death occurred at the residence of his son-in-law, Joseph Judge, at Deloro at 7.30 p.m. on Sunday of one of the oldest residents of that village in the person of William Pearce. Deceased was born at Redruth, Cornwall, England, on November 30, 1855, and throughout life followed steadily the occupation of blacksmith. He came to Deloro in 1897 having previously resided for sixteen years in the United States, half of that time in New Jersey and the other half in Ishpening, Michigan. He came to Deloro when the Canadian Goldfields Limited was operating and remained when the property was taken over by the Deloro Mining and Reduction Company and again later by the present Smelting and Refining Company. He gave up work two and a half years ago feeling the strain of advancing years. His wife predeceased him three years ago. Three daughters survive, Mrs. Joseph Judge, of Deloro; Mrs. T. Harper, of Port Huron, Mich., and Mrs. P. Murphy, Marmora Township. The late Mr. Pearce was a member of the United Church and in politics he was a Conservative Though no society claimed him as a member, he was nevertheless a good supporter of all charitable organizations. Reading and gardening were his main hobbies, besides which he exercised a keen interest in politics Though ailing for two weeks, his death came with somewhat suddenness since he was donwstairs on the morning of his death and apparently enjoyed a smoke. He lost consciousness about two o'clock and passed peacefully away.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday and will be conducted by Rev. C. J. Beckley of the United Church.

MRS. JAMES DAWSON.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 9.—The death of Mrs. James Dawson (Beatrice F. Brenton), which occurred at Peterborough on Thursday, January 3, following a brief illness, came as a great shock not only to her immediate relatives, but also to her many friends in Peterborough, Millbrook, and the surrounding district.

Deceased was born at Keene sixty-three years ago and there her early years were spent; her only brother, Harry Brenton, of Winnipeg, predeceased his sister by about three years.

On September 7, 1887, Beatrice F. Brenton was united in marriage to James Dawson, their farm homestead being for some time in North Monaghan, about midway between Springville and Frazerville; later they lived on the Seventh Line, Cavan, and when Mr. Dawson decided to retire from farming they removed to Millbrook eleven years ago, where they continued to reside until the latter's death on December 21, 1922.

Two sons survive their mother, Harry J. on the homestead, Cavan; and Bruce Brenton, principal of the public school, Millbrook; one child died in infancy; there are seven grandchildren.

Since her husband's death Mrs. Dawson resided practically all the time in Peterborough, her home being with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Joseph Perrin, at 312 Elias avenue. Deceased was in her usual health on Christmas day and was able to join the family re-union party at the home of her eldest son, Mr. Harry Dawson, Seventh Line, Cavan. It was some days later when the illness developed which ended fatally last Thursday.

A faithful member of the former Methodist church, and going with it into Union, Mrs. Dawson was emphatically a kind neighbor, and a true friend, and will be sadly missed by those who knew her intimately and had learned to love her.

The funeral took place from her late residence, Peterborough, on Saturday at 1.30 p.m., Rev. W. W. Jones, pastor of the United Church, Millbrook, having charge of the services at the home and graveside. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Offa Williamson, James Roddy, Bert Cunningham, George Brenton (Peterborough), Harold Fry and Jos. Madill. Interment was at Gardiner's cemetery, A. A. Birchard, of Peterborough, supplying as bearer in Mr. Fry's place as the latter was prevented from going on to the graveside.

Among the many beautiful floral tributes was a wreath from the teachers and pupils of the public school, Millbrook, and a number of carloads of local citizens were at the cemetery when the funeral cortege arrived, and the final service was held.

MRS. EDWARD CLANCY.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOWNEYVILLE, January 9.— The funeral of the late Mrs. Edward Clancy motored from Oshawa on Saturday morning and was buried here in St. Luke's Cemetery. The late Mrs. Clancy (formerly Nellie Winn) was born and raised in Downeyville, and was well known and highly esteemed by a large number of neighbors and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Clancy lived here until about three years ago, when they moved to Oshawa. Her death was sudden, and came as a great shock to her many friends here. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, two sons, Patrick and Daniel, five daughters, Isobel, Marie, Mary, Winnifred, and Anna, all at home in Oshawa, one sister, Mrs. Patrick Collins, Ops, three brothers, George Winn in Regina, Sask., Daniel of Toronto, and Patrick of Emily.

Among those who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Clancy and boys, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clancy, Mr. and Mrs. W. John Hoolihan, all of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Winn from Toronto, Mrs. Wilkison and a number of others from Oshawa.

MRS. GEORGE O'CONNELL.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOWNEYVILLE, January 9.— The funeral of the late Mrs. George O'Connell was held from the residence of her son-in-law, Michael Hoolihan, on Friday morning to St. Luke's Church, where Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Galvin, who afterwards said the prayers at the grave. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Fergus Hoolihan, Joseph Corbett, Emmet O'Neill, Fergus O'Neill, Joseph and Ralph O'Connell.

The late Mrs. O'Connell, whose maiden name was Ellen O'Neill, was born at King's Wharf 68 years ago, and was well and favorably known. She has been an invalid for a number of years, but was not seriously ill until a few days before her death. Her husband predeceased her four years ago. There are left two sons, Morgan in the West and Vincent in Emily, two daughters, Mrs. Michael Hoolihan and Miss Mary at home; also five brothers, Morgan O'Neill in the West, Thomas O'Neill in Lindsay, Patrick O'Neill of Omemee, and William and Michael O'Neill at King's Wharf, five sisters, Mrs. Frank Gillece, Mrs. Patrick Milloy in Lindsay, Mrs. Edward Hoolihan and Mrs. John Corbett of Emily.

THOMAS A. LEWIS.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, January 9. — Thomas A. Lewis, formerly of Consebar, passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Herbert Snyder here in his 81st year last night. The funeral takes place to-morrow morning, while services will be conducted at the house to-night at 8.30. Interment in Corseton Cemetery.

ELECTED TO BOARD.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 8. —Dr. O. D. Skelton, under-secretary for External Affairs, and Dr. Adam Shortt, of Ottawa, have been elected to the Board of Trustees of Queen's University by the graduates, it was announced at the University this morning. H. A. Cavin of Toronto and J. M. Campbell of Kingston have been elected to the Board of benefactors.

TEX RICKARD.

Whatever else may be said of Tex Rickard, the Barnum of the sporting world, it will always be remembered of him that he lifted the prize ring from a low level into the realm of big business.

Rickard, in fact, converted prize fighting into a major industry that earned big dividends.

It is possible that in the doing so he took something vital out of the fighting game, that ring men were infected by his money-making success and speedily became business men rather than fighters, that the old-time battler who fought largely for the glory and sheer love of fighting has become a vanished figure, but at all events Rickard made many prize fighters wealthy while he was amassing his own fortune and brought a new type of patron to the ringside.

From a Canadian viewpoint, perhaps famous Tex's connection with hockey was perhaps of more importance than his fight promotions.

His acceptance of hockey as a major sport worthy of being featured at Madison Square Gardens "made" the game in the United States, at least gave Canada's winter pastime a chance to establish itself firmly there and started the present boom which has brought large salaries to Canadian players and opened the door of opportunity to many young stars.

OVER HERE AND OVER THERE.

A statement by Attorney-General Price that the New Year passed in Ontario in a manner that reflected credit upon the sobriety of the people of this Province has been sharply attacked by citizens who argue that there were scenes in Toronto and elsewhere on New Year's Eve that did not dovetail with Mr. Price's words.

That there was drinking, in some cases in public, in more cases in private, associated with the entrance of 1929 no one can deny, but if the whole thing could be checked up it would in all probability be found that the offenders formed but a trifling proportion of the population of Ontario, and that the majority of people welcomed the New Year as sensible and sober citizens.

In fact, the conditions in this Province where liquor may be legally bought would appear entirely innocuous when compared to the New Year celebrations across the border where strong drink is not a legitimate commercial commodity.

Nobody who reads United States newspapers, nobody who listened over the radio as the weird noises of New Year's Eve orgies were broadcast from American cities, could doubt that in the land of the Volstead Act it was decidedly wet as 1928 gave way to the New Year.

There was nothing in the bedlam that came over the air to suggest that there was any lack of liquor or any lack of people to drink it.

LIFE-LONG SERVICE.

The tribute paid by the Prime Minister of Canada to Hon. George H. Murray, whose death took place in Montreal on Sunday, would seem to have been richly deserved by reason of Mr. Murray's unique record of public service.

The former Premier of Nova Scotia was a prominent figure in the political arena of that Province from the time he entered the Legislative Council in 1889 until he retired 34 years afterward.

In 1891 he became a member without portfolio of the Cabinet of Hon. Mr. Fielding's Government, and when Mr. Fielding resigned five years afterward, formed an administration, thus commencing a tenure of office as Premier of Nova Scotia and leader of the Liberal party in that Province that continued without a break for 27 years, a record of long service that has not been equalled in the annals of Canadian politics, and that outlasted the Laurier Federal administration which began the same year by a span of twelve years.

The esteem in which he was held by political foes and political friends alike was indicated at the end of a quarter of a century of service when the Legislature of Nova Scotia unanimously passed a resolution commending Hon. Mr. Murray for his "lengthy, untiring and unselfish public service."

It might well be written as an epitaph in his case: "His life was spent in the service of his fellow-citizens."

CLEANER PLAYS, MOVIES AND BOOKS.

The plea for cleaner stage plays and cleaner pictures made before the Brockville Rotary Club by Bransby Williams, well-known British actor, who will be seen here to-night in "Oliver Twist," will be echoed by many people who have watched the trend in popular entertainment with a good deal of misgiving.

Certainly there is much on the stage and on the screen that might be eliminated, as Mr. Williams suggests.

In fact, there would seem to be an intense rivalry among the producers of stage plays, the moving picture companies and publishers of an all too common type of magazine, all striving to outdo each other in the stressing of crime and sex angles, and combining to produce a steady flood of violence and filth that cannot fail to be demoralizing.

There is a place for worthwhile stage productions, for pictures that are wholesome as well as entertaining, and for magazines that believe that there is something more important than fake confession stories—but, unfortunately, there is support enough for plays, pictures and magazines of the other type to make their production profitable.

It all gets back to the public itself.

If bad plays, demoralizing movies and salacious books are to disappear it must be brought about by educating the public taste to appreciate something better.

So long as we support the poor article in profitable numbers we can be sure that it will be produced.

HOCKEY.

Generally speaking hockey and other sports are not considered subjects for editorial comment or else that comment is confined to the sport page, but once in a while there seems to be an opportune time for a transfer to the editorial columns. The beginning of a season is one of those times, and since Lindsay's hockey season opened most auspiciously on Thursday night, so this is one of the times locally when hockey is an editorial subject. Of course, we all hope that the start, which was so satisfactory to all hands, will be an augury for the finish, but apart from that there is something to be said for the game itself and the development of it in this and other towns. The O.H.A. this year is headed by a Lindsay man, Richard Butler, and is one of the largest amateur sport organizations in the world. It has done much for the development of sport and, incidentally, the development of men in this Province, and while at times it has been under fire, it has on the whole functioned very smoothly and satisfactorily. The point now is that the amateur game in this Province is suffering from the inroads of the professional leagues to the extent that the senior series is almost non-existent compared with what it was a few years ago, and there is a corresponding dropping off in the quality of intermediate hockey. The whole point is easily seen—the best of the amateurs are snapped up by the professional teams and the local clubs become discouraged over the prospects for good teams. Added to that, too, there has been a disinclination on the part of many clubs to foster and develop junior hockey, with the result that fewer good juniors have been coming up of late years. Which brings us to what we really want to say, and that is, to stress the need of player development. There should be a junior city league and a school league in every town with aspirations in the O.H.A. That is the only way in which the quality of hockey can be maintained and a sufficient number of players developed from years to year. It is a good, clean, healthful sport, and when played under proper supervision there is nothing better for the growing boy. It is not particularly difficult to operate a school league, for usually it is a matter of drawing a schedule with the co-operation of the school principals and arranging the ice. Generally they play half-hour games and usually the games are worked in between skating periods in a rink, say from five to six and six to eight o'clock in the evening. In this way a large number of games can be run off in a night and the interest aroused is surprising. Then, the junior town league can be operated in much the same way, playing the games before the evening skating begins, and so on. Generally such a league is so operated as to take the players just below the O.H.A. age limit so that they are kept in hand until seasoned for the big leagues. The value of such leagues is fully recognized by the O.H.A., and it is a matter that should be taken in hand by every hockey club throughout the country.—Lindsay Post.

HINTS TO MR. ROBB.

Hon. James A. Robb, Minister of Finance, is, no doubt, giving some thought to his budget. He will be able to present another prosperity budget. He will be able to show a large surplus despite last year's tax reductions. And, of course, he will announce further tax reductions. Ca va sans dire. No doubt Mr. Robb has already planned a number of changes in tax scales. His colleagues have their own ideas. Other suggestions will pour into the Minister's office. When the budget comes down the tax reforms incorporated in it may be quite different from Mr. Robb's ideas just now. Last year there were important changes at the eleventh hour.

Ignoring for the moment, tariff changes, we beg to offer a few suggestions which we know will meet with general approval among business men.

The income tax should be reduced further, particularly in the upper levels. The corporation income tax should be reduced by at least one per cent. annually. The cheque tax might be eliminated entirely. It costs business more than the Government gets out of it and is therefore economic waste.

Absurdities in the income tax should be removed. The attempt to tax speculators has failed and should be given up. The taxation of stock dividends is unfair and based upon a false notion of what a stock dividend is and should be brought in line with the United States practice of considering stock dividends a bookkeeping readjustment rather than a payment of money or the equivalent. The taxation of dividends in the hands of private individuals constitutes unfair double taxation and should also be corrected.

There is an anachronism in the continuance of exorbitant excise duties on tobacco, cigarettes and spirituous liquors and these should be reduced.

It is our estimate that from the adoption of these measures no net decline in revenue would occur.

In the matter of tariff changes, Mr. Robb can not do better than follow the recommendations of his Tariff Board. They have examined carefully and at length most of the basic industries of Canada and have had ample opportunity to formulate definite suggestions that represent effective compromises between opposing viewpoints. If the Tariff Board is to be of value the Minister of Finance should lend an ear to the advice of its chairman, privately delivered to Mr. Robb.—Financial Post.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A Walkerville man has purchased an aeroplane for $100. And worse than that, he's going to fly it.

If the local Utilities Commission receives many more Christmas gifts like the present refund from the Hydro-Electric Commission there will be a demand for a slash in the rates.

A Thought

BEAUTY OF LIFE

Life, its secrets yet unknown, yet how beautiful all life is as we look about us and see it in everything. One cannot but ponder of the great works of God. We should learn to love beauty in all nature, and surely we would become saner and wiser as we see God in the great works about us. One of the great secrets of any successful man is to look well to cultivating the talent God has given him, and leave no parts of the garden of life uncultivated. When young and starting out to take up life's work, stop and think that your life may be considered a great garden. You are commencing to cultivate; you are about to turn the first furrow, or are lifting the first spade full of earth and preparing it with the choicest phosphates so as to bring forth the choicest fruits.

Let it be so in your life. Commence to read only the choicest in literature so that your soul may become enriched from day to day. By living in such an environment, your life will become sweetened and enlarged by the love of beauty, for it is made manifest in everything in this world. We see it in the budding of the trees in Springtime; we see it in the green blades of grass. In the autumn when all fruit and vegetables have reached their full maturity and are ready for the substenance of man. It is then that we should consider the Creator has made all things in a wonderful way; but the secrets of all are yet unknown.—E. T. Cleveland.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

THURSDAY, JANUARY 10, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Astrologers read in today's horoscope promise of the greatest achievements in invention during the year 1929, which will bring added fame to America.

In the west, aviation is to accomplish wonders in practical lines not yet even recognized, astrologers foretell.

The United States government is to have a special goad toward development of aerial navigation, it is prophesied.

Science is to make surpassing strides in 1929, when knowledge of astronomy is to prove how great is the influence of the stars on human destiny.

There is a sign of promise for homemakers and an access of interest in domestic matters.

Cooking is to be recognized as one of the arts, and in diet age-old truth of astrology will be accepted, the seers prophesy.

Mars and Saturn in malefic rule now begin to exercise increased influence over the Earth in which financial greed will breed greater crime and corruption, the seers foretell.

Grave disasters are indicated for the coasts of France, Spain, Portugal, Central Europe and Japan.

The Central European areas are subject to a planetary government supposed to project war influences.

Severe winter weather may be expected to continue until late in the spring, and terrific gales will be a feature.

Mars and Neptune will be responsible for certain sensational events in Washington where the end of the Coolidge administration will be of great historic moment, it is foretold.

Warning is given by the seers that the red army is rapidly to increase in the United States where communistic propaganda will be even more widely distributed than formerly.

Persons whose birthdate it is should benefit through newspapers or advertisements in the coming year, which should be fairly prosperous.

Children born on this day probably will show distinct talent as writers or speakers. These subjects of Capricorn succeed through charming personalities as well as unusual mental gifts.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY THE MIND WANDERS.

(By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.)

Every so often someone wants to know if he is headed for the bughouse because his mind wanders. There would be something the matter with his mind if it didn't go "wool-gathering." Every insane asylum harbors unfortunate creatures whose minds are stuck fast to one subject which no crowbar of science can pry loose. They are suffering from obsessions.

Absent-mindedness is a temporary obsession. The absent-minded person is likely to pass you on the street without seeing you, even though he looks right at you. He may even fail to respond to his own name. So firmly is his mind glued to a single idea that other ideas and sensory experience do not register in his consciousness.

As contrasted with the absent-minded, we have the so-called scatterbrain who shifts from one subject to another in rapid succession. He can't tell a story without bringing in a lot of material that has no direct bearing whatsoever. What he sees and hears during the narrative will also distract him! If a car whizzes by, he remarks about it. If he happens to notice your tie he interrupts himself to mention it.

The normal person is both absent-minded and scatter-brained on occasion. Extremes, however, are likely to be abnormal and pathological. A moderate amount of each is necessary to effective thinking. If you scatter too much, you can't think without getting side-tracked and losing yourself. On the other hand, if you stick too effectively to one thing you fail to see the related problems and hence lose out on important items.

The real thinker strikes a happy medium.

The nature of mind is such that it is impossible to hold the attention to the same thing for more than a few moments. You can prove this for yourself by holding a watch far enough from your ear so that you can barely hear it tick. If you listen very carefully you will find that despite your best effort to concentrate you will lose the tick now and then. Attention comes and goes in waves. The familiar "tick-tock" of the clock is another example. The sounds made by the ticking of the clock are uniform, but your attention wavers just enough to give the second tick a "tock" sound.

THE LUCKIEST LADY

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XXVIII—A LIGHT GONE OUT

The Little Flapper never knew how she got through that interminable day.

She spent most of it in Marna's bedroom, with the door locked.

When the maids came to ask if they could do anything, Biddy pretended that Marna was in bed with a headache.

She had had a brief interview with Harnigan, in which neither of them had mentioned Marna's plan.

"I'm sorry the car went wrong," the Little Flapper said. "But, as it happens, Mrs. Paget won't be wanting it. She's in her room with a bad headache."

"I'm sorry to hear that, miss."

"She'll be all right presently," Biddy said firmly, but she looked away from him. "You'll see that the car is all right again by the time Mr. Paget comes home tonight, Harnigan?"

"The car is all right again now, miss."

Biddy drew a sigh of relief and went back to Marna's room.

The day was a nightmare; she felt as if she were acting a part—a terrible, tragic part—and that if she forgot one word of it, or missed one cue, disaster would befall them all.

She was at her wits' end to know what to do for the best. She had wild thoughts of telephoning to George, but realized the futility. She had a longing impulse to rush off to Mrs. Blair—her kind sanity would be such a help and comfort—but Biddy knew that by one false move she might ruin the last hope left to her. For there was still in her heart a faint hope that Marna might return.

"She must! She must!" she told herself passionately as she sat on the side of Marna's bed in the darkened room, her hands clasped together, every nerve in her body strained to snapping point.

When the maids came to the door to ask if anything was wanted she spoke to them in whispers. She took in tea-trays and beef teas and jellies because they brought them, and tried in vain to eat them herself. And all the time she was telling herself in despair:

"It's no use. I might as well give in. Marna will never come back. We've got to face it, poor Uncle George and me."

There was a telephone beside Marna's bed, and at mid-day Biddy rang up the steamship office to ask if the Karmala had sailed.

"If this were a story," she told herself wretchedly as she waited for a reply, "something would have happened to prevent it—she would have broken a propeller or something."

But it was not a story; it was real life, and the Karmala had sailed to scheduled time.

"And Marna has gone, too," Biddy told herself in despair. "I know she has! Oh, what shall we do, and how could she leave us all?"

But the next moment she was defending Marna against herself.

"Who could blame her? If she loves him and he loves her, why shouldn't they be together?"

Then she sobbed and sobbed, her face buried in Marna's pillows to stifle the sound.

But Marna came back. Nobody knew how she slipped unobserved into the house, or by what means she came, but early in the evening, when it was almost dark, and Biddy was frantically wondering how she was to meet George Paget and what she could tell him, someone tried the handle of the locked door, and when the Little Flapper flew to open it, not daring to hope, and yet almost wild with hope, Marna stood on the landing outside. She did not look any different—only very pale and tired—and when Biddy stood aside, unable to speak, she passed her and entered the room, taking off her hat as she came, just as if nothing unusual had happened—just as if she had only been out shopping or to tea with a friend.

"All in the dark!" she said.

She switched on the light, and her eyes fell on the pathetic collection of trays on a table at the foot of the bed. Untouched cups of tea; untouched plates of jelly. She stood for a moment staring at them, then she turned slowly round and looked at the Little Flapper.

There was no need for words; they were just two women who understood one another perfectly—understood and sympathised. Then Marna said apathetically:

"I should get have come back, only they wouldn't let me on the boat. You had to have a pass or something——"

She waited a moment, but Biddy could not find her voice, and Marna gave a little, imperceptible shrug and walked over to the dressing-table.

"I should like a hot bath," she said. "And is George in?"

"Not yet, darling." Biddy almost choked over the words.

Marna looked at herself in the mirror.

"I'm glad," she said expressionlessly. "I'm glad. He need never know now, I suppose, need he?"

"No, darling. Nobody need know. I let them think you were ill in bed with a bad headache."

Marna raised her brows.

"Harnigan knows," she said.

"Oh!"

"I heard you talking to him in the garage last night," Marna said very quietly. "That's why I slipped out earlier than I meant to and went by train."

She sat down on the arm of a chair, her eyes fixed on the carpet, and for a moment there was a profound silence before she said again:

"Nothing ever goes right for me—at least, only things that can be bought and paid for. I'm always lucky in that way, but not in anything else." She raised her eyes suddenly to the Little Flapper's sad face. "I suppose you despise me, Biddy?"

"No. How can I? You know I don't. I'm only so—sorry!" the Little Flapper whispered.

Marna laughed mirthlessly.

"You don't need to be sorry. I shall just go on. I did before, and I can again." She rose wearily to her feet once more. "Tell Annie I should like a hot bath, and ask her to put out my blue frock. It must be nearly dinner-time."

"It's ten minutes to seven."

"I shall have to hurry."

Biddy went away. She could not trust herself to speak. She was only conscious of a great thankfulness that Marna had come back. And yet there was a vague fear in her heart, also. Marna was different—since last night she was different. She made the Little Flapper think of a window which she had grown accustomed to see always brightly and warmly illuminated, to which someone had come and roughly extinguished the light.

But she dared not think too much. She ordered Marna's bath, then went to her own room and changed her frock. She felt shaken and feverish.

"I caught cold last night, that's what it is," she thought as she brushed her hair. "Getting wet through—I caught cold."

She heard George Paget's step on the stairs, and then his hearty voice calling to his wife, and then she closed her eyes in thankfulness.

"It's all right still, thank God!" the Little Flapper whispered; and then she thought of Hugh Hubbard, and of a big ship ploughing its way through a great ocean, and a sob caught her throat.

What was he thinking—feeling? And all alone, with nobody to talk to or to help him bear it.

"It's quite true what Marna says," the Little Flapper told herself. "It's quite true that we're not all meant to be happy. I wonder why it is?"

She put another little dab of powder on her face, and went down to dinner.

It was just like any other ordinary dinner.

George Paget talked of his golf like a delighted schoolboy. Apparently he had played the game of his life, a feat which had greatly astounded him. Biddy listened while he related how he had done the thirteenth in one under bogey, whatever that meant; how he and Saunders had been all square on the sixteenth, etc., etc., and then how he had beat him at the finish.

"I've come to the conclusion I'm not so old or so fat, after all, don't-cherknow," he said complacently, looking across at his wife. "In fact, I'm going to play Saunders again on Monday."

"I should, dear," Marna said. "And of course you're not old or fat. You're just in the prime of life."

She felt as if she were playing a game, too—a game in which one had to go on, either till one won or was hopelessly beaten.

PROFESSIONAL CRICKET

Dear Sir:

It is amazing where your correspondent, "J.B." has obtained all his cricket information. Have been looking up authentic records and find that most of J. B.'s facts are wrong.

Firstly, he says that he saw Albert Scott, one of the greatest all-rounders Australia ever produced, beat Australia while playing on the English team in 1891. Records show that no test matches were played in England that year. Furthermore, no player by the name of Scott ever played for England since they introduced test match cricket in 1861. Probably he refers to Albert Trott, but he only played once in test cricket—against South Africa for England in 1899. J. H. Scott played for Australia against England in 1884 and 1886.

Secondly, Whysall was born in the County of Nottingham and has played with that county regularly since the war. He has never played with Australia. All players of Nottinghamshire must be born within the county, a rule that applies to Yorkshire County players also. Other English County teams do not enforce this rule.

The only native Australian to remain in England and turn pro. within recent years is A. E. MacDonald, who joined Nelson in 1922 and later was induced to play for Lancashire County. MacDonald has never played for England in test cricket, although he is a very fast bowler of the type England has been wanting for years.

Thirdly, Mr. J. B., there are three amateurs (strictly so) with the present English team in Australia, these being pointed out to you by an unnamed correspondent in last Friday's Examiner. They are: A. P. F. Chapman, D. R. Jardine, and J. C. White. The remaining members of the team are pro's.

England can produce an excellent team of amateurs at any time, but it has always been the custom to choose the strongest team for test matches, regardless of status, although an amateur is always made captain of the team.

Fourthly, P. F. Warner was born in England in 1873. He did spend a number of years in the West Indies with the regular army.

You are correct, "J.B.," re Australians being amateurs, but they are not strictly so. Each player gets a percentage of the profits of test matches.

May I suggest, Mr. J. B., that you secure an "Athletic News Cricket Annual." It gives full information of all test matches since their inception.

—G. M.

ENGLAND V. AUSTRALIA.

Sir,—With reference to a letter in Saturday's Examiner from "J.B." I am sorry he took my little corrective so lengthily to heart; the more he writes the more he shows his lack of knowledge.

He says a certain mythical Albert Scott (sic) helped to beat Australia at Lords in 1891; he must indeed have been a marvel, for there was no Australian team in England in 1891 for him to beat or help to beat. This is not a matter of argument or memory, but of record.

If he means Albert Trott, this fine player came from Australia and qualified and played for Middlesex. As a member of this county team he certainly played against the Australians, also, no doubt, for M.C.C., but he never represented England v. Australia in a test match in England or Australia. Great player though he was, his claims for a place in the England team were never considered—he was not eligible.

He is funnier than ever when he states that Whysall is an Australian player who two years ago was engaged to remain in England; it is impossible for anyone to make a more inaccurate statement.

I am sure no one would be more amazed than Whysall himself to read that bit of his life history. He is and has been for many years a valued member of the Nottinghamshire team, and never set foot in Australia till he went there in 1924-5 with the English team. Moreover, Whysall never represented England—in England in a test match against Australia. This, too, is a matter of record, but "J.B." apparently places himself above such trifles as record facts.

He gets worse as he goes on when he says that Chapman is the only amateur in the present team. As I said before, D. R. Jardine and J. C. White are also both amateurs. Chapman is an old Cambridge Blue and Jardine is an old Oxford Blue, as was his father, M. R. Jardine before him. During last season Jardine's own business claims prevented him from taking part, except on two or three occasions, in the matches played by his county (Surrey). Thank goodness no University players have as yet become professionals in England. J. C. White is a gentleman farmer and captain of Somerset, and no professional is captaining an English County.

As a matter of fact, the fourteen professionals on the team are receiving $2,000 (with the possibility of a small bonus), and, of course, all travelling and hotel expenses, and also are receiving $10.00 a week for spending money. The three amateurs named, of course, have their expenses paid, but they receive no other remuneration of any kind, no weekly spending money and no compensation for lost time.

If "J.B." argues that a man who receives a cash consideration beyond his expenses for an athletic contest or series of contests is an amateur, then I agree that the Australians are amateurs.

But the gist of the matter, and which is the particular cause of offence, is the definite charge made by "J.B." that Australian "Gentlemen" are brought over to England automatically professionalized, and then used by England to come to the aid of local talent to defeat their compatriots. Such a statement is ludicrously and absolutely and offensively wrong. The fact is, as I stated, that no Australian has ever played in a test match for England v. Australia, either in England or Australia. This is definitely beyond controversy or argument or even "J.B.'s" ipse dixit. Yours, etc.,

C.H.I.

P.S.—A typographical error made it appear Scott instead of Trott in "J.B.'s" letter.—Editor.

BIRDSALLS, Jan. 8.—The Misses Eva Clydesdale, Isabel Graham and Helen Breckenridge, have returned to Peterborough.

Dr. M. Humphreys stated that the flu epidemic north of Villiers is not as serious as he thought it to be at Christmas time.

The many friends of Mr. Joseph Lancaster will be pleased to learn that he is improving after his serious illness.

A number of the young people of the district gathered at the home of Mr. Henry McColl on Saturday evening, when an enjoyable evening was spent in dancing and cards.

Blue pencils have become famously popular with editors because blue more than any other color, completely hides the word to be deleted.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S ICE PUDDING

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

"That was a very good apple pie you made for Mr. Whitewash and me when we were playing checkers in my snow house," said Uncle Wiggily to Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy the next day.

"I'm glad you liked it," squeaked the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"Are you going to make another?" Uncle Wiggily wanted to know.

"Not right away," answered Nurse Jane.

"Then let me make one," begged the rabbit gentleman, dancing on the tips of his paws out into the kitchen of his hollow stump bungalow for his wife was away and he felt like a bit of play.

"Let you make an apple pie?" cried Nurse Jane. "Indeed I will not, Mr. Longears. And I wish you'd go right out of my kitchen and stop poking your pink, twinkling nose around to see what you can see."

"Please let me make an apple pie!" begged the bunny gentleman, putting his paw in the sugar bowl and then, because some sweet grains stuck to it Mr. Longears had to put his paw in his mouth to get the sugar off.

"No!" squeaked the muskrat lady loudly. "You can't make any apple pie in my kitchen today!"

"Could I make one tomorrow?" asked the rabbit gentleman, blinking his ears in a funny way.

"No, not tomorrow, either!" said Nurse Jane.

"How about Friday?" asked the rabbit.

"Oh, dear! What a tease you are!" exclaimed Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy, holding up her paws. "You can't bake an apple pie in my kitchen today or tomorrow or any day! Now please hop out and look for an adventure."

"All right," said Uncle Wiggily resigned like and patient. "All right, Janie! But you'll be sorry for not letting me make an apple pie. You can't tell when somebody might be starving and my apple pie would save their life."

"Even Uncle Butter, the goat, would need to be very hungry to eat any apple pie you'd make," laughed Nurse Jane. "Come now, hop along!"

"All right!" said Mr. Longears, twinkling his pink nose very fast. "All right! If I can't make an apple pie I'll make something else!"

So he took a yellow bowl from the table and, going out to the back porch, he broke off three large icicles from the edge of the low roof and put the icicle pieces in the bowl. Then he came back into the kitchen and began to stir around in the bowl with a large spoon.

"What in the world are you doing?" asked Nurse Jane in surprise.

"I'm making an ice pudding since you won't let me make an apple pie," answered the rabbit gentleman.

"An ice pudding!" cried Nurse Jane in surprise. "I never heard of such a thing! Pooh! You can't make an ice pudding!"

"Can't I?" asked Uncle Wiggily gently. "Just watch me." So he kept on stirring the lumps of ice from the icicles around in the yellow bowl and then he looked at Nurse Jane and asked:

"Would you mind giving me a bit of sugar, Janie? I want to make my ice pudding sweet."

"Oh, take a bit of sugar!" squeaked Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy, and so in with the ice Uncle Wiggily stirred some sugar. Then, looking at the yellow bowl, he said, very gently and ingratiating like:

"Ice pudding is always much better if it has an egg beaten up in it. Would you mind lending me an egg, Janie?"

"Oh, for goodness sake! Take an egg if you want it!" she answered. "But your ice pudding will be no good."

"You'll see," said the bunny. So he broke an egg into the yellow bowl and handed the shell pieces to Nurse Jane.

"Goodness! I don't want those!" she laughed.

"Oh, I thought maybe you did," spoke Uncle Wiggily. So he stirred the sugar and egg and ice together and then he said: "My pudding would be a little thicker if I had some cornstarch to mix in. Would you mind if I took a little?"

"No; help yourself," said Nurse Jane. So Uncle Wiggily did, and then he begged a few drops of vanilla for flavoring and some cocoanut to put in with the cornstarch and at last he said:

"There, now, my ice pudding is done! Take it, Janie!" And when the muskrat lady tasted, why, it was just like frozen ice-cream!

"It's a lovely pudding!" she said, and then she laughed. For she happened to think that Uncle Wiggily had played a trick on her. Except for the chunks of icicles which anybody could have for nothing, the rabbit had begged sugar and egg and cocoanut and cornstarch and vanilla for his pudding and, after all, that's what most puddings are made of.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

THE BETTER SELF.

The poets, with their wings in flight,
Dream always better than they write;
No singer's music quite reveals
The music that the singer feels;
And kinder thoughts men think each day
Than mortals ever think to say;
They hide their virtue, not their sin,
Their better selves that dwell within.

We know the little that we can,
But never know the better man;
For, if the inner man we knew,
Could read his heart as God can do,
Then we would find within his breast
A goodness only half expressed.
For, singer's song or poet's dream,
All men are better than they seem.

News From the Mines

Through Selleway, Mills & Company

MOND NICKEL.

From a dependable source we are able to say that the Mond is in ore on a new horizon at the Frood Extension, the 2,400. A crosscut has been driven in ore for approximately 80 feet and they anticipate another 30 feet will be necessary before the hanging wall is reached. The grade of ore is reported as being similar to that on the 2,800, which is combined metals average between $48 and $50 a ton. However, sampling in some instances has shown as high as 20 per cent. copper. At the 3,100 foot horizon the drift has advanced over 320 feet from the crosscut in solid ore. The average grade of this tremendous ore body will reach Lord Melchett's figures, that is $114 a ton. The width of this zone has been delimited to approximately 135 feet. Regular shipments are being made to the Canadian smelter from the 2,800 and 3,100 foot levels, and it is reported that 8,000 tons of this high grade material went to the smelter during December.

HILLTOP.

Hilltop officials announced Monday that they had acquired six claims adjoinining and in line with the strike of Patterson Copper in the Boston Creek area.

BUCKINGHAM.

We are informed that the ore shoot at the 165 foot level of Buckingham has now been opened up for a length of 25 feet and is said to be better than ordinary commercial ore over drift width. The face of the drift was still in ore late last week, and in a crosscut from the east drift at No. 3 fault the vein which had been displaced by the fault was again picked up but no results are as yet available.

SUDBURY CONTACT.

We understand that the Sudbury Contact has suspended diamond drilling operations on its Fairbank Township property after several month's exploration campaign with two diamond drills. We believe the company will await further developments on the adjoining Sudbury Basin property before carrying out further exploration work.

AMITY COPPER.

Amity Copper is reported as driving work as quickly as possible to the 600 foot horizon and results obtained to date indicate a widening of the ore zone at least down to the 500. Several car loads of fairly high grade ore have already been shipped down to the Horne smelter, but it is believed that steps will now be taken towards the erection of a concentrater.

SHERRITT-GORDON.

It is understood that late developments towards the west along the Sherritt-Gordon deposit are disclosing greater ore widths together with an increase in values. Probably the most significant feature of the western zone is that it contains a greater percentage of copper than that disclosed in any other part. This development is probaly the most important in the history of this property as instead of an average grade of approximately $14 a ton, the average may be brought closer to $17 a ton. To the west of these late workings is the Ook claim, and recent diamond drilling here has disclosed very favorable results. A continuous ore length of three miles or more is not impossible.

Big Revenue Increase Shown For Dominion

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 9. — (By the Canadian Press). — The three quarter mark in the present fiscal year finds a considerable increase in the revenue of the Dominion of Canada when comparison is made with the same period a year ago. According to entries which had passed through the books of the Department of Finance up to December 31 last, total ordinary expenditure of the Dominion for the nine months ended December 31st last stood as $345,282,544. For the corresponding nine months of the previous fiscal year, the total was $319,-848,429. Consequently there is an increase of $25,434,115.

While the figures of ordinary expenditure show an increase when the two periods are compared, it is not as large as that of revenue. Ordinary expenditure of the Dominion for the nine months December 31 last, according to the books of the department was $250,920,912. For the same period in 1927-28, ordinary expenditure reached a total of $240,892,756, or $10,028,-156 less than this year.

SUBSTANTIAL GAINS MADE ON STANDARD

Noranda Outstanding Issue, Reaching 66.00 During Early Morning Session.

MARKET FIRMER.

Siscoe Registers Gain of Seven Points While Ajax Oil Advances.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 9 (Canadian Press).—A firmness begun at the opening, continued throughout the morning on the Standard Mining Exchange. Numerous substantial gains were made while very few losses were recorded. Noranda was the outstanding issue and gained 2.25 at 65.00, and during the early session went as high as 66.00.

Siscoe, in active trading reached 99, a gain of 7 points. Ajax Oil gained 4 to 48, Barry-Hollinger 2 to 38, Dome Mines 30 to 9.80, Granada Rouyn 1 to 22, Howey Gold 2 to 1.18, Hollinger 10 to 9.00, Lake Shore 25 to 19.00, Mining Corporation 30 to 4.40, St. Anthony 3 to 60, Sudbury Basin 45 to 8.95, and Wright-Hargreaves 30 to 2.00.

Amulet dropped 9 to 3.45, Bidgood 1 to 47, Crown Reserve 1¼ to 11⅜, Graham 2 to 29, Vipond 3 to 87, while Bathurst, Laval-Quebec, Newbec were unchanged.

Falconbridge gained 30 to 6.75, Abana 1 to 3.51, Big Missouri 3 to 94, Central Manitoba 1 to 67, Hudson Bay 20 to 20.65, while Jackson-Manion went down 1 to 24, and Pend Oreille 30 to 10.75.

Cattle Trade Dull On Toronto Market

TORONTO, Ont., January 9 (Canadian Press). — Cattle trade was very dull on the Toronto Live Stock Exchange, and prices will probably be lower.

Calves were steady at $15.50 to $16.50 for choice.

Hogs were unsettled with prospects at $9.50 to $9.75 f.o.b. for selects or $10.50 to $10.75 off car.

Lambs were a shade easier at $14.00 for the best. Good light sheep sold steady at $7.50 for top.

Cattle receipts, 1,300. Quotations: Heavy beef steers, $10 to $11. Butcher steers, good to choice, $10 to $10.75. Butcher cows, fair to good, $6 to $7.50. Calves, good to choice, $14.50 to $16.50. Hogs, select bacon, $10.50 to $10.75. Sheep, good ewe lambs, $14.00.

NEW YORK MARKET BECOMES FIRMER

Fears of Increase in Federal Reserve Discount Rate Disappears.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 9. —(Canadian Press). — The stock market, which has been on the down grade since the latter part of last week, turned upward to-day in reflection of the more cheerful feeling in Wall Street regarding the credit situation. Fears of an immediate increase in the federal reserve discount rate have practically disappeared, and the call money rate dropped from 7 to 6 per cent. To-day on the arrival of a large supply of out-of-town funds seeking temporary investment.

Business and trade news continued favorable. Copper buying continues good, and there have been some new inquiries for railroad equipment.

Directors of F. W. Woolworth increased the annual dividend from $5 to $6. Archer Daniels Midland directors proposed a 100 per cent. stock dividend, and raised the rate on the present issue. The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey acquired a controlling interest in the Beacon Oil Co., and a shipment of $2,000,000 in gold was received from Canada.

A few soft spots developed in the "weeding out" process of early trading. Case Threshing Machine broke 15 1-4 points, Mathieson Alkali 3 1-4 and Goodyear National Lead and International Telephone dropped back 2 points or more.

Pools re-organized their forces and started another major campaign before mid-day, attracting a fair sized following in the merchandising, motor, public utility, food and amusement groups. Oils also changed hands relatively small.

National Balla Hess was marked up 14 points, Radio (old) 11, Abraham and Straus 10 1-4, National Tea and American Express 7 each and Otis Elevator, Worthington Pump, Curtiss, Sefeway Stores, A. M. Byers, Pierce Arrow preferred, John Manville, Purity Baking and Chalmers sold 5 or more points higher.

INTERNATIONAL NICKEL LEADS TORONTO CURB

A Stronger Tone Prevails, With Prices On Upward Trend.

HIRAM WALKERS STRONG.

Steel of Canada Makes Gain of Three Points in Active Session.

TORONTO, Ont., January 9 (Canadian Press). — A slightly stronger market than yesterday, with prices on an upward trend, marked the morning session of the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. After two days of dullness, International Nickle New came back and commanded the attention of buyers when more than 17,000 shares changed hands while the price gained 2½ points to 56⅛.

Hiram Walker's was strong and gained ½ at 86, although during the morning it went as high as 87¼. Brazilian was active and towards noon slipped to 80, a net loss of ½.

Massey-Harris moved up 3 to 94½ and Lake Superior Corporation 2¼ to 20, Loblaw 2 to 103, Gypsum and Alabastine 2 to 85, General Steel Wares 1¾ to 38¾, and Canadian Industrial Alcohol 1¼ to 41¼.

Steel of Canada, new issue, had a particularly active morning, and shot up to a new high of 66, but by noon had receded to 63½, a net gain of 3. Hayes Wheels gained 2 to 55½, Kelvinator 2 to 10, Abitibi 2 to 44, Canadian Bank of Commerce 2 to 337, and Royal Bank 4 to 394. Building Products dropped 2½ to 41¼, Burt 1 to 86, Canada Bread 2 to 149, City Dairy 2½ to 79½.

British American Oil gained ¾ to 54½, Imperial Oil 1½ to 101½, and Super Petroleum ½ to 38, and Service Station ½ to 67½, Durant Motors ½ to 22, Farmers' Dairy 2½ to 30, Northern Bakeries 1 to 39, and Tamblyn Preferred 1 to 53.

Chicago Corn Prices Reach High Levels

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 9.—(Canadian Press)—Corn prices jumped today to the highest level which deferred deliveries have reached yet this season. Lively buying on the part of commission houses resulted from unfavorable weather curtailing the movement of the corn crop. Opening ⅛-¼ to ½c higher, corn afterwards scored a sharp further advance. Wheat, oats and provisions were also firmer, with wheat starting ⅛ to ¼ to ½c up, and subsequently holding near to the initial range.

LOCAL MAN IS BEING SOUGHT

Wanted in Madoc and Montreal On Charges of False Pretenses.

UP IN SMITH FALLS.

Chief of Police S. Newhall this morning told the story of a local man who, on December 29 or thereabouts, was arrested on a charge of obtaining money by issuing worthless cheques. The following Monday (day before New eYar's) he was taken to Smith's Falls to answer a charge of obtaining one hundred dollars by such false pretenses, and was remanded. Then a relative, of Belleville, stepped in, made restitution in his behalf, the costs of court amounting to $46.50 were paid, and sentence was suspended for two years, with bond accordingly.

The local police also had letters from Madoc and Montreal asking them to locate him for them, as he had obtained large amounts from them by false pretenses.

COLLIERIES SHOW GREAT ACTIVITY

Coal Topped All Minerals in Value in 1928—Production Amounting To 63 Millions.

TORONTO, Jan. 9 (Canadian Press).—Canada's output of minerals reached a new high level in 1928 when the value reported was $271,00,-000, or 10 per cent in excess of the 1927 total, says S. J. Cook, chief of the mining, metallurgy and chemical branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, in the financial review of The Mail and Empire.

Metals at $128,500,000 scored a gain of $15,000,000; coal, petroleum and natural gas were valued at 73,420,000, or more than two millions above the 1927 mark; other non-metals added $17,450,000 and structural materials, such as clay products, cement, lime, stone, sand and gravel, attained a new high level at $51,630,000.

It was a notable year. Following two years of unparalleled progress, the establishment of new production records for a number of different items and attainment of a new record aggregate for the output of the mineral industry, provide much material of interest.

While Canada produces about 70 different metals or mineral products of economic value, 16 of these make up about 98 per cent of the total annual output value shown for the mineral industry. Some fifty products, each interesting in itself, and many having potential commercial value, are at present produced in relatively small amount.

Coal produced from Canadian mines in 1928 to the extent of 17,785,-000 tons, having a value of $63,000,000, was the largest item in the mineral record. Never before has so great a tonnage been reported. Gains were made mostly by Western Canada mines. Nova Scotia and New Brunswick produced a little over 7,000,000 tons, valued at nearly twenty million dollars; this was close of the figures of 1927. Saskatchewan mined nearly 470,000 tons, the total also for 1927, but Alberta produced a record tonnage of more than 7,300,000 tons, against 6,934,162 tons in the preceding year.

British Columbia also mined over 2,820,000 tons, compared with 2,746,-243 tons in 1927. Canada possesses about 16 per cent of the world's resources in coal, but the great distances separating the producing and consuming areas have rendered economical development and marketing somewhat difficult.

After coal in order of production value came gold, copper, nickel, lead, silver, clay products, asbestos, zinc, sand and gravel, natural gas, stone, cement, gypsum, petroleum, cobalt, platinum, and palladium and salt.

Ten of these products and two others as well reached new output values in 1928. No mean achievement this, when one considers that in 1927 new records were set up in a long list of products, and in the aggregate value as well. Canada's mineral industry, third among the primary producing groups in the dominion, is surpassed only by agriculture and forestry in value of output.

Ticker Talk

(Unofficial Opinions on the Markets)

Toronto— Market action of Pend Oreille has been unusually good and from various sources little bits of information are drifting in. I am inclined to think that this situation will develop importantly, in the near future. Stock at present prices looks attractive to me.—Smith.

Toronto—I have been advised that Amulet have cut high grade copper running twenty per cent. in a raise under "c" orebody.—Smith.

Janlary 9th—

Drill hole 300 ft. west number 3 shaft Noranda. Hole vertical, but slight incline to north on 500 ft. level, and has passed through 265 ft. of ore. Indications are that this is an extension of "H" orebody—S. F. Co.

Toronto—Understand that Noranda for the month of December has produced 2,000,000 pounds of copper. They have also run into 250 ft. of high grade ore, 350 ft. west of the shaft, in the direction of the Murray property. The stock looks very attractive at present prices. (63.00).—Anderson.

January 9th—

New York— Resumption of cash dividends on Sinclair Cons Oil Corporation common after a lapse of five years, may be looked for shortly. Payments will be renewed during current quarter. At present outlook appears to favor $3.00 basis, though some directors favor $4.00 basis. Last dividend was in April, 1924, when basis was $8.00 annually.—Goadby & Co.

DICKENS VOLUME SETS NEW RECORD

Believed Million Dollars Will Be Realized By Sale of Kearn's Collection.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 9 (Canadian Press).—The auction of rare books for a total value of $273,952.50 at the Anderson Galleries last night was believed by booksellers to have established a record for a single session of a book sale in this country.

The collection was the property of Jerome Kern, composer, and the greater part of the money was paid for 113 Dickens' items. The three sessions of the Kern sale have brought $615,287 to date and it is believed the remaining seven will send the total far past the million dollar mark set before the auction began.

The highest price, and declared by booksellers to be a new world record, was $28,000 paid by Alwin J. Scheuer for a "perfect" copy of Dickens' "Pickwick Papers" in parts. The Kern copy was bought in 1920 by Gabriel Wells, New York dealer, from the London firm of Henry Sotheran and Co., for $3,500, the value of the book rising 800 per cent in about nine years.

Word-blindness, the inability to learn to read and spell, was originally thought to be due to feeble-mindedness, but now it is suggested that the causes may be traced to defective development in the temporal lobe of the brain.

INDUSTRIAL FILM SHOWN EMPLOYEES

Illustrated Lecture Given On Manufacture of Carborundum Emery Wheels.

The Industrial Film entitled "The Jewels of Industry" which was shown on Tuesday afternoon by Vernon Wells of the Carborundum Company of Niagara Falls, N. Y., in the Lecture Room of the Canadian General Electric Co. employees and apprentices who are likely to have grinding problems while engaged in their work, proved to be an exceptionally practical as well as educational picture.

The film showed the manufacture of grinding wheels in detail and also the many uses to which they are put to in different industries while the lecture and explanation which accompanied each reel traced the history of abrasives from earliest times, when the Egyptians made use of some of the natural abrasive such as sandstone, in shaping their work; up to the year 1891 when the first great step towards the perfecting of grinding materials was taken by Edward Goodrich Acheson, who by using a crude electric furnace in his own private laboratory was able to fuse two elements together forming the first crystals which proved to be so hard as to cut glass and which in almost the same form are known to-day the world over by the trade name Carborundum.

The showing of this film which entails considerable expense to the General Electric Company should give the apprentice who is desirous of learning, a great deal of useful information and is only one of the many ways in which the officials of the local plant are endeavouring to give the workmen a thorough training in their particular line of endeavour.

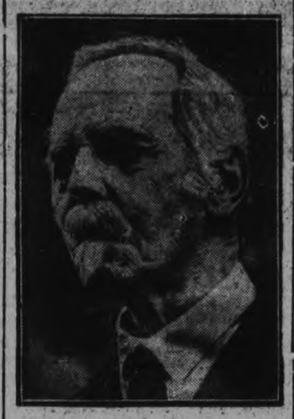
BYRD HONORS MEMORY OF EXPLORER

En route from the United States to Antarctic in an attempt to reach the South Pole by air, Commander Richard E. Byrd stopped over at Christchurch, New Zealand, to lay a wreath upon the memorial erected there to Captain Robert Falcon Scott, the British explorer, who reached the South Pole on January 17, 1912, but who lost his life on the return trip, dying of cold and starvation when within eleven miles of one of his food and supply depots. In the illustration the American leader is seen as he appeared at Christchurch while delivering a eulogy of the Briton's achievement and character. (2) is a picture of the late Captain Scott, while (3) shows Byrd saluting the Scott memorial at Christchurch, after having placed a wreath at its base.

RELATIVE OF LINDBERGH



John H. Land of Hamilton, was a relative of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, for many years a member of the Hamilton assessment department, and a descendant of one of the oldest families of the city. He has just died in his 83rd year.

GIVES PERSONAL NARRATIVE OF ITALIA'S CRASH

Giving at last his personal narrative of the dirigible Italia's flight to the North Pole on May 24 last and of its subsequent crash on the ice, Gen. Umberto Nobile defends his course as commander of the expedition. In telling of his rescue at the hands of Lieut. Einaar Lundborg, Swedish flier, Nobile states that he at first refused to leave the ice floe on which his party was marooned before his comrades; but that Lunborg insisted he must come first in order to direct the search which was being made for other members of the expedition. Picture No. 1 shows Lieut. Lunborg, No. 2 shows four of Nobile's companions photographed on the floe on which they were marooned—from left to right, Prof. Behounek, Guiseppe Biag, radio operator; Commander Alfredo Viglieri and Natale Cecioni; No. 3 is Capt. Roald Amundsen, world famed Norse explorer, who is believed to have lost his life in search ing for Nobile—with whom he flew over the North Pole in May of 1926; Nos. 4, 5 and 7 are, respectively, Rene Guilbaud, Lieut. De Cuverville and M. Vallette, who accompanied Amundsen in his search plane and are believed to have lost their lives with him; No. 6 shows Lieut. Lundborg, left, and Gen. Nobile, photographed immediately after the rescue of the latter. Lunborg is seen holding Nobile's mascot, the dog, Titania, which the Italian explorer is feeding; pictures 1 to 5, inclusive, are copyright by Pacific and Atlantic Photographs, Incorporated.

PRESERVE AS MEMORIAL

Preservation, as a national memorial, of Wolfe's Cove, the spot where the British forces landed before the Plains of Abraham battle, is assured by arrangements made for the acquisition of the property by the National Battlefields Commission, headed by Sir George Garneau, of Quebec. The historic spot is being transformed from a marshy, unkept wilderness to a well-kept portion of the battlefields park.

Not Allowed To Carry Mail.

Above is shown the liner Berengaria, one of the three Cunard Line steamers, from which the United States postal department has diverted its overseas mail. The other ships affected are the Ausonia and the Andania. The action taken is said to be in retaliation for the Cunard's line's competition against American ships on the New York-Havana route.

MILADY'S GOWNS FOR 1929

(1) Here is a smart bathing ensemble for the woman who goes south seeking sunny warm weather. It is of plaid with a silk blouse and accompanying accessories of cap and bag in perfect blend and harmony with the color scheme of the costume. (2) In striking contrast is this unusual winter sports ensemble for the woman who prefers the winter resort at this time of the year. It is a sky blue model in burella cloth and was shown at the winter sports wear exhibition in London, England. (3) Simplicity predominates this interestingly smart sport suit of black and gray which may be worn in any climate. Its accessories harmonizes with it in color.

LONDON SHAKEN BY GAS MAIN BLOW-UP

Over a mile of roadway in West Central London, England blew up last month when a gas main burst. This exclusive photo shows a vivid sheet of flame leaping skyward following the explosion. Photograph is copyright by P. and A. photos. The explosions were earth shaking as if bombs suddenly rained down.

Flames shot 50 feet high at the fire in Toronto recently when three tanks of oil, at the Pennsylvania Oil Co., caught fire and were quickly destroyed. The largest tank, containing 10,000 gallons, was underground. Otherwise the destruction might have been terrible.

TOO REALISTIC.

LONDON, January 9.— Musical comedy was changed to drama at His Majesty's Theatre recently. In the last scene of "Song of the Sea" the "painter" struck the "British Ambassador" so forcibly that the latter fainted. It was found that the blow had landed at the point between the spine and the skull. However, the "ambassador," played by Denis Hoey, was able to resume his part in the next performance.

KNITTING BISHOP.

LONDON, January 9.—The Bishop of Bradford, Dr. Perowne, is an accomplished knitter. He has a pair of mittens he knitted when a schoolboy and which brought him a prize. He also can sew.

It was Von Sybel, German historian and statesman of pre-Franco-German war days, who said: "He who knows the whence will also know the whither."

DOCTOR REMOVES PIN FROM LUNG

When examination revealed that a pin was lodged in the lung of Freddy Shepherd, Hamilton, Ont. the boy was rushed to Philadelphia, where a successful operation was performed by Dr. Chevalier Jackson, famous surgeon. A report that the operation was not successful was denied last night by Mrs. Shepherd, the boy's mother. Dr. Jackson's photo appears on the right. He is also shown in his clinic with a ten-year-old girl brought to him for an operation from London, England. This is the only photograph if its kind ever taken in the clinic.

OFFICIALS OF LABOR CONGRESS PRESENT BUDGET TO GOVERNMENT

Many Suggestions Are Made in the Legislative Program Suggested.

FURTHER RESEARCH.

On Behalf of Organized Workers Delegation Urges Favorable Consideration to Proposals.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 8 (Canadian Press).—Officials of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, headed by the president, Tom Moore, presented the Congress legislative program for 1929 to the Dominion Government to-day for consideration. This program included matter from the International Labor conferences and conventions held in Canada throughout the year. Topics of unemployment and unemployment insurance, tariff protection and immigration.

On behalf of the organized workers in Canada, the delegation urged the favorable consideration of its suggestions "in the furtherance of social and economic justice and industrial peace in Canada."

Research in the old age pensions field before amendments are passed; re-enactment of the technical education act of 1919; fair wage matters; curtailment of the veto power of the Senate; amendments to Militia and Canada Shipping Acts; prison reform, all these, and other suggestions were added to the memorandum from conferences and conventions and placed before the government by the delegates.

While British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Manitoba had adopted the Federal-Provincial old age pensions measure and much practical knowledge had been gained in this respect, wider application of the act in other provinces and still more experience as to costs of administration and other details were necessary, the delegation urged, to make amendments advantageous and reforms in this direction satisfactory. No changes were sought at the present time, but the administration of the act on the most generous terms was urged.

Re-enact Act

The Technical Education Act of 1919 which expires March 31, 1929, was asked re-enacted for, the delegation stated, without federal grants, activities along these lines in the various provinces would be largely restricted. Technical education was an essential part of apprentice training, it was pointed out, and laid the foundation of industrial efficiency which reflected itself in Dominion revenues.

Curtailment of the powers of the Senate to make it responsive to public opinion and establish the supremacy of the elective chamber, the House of Commons, in all legislative matters, was requested.

Changes in the British North America Act to foster national unity by giving power to the Federal government to deal with all matters covered in commendations and conventions of the International Labor conferences (League of Nations); abolish appeals to the Privy Council; bring about such changes in the constitution as will make the decisions of the elected representatives of the people paramount, were urged by the delegation.

The bill proposing the repeal of the sections of the Criminal Code respecting sedition, freedom of speech, assembly, etc., which was rejected for the sixth time by the Senate after passing the last session of Parliament, had the full support of the delegation.

Enactment of clauses defining and legalizing peaceful picketing, originally contained in the Consolidated Statutes of Canada, 1886, were requested.

Removal of the necessity of a member of the legislature being re-elected on appointment to cabinet office, was asked. Other changes were urged in the Election Act regarding the appointment of returning officers and their assistants, the introduction of proportional representation in group constituencies and the use of the transferable vote in single member constituencies and for a compulsory half-holiday with pay on federal election days. Repeals of clauses which prohibit voluntary contributions towards election campaign from trade unions or other groups unless politically incorporated, and prohibition of non-residents from participating in election campaigns were requested.

BIG CROWDS ATTEND DUTCH ART EXHIBIT

More Tickets Have Already Been Sold Than During Flemish Exhibition.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—(Canadian Press Cable).—If anyone imagines that the movies and the half-hundred other modern diversions have destroyed the popular taste for real art, they can take courage from the attention given the Dutch exhibition.

More season tickets have been sold already than were sold for the whole period of the Flemish exhibition, two years ago. It is believed likely that the exhibition may inspire an influence upon fashion in many directions. One learned professor complains that the presence of ladies at the exhibition, attired as red, dulls the color scheme of many masterpieces, although he does not explain why his attention comes to wander from the pictures.

If the ladies are to be required to array themselves in harmony with a picture exhibition, asks one critic of this professor, what are they to wear when attending a modern impressionistic art exhibition. It should be said at once, however, that there is nothing of a fashion parade in the crowds thronging the Dutch exhibition. It is evident that the folk come for the pictures alone. A wide demand has already been voiced for opening the exhibition on Sunday.

CANADA WILL REFUSE TO STOP LIQUOR EXPORT

be the conclusions that you may reach in regard to our proposals."

Important legislative and administrative actions already taken by Canada to curtail materially the liquor traffic were elaborated by the Canadian delegations in the presentation of the views of the Dominion. These steps taken since the anti-smuggling treaty of 1924 came into operation Canada's representatives declared had combatted the operations of liquor smuggling.

In 1927, the Canadian representatives proceeded, an amendment had been passed to the Customs Act which had decreased the difficulties of the United States authorities in combatting the operations of liquor smuggling by sea in the North Atlantic by extending restrictions on certain vessels calling at Nova Scotia and other Canadian ports. This amendment had extended the requirements as to supplying bonds for foreign landing certificates to cover cargoes of liquors laden vessels coming into Canadian ports for provisions, shelter or repairs and afterwards proceeding to sea.

Privileges Withdrawn.

In 1928, there had been a withdrawal by Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of National Revenue, of privileges granted to certain Customs bonded warehouses, with the consequence that no further importation of liquors for such warehouses can take place and the stocks in warehouses at the date of withdrawal of the privilege must be cleared by June 11 1930.

Again, at the last session of Parliament, legislation known as the importation of intoxicating liquors act had been enacted, permitting the import of liquor by Provincial Governments only.

Only recently, an agreement had been made between the Department of National Revenue and the Ontario Liquor Board for the reduction of the number of docks of places on the border between Lake Huron and Lake Erie from which vessels may be cleared. A reduction in the number of liquor export docks in the Windsor area had already been effected. Furthermore, representatives of the Dominion stated, there had been a reorganization of the Canadian preventive service and the number and efficiency of the land border control materially increased.

STATESMEN WILL GIVE ADDRESSES

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson and Sir Josehp Flavelle Will Speak at Luncheon.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 9 (Canadian Press).—The Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Prime Minister of Ontario, and Sir Joseph Flavelle, chairman of the Ontario Research Foundation, will deliver addresses at a luncheon preceding the meeting of the executive council of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, at Hamilton, on January 16. Plans of the government and the foundation for applying industrial and scientific research to the manufacturing industries of the province will be outlined in their addresses. It is expected that members of the executive council from the majority of the provinces will attend the meeting.

CENTURIAN DIES AT PORT DOVER

Only Son of Deceased is a Resident of Town of Port Hope.

SIMCOE, Ont., Jan. 9 (Canadian Press)—Mrs. Thomas Bayly, aged 101, died at her home in Port Dover yesterday. Until recently she had been in good health, but the inclement weather of recent weeks took a heavy toll on her which she could not withstand.

On July 12 last, Mrs. Bayly celebrated her 100th birthday. She was born in Stewarttown, Ontario, in 1828. She has been living in Port Dover for the past 36 years. She is survived by one son, T. W. Smith, of Port Hope.

ASSOCIATION IS ORGANIZED

Ministers From District Attend Organization Meeting Held at Campbellford.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

WARKWORTH, Jan. 8.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence)—Some time ago, the town of Campbellford and vicinity was able to boast of a ministerial association. But for several years, the association has ceased to function. Yesterday morning several ministers from Campbellford met at the United Church parsonage in Warkworth and a new association was formed which will include the two towns and much of the surrounding district. All the clergymen of the district were invited to attend to meeting but several were unable to be present. The Rev. Mr. Howard and Mrs. Howard entertained the visiting clergymen at dinner at the parsonage.

"Reality in Worship," a work by Sperry, was the subject of the discussion at the meeting yesterday. The book was synopsised by the Rev. D. R. Clare of Norham. An interesting discussion followed. The officers for the present year were elected and the dates for future meetings decided upon. The Rev. D. R. Clare will be the president for 1929, with the Rev. I. M. Emith as vice-president. The Rev. F. G. MacTavish was appointed secretary-treasurer. The day set for future meetings was the first Monday in each month at ten-thirty in the morning. The nea meeting will be held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Campbellford. The Rev. W. J. Mark will address the meeting and the discussion will be led by the Rev. L. M. Smith. Before the close of the meeting yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Howard were tendered the appreciation of the clergymen for the hospital which had been shown them, by motion of the Rev. W. J. Mark and the Rev. G. R. Duncan.

The ministers who were present at the meeting were, Rev. D. R. Clarke Norham United Church; Rev. Howard Warkworth United Church; Rev. G. R. Duncan, Warkworth Presbyterian church; Rev. L. M. Smith, Campbellford Baptist Church; Captain Purdy of the Salvation Army Campbellford; Rev. W. J. Mark, Campbellford Presbyterian Church and Rev. F. G. MacTavish, Seymour United Church. It is expected that there will be a larger attendance at the February meeting.

Codrington

CODRINGTON, Jan. 8—Mr. Howard Ames, of Detroit, spent the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Ames.

UNEMPLOYED PICKET TOWN

Organized Patrol Are Established On All Leading Roads To Dagenham.

TO PREVENT WELSH MINERS.

LONDON January 9. (Canadian Press Cable).—Newspaper readers in Britain were stirred yesterday at a report from Dagenham, Essex, that a body of unemployed of the town was picketing the district to prevent the entry of expected Welsh miners in view of the anticipated erection of a new motor car factory. Dagenham has many hundreds of unemployed and when the story got around that a large number of unemployed Welsh miners were to be brought there a movement started among ex-service men, also unemployed, to intercept such "invaders."

Organized patrols were established on every roadway with Dagenham men keeping watch day and night in pitifully thin clothing. Some sympathizers provided the "guards" with tea and sandwiches to lighten their vigil.

The Dagenham unemployed refute any suggestion they are hostile to miners, but declare they must protect themselves. The threatened invasion seems to be without foundation however, for nobody appears to have any knowledge of a proposal to import unemployed miners to the town.

Man Shovels Snow From Lawn On To Walk

A citizen who desired his walk shovelled off after last night's heavy snow fall arranged for a man who had been in Canada for thirty one years and thought that he knew all about shovelling snow He took him out to his house and left him there to shovel the snow as ordered.

After he was through he sent his car out for the man again and he found that the snow shoveller had shovelled all the snow off the lawn and left it on the walk.

WATER LEVELS HIGH DURING DECEMBER

Weather Allows Unrestricted Run Off From Drainage Areas Into Great Lakes.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 9.—(Canadian Press).—During December the water levels of the Great Lakes held well up to the average levels for November. Department of Marine officials state that the maintenance of the November levels into December was due to mild weather allowing unrestricted run off from the drainage areas. The low stage of level for Montreal harbour was due to open water in the St. Lawrence River, between Montreal and Quebec city, for the whole month. Usually an ice cover forms early in December, causing backwater which generally raises the water level at Montreal as compared to November stages. Lake Huron is 1.72 feet higher than it was a year ago.

Statistics of the monthly bulletin for December, being issued to-day by the precise water level division, Canadian Hydrographic Service, Department of Marine, will show;

Lake Superior mean level for december 0.39 feet lower than November; 0.67 feet higher than December 1927; and 0.33 feet lower than the average of December since 1860.

Lake Ontario mean level for December 0.16 feet higher than November; 0.14 feet higher than December 1927; and 0.33 feet higher than the average level of December since 1860.

Natural-colored pongee is used for the tuck-in blouse worn with skirt of dark blue background with beige and brown figures and a belt and tie of the same figured silk.

Neckties of various sorts have come back into favor. There are long narrow scarfs that are tied in bows under one ear or under the chin—and only a little smaller are some of the actual ties that are tied at the front of the blouse. Some sort of tie is considered smart with the two-piece tailored suit for spring, which means that we may not see quite so many light-weight sweaters, round necked and worn with a choker of pearls or silver or gold. With the necktie of any sort no sort of choker or necklace is appropriate.

The revival of interest in neckties comes from Paris where a number of the best known dressmakers always favor a blouse of this sort with the trim little two-piece costume. Suzanne Talbot, I understand, is stressing the short jacket and pleated skirt for morning wear and invariably associates a blouse with boyish collar and tie with a suit of this sort.

Now we really know that the sleeveless blouse is to be revived. In fact, it has been revived for resort wear and has been taken up with such a fair amount of enthusiasm by women going South that it is safe to say that it is to be one of the fashions for the coming spring and summer. There are little sleeves that end halfway between elbow and shoulder.

It is the convenient little separate jacket which accompanies almost every frock nowadays that is really responsible for the revival of the sleeveless frock. These little jackets are of linen or pique when worn with cotton or linen frocks. With silk frocks they are of silk and almost always they are conveniently unlined.

Interesting—isn't it—the revived interest in chartreuse and other green yellows? Even mustard has been mentioned among the new colors. Chartreuse is combined with yellow and lemon yellow is used with deep yellow, while yellow is used with orange.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion, at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

I'm hoping you won't have any of these 'off' days you mention. Judging by the little verse you are one who always looks on the bright side of things.

Enclosed find my New Year Resolutions. This is all I have time to write now and as there is nothing in it to interest the neighbors I won't expect to see it in print. I know you are short of space sometimes and some of the letters are so long and interesting. I think I would rather you judged the Resolutions, Marion.

Best wishes,
City. Oriole."

• • •

Thank you, "Oriole" for the nice things you think of me. I TRY to look on the bright side of things, and most certainly DO NOT go looking for trouble. It's a big advantage in life—living is so much more agreeable.

"Dear Marion:

I must confess I neglected reading your pages in the paper just recently and now they draw me like a magic. I thoroughly enjoy every column and find splendid ideas along with the humorous letters that are written. I notice some of the women give the man some hard drives but surely they do not mean it. I think it is a fifty-fifty game. As the old rhyme says men are geese, women are ducks and birds of a feather flock together.

I hope you received my New Year Resolutions and has it entered in the contest and may I have the privilege of writing again. I'm sure Marion you are kept very busy but will expect to hear from you sometime.

Yours sincerely,
Jay Jay."

Yes, "Jay Jay," your resolution has been entered in the competition. I'm glad our pages prove attractive to you, and hope you continue to enjoy them.

• • •

"Dear Marion:

Perhaps this is not for your department, perhaps it is no use at all, but there was an article in The Examiner a few weeks ago about the supposed effect of the moon. I did not keep the paper, and have a mighty good forgettery, and am not pretending to answer the article, would not dare.

However, I usually see things about as they happen, and when caring for my first mental case for several months, I noticed she was worse every few weeks. then about every four weeks and then realized it was when the moon was full. She was a very old lady. I did not presume to voice my wonder to her own doctor, to the specialist, or even the other nurse. I was only a recent graduate. Later I had another old lady for many months, and in the same condition. I noticed the same thing. This time I laughingly told the doctor, a man who had had wide experience. His reply was "It is often thus, perhaps the ancients were wiser in their day than we."

Again I have often noticed there is much more trouble with hysterical people, about the time the moon is full, and for myself, I sleep very badly then, always, and I can always go to sleep better if there is a light,—turning out the light always wakens me. Drawing down the blind makes no difference; continued cloudy weather does, but if the moon is bright, there seems to be a different feel or something I cannot define, to the air. I have watched, because I have so often been where people consult the phases of the moon for killing, sowing, and other things, but I do not see any difference.

Perhaps the ancients noticed the same thing when they named some mentally deranged people lunatics. I do not think the moon, per se, affects them, what I do think is that the condition of the atmosphere caused by the moonlight, does, just the same as a bright day generally heartens a patient, or anyone, and a dull day depresses.

These are just things I noticed and learned to provide for.

Sincerely yours,
Quid Est."

• • •

Thank you "Quid Est," for your interesting letter, which I'm sure the neighbors will like.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

There has been a lot written in the newspaper recently about men's organizations which are now ending their official years, and I just wish to draw the neighbors' attention to the work of women's associations.

• • • • • •

Probably such organizations as women's auxiliaries and clubs give women their greatest opportunity of expansion, and for that reason they are to be commended.

• • • • • •

It certainly does not do a woman, however home-loving she may be, any harm to get out and enter these activities.

• • • • • •

And it is not true, as one correspondent wrote this week, that when women get together they only gossip and criticize men. I am not publishing this letter, by the way, because it is only a scurrilous attack upon women, and has nothing intelligent or worthwhile in it.

• • • • • •

This statement of mine is supported by evidence in last night's Examiner—the report of the annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion. This report shows the meeting to have been conducted as well as any men's meeting of which I have read an account.

• • • • • •

There were only two men present, and they took no part in the meeting except to speak when called upon. The meeting was conducted in a most business-like way, by the women who compose the auxiliary.

• • • • • •

And what an amount of work the reports show these women to have accomplished in the year! Homes have been made comfortable, the needy have been supplied with food, HOPE itself has been given to many, through the quiet and effective work of the Legion Auxiliary.

• • • • • •

That is decidedly worth while, and the results of their efforts reflect great credit on Mrs. Mills and every other member of the branch.

• • • • • •

The Canadian Legion may go forward to do great deeds, but behind the legion is this organization of earnest women—and I just know that the men must appreciate their work to the full.

• • • • • •

Then, how about the Women's Institute branches throughout this district, with their great work for the communities in which they exist?

• • • • • •

They have sewing meetings and classes; and business meetings, which the women themselves conduct in a manner that could not be excelled by any men. Men get together and discuss ways of doing things—these women women talk over the ways and means—and then get busy and DO.

• • • • • •

The men, of course, accomplish very creditably what they set out to do, and I am not trying to disparage at all their deeds.

• • • • • •

I am only trying to point out that women do equally well what THEY set out to do, and are equally capable of conducting meetings and managing organizations—without the gossip and grumbles which are imputed to them too often.

• • • • • •

Look at the motto of the Women's Institute—"For Home and Country." There is nothing insular or petty about that, is there? These women are energetically seeking ways to improve their homes, and they are foremost in the ranks of those who endeavour to better the country for the benefit of all.

• • • • • •

How well they are succeeding? Recipes are exchanged; ideas are passed around; scientific methods of home-making are told by experts; needy families are cared for; schools are looked after and equipped; in fact, there is nothing touching the lives of any in the community which does not come under the beautifying or improving skill of these women.

• • • • • •

So, neighbors, I believe that these organizations—and all the others in which women are finding their spheres—are worth joining and supporting. You will broaden out, and gain knowledge, and prepare for better home life, and perhaps for greater civic endeavour through your contact with them.

• • • • • •

As Dr. Sutton closed his remarks at the legion meeting on Monday night according to the report, "More power to the Ladies' Auxiliary," so I say, "More power to every women's organization in Peterborough district. May they go forward this year to new heights of endeavour, and when the story of the year is written, may it be one of achievement for the organizations and expansion for every woman member."

• • • • • •

It has been suggested to me that an outline of meeting procedure might help some of these clubs, and so I will devote a Whatnot to telling you neighbors something of rules of order. I have attended men's meetings in my time where these could have been read with advantage.

Red Roses

By JANE OSBORN

When Nancy Clair entered her little apartment that afternoon after the day's work was done she saw two impressive-looking packages lying on the day bed where the janitress had put them when they came earlier in the day.

Nancy opened the long box and found red roses. She counted two dozen of them and buried her face in their fragrance with a sigh of sweet content. Then she hurriedly opened the other package very neatly wrapped and tied. There were three darkly bound books and a number of pamphlets and circulars. "Studies in Family Budgets" was the name of one of the books. And another was a large volume on dietetics. One of the thicker pamphlets explained the intricacies of household account keeping. There were advertisements of vacuum cleaners, electric washers and electric refrigerators and a book called Successful Marriage or something of the sort.

Henry had told Nancy that he had some such collection of books and pamphlets the night before after he had proposed and she had told him that she would be his wife. Nancy assured herself that she really was glad that Henry was taking such a practical attitude toward their coming marriage, but her face was flushed with mingled embarrassment and disappointment at the sight of these books and pamphlets sent so promptly after the plighting of their troth. "I may not have an unusually large salary," he had told her, "but I have studied the marriage proposition pretty well and I know I can make any girl happy. Most first quarrels are due to money matters. Well, we can't possibly have any trouble there, because I'll give you a certain amount to spend on everything and all you have to do is to follow the schedule."

When Nancy's glance wandered from the books to the red roses she was happy. They convinced her that though Henry had shown none of the gratitude and joy that she had expected when she accepted his proposal, after all he had felt it, and he had sent these lovely red roses to her to tell her what he hadn't dared to say.

Casually she opened the envelope that was pinned to the ribbon tied round the flowers. Hurriedly she read:

"Dear Nancy:

Henry told me the glad tidings and I'm sure he won't object to my sending you flowers now that the game is up. Here's good luck to both and don't forget your old friend, Graham Otis."

Nancy's eyes brimmed with tears. So Henry had spared no time in telling Graham and yet the night before when Henry had explained his attitude regarding engagement rings they had agreed that no announcement should be made of the engagement until shortly before their marriage. Henry had actually convinced Nancy that the money that might have been spent for the ring had better be added to his savings account. Nancy lifted the books and pamphlets in their wrapping paper and none too gently shoved them under the day bed. She put the flowers in water and sat feasting her eyes upon them. Then her telephone rang and Nancy lifted the receiver eagerly to her ear from the table.

"This is Graham Otis, Nancy," came the voice. "I'm in a bit of a quandary, Nancy, and I think maybe you can help me out. Could you meet me somewhere so we could have a bit of a talk?"

Nancy's heart was beating disturbingly fast. The very tone of his voice over the telephone seemed to thrill her. "We can talk best here in my little apartment," she told him. "I know I never asked you to come here before—but things are a little different now."

Then before a half hour had passed Graham was sitting easily at Nancy's side.

"Nancy, my dear," he said, "I wouldn't for the world do anything to spoil your happiness. I swear to you that when I sent those roses I had no idea of talking to you as I am going to talk now. Henry telephoned me this morning to tell me that you and he were engaged. We chanced to meet each other at luncheon time and I took him to my club. Henry talked about his plans. Nancy, I don't want to be a cad but I could have knocked him down for some of the things he said. He boasted of his financial plans. His idea is to make you think his income is precisely half what it really is. That will give him a chance to pay alimony without troubling you about it—and will leave quite a little for himself besides."

Nancy looked at Graham blankly at first and then with a note of understanding.

"I didn't know that Henry had been married before," she said at length.

"From what he said I gathered that you didn't. I'd have no right to press my suit after he'd got your promise, only he's treated you unfairly. I'd feel a blackguard all my life if I hadn't told you and you had been unhappy—"

"I knew when I saw the roses," said Nancy, "that I had never really loved Henry."

"Then, Nancy dear, will you give me a chance to get you to love me instead? I've precious little to offer—but anyway I want you to know."

And Nancy knew then what the real message of the roses had been.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Few of us have ideal cupboard arrangement for dishes. We have to accept pantries and shelves where we find them and make the best of them. Sometimes we have to use space in the dining-room china closet and sometimes the only place to keep the dishes is in the kitchen.

If you happen to have place for dishes in the kitchen and in the dining room and butler's pantry an excellent plan is to keep the dishes where you will be able to get them most conveniently when they are needed. I have recently rearranged the dishes in my own house—and you have no idea what a lot of time has been saved in setting the table and putting dishes away. Butter plates, tea cups, dessert dishes, and tumblers are all in the dining room where they can be got quickly when it is time to set the table. Dinner plates and meat and vegetable serving dishes are all in the kitchen.

The plates have to be warmed slightly in the kitchen before they can be used, and, of course, meats and vegetables must be served up in the kitchen. The refrigerator is in the pantry and we always find it most convenient to arrange salads there where it is cooler than in the kitchen, so the salad plates are kept in the pantry. Of course, it looks attractive to see all the dishes of a sort arranged together, but when time comes to prepare a meal it is a great convenience to find the dishes just where you want them.

If you can make good gingerbread you are in luck because there are so many ways to ring the changes on gingerbread. Chocolate gingerbread is made by adding just a little melted chocolate to the gingerbread batter—from one to two squares for the average recipe will answer. Bake in the usual way and finish with dark chocolate icing.

A delicious pudding may be made by adding huckleberries to gingerbread batter and when baked serving with whipped cream. Plain gingerbread served with ice cream makes a good dessert, too.

A good dessert can be made by stewing some apples in a little sugar and water. When the apples are nearly done, take from the syrup and place on the bottom of a buttered cake tin. The apple should be in eighths and should be placed evenly on the tin. Then pour over the gingerbread batter and bake as usual. My, but that's good!

WHAT IS CORRECT?

Is it correct to place butter spreaders across the bread and butter plate or along with the other knives?

Across the bread and butter plates.

After the first course of a meal is over which should be removed first, the plates of each person or the food such as meat, vegetables, etc.?

The meat platter, vegetables, etc.

When sending a card to anyone who is not intimate enough to call you by your Christian name, is it correct to put from "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith?"

This is correct; but this year a great many cards were noticed with merely "The Smiths" written on them. I think the majority of cards I received from married people, intimates and acquaintances (except of course printed names which are always formal) were written this way.

DAILY READING

A FEW MINUTES A DAY WITH THE BEST OF THE WORLD'S AUTHORS CONDUCTED BY THE NEIGHBORS AND MARION

JANUARY 9, 1929

This translation of Greek wit and satire, by Lord Neaves, Senator of the College of Justice, Scotland, should prove interesting and amusing to neighbors. I have chosen from the anthology items referring to women.—M.

It would not have been conformable either to human nature in general, or to Greek nature in particular, if the country and the literature that produced Aristophanes should not in its less serious compositions have given some place for wit and sarcasm. We find, accordingly, that these elements are not wanting. A great many epigrams both of a jocular and of a satirical kind are well deserving of notice, of which specimens shall now be given.

Nowhere, perhaps, are the proper object of ridicule better set forth than in the Introduction to one of Foote's farces. He refuses to bring on the stage mere bodily defects or natural misfortunes; and when asked to say at what things we may laugh with propriety, answers thus: "At an old beau, a superannuated beauty, a military coward, a stuttering orator, or a gouty dancer. In short, whoever affects to be what he is not, or strives to be what he cannot, is an object worthy the poet's pen and your mirth.'

We do not say that the Greek epigrammatist always abstained from making merry at mere bodily defects; but we shall avoid as much as possible those that have no other recommendation. The proper subject of ridicule is surely Folly, and the proper object of satire, Vice.

Compliments to the fair sex are often paid by the epigrammatists in a manner at once witty and graceful.

We have seen how Sappho was described as the tenth Muse; but this epigram by an unknown author goes further. The translation is old and anonymous, though borrowed apparently from one by Swift, on which it has improved. It ha been slightly altered:

The world must now two Venuses adore;
Ten are the Muses, and the Graces four.
Such Dora's wit, so fair her form and face,
She's a new Muse, a Venus, and a Grace.

We find an adaptation of this to an accomplished Cornish lady, in an old magazine:—

Now the Graces are four and the Venuses two,
And ten is the number of Muses;
For a Muse and a Grace and a Venus are you,
My dear little Molly Trefusis.

Finally, we have another edition of this idea with a bit of satire at the end, which has been maliciously added by the translator:—

Of Graces four, of Muses ten,
Of Venuses now two are seen;
Doris shines forth to dazzled men,
A Grace, a Muse, and Beauty's Queen;—
But let me whisper one thing more;
The Furies now are likewise four.

The faults and foibles of women, springing often so naturally from their innate wish to please, have not escaped such of the epigrammatists as were inclined to satire, and some of them are bitter enough. The first we give must have been occasioned by some irritating disappointment, or have sprung from an unworthy opinion of the sex. It is by our friend Palladas:—

All wives are plagues; yet two blest times have they,—
Their bridal first, and then their burial day.

The others we give are less sweeping, and more directed against individual failings, particularly the desire to appear more beautiful or more youthful than the facts warranted. This is by Lucilius:—

Chloe, those locks of raven hair,—
Some people say you dye them black;
But that's a libel, I can swear,
For I know where you buy them black.

Our next deals with a very systematic dyer and getter-up of artificial juvenility, who seems to have been her own Madame Rachel. The Greek is Lucian's, and the translation by Merivale. There is also one by Cowper, which will be found among his words:—

Yes, you may dye your hair, but not your age,
Nor smooth, alas! the wrinkles of your face:
Yes, you may varnish o'er the telltale page,
And wear a mask for every vanished grace.
But there's an end. No Hecuba, by aid
Of rouge and ceruse, is a Helen made."

The inactive habits of most of the Greek women are thought to have created a temptation to the use of these artificial modes of heightening of complexion, which would have been better effected by the natural pigments laid on by fresh air and exercise.

This is by Nicarchus, upon an old woman wishing to be married at rather an advanced period of life:—

Niconoe has doubtless reached her prime:
Yes, for she did so in Deucalion's time.
We don't know as to that, but think her doom
Less fitted for a husband than a tomb.

This also is upon an old, or at least a plain woman, by Lucilius:—

Gelia, your mirror's false; you could not bear,
If it were true, to see your image there.

On a Woman Scornful in Youth Playing the Coquette When Old.

(By Rufinus.)

You now salute me graciously, when gone
Your beauty's power, that once like marble shone;
You now look sweet, though forced to hide away
Those locks that o'er your proud neck used to stray.
Vain are your arts: your faded charms I scorn;
The rose now past, I care not for the thorn.

Upon a Lady's Coy, Reluctant, "Unamorous" Delay.

(By Rufinus.)

How long, hard Prodice, am I to kneel,
And pray and whine, to move that breast of steel?
You e'en are getting gray, as much as I am;
We soon shall be—just Hecuba and Priam.

Love is sometimes treated of in a vein of pleasantry, very different from the deep and impassioned tone in which it is exhibited in more serious compositions. Take some examples:—

Is a Black Woman One of the Fair Sex?

(By Meleager.)

By Didyma's beauty I'm carried away,
I melt, when I see it, like wax before fire:
She is black, it is true: so are coals, but even they,
When they're warmed, a bright glow like the rose cup acquire.

This is by Archias, Cicero's friend and client, written perhaps to illustrate some piece of art:—

What! fly from Love? vain hope: there's no retreat,
When he has wings and I have only feet.

This is by Crates, translated by Sayers, Southey's friend:—

Cures for Love.

Hunger, perhaps, may cure your love
Or time your passion greatly alter:
If both should unsuccessful prove,
I strongly recommend a halter.

Venus and the Muses.

(By some said to be Plato's.)

To the Muses said Venus: "Maids, mind what you do;
Honor me, or I'll set my boy Cupid on you."
Then to Venus the Muses: "To Mars chatter thus:
Your urchin ne'er ventures to fly upon us."

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

CALMING A VIOLENT PATIENT.

A man, over six feet tall and powerfully built, was brought to a mental hospital tied hand and foot.

He showed every evidence of a struggle, and the four young men who brought him felt very much relieved when he was handed over to the care of the institution. They were pretty well battered up themselves.

The superintendent told the young men that they could see the patient in a few days and that he would be able to return to his home in a short time, that is within the time sufficient to build him up physically.

In three days the young men returned and saw this powerful and hitherto violent man walk quietly into the room accompanied by a nurse about five feet in height.

The superintendent advised the young men that in future they were not to irritate the patient, and to be kind but firm in their everyday contact with him and they were not likely to have further trouble with him.

What had the superintendent done to accomplish this apparent miracle? Simply long continuous baths of three hours each, every day.

Now, what is the effect of heat upon the nervous system? Dr. J. H. Kellogg tells us that very short hot applications excite the brain, nerves, and nerve-centres through impressions made on the skin, whereas prolonged general hot applications give rise to exhaustion of brain and spinal cord. Warm and hot applications lessen general nervous sensibility to a remarkable degree.

This will explain why there seem to be a few individuals to whom the hot bath at night acts as a stimulant and they find themselves unable to sleep; they are very bright and alert after the bath.

So, if you have not found that the hot bath at night helps you to get off to sleep, try remaining in the bath a little longer, and that feeling of languor and tiredness will likely stea over you.

Remember, then, that after a strenuous day of mental or physical effort, instead of using a quieting drug, try the "prolonged hot bath."

FOOTBALL RUGS

Colorful, wooly, steamer rugs are appearing in new guise. They are really big bags into which one can put his feet and legs and make sure of being warm at the football game.

POPULAR SQUARES

Colorful square kerchiefs of chiffon or fine silk are now being sold for evening gowns as much as sports wear.

PULLMAN SLIPPERS

New folding pullman slippers that fit into a matching case are made of pastel colored kid, in ten colors combined in modernistic geometric design.

TIME TO SEE BETTER.

A NEWSPAPER--AND MORE

The Examiner is more than merely a purveyor of news. It is true that its principal function is that of distributing current news, but to this it has added other graces, touching the more intimate life of every reader. The following are some of its services:—

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

The Women's Pages of The Examiner are designed to be real helps. Nearly all the articles appearing on them are local in nature—many are written and suggested by Peterborough district readers.

A daily column which is conducted by "Marion" is full of ideas that will help every woman.

Daily, too, there are letters from readers giving hints, asking advice, or telling experiences. It is a real meeting place for real neighbors.

Mary Marshall contributes a daily illustrated article on dress.

Every day there is given a "Favorite Recipe" or two, contributed by Examiner readers.

"Neighborly Helps" is a column where readers answer requests for help giving recipes asked for, and other hints.

Every Saturday there is a double column of Women's Institute news; an article on marketing; an article on entertaining, and a "Song of Love," dainty verse usually contributed by readers.

FREE HELPS

Every week there is offered a diagram-pattern of some up-to-the-minute garment that can be easily made by the home dressmaker.

Advice on matters of etiquette, weddings, and suchlike is gladly given by Marion, either through the columns of the paper or privately by letter.

JUST TWO EXAMPLES OF THE SERVICE

A city lady, bedridden and not expected to live the day out, took a fancy to a certain prepared food described in the Women's Page. A relative telephoned The Examiner, and Marion, who had forgotten in what store she saw the new food, searched until she found it. An Examiner car then made a special trip to carry the tin to the inquirer.

A young lady wrote to Marion asking advice about a farm house wedding. Such questions as what to serve, how to serve, payment of expenses, what presents to give, and many more, were asked. Marion's reply covered five typewritten sheets, explaining the procedure from sending out the invitations until the departure of the honeymoon couple.

THIS SERVICE IS FREE TO ANYONE

Lyrics of Life

A daily poem under the heading, "Lyrics of Life," is written by Douglas Malloch, author of several books of poetry.

Malloch s poems deal with everyday people and everyday life, and touch the heartstrings

IF IT WILL HELP PETERBOROUGH AND DISTRICT THE EXAMINER IS FOR IT

Politics

The Examiner is positively independent in politics.

In the news columns every political party is given equal privileges and unequal prominence is given to none.

In the editorial columns political articles are handled impartially. Criticism and praise are given fairly when deserved, from the viewpoint of serving the best interests of all the people.

Health Advice

Every day there appears an article on health by the Canadian authority, Dr. V. Barton. Dr. Barton is not a faddist. He gives, in his easy-to-read articles, the widely held opinions of medical men, and it is safe to say his column is of great help to many thousands.

The articles are authentic and reliable, and their origin in Canada makes them doubly valuable.

NEWS

The Examiner receives news from all of Canada by Canadian Press telegraph service, direct to The Examiner office by the latest telegraph device, the Creed printer, and through it the Associated Press news service of United States and world-wide events.

* * * *

The Examiner has its own reportorial representatives in Toronto and Montreal, sending news of these centres every day and watching constantly for news of particular interest to Peterborough district.

* * * *

The Examiner has a staff correspondent at Campbellford, whose sole business it is to gather news of that section.

* * *

The Examiner has more than fifty paid correspondents in the district immediately served by this newspaper. This list includes highly experienced news-gatherers in Lakefield, Millbrook, Marmora, Hastings, Havelock, Omemee, Norwood, Stirling—all news centres for wide territories.

* * * *

The Examiner has reportorial representatives in Buffalo, Kingston, Oshawa and Lindsay.

* * * *

The Examiner has special services on mining and general stock market news; a special news picture service of Canadian and general interest; and daily stock quotation figures from the tapes of Peterborough brokerage houses.

* * * *

The Examiner prints every day reports of prices on grain, live stock, produce and retail items, such as vegetables, meats and fruits, at Toronto, Montreal, Chicago, Winnipeg and Peterborough.

Every Monday is printed a list of the retail prices in every village buying centre around Peterborough, enabling housewives to check the prices she is paying against those charged elsewhere.

In short The Examiner is a complete NEWSpaper, with all these other things added to make it a HOMEpaper.

ASTROLOGICAL HOROSCOPE

One of the most-read features is the daily Horoscope, with its slogan, "The stars incline, but do not compel."

Whether one believes in astrology or not, this daily article will be found intensely interesting.

OUTSTANDING SERIAL

There appears every day a long instalment of an interesting serial by an outstanding author. Ruby M. Ayres is now one of The Examiner's writers, her latest serial being, "The Luckiest Lady."

Question Box

In the Question Box every day The Examiner answers questions on subjects of local or general interest submitted by readers. This is a valuable service which is well used.

Boarding House

The big cartoon, "Our Boarding House," which appears every day, has a big following. Thousands turn first to this pictured chronicle of the mishaps and triumphs of the famous Major Hoople.

Village News

Every week F.D.C. contributes a column of humor at the expense of local personages. This is a scintillating feature that few care to miss reading.

God's Minute

Every day there is printed a little meditation, with a verse of Scripture, contributed by a prominent clergyman. It is appropriately named, "God's Minute."

Wise Cracker

The Saturday letter of "A. Wise Cracker" to the Sport Page is a hilarious review of the week's sporting activity. City and district sports are commented on shrewdly and—what is more strange in the realm of sport—honestly.

No one interested in sport can afford to miss "Sportin' Dope."

Views on Sport

More staid, perhaps, but full of interesting sport news, is the daily Sport Page column conducted by the Sports Editor. Here is a summary of the day's sport news; a forecast of events, and a running commentary on the athletic world.

Strange As It Seems

A daily picture feature that is attracting much attention is "Strange As It Seems," depicting wonderful things to be seen in all parts of the world.

The Examiner does not accept questionable or doubtful medical, mining, oil-stock, or financial advertising. In a sincere attempt to eliminate the false and fraudulent, it maintains, at all times, the same rigid censorship over all advertising that ie does over news.

THE EXAMINER IS A DAILY COMMUNITY NEWSPAPER WITH WORLD-WIDE NEWS SERVICE

Religion

The Examiner has no religious bias whatever.

The news department is genuinely eager to give news of all churches and denominations in its territory. Reporters are assigned to report important services and anniversaries. Church organizations are invited to have press secretaries write reports of meetings in cases where reporters are not available.

Local Features

There appears every day a valuable history of Peterborough's war-time efforts, under the heading, "Peterborough and the Great War." This history covers all the war years, and tells the interesting items that were printed in The Examiner then.

Another local feature which appears daily is the "In Days Gone By" column, recalling important, interesting and amusing events of years ago.

FEATURE ARTICLES

There is, every day, a wealth of articles and pictures of interest to children, and this department is constantly expanding.

Practically a full page of comic strips offers daily amusement to both children and adults. For the very young children—and of interest to parents, too—there are the "Clancy Kids" in a daily frolic. For the business girl and everyone with a sense of humor, Tillie the Toiler can be followed in her daily love affairs and office troubles. Jiggs and Maggie perform for a universal audience. Oliver has more adventures than enough, in mid-African forest or haunted house—a real he-boy strip. Bobo Baxter—inventor of the wonderful demi-tasse plane—leads into a marvellous country of Alice-in-Wonderland-like adventure. And for those who play golf and those who laugh at those who do, there is "In the Rough," a new strip portraying the life of "Doc."

On the family page every day there is a bed-time story—"Uncle Wiggily"—with its tales of queer animals and places.

Seckatary Hawkins, the most popular children's character, conducts his club through a full page every Saturday. Any boy or girl may join the club, receiving a club pin and a membership card. There is a weekly story and a competition in which the prize is a splendidly-bound 300-page child's book.

Other prizes are given, too, for getting new members. Every member is sent a Club Birthday Card on his birthday anniversary.

Members are invited to send in reports of their birthday parties, to be printed in The Examiner the day after the event.

The Examiner branch of the Club is growing steadily.

Up-to-Date Psychology

Every day there is an article on psychology by Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D., under the heading, "Why We Do What We Do." The series is not technical, but tells in everyday language the interesting facts in psychology.

JUNIORS DROP FIRST GAME TO BOWMANVILLE

BOWMANVILLE TEAM COMBINES COMBINATION WITH OFFENSIVE PLAY TO DEFEAT PETES 3 TO 1

Individual Efforts of Locals Unable To Cope With Visitors' Play.

FIRST PERIOD SCORELESS.

Petes Have Sterling Defence in Hatton, Calladine and Gillespie.

Using a smooth working combination, offensive, the result of several weeks' constant practise and the participation in the Junior S.P.A. series, against the mostly individual efforts of the Petes, Bowmanville hung up a 3 to 1 victory over the Peterborough Hockey Club's Juniors in the first game of the Lakeshore group played at Brock Street Rink last night. Man for man the blue and white were superior to the Bowmanville players but lacking almost any cohesion and team play, the puck seemingly going wild when the few passes were attempted, all their single excursions went for naught generally ending up in the corner rather than in front of the nets.

However the game was close and exciting every minute of the sixty and during the last half of the third period the Petes had the Bowmanville team bottled up in their end of the rink threatening with repeated shots to net the tieing counters. The Petes forced the play during the last period and had their full shart of it throughout, only their failure to bore in on the nets kept them from scoring frequently. Both teams found it difficult to locate the nets.

First Period Scoreless

Neither team could hit their stride in the first period, each hanging back testing the strength of the other, and the period went scoreless. The second period opened at a faster clip and the doings commenced. Bowmanville got their first goal when Jackman went down the right boards, skirted the defence and hoisted a hot one into the top corner of the nets. Two minutes later on a smooth combination effort that took the play right inside the Petes' defence Jamieson took the pass from Jackman right on top of the nets and the former slammed it past Gillespie. Calladine got the only Peterborough goal when he went down the boards, and while well out, sifted a shot past James, which is doubtful if the Bowmanville goalie even glimpsed as it sped past him. Early in the last period Jamieson who had been doing some wild gunning from the left boards all evening, lifted a high shot past Gillespie from the blue line for Bowmanville's third goal and the last score of the game. From then on the Petes swarmed around the Bowmanville end like hornets, but against the packed defence which the winners drew up to protect their lead could not work close enough to tally.

Strong Defense

Individually every blue and white shirted youngster worked hard and with greater combination effort there would have been a different story to tell. The Petes' defence, of Hatton and Calladine broke up many a rush and Gillespie between the posts filled the nets in faultless style. The forwards, Dallin, Cripps and Jones, all were speedy and they backchecked hard. The relief pair, Epps and Ellis, proved their worth every time tossed out.

Perhaps the pick of the Bowmanville crew was Jackman, who engineered most of their attacks and Candler at centre showed himself to be a heady player. The defence pair, Rundle and Hooper, stuck close to their job and with James in the nets were well nigh impregnable against the Petes mode of attack.

The line ups were:

Bowmanville—Goal, James; defence, Rundle and O. Hooper; centre, Candler; left wing, Piper; right wing, Jackman; alternates, Walton and Jamieson.

Peterborough Hockey Club—Goal, Gillespie; defence, Hatton and Calladine; centre, Bernie Jones; left wing, V. Dallin; right wing, B. Cripps; alternates, Ellis and Epps.

Referee—Elwood Coombs.

The game opened up slow with close checking at mid-ice and it was minutes before either goalie had anything to do but watch. Hooper finally went down and tested Gillespie from close in. Then the game began to speed with Bowmanville carrying the puck. Jones missed a goal on a pass out from the corner and Rundle was benched for tripping. Cripps after a lone sally up the right boards nearly beat James with his high shot. Hatton's pass to Ellis in front of the nets went begging.

Second Period.

Right after Hatton had carried the puck down and shot Jackman put Bowmanville one up with his lone effort. With the Bowmanville combination working smoothly they were making dangerous sallies, which eventually proved successful when Jamieson netted Bowmanville's second counter. Penalties were handed out to Piper and Calladine. The Petes were forcing the play and fighting hard for a score. Cripps made a good effort and Dallin made a rink end rush which ended in the corner. Calladine came back fresh from his rest and scored Peterborough's single goal with a high shot from well out. Play worked back and forth and with the close checking that both teams were using neither could get within scoring range. Bowmanville twice worked in on top of Gillespie after three man combination attacks. Jones and Hatton combined for a rush but it ended in the corner. Jones was robbed of a goal when he went right in on top of the goal after a lone effort.

Third Period.

The third period began at a fast clip and Hatton just missed a goal after a combination attack with Dallin. Hatton was benched when he stopped a dangerous three-man rush by bodying the puck carrier. Jamieson put Bowmanville two up with a fast shot from the blue line. Calladine, Walton and Jamieson tried to mix things up and all three were benched. With the advantage of one man coupled with their determined attacks the Petes looked every minute as though they were going to score. Cripps carried the puck right up to the goal but James stopped the shot. The Bowmanville team were packing in a four-man defence in their determination to hold their lead and in spite of the frenzied rushes of the Petes the Bowmanville citadel remained impregnable.

OLIVER IS HERO OF BOSTON GAME

U. S. Amateur Player Breaks Into "Big Time"—Bruins Defeat Leafs 5-2.

PIRATES WIN 1-0.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 9.—(Canadian Press).—With Harry Oliver running wild and scoring three times; the Boston Bruins made George Owen's professional hockey debut a tremendous success here last night by crushing the Toronto Maple Leafs, 5-2.

Owen, ranked as one of the greatest amateur players in the United States broke into the "big time" with a loud crash.

Upsets Chicago Hawks

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 9.—(Canadian Press). — Benny Leonard's Pittsburg Pirates upset the tailend Chicago Black Hawks here last night in a National League hockey game when Tex White caged a wild shot late in an extra period to win the game 1 to 0.

Battle to 1-1 Tie

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 9.—(Canadian Press)—The Montreal Maroons lost a chance to get into a tie with the New York Americans at the top of the Canadian section of the National Hockey League by failing to get better than a 1-1 draw decision in their game with the Ottawa Senators here last night.

MILLIONAIRES BEAT NIAGARA FALLS 4-2

Flying Dutchmen Defeat Detroit Olympics 5-0 For Third Time.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 9.— (Canadian Press.)— Led by Ken Doraty, the blonde, curly-haired product of Western Canada, the Millionaires played one of their best games on Toronto ice last night and in the process defeated Niagara Falls by a 4 to 2 score. Doraty played his position in an all-star fashion, and as a result of his efforts, mostly of the individual variety, he amassed three of the locals' four counts. Doraty was the difference between defeat and victory, for it was the flash play of the former Regina Pat that felled the Falls.

BLANK TIGERS 3-0.

WINDSOR, Jan. 9. — (Canadian Press.)— Before four thousand fans who braved inclement weather with only a half hope of seeing a real battle, Windsor Bulldogs and Hamilton Tigers offered spectacular hockey pastiming here last night, ere the home tribe finally skated off the ice with a 3-0 win.

PANTHERS IN TIE.

LONDON, Jan. 9.— (Canadian Press.)— One rather fluky and disputed Buffalo goal balanced the scales against the single tally the Panthers had obtained earlier in last nights Canpro game at the arena, and the teams skated off after ten hectic minutes of overtime with the count still deadlocked.

STIRLING ALLOWED VICTORY IN TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE TILT

Referee Calls Game in Third Period With 3-1 For Homesters.

PLAY GOOD HOCKEY.

Campbellford Players Make Strong Attempt To Sink Tally in First Stanza.

STIRLING, January 9 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Less than two minutes before the final gong would end the game here last night with Campbellford, Ross Burtt ordered the play stopped and allowed Stirling the victory which they had won by a score of three to one over the visiting players. The game throughout was a good exhibition of the sport and much better than was generally expected for the first game of the season. Stirling had the slight advantage of having played an exhibition game before starting on the league schedule. It was the first time the Campbellford players had been in action other than practice.

The scoring was done in the final period although Campbellford got some dangerous shots at the Stirling net in the first. Fox, Campbellford's goalie last year, proved himself up to his usual efficiency last night in the Stirling net, where he is signed to play this winter. Of the three goals scored by Stirling, two go to Ingram and one to McGee. Horkins scored the Campbellford counter.

First Period.

In the first period Burtt was kept busy keeping the players in line. Fred Ingram threw the first penalty for body checking. Burtt found it necessary to point a warning finger at several players during the period, and also warned Fox against holding the puck.

There were several offsides. Ingram drew a second penalty for his method of checking at centre ice. Runions did some clever work for the visiting team and several times worked into the Stirling territory for a shot, but Fox proved equal to every occasion. Before the period ended, Ingram drew his third penalty for bodying and was sent to the box for the remainder of the period. The period ended with no score for either team. Stirling got five shots on the Campbellford goal and the visitors got four tries at the Stirling net.

Second Period

In the second period, Stirling started to press the visitors hard. Harry Ingram was given a rest for tripping. Offsides seemed to come in bunches for a while till Runions worked in and got an open shot at the Stirling net. But Fox was on the job and saved the situation. Sanders did the same thing for Campbellford within the same minute. Fox drew a penalty for mixing it with Fred Ingram who also was sent to the box. Burtt was kept busy checking up the plays and issued penalties generously. Wallace, Stirling, also came in for a rest. The period ended with no score. Stirling got eight shots on the Campbellford goal. The visitors had five tries at the Stirling nets.

Third Period

The final period was the one designed to tell the tale, Harry Ingram opened the session with a beautiful solo rush which ended in the first goal of the game and put the home team in the lead Burtt kept his weather eye on the game and caught even the slightest offside. Fred Ingram used his body on Jack Ackers and went to the penalty box for it. Harry Ingram drew a penalty for an offence near the Stirling goal. Campbellford began to exert all their power to recover an even interest in the game and it looked as though it would be done till Fox stopped a shot from ten feet in front of his nets and the tension eased considerably. McGee scored the second goal and left the score at two-nothing till Horkins pulled one of his famous solo rushes against heavy odds and landed the rubber behind Fox for a counter for the visitors. This seemed to give the Campbellford players, fresh interest and they strove desperately for the necessary goal to tie the score. But Harry Ingram was of a different opinion and scored another for Stirling. McGee drew a penalty for bodying and Horkins was given a rest at almost the same time. Some difference of opinion among the players ended the game within two minutes of the end of the period. The trouble seemed to originate between Parnell, Ackers and McArthur.

In the last period, the visitors got more shots than usua. They tried ten times to fool the Stirling goal tender, while Stirling got only seven shots at the Campbellford net. At the time the game was abruptly ended, the play was very fast with the visitors using all they had to try to come from behind and Stirling putting up a strong defense with occasional invasions of the visitor's territory.

Line-up:—

Campbellford		Stirling
Sanders	Goal	Fox
McArthur	right defence	H. Ingram
F. Ingram	left defence	M. McGee
Horkins	centre	J. Ackers
Hunter	right wing	E. Wallace
Johnston	left wing	E. Parnell
Blue	subs	Davis
Runions		Hoard

BAILEY RETAINS SCORING HONORS

Toronto Star Wing Man Has Average of Seventeen Points.

STEWART IS SECOND.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 9. —(Canadian Press) — Despite the season's record goaling feat performed by Nels Stewart, of Maroon, when he notched three counters against Pittsburgh Pirates, the leadership in the race for scoring honors is still retained by Irwin "Ace" Bailey, of Toronto Leafs, according to averages issued from the statistical department of President Frank Calder's office. The figures include games on Sunday night.

Bailey added a goal and an assist to his list, and so leads the scorers of both divisions with 17 points, while Stewart is second with 14. Stewart, however, has scored more actual goals than any other player in the league, thirteen having been dispatched from his stick. Reg. "Hooley" Smith, Stewart's team-mate is third with six goals and seven assists. While a rookie and a veteran are tied for fourth place in the International. Andy Blair, the centre ice"find" of Toronto Leafs, has 8 goals and 4 assists, Howie Morenz, of Canadians, 7 goals and 5 assists, giving each 12 points.

Carson Cooper, the "shovel shot" right wing of Detroit Cougars, added two goals and two assists to his list, while George Lewis, dashing centre player of the same team, contributed three goals towards the Cougar drive during the week. The net result was that Cooper retained the lead among the scorers, with 14 points, of which 9 are goals. Bill Cook and Frankie Boucher, the great Ranger pair, are next to him with 11 points each, and Lewis is fourth, only one point behind this pair of his league veterans. This is Lewis' first year in the major league.

Lionel Connacher, of the New York Americans, is piling up an imposing array of penalties which threatens to exceed all previous marks. With the season less than half gone, he has spent 81 minutes on the bench, far exceeding any other player in the game. "Red" Dutton of Montreal Maroons has had 63 minutes, which exceeds any other player in either section. "Hooley" Smith is right up with his team-mate, having spent 50 minutes with the penalty-timers. Eddie Shore, the rugged Boston Bruin defence man, has had 51 minutes in penalties which gives him the lead in Traud, of Detroit, with 34 minutes and Aleck McKinnon, of Chicago, with 32. Individual statistics follow:

FOURTEEN RINKS ENTERED FOR GAME

Curling Season Officially Opened at Campbellford By Bonspiel.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 9.— Curling was officially begun here for the season with the local bonspiel which started last night. With a membership of more than sixty, there were fourteen rinks entered for the first games. Two of them drew byes and will not be included in the fun till to-night, when the second round will be played off. The games are of eight ends each, with two games on each rink during the evening. Younger curlers as well as the members of the old guard are taking a keener interest in the sport this season than has been the case for several years. The first games last night started sharp at seven o'clock. At nine, the second half of the schedule began, finishing shortly before eleven. The first games to-night will begin at the same time.

In last night's play, W. S. Wiggins won from George Haig, 7-6; J. P. Archer defeated A. J. Meyers, 7-5; James Gay won from R. H. Cole, 10-3; H. Denike won from D. E .Tait, 9-8; Marshall West won from C. W. Palliser, 8-5; Fred Smith won from P. J. Sturginson, 9-2. F. C. Bonnycastle and John Gay each drew a bye and will come into the play when the second round begins to-night. At seven o'clock, Wiggins is scheduled to meet Archer, James Gay to meet Harry Denike, Marshall West to meet Fred Smith and F. C. Bonnycastle to meet John Gay.

TRAVELLED ADVENTUROUS ROAD

George L. (Tex) Rickard, who travelled an adventurous road from cowboy to millionaire, and found more gold in making boxing champions than in the Klondike, was on his last journey Sunday. Rickard died in the Allison Hospital at Miami Beach, Fla., Sunday, on the sixth day of an illness which followed an operation for appendicitis New Year's Night. The body of the promoter, whose name topped the best in the world of fistiana, was being borne to New York, the scene of his great triumphs, on the Havana special, of the Florida East Coast line. Mrs. Rickard, who had kept faithful vigil beside her stricken husband; Jack Dempsey, who loved the promoter as has "best pal"; Walter Field, Rickard's friends, and Steve Hannegan, representing the city of Miami Beach, accompanied the body. Over the bronze casket, so heavy that 18 men were required to lift it into the hearse, lay a blanket of roses, given by Dempsey and Field, and which bore the tribute: "To Our Pal." Dempsey, rugged ring warrior, became a nervous, unstrung boy as he realized that the man who had lifted him to a high place was dead. "I've lost the best pal I ever had," he declared. "I am grief-stricken over his death."

FAMOUS HOCKEY GAMES OF PETERBOROUGH TEAMS

By F. D. C.

The Bearcats in 1912 climbed to the Junior O.H.A. semi-finals which is as far as any local junior team has got since the Colts won the provincial championship in 1901.

The crack Orillia team was the outfit that finally stopped the Peterborough kids and while the Northerners had developed into a formidable hockey machine, the Bearcats were beaten more through a combination of soft ice and injuries than they were by the excellent playing of their conquerors. The proof of this contention is found that while the first game played in Peterborough on very sticky ice was won by the Northerners 8 to 2, the Bearcats went back to Orillia a few nights later and on a fast sheet of ice held the opposition to a 9 to 8 victory.

1,500 people saw the first game here which was a terrific argument until Orillia drew away in the second half. Early in the game both Peterborough wing players, Kenneally and Clancy, were injured, both getting hit in the eye and their effectiveness was to some extent interfered with, although they returned to the game and battled through to the finish. The Petes got away to a good start when Harry Clancy stickhandled through the Orillia team and beat Cooke with a neat side shot. Orillia, however, found their bearings and before half time had found the Peterborough net twice, giving them a 2 to 1 lead at the breathing spell.

The second half was a nightmare for the Peterborough fans, who saw their championship hopes buried beneath an avalanche of Orillia goals. The lighter Bearcats faded in the heavy going while Orillia, led by Pete Thornton, the biggest man on the ice and a player who afterward wore a Peterborough uniform in many a tough battle set a fast pace and ran in six goals in a row before Harvy Clancy succeeded in netting the Bearcats' second goal just before time was called.

In the game at Orillia it was a different story and northern fans saw a thrilling exhibition in which the form shown by the Bearcats was a genuine surprise. Orillia people expected a runaway game and when they led early in the first half by 3 to 1 were sure of it. The Peterborough youngsters, however got going, had the score tied at half time and early in the second half scored two pretty goals, putting them two up on the game and only four down on the round. Then a series of Peterborough penalties interfered when Bearcats looked to have the opposition on the run and Orillia finally won out by 9 to 8.

The teams:

Peterborough—Goal, Dwyer; point, Milloy; cover, Denison; rover, Weir; centre, Hall; right wing, Keneally; left wing, Clancy.

Orillia—Goal N. Cook; point R. Cook; cover McNab; rover, Butterfield; centre, Mohan; right wing, Jupp; left wing, Thornton.

Referee—Wally Hern, Stratford.

FUNERAL OF TEX RICKARD HELD TO-DAY

Thousands View Remains Last Night in Madison Square Garden.

ALL CLASSES PAY TRIBUTE

High Officials in Sports World Present at Burial Services.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(Associated Press).—On the spot where the ring is placed when boxing contests are held at Madison Square Garden, the body of Tex Rickard rested last night, awaiting funeral services this afternoon and burial.

Before the final words are said in praise of the genius of the sports promoter who built the great arena where his body lies, thousands of men and women from every walk of life paid their silent tribute. Today other thousands will be admitted until 1:30 o'clock, half an hour before the funeral service is read.

For three hours last night the doors of the Garden were swung open to permit the public to pass the massive bronze casket holding the body of Tex.

In his rise to the front rank of promoters, Rickard was continually striving to bring the "best people" to the ringside for his shows and if not to replace the fight fans of others days, whose uniform was a cap and a sweater, at least to push them farther back in the picture.

All Classes Pay Tribute

In death the "best People" in their high hats came with the boys nervously twitching their caps in their hands to pay tribute to a man who succeeded in making boxing respectable.

Boxing champions and titleholders of other days were in the throng, several white haired men who held belts before Rickard ever saw a gloved hand lead or counter, coming to pay respectful tribute to a man whose like was not seen in their way.

Hockey too was represented, for not only does the body rest near the ring posts for a boxing bout but on a surface that hears the rink of skates on speeding feet. Boxing was the promoter's first and fondest love but hockey was second in his affections.

At the funeral to-day boxers and hockey players and officials will join with enthusiasts for both sports in saying a final "well done."

At 1:30 o'clock this afternoon the many doors of Madison Square Garden will be closed and only holders of cards will be admitted after that hour. Card holders will include friends of the family, men prominent in sport, especially boxing and hockey officials of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, of which Tex Rickard was president and general manager.

The services in the Garden will be conducted by the Rev. George Caleb Moor, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church and it was expected that a eulogy would be pronounced by Mayor James J. Walker. The Mayor as a state senator was the father of the Walker law restoring boxing to favor in New York State. He was long a friend of Tex, and occupied a ringside seat at nearly every big fight in the Garden.

Honorary pall bearers announced include: Bernard Gimbel, Walter C. Kelly, Roy Howard, Ralph Pulitzer, Emil J. Carter, Richard Dunn, George F. Getz, James Hall, Frank Calder, Leo Dandurand, Gene Buck, Richard F. Hoyt, William F. Carey, John M. Chapman, Col. John S. CONNIE MACK SIGNS FIELDER Pilot of Philadelphia Americans Plans More Changes in Spring.

VETERANS LET OUT.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 9 (Canadian Press).—Manager Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Americans, has added an outfielder and weeded out a lot of mediocre material, but the strength of the 1929 Athletics must remain somewhat of a puzzle to major league baseball fans until he looks over his team in the spring training or executes a few more trades to plug up supposedly weak spots.

Another new player signed is John O'Rourke, a Seattle youth, who will be third string catcher. He is a son of Tim O'Rourke, who played with Louisville while Mack was catching for Pittsburgh many years ago. Those released included Joe Bush, veteran pitcher; Joe Hauser, first baseman, and several youngsters.

Eddie Collins is back as captain and principal adviser, with Bill Cleasom, Ira Thomas and Earl Mack as assistants to the lanky leader.

(Note.—This is the third of a series of stories dealing with mid-winter prospects of major league baseball clubs. Others will follow day by day).

Ping Bodie Hangs Up Uniform.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. — Ping Bodie has definitely decided to be through with baseball. After a career of 20 years in which he soared to major league heights, the veteran will henceforth give his time to a motor car service station here. He wound up the 1928 season with the Missions here, and despite his 40 years, hit .347.

VETERAN BASKETBALLER

Gordon "Bud" Fraser has played basketball for Toronto West End Y.M.C.A. for fourteen years: One year as a junior and the rest for their speedy senior team. "Bud" is recognized even yet as the fastest dribbler in Canadian basketball, his cyclonic rushes featuring every game in which he participates. Fraser is noted for his excellent condition, being able to play the full forty minutes without a substitution. He is also manager of the Lakeside Ladies, eastern Canada senior basketball champions, having been with them since they started four years ago. Not alone to basketball has Fraser confined his activities, for he has at some time or other competed in nearly every branch of sport, having been prominent as a runner, rugby and hockey player In the summer months he plays baseball, having been on many championship teams. Fraser has played every position on a baseball team, and since giving up pitching has been at first or third base. On the basketball team he played on the forward line but is now starring on the defence. There is great activity in the cage game at the present time. West End have not been beaten in a league game this year. They will face the all-star Detroit Y.M.C. A.'s Varsity squad on January 21 and again on the 26th.

SIX SENIOR TEAMS SCHEDULED TO TANGLE ON OPENING NIGHT

Fans Can Expect To See Some Smart Hockey in This Loop.

GAMES AT BROCK.

Each Team Will Be Allowed To Carry Two O.H.A. Players On Roster.

The City Hockey League consisting of six strong senior teams and four smart junior outfits will get their season off with a bang on Friday night with four games, three senior and one junior, being scheduled for the opening night at Brick Street Rink. All the games of this league will be played at the Brock this year as the executive believes the quality of hockey played by these teams deserves the best ice conditions that the city can offer and that they will be well supported by the fans.

In other year's no matter what the fortunes of the city's teams in the O. H. A. competition happened to be, good or bad, the City League furnished the fans with some classy hockey games and this league has always been the training ground for most of the O. H. A. players, and this is one of the main purposes for its existence. This year with each team being allowed two carry two Intermediate O. H. A. players on its roster the games should be faster than ever. All the teams are well organized and have their playing strength very evenly distributed among all the teams. The teams have all had several workouts and are settling down into real form.

Canoe Company Out.

The Peterborough Canoe Company's senior entry found it impossible to continue in the league, but their place will be very ably filled by the entry of a team representing a young men's club from George Street Church. This team, represented by Al. Gray were just too late to enter at the last meeting of the league, and are happy that fortune has smiled on them and that an opening has occurred for them. So that the league is not weakened at all by the dropping out of the Paddlers and will continue six teams strong.

The Tool Room team, champions of last year, are every bit as strong again this season, having practically their old line-up intact. There is also a strong entry from the C. G. E. Shop, which will be sure to make them all step. The DeLaval have always been prominent in hockey and the Separator crew have a home-brew outfit which they warrant will take the two big cups out of the grasp of the Tool Room. The Cognawagas, who proved such a stumbling block to the Raybestos in baseball, have also been taking their hockey seriously, and they promise to trot out a smart squad of puck chasers. Percy Harrison has been busy scouting for players and has signed up about ten men composed of experienced players and youngsters of promise. The George Street Club can be counted on to ice a strong sextette as this same club has been carrying off the championship of the Church League for many years back.

Strong Teams in Juniors.

In the Junior League too, the games promise to feature some snappy hockey and the players will certainly get plenty of experience. All four teams are taking their hockey seriously and are having workouts nearly every night in their strenuous efforts to whip their teams into shape for the opening night.

The first part of the schedule is:

Friday, January 11—Junior— Peterborough Canoe Co. vs. Canucks, 6 to 7.

Senior—Harrison's vs. Tool Room, 7 to 8.

C. G. E. vs. Cognawagas, 8 to 9.

George Street vs. DeLaval, 9 to 10.

Wednesday, January 16.—Junior — Barries' vs. All Saints, 6 to 7.

Senior—DeLaval vs. Cognawagas, 7 to 8.

George Street vs. Tool Room, 8 to 9.

C. G. E. vs. Harrison's, 9 to 10.

Wednesday, January 23 —Junior — Barries vs. Canucks, 6 to 7.

Senior— C. G. E. vs. Tool Room, 7 to 8.

Harrison's vs. DeLaval, 8 to 9.

George Street vs. Cognawagas, 9 to 10.

Monday, January 28. — Junior — Peterborough Canoe Co. vs. All Saints' 6 to 7.

Canucks vs. Barries, 7 to 8.

Senior— George Street vs. Cognawagas, 8 to 9.

C. G. E. vs. Harrison's, 9 to 10.

First Baseman Returns to Team of His First Success.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—First Baseman Joe Hauser has gone back to his old club, Connie Mack having released him to Milwaukee of the American Association. It was from Milwaukee the Athletics got Hauser in 1921 and he became a star.

He broke a knee cap just before the season opened in 1925, and after a period of retirement went to Kansas City in 1927 and showed much of his old form. With the Athletics in 1928, however, he failed to get going properly.

CALIFORNIA—BOUND CANADIANS GROWING IN NUMBER.

The famous resort cities, the ocean beaches, the mountains, the fascinating desert resorts of California combine to make possible all the diversified sports and entertainment dear to the heart of a summer-lover.

There are various routes—two of the most popular are through Chicago, or by way of British Columbia and the Pacific Coast. Many arrange to travel to California by one of these routes and to return via the other. In this manner the beauties of both Canada and the United States are seen during the round-trip.

Complete information regarding California—fares, accommodation and literature may be obtained from any Canadian National Railways Agent.

VIEWS ON SPORT

Marmora entertain Louis Sabatino and his Lakefield crew in an Intermediate O H A fixture at the Brock to-night.

It was a great little game last night, the Petes doing well, considering their lack of practise against the well-trained experienced team work of Bowmanville. Manager Coursey should stress the passing game in all practises henceforth; individually he had a great team of players, but they do need play in unision.

* * * * * * *

Bernie Jones was elected captain of the team just before they stepped on the ice. The newly elected captain, although recovering from an attack of "flu" played a smart game at centre ice.

* * * * * * *

The 4 to 2 defeat of the Lindsay Midgets by Bobcaygeon last night makes the St. John's victory look all the greater. It was expected from glowing reports of the Midgets that they would be the team to beat this year. St. John's are steadily improving too, under almost daily practises. Friday night they hook up with the Midgets in Scugogville.

* * * * *

"Ginger" Edgars, who has been associated with sport in Bowmanville for years past and is well known along the front as a hockey referee, headed the polls for the council at Bowmanville Monday. He got one of the biggest majorities that has ever been given a candidate in that town.

* * * * * * *

Ginger refereed in the Oshawa-Port Hope Intermediate game in which the Port Hope players grew so familiar with the penalty box. Several of the Port Hope players have been under suspension in the O.H.A. in the past and altogether they are reported to be a team that is willing to mix it under any circumstances.

* * * * * * *

George Owens, greatest star athlete ever produced at Harvard, and one of the greatest amateur hockey players in the United States has signed with the Boston Bruins and last night in his debut against the Leafs played well, scoring a goal. Connie Smythe had been angling to secure Owens and the latter promised to give his answer in Boston yesterday, but when the Leafs arrived they found Owens in a Bruin uniform. The American star on his showing in the 5 to 2 defeat handed the Leafs will fill handily the position left vacant by Hitchman.

* * * * * * *

Teddy Oke has announced h's decision to take his Canadian League team out of Toronto and finish the seasen away from the Queen City. Oke's team has not been receiving any support from the fans because of the successes of the Leafs and the high grade of many of the amateur leagues.

Rumors are gaining in strength concerning the formation of a rival league to the N.H.L. and the greatest mover for the new league is Paddy Harmon of Chicago. If enough New York capital can be enlisted and a team from New York or Brooklyn entered it is very likely the new league would soon be formed and be a success.

McGRAW PLANS TO SWING CLUB INTO ACTION EARLY THIS SPRING

Batterymen of Giants To Report at San Antonio February 15.

YANKS PASS UP REESE.

Veteran Leader Plans To Conduct School Along With Conditioning.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 8.—The spring training plans of the Giants have been completed. Manager John McGraw has announced that his pitchers and catchers will be ordered to report at the San Antonio training site on February 15, almost two months before the regular season starts. This means that he intends to put heavy concentration on the battery department, with a view to improving the pitchers as well as to get them into condition early.

McGraw also intends to have his other players in fair shape for the early exhibition contests which have been arranged. Perhaps no other major league manager takes spring practice tilts as seriously as McGraw. He likes to win the exhibition games just as much as he likes to win during the real season and will not tolerate loafing on the part of his men. Nor will he allow his players to regard the practice games as so many joke contests.

McGraw realizes that enthusiastic fans in Southern cities pay big league prices to see the Giants perform in exhibition games and he makes it a point to see that they get their money's worth, as far as the Giants are concerned.

Several years ago the manager of a big league team wanted to reduce an exhibition contest with the Giants in a Florida town to seven innings. This McGraw flatly refused to do, saying that the fans had paid to see a nine-inning game and that they would get what they paid for or the Giants would be taken off the field.

Players Know Their Parts.

Men who have played for McGraw know what he expects of them in the spring contests and do not dare to attempt to turn them into farces. New members of the Giants soon discover that McGraw takes the practice tilts seriously and act accordingly.

In whipping the pitchers and catchers into shape for the important exhibition games and the real playing season McGraw will have the assistance of Ray Schalk and Bert Niehoff, who will be on hand at San Antonio when the first batch of battery men show up. As the training season moves along, Schalk may bring himself forward as something more than one of McGraw's lieutenants. The former manager of the White Sox will don his pad and mask and do much work behind the bat. If Ray convinces his boss that he still is good enough to handle pitchers a place may be found for him on the catching staff once the regular season has opened.

Niehoff is expected to be a great help to Mac when the entire squad of Giants are in training. About 45 players will be crowded into the San Antonio park and Bert will be put in charge of many of the players. Once the season has opened, Bert will be seen coaching from the third base lines.

Since McGraw engaged Niehoff he has been congratulated by scores of baseball men who regarded Bert as one of the best minor league managers in the country. Before Niehoff decided to accept McGraw's offer he had received propositions from other major and minor league clubs.

Yanks Leave Reese in Oakland.

The latest move made in connection with the Yankees' plans for next year was the decision to leave Jimmy Reese, second baseman, with the Oakland Club under option for another season Lyn Lary, the shortstop who played beside Reese for several seasons, however, will be taken to the Yankee camp in St. Petersburg.

By breaking up the famous Lary and Reese combination Manager Huggins has led observers to believe that he will keep Tony Lazzeri at second base and give Lary a chance to make the grade in the shortfield. Mark Koenig is slated to succeed Joe Dugan at third base.

Dugan has been sent to the Boston Braves via the waiver process. Joe had been expecting his unconditional release and news that he was turned over to the Braves surprised him not a little. He now threatens to retire from professional baseball.

In Oakland last season Lary did not allow his sale to the Yankees, a transaction completed a year ago, to hamper his work and he finished the long Coast League season with a batting mark well over .300. He also fielded his position well. On the other hand, Reese got off to a slow start and never played as well as he did in 1927 when his work with Lary attracted great attention.

Word has been received from Herb Pennock to the effect that the neuritis which laid him low last season has left him and he feels fine and hopes to be as effective as ever next year. The encouraging news from the famous Yankee southpaw was warmly received at his team's headquarters. If Herb shows no traces of his ailment next year a burden will be lifted from the shoulders of Miller Huggins.

JACK DEMPSEY IS EXPECTED TO ANNOUNCE PLANS WEDNESDAY

Manassa Mauler May Attempt To Regain Heavyweight Crown This Summer.

BY ELIMINATION SERIES.

Dempsey's Last Fight Will Take Place in September.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 9. —(Canadian Press). — Jack Dempsey is expected to announce definitely tomorrow whether he had decided to carry out Tex Rickard's wish that he return to the ring this year in an attempt to regain the heavy-weight championship of the world.

At first, perhaps, he was inclined to give up all thought of a come-back, as a result of the shock of losing the man who played so big a part in the promoting of ring battles. Dempsey now seems to think that he could do nothing more appropriate than carry on as the promoter would have wished. His feeling, perhaps, is that with Rickard's passing it is more binding upon him than before to carry out the promoter's desire that he fight once more.

Unless there is a shake-up in the program, this means Dempsey's next and probably last fight will take place at the Yankee Stadium some time in September, more than ten years after he won the heavy-weight title from Jess Willard and three years, to the month, after he lost it to Gene Tunney.

His opponent will be selected, if Rickard's well-laid plans go through, from an elimination process involving four men. Two of them "Young" Stribling and Jack Sharkey, will fight the first test match at Miami Beach, February 27th, in a bout which will find Dempsey in a promoter's role for the first time. Paulino Uzcudun and Tom Heeney, unless the latter decides not to compete, will meet in a second elimination contest in May, the winner to box the victor of the Sharkey-Stribling match to decide Dempsey's opponent. Heeney's place may be filled by some other contender but three preliminaries to the grand climax are planned.

ELECTRIC TEAMS BATTLE TO TIE

Meter and Brass Departments Play To 3-3 Decision.

The outcome of the hockey game between the Meter and Brass Department which completed the four-game program that marked the opening of the C. G. E. Shop League on Saturday afternoon, was almost as surprising as the Tool Room-Drafting tilt, as the Brass Department were being heavily banked on to stage a decisive win, but were very lucky to plod home with a 3 to 3 tie.

The Brass gang looked smart in blue and gold jerseys, and started right in from the start to reap a victory, Heal and Paggett displaying plenty of speed and teamwork that resulted in a two goal margin in the first period, both markers being secured from close-in shooting, which gave Foy small chance of saving.

Pete McGillen, who had to retire owing to severe damages to his raiment, replaced Foy in the nets for the Meter Markers in the second period, and successfully warded off all shots except one tally which put the Brass three goals up. The playing was very disorganized, both sides specializing in lone rushes and long shots that lacked effectiveness. Darling finally succeeded in batting in a roller past Hope that spurred the Meter team to renewed efforts, and soon after Chas. McGillen made it two in a nice individual rush, working in on top of the Brass Department goalie.

The Brass seemed to have the edge on the play, and it was only the consistent checking of Bannon and Hollingsworth that saved the day for the Meter. McClennan made it three all near the end of the final period, when he hugged the boards and succeeded in planting a corner shot in the open side of the net.

Referee—Jack Thornton.

The teams:

Meter.—Goal, Foy; P. McGillen; defence, Bannon and McClennan; centre, Battle; wings, Hollingsworth and C. McGillen; subs., Howarth.

Brass.—Goal, Hope; defence, Ridyard and Westran; centre, Heal; wings, Paggett and McKinstry. Subs, Cordery and Boon.

San Antonio Signs Connolly.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas.—Tom Connolly, second baseman, who with Bernie Deviveiros set a league double play mark at Beaumont two years ago has been signed by the local club of the Texas loop. He was a free agent. Connolly was in the Southern League during the late season, but finished as manager of an independent team near Beaumont.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

BRANSBY WILLIAMS IN OLIVER TWIST

In the new version of 'Oliver Twist", which Bransby Williams will present to-night at the Grand Opera House.

This great exponent of Dickens' character has endeavoured to cut out all superfluous dialogue, and the story is unfolded and given continuity by the introduction of a series of clever and artistic Cameos which are interspersed with the various big scenes of the play. By doing this, long waits for changing of scenery are avoided, we see the finding of Oliver by the Artful Dodger, his introduction of Fagin the Jew, his ultimate escape from the thieves' den, his recapture and so on exactly in accordance with the book.

In this play Mr. Williams has given himself an arduous task by playing the two parts, those of Fagin and that of Mr. Grimwig, two entirely diversified characters, and it is nothing short of marvellous to realize that he is able to effect the complete changes of make-up and mentality in the short time at his disposal, but seeing is believing.

AT THE CAPITOL.

LON CHANEY IN A NEW ROLE IN "WHILE THE CITY SLEEPS" AT THE CAPITOL THURSDAY—FAMOUS STAR IS A FAMOUS DETECTIVE IN NEW OFFERING.

"While the City Sleeps," a vivid drama of life in the raw, of the continual warfare between the underworld of New York and its police force, is Lon Chaney's newest starring vehicle, a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production which comes to the Capitol Theatre to-morrow.

Chaney plays a role entirely new to him, appearing as a plainclothes detective, pitted against a vicious gangster band, in a story that gives an intimate "inside" view of police methods in fighting crime. Thrills and adventures abound. There is a breath-taking machine gun battle, secret midnight raids, alley murders, revenge and intense drama.

Woven through the adventures is also a charming romance of a young girl loved by both the detective and a gangster. How the gangster is saved and turned from his pursuit of crime into a peace-loving and law-abiding citizen, through the efforts of the detective in order that the girl might know happiness, gives surpassing heart-appeal to the picture.

Jack Conway, famous director of "Twelve Miles Out" and other noteworthy successes, directed the new play which has a notable cast appearing in the star's support.

Anita Page, a newcomer to the screen, and one of the most promising "finds" of the year, who made a sensational success in supporting William Haines in "Telling the World" and who scored again in "Our Dancing Daughters," plays the role of heroine. Mae Busch, last seen with Chaney in "The Unholy Three," appears in a prominent characterization, as do Wheeler Oakman Richard Carle, Lydia Yeamans Titus William Orlamond, Polly Moran and others of note.

Such police operations as the "Shadow Box" for criminals and the detectives' "lineup" are among the graphic details of the action in police headquarters. The machine gun battle and the running fight on the roofs of the city are among the most dramatic highlights of the absorbing and powerful story.

AT THE REGENT.

MAGNIFICENCE OF FAMOUS COURT PROVIDES MATCHLESS BACKGROUND FOR SCREEN'S STRANGEST ROMANCE.

Hungarian court life in the days when Emperor Charles held sway in Europe's most brilliant and colorful court, forms the background for Billie Dove's latest starring vehicle, "The Yellow Lily."

The story goes behind the scenes of royal life in Budapest, only a few years ago, and it mingles intimate romance with its exotic color and intrigue. It was adapted from Lajos Biro's famous Hungarian play, also called "The Yellow Lily."

Clive Brook plays opposite Miss Dove in this elaborate First National Picture, which is coming to the Regent Theatre. Gustav von Seyffertitz, Jane Winton, Nicholas Soussanin, Marc MacDermott, Bodil Rosing, Charles Puffy, Lucian Prival, Paul Vincenti, Yola d'Avril and John Westwood head a large supporting cast.

"The Yellow Lily" is not only Hungarian in locale but in point of view, and it offers novelty to American spectators, as well as color and exotic romance. A famous Hungarian director, Alexander Korda directed it. Biro, the playwright, is Hungarian. So are many members of the cast. Moreover, costumes and properties used in the picture were imported directly from Hungary.

RINTY IN ROUSING NORTHERN DRAMA.

"Land of the Silver Fox" presents the wonder dog in the setting of snow and pines which was locale for his great successes, "Where the North Begins," "Tracked in the Snow Country," and "Hero of the Big Snows." The story was written by Charles Condon, scenarized by Howard Smith and directed by Ray Enright. The cast includes Leila Hyams, Carroll Nye, John Miljan and Tom Santschi.

ITALIAN IS SHOT TO DEATH

Bruno Messina Held By Ottawa Police On Murder Charge.

KILLING FOLLOWS DISPUTE.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 9 (Canadian Press) Pietro Parrotta, an Italian, was shot to death last night as he stood on the threshold of a McLaren street house here where his wife was residing with her family. According to the report to police, Parrotta was attempting to force his way in the house at the time.

Bruno Messina, brother-in-law of the murdered man, who requested neighbors to summon the police after the shooting, was formally charged with the murder.

Mrs. Parrotta told detectives that her brother, Bruno, fired the fatal shots in defence of her life, her 7-year-old daughter, her aged mother, and himself. Parrotta was said to have only recently been released from a New York prison after serving a five-year term for highway robbery. He had come to the Messina home here and insisted that his wife return to New York with him. He was alleged to have backed up his demand with a revolver. An argument ensued, and the shooting followed.

AFRICAN STUDENTS WILL VISIT TORONTO

Party Studying Living Conditions in Canada and United States.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 9. —(Canadian Press). — Thirty nine men and women students from seven South African Universities will visit Toronto on January 22. The party is touring the eastern portion of the United States and Canada under the auspices of the National Union of Students of South Africa, the National Federation of Canadian University Students and the National Student Federation of America. The object of the tour being to study ways of living in Canada and the United States. The youthful "Ambassadors" will only be in Toronto for two days and from here will proceed to Montreal.

ASSESSMENT ACT IS BEFORE HOUSE

Amendment Is Being Sought To Assessment Act at Coming Meeting of House.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 9. —(Canadian Press). — There promises to be at least one highly controversial issue before the legislature at its forth coming session, in a move for assessment act mendment, to provide what Separate School supporters regard as a more equitable of distribution of taxes derived from Public Utilities, Incorporated Companies, and also those arising out of losses by the Government of private property.

School taxes collected from such corporations as the Canadian National Railway, Hydro-Electric Commission, and the like, go entirely to Public Schools, and it has long been argued by Roman Catholic leaders that such revenues should be directed also to Separate School support, in proportion to school attendance.

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches rub on good Musterole.

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

BIG MINERAL WEALTH OPENS UP COUNTRY

Resources of Northwest Territories Are Believed To Be Incalculable.

UNIQUE POSITION.

Canada's Northern Boundary Is Being Pushed Further North.

Ottawa, Jan. 9 (By The Canadian Press).—The mineral resources of the Northwest Territories are incalculable and the gradual unrolling of the map of this country to the north, as manifested by the infiltration of various exploiting interests into the region beyond the 60th parallel, indicates that in the not far distant future the nation's attention will be more closely focused on the development of the northland.

Geological surveys have established that the mineralized belt which extends across northern Quebec and Ontario continues in a northwesterly swing in a line roughly parallel to the valley of the Mackenzie River. North of the Great Bear Lake, which lies inside the Arctic Circle, is a vast region exceptionally rich in copper. The Dominion Government has not opened this up to prospecting; but when the time comes and all the rigid requirements of the government are fulfilled this area, in spite of its extreme northern situation, will fall due for development.

North of the Alberta provincial boundary are deposits of lead, while at Fort Norman on the Mackenzie River are the oil fields.

Interest in the mineral wealth of the Northwest Territories has recently been aroused by the decision of the judicial committee of the Imperial Privy Council who ruled that in the case of the Hudson Bay Company vs. the Dominion, the company had no right or title to these resources, having surrendered them in the sale of their lands to Canada following Confederation.

Unique Position.

Those who have studied the whole question point to the unique position in which the company at one time found itself; for in 1791 practically all the land outside of Upper and Lower Canada was in their possession. The northern boundary line of the Canadas then was roughly a line drawn eastward from the head of the Lakes. This was pushed further north at Confederation to a line east and west of the southerly tip of James Bay. Until the company sold the remainder of the land now comprising the Northwest Territories to the Dominion of Canada, they had in their possession practically all of the now famous mining fields.

It is pointed out that many misapprehensions now entertained by the public at large with regard to the winter season and the productivity of the soil in the Northwest Territories require to be dispelled before any large scale development can be entered upon. The northern boundary of the prairie provinces is in the same latitude as the capital of Sweden, Stockholm, and also Petrograd. It is admitted that the winters are severe, but it is not generally known that the summers are extremely warm. At Good Hope on the Mackenzie River, within the Arctic Circle, the mission stations subsist to a large extent on vegetables grown in their own gardens; while enterprising growers in this district do quite a trade with the settlements down towards Aklavik in the sale of potatoes.

The development of serial communications, coupled with radio, has brought those settlements in close touch with civilization. Some weeks ago a party flew from Winnipeg to Fort Churchill, thence to Chesterfield Inlet and Baker Lake, westward to Great Slave Lake, and south to Edmonton. This was a distance of more than 3,000 miles. Travelling by the former methods of transportation such a journey would have taken the better part of three years; but this party did it in 12 days.

The whole north is "hooked up" with a regular chain of wireless stations. One can now send a message from Ottawa to the vicinity of Coronation Gulf, near which Sir John Franklin's ill-fated expedition perished, and have a reply back in one day.

THIS ONE'S OLD

LONDON, Jan. 8.—A prehistoric observatory has been unearthed at Buetzow, Mecklenburg. It is estimated that the construction of the observatory commenced around 1181 B.C. It is in the form of a circle of stones, which served for the observation of the annual circuit of the sun and also as a calendar.

Y.W.C.A. LAUNCHES MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Each Class Is Working For New Members, Divided Into Two Teams.

Something out of the ordinary in the way of a campaign for gymnasium members is being staged at the Young Women's Christian Association just now. Each class is working for new members and each is divided into two teams which represent various makes of automobiles handled by dealers in the city.

For instance, the Monday Elementary class in the gymnasium has chosen Essex and Whippet cars. Miss Hazel Bradley is captain for the Essex make and Miss Helen Cole is captain of the Whippet side. The Monday Elementary class has the LaSalle, with Miss Sybil Ecobichon as captain, and the Ford, with Miss Leone Kingdon in charge.

During the week, other classes will make a choice of cars, the list including the Buick, Chrysler, Durant, Studebaker, Chevrolet, Oakland, Nash, Hudson, Pontiac, Graham and Paige.

A large poster has been placed on the board in the hall of the 'Y' gaily decorated with bright pictures of various makes of autos, all ready to enter the race. The pictures were donated by dealers and great interest will be aroused as they start the race to bring new members to Healthland, the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium. Each new member means ten miles along the race-course and prizes will be awarded to girls racing their cars along the greatest number of miles.

Each captain has a miniature car mounted on cardboard, on which are registered names of new passenger members. Captains report to the office each day and totals are recorded on the big poster.

The captain of the LaSalle car, Miss Ecobichon, has already reported one new member, who has the honor of being in the first car to get away on the start.

EAST CITY RESIDENT FALLS ON PAVEMENT

David Conroy Is Injured Monday in Fall On Slippery Street.

The slippery pavements on Monday were responsible for a painful accident suffered by David Conroy, who resides at the corner of Hunter and Burnham Streets. He fell, sustaining an injury to his leg, which at first was thought to be broken. Though there was no fracture, Mr. Conroy will be confined to his home for some time.

Closed Season Notices Are Posted In District

An official notice has recently appeared, holding an especially interesting message which will meet with the approval of the better class of sportsmen throughout the district. It prohibits fishing in the Counties of Victoria, Peterborough and Durham and the inland waters of Northumberland, during a closed season, which, pertaining to maskinonge, is from the first day of October to June 30, 1929, and for bass, is the same period.

Subsection 5 of Section 13 of the Dominion special fishery regulations for the Province of Ontario reads:

"No one shall, by means of a boat or other floating device or through the ice, take fish by any means in the Counties of Victoria, Peterborough, Durham and the inland waters of Northumberland during the closed season for the taking of bass and maskinonge."

ANNUAL REPORTS REVEAL PROGRESS

George Street Ladies' Aid Holds First Meeting of New Year.

The first meeting for the New Year of George Street Ladies Aid Society was held in the board room of the Sunday School Hall on Friday afternoon with the President, Mrs. C. E. Smith presiding. The attendance was not as large as usual owing to so much illness in the city but the meeting was very interesting and a good start made in the business of the incoming year.

The Bible lesson was read by Mrs. F. Mather, followed by sentence prayers by a number of members. Excellent reports were given by the rectetary, Mrs. G. Staples and the treasurer, Mrs. S. Oke, after which the standing committees were asked for their yearly reports. Mrs. P. Hagerman reported for the sick and visiting, this committee having made 393 calls during the year. The report of the social committee was read by Miss Lottie Allen and the report of the Parsonage committee by Mrs. Kelly.

The flower committee reported 150 bouquets of flowers sent during the year and Mrs. Weldon, convener, of the decorating committee gave her report in regard to the church decorations for special occasions during the year. Mrs. H. M. Yelland gave a full report of "The Festival of the Months" showing the final returns to be $1363.75. Mrs. Long's report re the Christmas Cheer baskets showed that baskets had been sent to twenty homes at Christmas and a substantial balance on hand from the contributions given at the Sunday Church service for the fund. Miss Mary Elliott, corresponding secretary, reported over one hundred letters written during the year and Mrs. B. Shortley reported for the cupboard committee, recommending that new linen be purchased. A motion to the effect was passed.

A resolution was passed, that the social committee assisted by the executive have charge of the father and son banquet of the Sunday School to be held on Monday evening, January 21. Mrs. Smith announced, that the mid-weekly prayer meeting on Wednesday evening, January 16th, would be in charge of the Ladies' Aid Society and urged all the members to be present. The standing committees for the new year were appointed, each member to act on some committee.

Mrs. Stubbs is convenor of the sick and visiting, Mrs. P. Hetherington and Mrs. T. Marks convenors of the social committee and Miss Mary Elliott of the program committee.

The meeting closed with repeating the Mizpah benediction in unison.

PICTORIAL STAMP ISSUE COMPLETED

Stamps Regarded By Philatelists As Finest Produced in Any Country.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 9 (Canadian Press).—Canada's new pictoral stamp issue was completed when the four larger denominations went on sale Tuesday. The stamps are stated by post office officials to be regarded by philatelists as the finest produced in any country.

Each section of Canada is represented. The one dollar stamp carries a picture of the Parliament buildings and is significant of the central part of the country. For the Maritimes, the 50 cent denomination shows the schooner Bluenose winning the International Fishermen's race. The Quebec Bridge appears on the 12 cent stamp. The Prairies are typified in the 20 cent stamp by a picture of a Western wheat field. Then 10 cent stamp bears a representation of a mountain in British Columbia with Totem poles on the border.

The lower donominations carry the King's head. All numerals are larger than in previous issues. The stamps are stated to be among the finest examples of the engraver's art. Under the microscope, the windows in the Parliament Buildings may be counted, and figures of horses in the British Columbia stamp though much smaller than a pin head are replete with detail.

IDEAS CRASH IN COURT CELL

Colorful Session In Police Court When Prisoner Addresses Audience.

JUMPS BAIL.

Home from the prairies with real estate ideas as broad in their scope as the land from which he had come, a former resident of Peterborough dropped in on The Examiner, the other day with a scheme to boom Peterboro by bringing over hundreds of Americans. While not taking much stock in the imaginative scheme, his listeners did place some confidence in his more rational announcement of his intention to enter the more legitimate real estate field.

But alas His best intentions counted for nought when he was placed in a cell at the local police station, last night, to await trial on a charge of vagrancy. All night long, and until court time this morning, he hammered with his fists upon the cell walls, bet on races, cheered imaginary acquaintances and uncermoniously assigned new names to members of the police force with a reckless abandon that knew no bounds, even as he entered the court room. He addressed the magistrate with a familiarity far from being in keeping with that dignitary's office, and entering the prisoner's docket, climbed to the bench, the better to address the assembled multitude in the pews behind him. To the charge read by His Worship, the erstwhile real estate wizard, replied in terms irreverent and irrelevant which did not improve as on being led from the court room his stockinged foot clashed with a chair in the corridor. He was remanded for a week.

Charles McPhail, bird of passage, or what have you, couldn't see his way clear to plead guilty on a charge of vagrancy, and launched into a rather extended definition of the term "vagrancy," with all its ambiguities.

He had been discovered, late last night, by Constable Piercy, loitering in the rear of some stores on Simcoe Street and on being approached, had struck the officer a blow in the face. But Piercy was made of better stuff, took up the chase and with Constable Thompson also taking a hand in the pursuit, over took McPhail in the west part of the city. This morning, the crown was granted a remand of one week in the case.

Charles Colquhon, of Smith Falls, paid $10.00 and costs for the privilege of being intoxicated in a public place, while several cases of reckless driving were laid over for a week.

Robert Savage, a lad of seventeen, charged with the theft of some chickens, scheduled to appear on Monday, failed to do so. Likewise, a young fellow named Crilley failed to put in an appearance while Carl Thompson was remanded until Thursday on a charge of chicken stealing.

ALBERTA LEADS IN WOOL PRODUCTION

More Than One-third Total Output Comes From Western Province.

Edmonton, Alta., Jan. 9 (By the Canadian Press).—The Province of Alberta now produces more than one-third of the total wool output of the Dominion, the figures for 1927 being 1,492,191 pounds out of a total of 3,648,254 pounds for the whole of Canada. These figures, which in each case are for the wool handled only through the Canadian Wool Growers' Association, were brought out at a recent meeting of wool growers of Alberta in connection with the proposition to organize a co-operative marketing pool on lines similar to those of the wheat pool. Five co-operative selling organizations among the wool growers in different parts of the province were represented at the meeting.

If the proposed pool is formed, as is anticipated, it will work on a contract basis, as is the case with the wheat pool, instead of the voluntary basis on which Alberta wool is now marketed through the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Association.

NOMINATIONS OPEN FOR NEW DIRECTORS

President of Y. M. C. A. Board Appoints Nominating Committee.

The nomination committee appointed by the president of the Y. M. C. A. board to report at the Annual Meeting of the Association is composed of the following members.

Messrs. J. J. Turner, J. Wearing, W. A. J. Giles, R. J. Bolton, A. J. McLeish, and Dr. J. J. Craig.

Directors whose terms have expire this year are as follows: Messrs G. A. Gillespie, T. Barrie, J. F. H. Wallace, J. R. Marshall, R. L. Dobbin and J. E. Smith.

Any active member of the association may place in nomination the name of any active member of the association for the office of director, such nomination to be handed into the nomination committee over signature of person making the nomination on or before Saturday, January 12th.

Directors whose term expires are eligible for re-election.

Sport Fans Pay Tribute To Rickard

NEW YORK, N.Y., January 9 (Canadian Press). — More than 500 persons were in line when the doors of Madison Square Garden were opened at ten o'clock to permit the public to file past the body of Tex Rickard lying in state. Several hundred, mostly men, but including a few women, had been waiting since the dawn.

Mrs. Rickard and Jack Dempsey reached the Garden shortly before ten o'clock, and went at once to Rickard's flower-covered bier in the centre of the Arena.

Drink Hot Water To End Indigestion

INSTANT RELIEF.

Thousands of unfortunate people suffer almost daily from stomach acidity, gas, sourness and indigestion after eating. If they would start the agreeable practice of taking a glass of hot water containing a teaspoonful or four tablets of pure Bisurated Magnesia, they would soon find their stomach so strengthened and improved that they could eat the richest and most satisfying meals without the least symptom of indigestion.

Nearly all digestive troubles are caused by an excess of acid and an insufficient blood supply in the stomach. Food ferments and sours before digestion can take place. A glass of hot water draws the blood to the stomach and Bisurated Magnesia neutralizes the stomach acids and keeps the stomach strong, sweet and healthy and promotes normal painless digestion. Bisurated Magnesia is not a laxative, is harmless, easy and pleasant to take, and can be obtained from any well stocked druggist in either powder or tablet form. Try this today and enjoy your meals in peace.

All are invited to join in these services.

Obituary

BABY O'DONNELL.

The funeral took place this afternoon of the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Donnel, 261 Smith Street.

DOROTHY MAY WHITEHEAD.

The funeral was held yesterday of Dorothy May Whitehead, five months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Whitehead, 246 Antrim Street, from Comstock's Undertaking Home to the Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. Dr. Glagrave officiating.

MRS. MARGARET McFADDEN.

The funeral service of Mrs. Margaret McFadden took place this morning at St. Peter's Cathedral and interment was in St. Peter's Cemetery.

The mass in the Cathedral was celebrated by Rev. V. G. McFadden, son of the deceased, assisted by Rev. P. J. Galvin, as deacon and Rev. C. McCarney, as sub-deacon. Right Rev. M. J. O'Brien, Bishop of Peterborough, was in the sanctuary and sang the "Libera" at the end of the Mass. Bishop O'Brien spoke of the manifold qualities of the deceased and the secred charities she had performed while here.

Members of the clergy who attended the service were: Monsignor McColl of Lindsay, Monsignor Kelly of Cobourg, Right Rev. Dean O'Sullivan, the Reverends J. J. O'Brien, J. V. McCauley, P. J. Gallivan, J. J. Guiry, M. J. McGuire, V. J. Gilloghy, G. J. Meagher, P. J. Flannigan, C. McCarney, C. Corkery, E. Welsh, J. Maguire, C. J. Carroll, C. Maloney, P. Costello, J. Corkery, P. J. Lynch, and J. Finn.

The girls of St. Mary's Convent sang during the service. Beautiful floral tributes bore testimony to the place that the deceased held in many hearts throughout the community.

The funeral was conducted by Orville Falls of the firm of McFadden and Sons, assisted by Mr. Clarke of the Guelph Casket Works, Mr. Moore of Dominion Casket Manufacturers of Toronto, Mr. Comstock and Mr. Sanderson.

If it could be made to rotate fast enough, a thousand horsepower might be transmitted by means of an ordinary lead pencil.

past seven last evening, while Parrotta was out. Parrotta returned some time after nine o'clock. He went up the steps and knocked at the door, Messina said.

"I went downstairs and saw him through the front window," Messina continued his story. "He was swearing, saying dirty things and was calling to my sister to hurry up and open the door.

"I lost all control of myself, when I remember all I had done for him and the way I loved my sister and mother. I had a 12 gauge shotgun and some cartridges I used for hunting. I loaded up my gun, went to the window and shot him.

"Then I went outside and looked at him. The woman next door said, 'Who shot him?' I said, 'I did. Call the police.' I went in the house. My mother was terribly upset. She is a very religious woman. I tried to comfort her. When A policeman came in about 10 minutes, he asked me who had shot the man. I told him that I had done it and then went away with him."

MEETINGS END.

Leaders of News Print Industry in Canada Conclude Conferences.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 9—(Canadian Press.)— The meetings of the leaders of the newsprint industry in Canada have ended here following a two day session and contrary to the general anticipation no statement was handed out for publication today.

The pulp and paper men arrived here on Monday and went into conference immediately. Several meetings were held but nothing as to what transpired behind the doors of the meeting room was given out.

WEDDING BELLS

O'CONNOR—KENNEDY.

A quiet, pretty wedding took place on December 29th at the Visitation Church in Detroit, when Agnes Olive O'Connor and Cornelius O'Brien Kennedy were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. Father Bryne.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march. She wore a lovely gown of white taffeta, trimmed with lace and veil caught with orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet was of white roses and lily of the valley.

The bride's attendant was her sister, Mrs. J. Lucas, wearing nile green crepe de chine and hat to match, with bouquet of red moss roses.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. Michael Kennedy.

The church was beautifully decorated with Premier roses and poinsettia and wedding music was splendidly rendered by the Visitation choir.

After the ceremony, the bridal party drove to the Fort Wayne Hotel, where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served in the Rose banquet room. Covers were laid for twenty and the rooms were arranged with white and red roses and poinsettia.

Mr. Kennedy and his bride left on the 5.30 train for Rochester, N. Y., where they will reside. The bride travelled in a suit of wistaria georgette, with hat to match.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a diamond pendant.

Laborer Confesses To Shooting Farmer and His Wife Last Saturday.

MOTIVE UNKNOWN.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 9. —(Canadian Press). — A search that extended over three states for the murder of a farmer and his wife at Canal Fulton, Ohio, last Saturday, ended here shortly before midnight in the arrest of Ed. Kaltenbaugh, 25, who according to police confessed the crime. Kaltenbaugh waived extradition and immediately was started back to the Ohio town.

Kaltenbaugh specifically is charged with the shooting to death of his employer, John A. Oser, dairy farmer and his wife Florence. His arrest was brought about through a telephone call to a New Castle girl. When taken into custody he was found hiding under a pile of clothing in his Grove City home.

Sheriff Ed. Gidson of Canton, Ohio, and a squad of local police made the arrest. Enroute to the New Castle police station Kaltenbaugh is said to have bragged of his crime, but refused to assign any reason for his alleged act.

Robbery is said to have been the motive, $20 being missing from the Oser farmstead as was the Oser automobile.

VETERAN'S JEWEL IS PRESENTED

LADY MISSIONARY DISCUSSES BOLIVIA

Mrs. A. A. Haddow Addresses Murray Street Baptist Women.

Mrs. A. A. Haddow, who with Mr. Haddow and family is spending their furlough in Peterborough after their second term of missionary service in Bolivia, was the speaker at the January meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Murray Street Baptist Church, held on Tuesday afternoon.

Dealing with some of the encouraging cases of the work in Bolivia, Mrs. Haddow spoke very interestingly, telling also many of the hardships which the Christians have to encounter in that foreign land.

Mrs. W. D. Scott, president of the society, presided, and Mrs. A. Zavitz had charge of the devotional section of the program, which was followed by prayer by some of the members of the society.

Solos were given during the afternoon by Miss Phyllis Rome and little Thelma Zavitz. Tea was served at the close of the meeting and a social hour enjoyed.

to the Aylmer district, again to miss capturing their man.

The search continued well into Saturday morning. High Constable Ostrander, Chief Augustine of Aylmer and other members of the county police as well as several private citizens assisting.

Cut Across Fields.

Realizing that he was being trailed in his stolen automobile, Parks is believed to have cut across fields and fences after abandoning it on the road. He is believed to have slipped down a steep embankment into a creek, breaking through the ice, in his flight, hence his wet condition when he reached the farmhouse. Darkness greatly hindered the police in their search and probably was responsible for Parks falling into the creek. The darkness was so intense that the automobile abandoned by the fugitive was not found until some time had been spent in searching for it. Parks had turned off the lights before leaving the car.

Three men who were in the farmhouse at the time Parks was there, recovering from the cold, told the police that as Parks sat warming himself, he felt in a hip pocket several times, as if for a revolver. Police do not believe Parks is armed, however, and suggest that this may have been a bluff on his part to prevent the men in the house attempting to hold him.

Belongs to Norfolk.

Constable Shervill told The Times-Journal that according to their information, Parks belongs to Norfolk County and is alleged to have served a long term in the penitentiary. He is suspected of being the robber who burglarized a general store at Otterville and the C.N.R. depot at Hawtry three or four weeks ago and is also wanted on several charges of burglarizing Michigan Central Railroad depots and section buildings. He is suspected of being the thief who pilfered the gasoline supplies of several section gangs on the Michigan Central Railroad. The theft of at least five automobiles, one from Tillsonburg, is also blamed on Parks. A description of the fugitive and the Rogers' car was telephoned to the police at the borders and in various parts of Western Ontario, late Friday evening, as soon as the theft of Mr. Rogers' car was reported. The man is believed to be making for the western border, although he may have gone east, into Norfolk County, there to lay low for a time. It is expected that the car stolen from Aylmer will be abandoned.

Carried Both Stories.

The Peterborough Examiner, in giving an account of the Aylmer escape, published the true account as supplied by Canadian Press, and then, under special footnote, carried the account objected to by the Michigan Central Police.

FORMER ACTRESS DIES IN TORONTO

Mrs. Charles Haystead Was Well Known On Local Circuit in the 90's.

Peterborough theatre goers of the older generations will recall the appearances on this circuit during the '90s, of Josie Mills, an actress who became widely known. In later life she became Mrs. Charles Haystead.

Following her death which occurred a few days ago, her funeral took place from the funeral parlors of Frederick W. Matthews, 665 Spadina Avenue, Toronto, and was attended by many old-time theatrical people and other friends. The service was conducted by the Rev. Canon W.L. Baynes-Reed, following which interment took place in St. John's cemetery, Norway. The pall bearers were all relatives.

Men Who Escaped From Reformatory Are Sent To Portsmouth.

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 9 (Canadian Press).—Two years each in Portsmouth Penitentiary were the sentences imposed in Police Court this morning on Fred. Bennett, Gilbert Colvin and Frederick Brooks, all charged with escaping from the Ontario Reformatory. Bennett and Colvin were serving the remainder of a reformatory term following a previous Portsmouth sentence for an escape from Burwash. Brooks made his get-away from the institution at 9.25 o'clock and was pleading guilty in the court at ten o'clock.

the upper waters. He strongly advocated the provision of ladders, which he maintained would help the propogation of fish life.

Lack of Overseers

C. E. Cobb, of Kingston, deplored the lack of overseers, and said in and around Kingston the anglers had taken up the duties of game wardens for the enforcement of the game laws with excellent results.

Dealing with the shipment of fish to the United States, Mr. Cobb said it had been found that the same shipping tag had been used over and over again for this purpose. What they were trying to get was some sort of "sticker" which would have to be destroyed at the completion of the journey.

Colonel Q. H. Smith, of Sudbury, gave wholehearted support to the recommendations of the association.

Four Laboratories

Professor J. P. McMurrich, chairman of the Biological Board of Canada, speaking from a scientific standpoint, said they had now four laboratories, two of which dealt with purely scientific side of the fishing industry. The other two were where the results obtained were applied. The board were determined to build up the fishing industry of the whole dominion. With regard to the industrial side of the problem, Professor McMurrich said it had been found necessary to inaugurate an education campaign, which had met with considerable success.

A. P. Porter, of Bobcaygeon, advocated the provision of equipment to game wardens which would enable them to move quickly from one point of their district to another. He questioned, he said, if fifty per cent of tourists bought licenses for sale. A speed boat would also enable them to perform their duties more efficiently. He favored the changing of the date of the opening of the bass season from July 1st to June 16th.

Mr. Porter alleged that many fishermen exceeded the amount they were allowed to catch.

W. Potts expressed the opinion that there was something wrong in the fish and game department, which must be rectified if the game and fish in the province was to be preserved.

He charged the department with inefficiency in the enforcement of the game laws and pointed out that in the Kawartha lakes they had the best fishing in the province, yet he said they only saw a game warden two or three times during the season and he might as well not be there at all. Why the season had been changed to July 1st they did not know, and it had been done without consulting any one in the district. The change in date had, he alleged, affected the season very adversely; last season United States' tourists had spent over $100,000 in the Kawartha Lakes district. What the people wanted the government to do was to set an earlier date for the Kawartha district, and to appoint about three times as many game wardens as there were at present. The committee then adjourned.

APPEAL IS MADE TO HELP FAMILY

Family Burned Out Recently Are Reported To Be in Distress.

The Big Sisters are making an appeal for a family that was burned out recently, when their home and all [illegible] contents, save one mattress and a trunk, was entirely destroyed by fire.

The man of the house has no work [illegible] efforts to obtain employment. The family who took them in and shelter them has seven children and the head of this house is also out of work. This circumstance, however, did not prevent him from extending a helping hand to neighbors in distress.

Anyone having household furniture, beds, bedding, a stove, dishes, or any other necessities, that they would be willing to contribute toward helping to re-establish this household, is asked to telephone to No. 1440W.

FIRST DAY OF HIGH COUNCIL

itial triumph in the election of Commissioner Hay of New Zealand as president of High Council meeting here. Commissioner Hay was understood to favor far-reaching reforms in the government of the Army. These changes in government, together with the removal of General William Brahnwell Booth as Commander-in-Chief, were the major proposals put forward by the reform element which is headed by Evangeline Booth, commander of the Army in the United States.

The fact that Commissioner Hay comes from a remote section of the Army's territory, would insure, it was thought, that he would be less involved in the personal side of the issues which the Council must face.

An official communique on the deliberations was issued from international headquarters in London, and aside from this, they were shrouded in deepest secrecy.

Much speculation was aroused by the frequent passing to and fro of a red car known to be retained by Catherine Booth, the General's daughter. Within an hour this morning it made seven journeys between Sunbury Court and the little villa nearby which has been taken by the Booth family. A mail secretary who rode in the car had with him a large number of documents.

General Booth remained at his retreat in Southwold, but it was believed that telephonic communication was being maintained with him.

HIGH COUNCIL ASKS GENERAL TO RETIRE

Conference Completes Its Work

DISCUSSION ON SMUGGLING IS RESUMED

Final Session of Conference is Held By Delegates of Two Countries.

NO STATEMENT MADE.

Delegates Promise to Make Public Announcement Later In Afternoon.

OTTAWA, Ont., January 10 (Canadian Press).—The conversations between delegations from Washington and Ottawa in an endeavor to find some satisfactory method of preventing the smuggling of liquor from Canada into the United States resumed to-day.

The discussions yesterday, according to an official report of the meeting handed out at its conclusion, centred around the United States suggestion that the Canadian Government refuse to grant clearance to liquor cargoes billed to the United States. It brought forth a proposal from the Canadian delegation that inquiry be made into the extent to which the traffic could be controlled by navigation laws along the Detroit and Niagara border.

The conference in which delegations from Washington and Ottawa took part to ascertain what could be done to prevent liquor smuggling from Canada into the United States completed its sessions at shortly after one o'clock this afternoon.

No statement was issued when the delegates dispersed, but it was announced that one would be made public later this afternoon.

PENNY POSTAGE RETURN URGED

Commercial and Industrial Organizations Send Joint Letter To Baldwin.

NEED EFFICIENT SERVICE.

LONDON, January 10. — Heads of leading commercial and industrial organizations in Great Britain have addressed a joint letter to Premier Baldwin, urging return to penny postage as soon as possible.

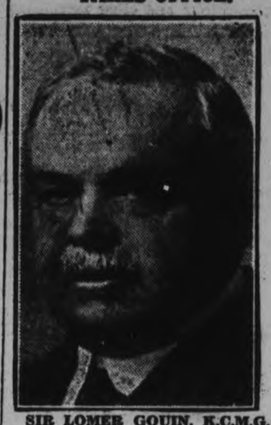
The signatories include: Lord Iveagh, president of the Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire; Sir William Seager, president of the Chamber of Shipping of the United Kingdom, and Lord Ebbisham, president of the Federation of British Industries and chairman of Lloyd's Baltic Mercantile Marine Shipping Exchange.

The letter respectfully submits that the first call upon post office revenue should be the provision of cheap and efficient service and adds that the fact that Canada recently restored penny postage, which New Zealand has enjoyed for some time, emphasizes the urgency of a similar reform in Great Britain. The urgency of the reform is said to exist in connection with the ever-growing importance of our trade with the Empire overseas."

INTERESTED IN DEVELOPMENT

LONDON, Jan. 10 (Canadian Press Cable).—Howard Williams, son of the founder of the Young Men's Christian Association, who died yesterday, was particularly interested in development of the organization throughout the Empire. In the course of these efforts, thousands of visitors from the Dominion have enjoyed his hospitality. His home was at Bickley, Kent.

TAKES OFFICE.



SIR LOMER GOUIN, K.C.M.G.

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 10 (Canadian Press).—Sir Lomer Gouin took the oath of allegiance and oath of office as Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Quebec at a brief ceremony this afternoon. The commission was handed to Sir Lomer by E. J. Lemaire, Clerk of the Privy Council, and read by L. G. Paquin, Private Secretary of the Lieutenant-Governor. The new seal of office was given to Hon. Athanase David, Provincial Secretary and Registrar, who has custody of it.

Sir Lomer Gouin, for many years Premier of the Province of Quebec and later Minister of Justice in the King Cabinet, was appointed Lieutenant-Governor of this province to succeed Hon. Narcisse Perodeau, at a recent cabinet meeting. Hon. Mr. Perodeau's four-year term in office expired to-day.

SENATOR ROSS DIES AT GUELPH

Leader of Conservative Party in Upper House Passes Away Early To-day.

HOME IN HALIFAX.

GUELPH, Ont., January 10 (Canadian Press).—Senator William Benjamin Ross, Conservative Party leader in the Senate for the past two years, died to-day in Homewood Sanitarium, where he had been a patient for two months. He was 74 years old.

Dr. Harvey Clare, Superintendent of the Sanitarium, said Senator Ross had been confined to his bed for about a month, and had been very weak. His death was unexpected, however, Dr. Clare would not divulge further details concerning Senator Ross's death.

Senator Ross succeeded to the leadership of the Conservative Party in the Upper House in June, 1926. He had been a member of the Senate since 1912.

William Benjamin Ross was born in Lot 49, near Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, in 1855, of Scottish parentage. He was educated at the Public Schools of Truro and Amherst and at Dalhousie University, Halifax. Admitted to the Bar in 1878, he rose rapidly and was created a Q.C in 1890. He was summoned to the Canadian Senate in 1912, and appointed leader of the Conservative Party in 1926. Senator Ross was a governor of Dalhousie University, president of the Trinidad Electric Company, Commercial Trust Company, and Canaguay Electric Company, vice-president of the Acadia Loan Corporation and the Halifax Electric Railway Company. He was also a director of the Porto Rico Railway Company, the Robb Engineering Company, and the Montreal Trust Company. He is survived by his wife, nee Annie Mackay, of Halifax.

REV. DR. TEMPLE IS CONSECRATED IN HIGH OFFICE

Nineteenth Archbishop of York and Primate of England, Is Enthroned.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY.

Weather Was Forbidding As Fanfare of Trumpets Heralded the Approach.

YORK, England, Jan. 10 (By Thos. T. Champion, London Manager of the Canadian Press).—In mighty York-Minster to-day, in the presence of a thousand clergy and 5,000 laity, His Grace, Most Rev. Dr. William Temple, was consecrated 96th Archbishop of York and Primate of England. For eight years Dr. Temple had been Bishop of Manchester. He is 47 years of age.

In several details the ritual and ceremonial, although based on usages followed through five centuries, differed from those performed at Canterbury on the consecration of Most Rev. Dr. Lang last month. York possesses no such ancient appurtenances as the marble chair of St. Augustine at Canterbury, and everything in York Minster's choir is modern, as modernity is reckoned in English cathedrals, having been restored after fire a hundred years ago.

Old Anglo-Saxon Copy of Gospels

In York Minster's library though is an Anglo-Saxon copy of the Gospels and it was on this book the Archbishop to-day swore, "to the utmost of my powers to defend the rights, privileges, statutes and customs of the said church, not contrary and repugnant to divine law and to the laws and statutes of this realm."

The weather was forbidding as the traditional approach of the Archbishop to the Cathedral was heralded by a fanfare of trumpets. His Grace knocked on the great west door with his pastoral staff, and it was opened for him. Entering the nave, the Archbishop made his petition to the Dean to be installed and enthroned. Very Rev. Dean L. G. Ford having signified his willingness, the procession moved to the choir, where the Dean proceeded to the formal installation.

Every branch of the country's corporate life—national, ecclesiastical and civic, was represented here to-day. The ceremonies were broadcast by radio throughout the British Isles, nearly two miles of wire being installed inside York Minster for the purpose.

Pleads for Goodwill

Dr. Temple pleaded for goodwill in his address. He was pleased to note a tendency to lay aside partisanship and instead show partisanship to goodwill. "Of course we shall still have our own convictions, about what is true, and our own judgments about what is expedient, and these differences will lead us to associate with different groups or parties in the church or state," he continued. "But we shall choose our party never for retaining of or gaining advantage to ourselves, but solely according to our understanding of the general good."

Referring to mutual suspicion among nations, the spectacle of competitive armaments and the sacred claims of international peace, His Grace said there was goodwill and concern for peace but it did not strike deep enough. "We are not as a body showing passionate concern, leadership as partisans of goodwill," he concluded.

The personality of the new Archbishop as much as the picturesque nature of the proceedings was equally responsible for the great public interest manifested in to-day's ceremonies. Most Rev. Dr. Temple, it is felt everywhere, may become an even bigger figure in the Church of England at this critical period than his well-remembered father, Dr. Frederick Temple, an Archbishop of Canterbury in the Victorian Era.

LONDON MINISTER GIVEN CALL TO CITY

Rev. J. E. J. Millyard Will Be the New Minister in George Street Church.

With the departure for Calgary this July of the Rev. J E. Todd, pastor of George Street United Church, who will take over the ministry of Central United Church in the Western city, there will come to Peterborough an outstanding man in the person of the Rev J. E. J. Millyard, now of Wesley United Church, London, Ontario. Both men will begin in their new fields of labor on July 1.

The Rev. Mr. Millyard has been prominent in the London Conference and while he has never been heard in a local pulpit, he comes highly recommended as an eloquent preacher.

Boy Secures Stick Of Dynamite From Father's Stock And Sets It Under Desk Of His School Teacher

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Five minutes before the opening of the morning classes at St. Edouard school here yesterday, a stick of dynamite was found under one of the teachers' desk. It was placed there by a boy who admitted the deed. He explained his act by stating he had got the dynamite from his father's stock of high explosives. He first said that a strange man had told him to put the dynamite under the teacher's desk, but later, when informed of the seriousness of the affair, denied this and declared he got the idea from his father, who employs it at a nearby quarry.

The boy was taken into custody and appeared before the juvenile court. He was charged with endangering the lives of 500 scholars. He will be held for further investigation regarding where and how he secured the dynamite.

OLD WORLD STANDS ON VERGE OF PROSPERITY IS MESSAGE OF PRESIDENT OF ROYAL BANK

Sir Herbert Holt Claims Canada's Trade Relations With U. S. Unsatisfactory.

ANNUAL ADDRESS.

Unfavorable Trade Balance Is Given As Example—Increase British Preference.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 10 (Canadian Press).—Announcing his belief that the old world stands upon the verge of a period of prosperity similar to that which is now being experienced in North America, Sir Herbert S. Holt, in the course of his presidential address to the shareholders of the Royal Bank, to-day said that Canada's international trade would soon rise to new and unprecedented levels. Sir Herbert, however, said the trade relationship between the United States and Canada was unsatisfactory.

He pointed out that United States sales to Canada were in excess of 300 million dollars of Canadian sales to the United States in 1928. Such an unbalanced trade relationship was injurious to the national welfare of Canada, Sir Herbert continued. Another unsatisfactory factor in the situation was that, while Canada imported manufactured goods from the United States, paid for at the disproportionately high wages since the war, Canadian exports were mostly raw materials and other items not requiring skilled labor for their manufacture. Alluding to the demand in some quarters in the United States for a higher tariff, Sir Herbert said: "If further handicaps are placed upon the exports of Canada it will be imperative for the Dominion to seek more favorable trade agreements with other nations and to change the present relationship by the application of measures for our own protection. As a last resort it may be necessary to meet the situation by direct tariff increases and by granting further preference to Great Britain and to most-favored nations." After saying he was not suggesting tariffs that would increase the cost of living but merely permit of the maintenance of a reasonable and stable prosperity, Sir Herbert called attention to the possibility of increased trade with the Orient.

Touching on the over-production of newsprint Sir Herbert said it was imperative that measures be taken to remedy this situation. The most pressing internal problem of Canada he thought was the need for more population and he recommended a substantial increase in immigration.

Increase Holdings.

C. E. Neill, general manager of the bank, after referring to the prosperity which had accrued to the farmers owing to the record crop of 1928, said that there was pronounced shortage of cattle in the United States and there had been a movement to purchase cattle in Canada. With the present strength in the price of livestock it would seem wiser for the farmer to increase rather than decrease his holdings of beef and dairy stock he said.

Mr. Neil said that the suggestion in the United States that the National Government co-operate with the State Governments in setting aside a large sum for the construction of roads and other public works whenever the business barometer pointed towards depression contained the germ of an idea which the Canadian government and leaders in industry would do well to keep in mind.

Mr. Neill said that undoubtedly speculation in stocks had been carried too far and it was the duty of the entire financial community to do everything possible to prevent further speculative excesses, which, if not curbed must inevitably lead to trouble.

LOCAL JAIL IS INSPECTED

Toronto Official Disapproves of Committing a Lunatic To County Gaol.

NO REPORT MADE.

A jail official from Toronto was in the city yesterday and a thorough inspection of the county jail was made envolving special inquiries into the escape of John Parks from that institution. It is reported that he made no statement concerning negligence on the part of any of the jail officers nor what steps may be taken following his report. However, it was said that he expressed strong disapproval of the confinement in the jail of the lunatic, who was remanded for a week, in police court yesterday. This insane man is reported to be very violent in his actions and it is feared that he may do some injury to himself in his cell. It was maintained that instead of placing him in a jail he should have been sent to an asylum where proper care could be taken of him.

Before Magistrate.

For two mornings in succession (including this morning) the Magistrate has had brought before him in police court a man not mentally normal. Yesterday it was a would-be real estate wizard; to-day, it was an elderly man, who had, after many years of steady employment in a local public building, had become unmanageable. He, too, had taken a dislike to his police cell, and had raised a considerable fuss, while his predecessor of the morning before, confined to the county jail last night, smashed up his bed, tore up the quilts and, all told, behaved in a most unseemly manner.

The Magistrate adjourned this morning's case until three o'clock this afternoon to enable Doctors T. W. H. Young and G. Ray Scott to examine the prisoner as to his mental soundness. He was charged with being insane and dangerous to be at large.

POULTRY SHOW PROVES TO BE HUGE SUCCESS

White Wyandottes and Rhode Island Reds Are Largest Classes on Exhibit.

LARGE SHOWING OF RABBITS

Winners at Royal Winter Fair Are Shown in Market Hall.

The outbreak of influenza that has affected so many of the homes of Canada during the past few weeks had its way with the annual Poultry Show here, not because the poultry were sick with "flu," but because so many of their owners were laid up with attacks of the prevalent disease. The showing of water fowl suffered especially in this regard, because of the illness of G. H. Hutchinson, of Warkworth, always a large exhibitor in this line.

However, this year's show is an extremely good one and well worth a visit from lovers of good birds. Despite the bad season, with a prevalence of white frost in the autumn months and a lack of snow later, both of which hamper the health of the fowl there are over eight hundred birds in the coops in the Market Hall, where the annual show of the Peterborough Poultry Association is taking place, under the supervision of the genial superintendent and treasurer, George Paxman. The big, warm, well lighted hall, with its clean coops and sawdust-sprinkled floor, affords an attractive interior for the exhibit.

This year, White Wyandottes and Rhode Island Reds seemed to be in the majority, but other classes were well represented. Barred Rocks also made a splendid showing, with one of the most beautifully marked birds that has been shown in many years in this class. Shown by William Deshane, of Trenton, it was a May cockerel that was consistently barred in fine lacings and stripings, from its hackle feathers down to the fluff and all through the heavy saddle.

Another fine bird that took the prize for the best cockerel in the show was a partridge Wyandotte, owned by V. J. Tully, also wonderfully striped and laced in cherry and purple through a gorgeous saddle.

Chinchilla Rabbits.

Interest this year centres to a great extent about the exhibit of Chinchilla rabbits. These softly furred, smooth grey animals with their twitching noses and soft eyes, are coming rapidly to the fore as substitutes for the rapidly disappearing wild animals of a fur-bearing type. Many a seal coat of to-day had its beginnings in the rabbit hutch. As an exhibitor at this show remarked: "If some women would examine the inside of their fur coats, they would be surprised to see how many little pieces it is made of."

The Peterborough Rabbitries, with S. E. Mcncrief as proprietor, have a big showing of these Chinchilla rabbits, and the pelts which come from them, as well as the dark brown Havana rabbits that give a fur resembling beaver. Other rabbit exhibitors are Cliff Carruthers, Robert Bugg and Messrs. Kelly and McLeod.

From the Cliffmuir Farm, with Cliff Carruthers as proprietor, comes also an interesting exhibit of "baby" or May birds that are egg producers par excellence in Barred Rock and white Leghorn breeds, and Mr. Carruthers has some poultry plant equipment as a further exhibit.

Belgian hares, Flemish Giant and white Angora rabbits have a place in the show, also pigeons of the pouter, homer, and fantail varieties. There are guinea fowl with their shawl-like markings and a little curiosity, all by itself, in one lone, little white-crested duck of a species that is rapidly passing into oblivion.

Although the waterfowl exhibit is small, the quality is very fine. There are some big White Holland turkeys and a few bronze specimens, also geese of the enormous variety, in

AWARD OFFERED FOR MAN'S ARREST

Montreal Paper Will Give $1,000 For Information As To the Whereabouts of Schnabel.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 10. — A reward of $1,000 was offered to-day by the Montreal Herald for information leading to the arrest and conviction of George Schnabel who is wanted by Montreal Police in connection with the case of wife, Florence Schnabel, whose body was recently exhumed from at Cornwall.

The reward is offered to any person other than a detective or police department employee.

In Retirement Title Would be Retained; Rejects Proposals

High Council of the Salvation Army Adopts Resolution Asking General Bramwell Booth, Leader For the Past 16 Years, To Retire From Post.

MEMBERS ADJOURN UNTIL SATURDAY MORNING TO PERMIT DELEGATION TO WAIT ON GENERAL BOOTH

Commander-in-Chief Submits Letter Asking That a Commission Be Appointed Until He Is Able To Take Command—Proposal Is Rejected.

SUNBURY-ON-THAMES, Eng., Jan. 10—(Canadian Press) High Council of the Salvation Army to-day adopted a resolution asking General Bramwell Booth, leader of the Army for the past 16 years, to retire from that post because of the condition of his health.

At the same time it was made clear that in retirement he would retain his title of General and continue to enjoy the honor and dignities attached to it.

The resolution was made public in a communique issued from Sunbury Court this morning. It was adopted after the council had considered a letter dated January 6, which had been received from the head of the army. The text of this letter was not given out, but it is understood that in it the General asked the high council to appoint a commission to act for him until his recovery.

The council's reply was a rejection of this proposal, saying that it was improbable that at his age he would recover sufficiently to resume the labors under which he had broken down.

Adjourns Until Saturday

The high council of the Salvation Army adjourned late to-day until Saturday morning to give seven members appointed to wait on General Bramwell Booth with a resolution suggesting his retirement an opportunity to visit him at his seaside home.

Fifty-six Sign

An impressive silent ceremony preceded this action. The council had decided to send a letter, couched in affectionate terms, to the General. It sang the hymn "Oh God, Our Help in Ages Past" and then the draft of the letter was laid upon the table of the president of the council.

One after another the members of the body walked up the centre aisle of the council chamber and signed what each one regarded as an historic document. Fifty-six of the sixty-three councillors affixed their signatures, it was stated.

"It was a veritable sacrament," said one commissioner in describing the proceedings.

In some Salvation Army quarters there was an element of doubt as to whether Mrs. Bramwell Booth would permit the deputation to see her husband. It was stated that if this contingency arose, the question of definitely passing upon the physical fitness of the General would immediately arise before the high council.

The requested resignation involves an interesting situation in view of the fact that General Booth is sole trustee of the Army's property and funds. Upon retirement, therefore, he would need to execute a deed divesting himself of this trusteeship. Recent British laws abolished all one man trusteeships and therefore future control of the Army treasure would be vested in a body of trustees. This is what the reformers in the Army desire.

LONDON, January 10 (Canadian Press). — The Daily Mail to-day says it understands that General Bramwell Booth has placed the administration of the Salvation Army in the hands of the Council.

The newspaper says that the Commander-in-Chief forestalled a plan to depose him by his surprise announcement that Chief-of-Staff E J. Higgins would be president of the Council, with the General's sister, Commander Evangeline Booth, and his daughter, Commissioner Catherine Booth, and two other prominent commissioners as members.

This Council is appointed pending

SLIGHT GAIN IS NOTICED IN KING

His Majesty Is This Morning Reported To Have Passed a Fair Night.

MAY GO TO SPAIN.

LONDON, January 10 (Canadian Press). — It was authoritatively stated at Buckingham Palace that King George had passed a fair night, and that there was no change in his condition this morning.

Last night's bulletin reporting a gain in strength for the patient was one of the most satisfactory features of the recent development of the case, indicating that the King was on the upgrade, and comment this morning in authoritative quarters confirmed this impression.

The improvement is extremely slow, but not slower than was anticipated.

The Prince of Wales called at the palace this morning, and was still there when Lord Dawson of Penn and Sir Hugh Rigby left after an hour's consultation with Sir Stanley Hewett.

There was gratification both at Buckingham Palace and generally today that King George's physicians had been able to report a slight gain in his strength.

As persistence of extreme weakness continued to be the main hindrance to his recovery, this gain was welcomed everywhere with comments of satisfaction. It was felt that if the gain were maintained, it would remove the chief concern of the physicians and stimulate the rate of progress which has been distressingly slow. Emphasis was laid upon the fact that the improvement noted extended to the King's strength, which is an item of chief importance at the present state of the illness. Last night's bulletin said:

"The King had a quiet day. The local condition makes steady progress and there is a slight increase in strength. No further bulletin will be issued until to-morrow evening."

There was growing confidence that the King's recuperative power had not been misjudged. The fact that violet ray treatment was being administered only at longer intervals was cited in this connection.

MADRID, January 10 (Canadian Press). — The possibility of King George coming to Spain to convalesce from his illness has been discussed by the Spanish Cabinet. Premier Primo de Rivera, on leaving the meeting, said that while nothing definite had been decided, it was probable that King George would rest somewhere in Southern Spain.

Beechnut oil can be used for soap or for lighting, but the cake is poisonous to cattle.

Non-Stop Flight Around the World Is Planned By Col. Goebel, Noted Distance and Speed Pilot

WICHITA, Kansas, Jan. 10 (Canadian Press).—The most daring Project of aviation—an attempted non-stop flight around the world—which heretofore had been regarded as beyond the realm of possibility, to-day appeared near realization within the present year.

Furthermore announcements of projected flights, made here and in Paris yesterday, suggested the possibility of a race to realize that dream of all endurance and distance fliers. Both flights would be refuelling ventures and were suggested by the sustained flight of 150 hours made by the American Army monoplane Question Mark, in California.

From a sick bed here, where he is recovering from severe illness and an operation, Col. Arthur C. Goebel, noted distance and speed pilot, announced that he intended to be first to take the air in an effort to girdle the globe without a stop. He tentatively set August or September for the flight, which he said would be west to east, from Wichita to Wichita.

Judge and Jury Of Old Bailey Discuss Lon Chaney Prisoner Guilty Of Murder Claims He Saw His Face

LONDON, Jan. 10.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The judge and jury at the old Bailey to-day discussed what was called the "terrifying" performance of Lon Chaney in the moving pictures when Robert Williams, 28-year-old carpenter, was sentenced to death for the murder of Julia Mangan, an Irish housemaid, in Hyde Park.

The prisoner pleaded he was in an epileptic fit when the crime was committed and had been terrified by a vision of Lon Chaney's face. He remembered nothing of the crime, he said.

"If any of you members of the jury have seen even advertisements of Lon Chaney," said Mr. Justice Humphreys, "you may agree it is enough to terrify anybody. If the prisoner saw that film you may not think it remarkable or as in any way indicating insanity that he should in a moment of emotional excitement remember the horrifying aspect of an actor in a part in which he was purposely being terrible."

SPORTSMEN ALLEGE INEFFICIENCY

DEPARTMENT IS UNDER FIRE AT MEETING OF PROVINCIAL GAME AND FISH COMMITTEE

Charges of Political Interference Made By Sportsmen From All Parts of Ontario.

CASES CITED.

A. L. Killaly Defends Policy of Water Levels in Kawartha Lakes.

TORONTO, Jan. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Open charges of political interference in the fish and game administration of the province vied with other allegations of departmental inefficiency in providing the chief features of the sitting which the select committee on fish and game of the Ontario legislature held yesterday at the parliament buildings.

Sportsmen from Sault Ste. Marie to the Rideau Lakes and from the Mattagami River to the St. Lawrence attended the sitting, drawn there by reason of their concern over the depletion of the province's game and fish resources. Their recommendations proposed more game wardens, the prohibition of spearing and netting, and a general survey of provincial waters with a view to re-stocking. The sportsmen also intimated dissatisfaction with the administration of the provincial fish and game department, and intimated that politics played a part in its enforcement program.

General innuendos in the speech of W. C. Warburton, president of the Ontario Anglers' Federation became open charges when W. R. Griner of Hamilton, took the floor and spoke in opposition to the sanction given by the government to the spearing of fish in Hamilton Bay. Spearing had been discontinued in Georgian Bay and Lake Simcoe at the residents' demand, he commented.

"I know of cases," he added, "where infractions of the law existed in my own home district and the law was not permitted to be carried out because of political interference. Many a time I have known a certain member of parliament who has interceded on behalf of a culprit and has prevented that culprit from being arrested. That is not right."

Another case in which influence was alleged was in the maintenance of the water levels in the Kawartha Lakes. Superintendent A. L. Killaly, of Trent Valley Canal, was on hand to defend the policy of water regulation in the Kawartha district, and was called upon to answer the charge that the lakes were emptied so suddenly in the spring that quantities of bass and muskalonge spawn were left high and dry and prevented from maturing. George Potts, of Bobcaygeon, charged discrimination, alleging that whereas Buckhorn and Pigeon Lakes did not have their levels maintained, Sturgeon Lake was not allowed to fall.

SMOULDERING PAPER CAUSES FIRE SCARE

Smoke Issuing From Campbellford Post Office Cellar Cause of Alarm.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 10.—(Examiner Correspondence)—Local firemen ran into a baffling situation early yesterday morning when they were summoned to the Corkery block to locate a blaze. Smoke was issuing from the cellar grates on Front Street and it was believed that there was a fire in some of the cellars in the block. Each one was investigated without finding anything amiss. The cause of the trouble was finally located in rear of the postoffice where some live coals had been inadvertantly dumped on some rubbish. The smoke from the smouldering paper was being drawn into the postoffice cellar and issuing through the grate on the street at the front of the building.

Following his usual custom, the postmaster had tended the fire when he came at five-thirty to despatch the outgoing mail, and had dumped the ashes from the back veranda. They happened to fall on some old wall paper. At seven o'clock, a fireman on his way to work, noticed the smoke coming from the grating and the alarm was sent in. The investigation disclosed the smoulder. ing rubbish heap between the postoffice and the canal wall as the source of the trouble and not a fire inside the building.

Woman Jumps 30 Feet To Escape Flames

MELFORD, Sask., Jan. 10.—Hurling herself through a window thirty feet from the ground, in order to escape flames that were destroying her apartments, Mrs. Alfred Jones was saved from death to-day when C. F. Lutes and J. Barry rushed out of a store and caught her. Last night she was being cared for at a neighbor's home, and though suffering from cuts on her face and hands, and from shock, her condition was not serious.

BIG DISTILLERY MERGER DISCUSSED

W. J. Hume President of Walkers Is In Consultation With Other High Officials.

TORONTO, Jan., 10.—(Canadian Press).—Commenting on the rumour that efforts were underway to form a merger of Canadian and British Distilleries, a Toronto paper states:

"W. J. Hume, the President of the company (Walker's), was in the city yesterday in consultation with other officials, but, at the time the market closed, no announcement had been made regarding the result of these deliberations. There was a report in the street that Fisher Brothers, who conduct a large investment trust, were sponsoring the projected merger of the Canadian and British distilleries, but whether anything will come of the negotiations it is impossible at the moment to say."

AIR MAIL ROUTE FOR MARITIMES

New Service To St. John and Halifax Will Start On January 28.

POSTMASTER ANNOUNCES.

OTTAWA, Jan. 10.—A new air mail service between Ottawa, Montreal, St. John and Halifax will be instituted on Jan. 28. Hon. P. J. Veniot, Postmaster-General, announced today.

Mail from eastbound transcontinental trains will leave Ottawa by air at 6 a.m. arriving at Montreal an hour later. This will be added to Toronto mail arriving in Montreal by train at 6.55. A heavy aeroplane, with a carrying capacity of 1,000 pounds, will leave the field at St. Hubert, near Montreal, at 7.30 a.m. and will arrive at St. John shortly after noon. The plane will then continue to Halifax with mail in time for the afternoon delivery. The return schedule has not as yet been completed.

A saving of twenty hours for mail destined to St. John will be effected, and similar saving between St. John and Halifax.

The new service between Montreal and St. John will be bi-weekly at the start, but, it is expected, will be extended if it proves feasible. Daily flights between St. John and Halifax will be made.

Postoffice officials explain that the nature of the country between Montreal and St. John renders the flights very difficult, and trouble may also arise from the lack of suitable landing facilities at Halifax.

Consideration is being given to the movement of transatlantic ships, and the days of the week on which the major link of the service will be operated have not been finally settled.

DEFENDS ACT.

Professor Caesar Believes Corn Borer Menace Can Be Stopped From Spreading.

GUELPH, Ont., January 10 (Canadian Press). — Maintaining that there is good reason to believe that it will be possible to hold the corn borer which has spread to every county in Old Ontario, as far west as Manitoulin Island and as far north as New Liskeard, in check, Professor L. Caesar, Provincial Entomologist, defended the Act and the methods of control now being used, at yesterday's session of the Ontario Agriculture and Experimental Union.

PLAN TO WAGE FIGHT AGAINST TELEPHONE BILL

Col. G. R. Geary, M.P., Says Attitude of Last Year Is Unchanged.

PROTECT PUBLIC.

Toronto Member Contends the Vital Point Has Not Been Touched.

TORONTO, Jan. 10.—Repetition of last year's opposition is assured for the Bell Telephone capitalization bill when it comes before the approaching session of the Federal Parliament. After reading the first of a series of advertisements by which the telephone company hopes to foster a sentiment favorable to their legislation, Col. G. R. Geary, M.P., the leader of last year's fight against the measure, stated yesterday that he saw no reason for altering his attitude.

Col. Geary stated that his position at the coming session would be unchanged. The advertisment of the telephone company, which outlined generally the company's need for the additional $75,000,000 capital which it seeks to have authorized, failed entirely, he contended, to touch the vital point which is at issue, namely, the terms upon which the additional stock shall be offered to the company's shareholders.

Question of Stock Issue.

"When a public utility, such as this telephone company, has been built up to an immense valuation by public support, then I contend that some protection should be given to the public in the manner in which it does its financing," Col. Geary stated, averring: "The stock should be issued upon such a basis that a reasonable share of its premium will go to the benefit of the company's treasury, rather than simply as a bonus for the stockholders."

Col. Geary did not consider that the Bell Telephone Company had as yet established its case for the additional capitalization it was asking. He expressed himself as prepared, however, to listen to reasonable argument upon this point.

Need for Capital

A company such as the telephone company, he contended, should be obliged to satisfy Parliament of its need for additional capital, of its inability to raise it in the form of low interest bearing bonds, and, finally, of its intention to issue it upon such a basis as would not bear unfairly upon the company's subscribers, imposing upon them the burden of supplying a huge additional sum to pay the dividends on the enlarged capitalization.

LUMBER DEALERS HAVE GOOD YEAR

President Says Outlook For 1929 Is Very Bright, Many Going To Build.

TORONTO, Ont., January 10 (Canadian Press). — F. B. Van Dusen, of Brockville, speaking before the twelfth annual convention of the Ontario Retail Lumber Dealers' Association here yesterday stated that Ontario's lumber industry had made substantial progress last year in all its branches, and that the outlook for the 1929 season was very bright.

He referred to the larger number of building permits which had been filed in 1928, and stated that there were more people talking building than in previous years. Mr. Van Dusen said he hoped that some day there would be established an executive council consisting of all the representatives of the industry to which the more difficult problems could be referred for careful solution.

TWO TRAPPERS FEARED LOST

Left Port Arthur in 1927 For Wilderness of Great Ungava Country.

HOPED TO GET ARCTIC FOX.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., January 10 (Canadian Press). — Fear that John Palmquist and John Doe, Port Arthur trappers, who outfitted here and left in August, 1927, on a trapping and exploration trip into the wilderness of the great Ungava country, have perished is expressed by Port Arthur friends.

Palmquist said before his departure that he and his partner did not expect to be more than a year or fourteen months in the wild lands, as he had important business on hand that would bring him back to the city.

It was the intention of the two trappers to wait at Moose Factory for a Hudson's Bay steamer, with the hope of being carried across James Bay and up the eastern shore of Hudson Bay. Their ultimate destination was the country lying between the Great Whale and the Little Whale Rivers. They wanted to follow the Little Whale into Upper Seal Lake, where Palmquist expected to trap Arctic fox. They also hoped to uncover mineral deposits in Ungava.

MENTAL RESEARCH ASKED.

Petitions Are Presented To Have Age of Marriage Raised To 21 Years.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 10 (Canadian Press).—A strong plea for the Ontario Government's co-operation in the matter of mental research was made by a deputation from the Provincial Council of Women which waited on members of the Provincial Cabinet yesterday.

Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, acting as head of the Government in the absence of Premier Ferguson, received the deputation. He gave a favorable hearing to the requests. Mrs. R. G. Smythe, head of the Council, headed the deputation.

The deputation expressed the hope that if any money was forthcoming from any source for the purpose of furthering mental hygiene research that the Government would supplement it.

Other requests were: Extension of provisions of the minimum wage act to include boys under 18 years of age; that grants made to school boards or societies financing the musical education of a school be equal to those given in connection with the teaching of domestic science or agriculture; that the Department of Education ensure that children be taught the dangers in connection with consumption of alcoholic drinks; that part of the funds of the National and Provincial Research Councils be devoted to research into better housing, clothing and feeding of the family.

Four petitions were presented in connection with the marriage act, asking that the legal age of marriage with the consent of parents be raised to 16 years, and the legal age without consent to 21 years; that the consent of the mother as well as the father be necessary in marriages under 21 years; that certain diseases in their infectious stage be made a bar to marriage, and that each party to a marriage have the legal right to a certificate of health from the other party.

GRAIN TO RESIST RUST AND FROST

Hon. W. R. Motherwell Makes Prediction In Ottawa Speech.

PROSPERITY FOR CANADA.

OTTAWA, Jan. 10. —(CP).—Within the next few years Canadian experts will have developed scientific means to resist both frost and rust in the great wheat empire of the prairies and the newer Peace River fields, Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, said, when addressing the first day's session of the Eastern Canada Fruit and Vegetable Jobbers' Association her yesterday.

"Canada" is a great next year country," said the Minister. He meant, he explained, that no matter what conditions of one time were Canadian people had a habit of pinning their faith upon the future and working whole-heartedly for the prosperity of to-morrow.

He did not wish to intimate that Canada had passed through anything but the most satisfactory period recently, said Mr. Motherwell. There had been a tremendous wave of prosperity and development in business during 1928, and the future appeared to be even brighter.

Mr. Motherwell urged the jobbers to remember that quality and high standards of goods produced meant much in competitive markets. He recalled an instance in England where consumers had lost confidence in the Canadian article simply because its high standard had been allowed to lag.

Grading of produce would have the tendency to allow the producer to share in the premium of price for the high grade articles for which the consumer invariably was willing to pay a high figure. It was only just that the producer of high grade material should receive some share of this premium, the Minister said.

He spoke, too, of the value of the Jobbers' Association in assisting the Government to solve its problems for the benefit of the public. And he added a word of encouragement for its business efficiency and morality, urging the need of strict ethics and honest service.

Solid Bridge Of Ice Connects the Two Shores

NIAGARA Falls, Ont., January 10 (Canadian Press). — A solid bridge of ice connected the shores of Canada and the United States below Niagara Falls last night. The presence of ice cakes in the upper river has caused rum-runners to transfer their operations to the lower river. It is reported here that the United States border patrol at Lewiston and Youngstown has been strengthened to prevent success of the smuggling operations.

Prisoner Is Asked To Identify Body In Fatal Shooting At Ottawa Inquest

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 19.—(Canadian Press).—The unusual procedure of calling upon a prisoner, charged with murder, to identify the body of his victim, was invoked by the Ottawa authorities, at the inquest into the death of Pietro Parrotta shot to death Tuesday night by Bruno Massina, his brother-in-law.

After the jury had been sworn in and the remains viewed, it was found that there was no one to identify the dead man. As a final resort, Messina was summoned, and shackled to two detectives, formally identified the body as that of Parrotta, whom he has admitted slaying. The inquest was then adjourned until January 17.

INSURANCE RATES TO BE INCREASED

Underwriters Plan To Charge For Automobile Insurance in Canada.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 10.—(Canadian Press.)—Automobile insurance rates throughout Canada are to be increased sharply, as much as 50 per cent. for legal liability and as much as 25 per cent. for collision, it was announced here yesterday following a meeting of the Canadian Automobile Insurance Underwriters' Association. The increases will be graded to differentiate between urban and rural areas.

It was stated that the ground upon which the increased rates would be put into effect, were that business under present conditions was unprofitable and that Canadian rates are lower than those prevailing in the United States.

It was announced that after a survey of present rates at the meeting, it was decided that "adjustments were imperative."

TOOK DOCTOR'S ADVICE —COLD GONE NEXT DAY

Many Here Find Way to End Colds Overnight at Home by Hospital Tested Method

By taking the advice of her doctor and using a method that has relieved even the most extreme hospital cases, Miss Martha Willis, like numbers of Peterboro people, found the quickest way to get rid of a stuffy cold.

Miss Willis, for example, had neglected her cold several days in the hope that it would clear up of its own accord. Instead, it started settling in her nose passages and chest. She began to feel feverish, and the doctor was called for advice, when pneumonia was feared.

Relief began almost immediately when he advised double strength doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a concentrated mixture of wild cherry, terpin-hydrate and other ingredients used in treating even the most extreme hospital cases. She felt its comforting warmth instantly—from her nose passages deep down into her chest. In a few hours the redness of her eyes disappeared; her nose passages began to clear up and in another day or so the cold was completely gone.

Note: Other cases reported daily—all certified by attending physician.

Just a few pleasant spoonsful of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral now and you, too, will feel like a different person to-morrow. Endorsed by leading druggists.

Thousands Pay Tribute As Final Rites Are Performed For Rickard

NEW YORK, N.Y., January 10 (Canadian Press). — Tex Rickard was buried yesterday, after funeral services in a crepe-draped Madison Square Garden he leaves behind as a monument to his vision. After brief and simple services, in marked contrast to the spectacular things in which the sports promoter dealt in life, his body was interred in a cemetery where a wife and child rest.

A crowd of 10,000 sat in awed silence in the seats whose occupants in other days and nights have alternately cheered or hurled jeers and boos at referees and athletes.

The hush was profound as an organ played, a quartette sang, and two clergymen and two laymen paid tribute to the memory of Rickard—"a man without meanness in his heart."

Every branch of sport was represented in the throng, and many who had no connection with athletics joined. The man for whom the last rites were being said had aided scores of charities and representatives of these bodies were there to add their tribute.

Leaders of the Salvation Army from many parts of the world are meeting in London, England, in an effort to settle the question of future control of the organization, it being the contention of many that final authority should not be vested in an individual. There is a feeling Gen. Bramwell booth, shown here in No. (2) with his grandchildren, and who has been critically ill for some time, should be replaced by either Commissioner E. J. Higgins, No. (1) or Evangeline Booth, No. (3), commander of the Salvation Army in the United States; No. (4) is Mrs. Bramwell Booth, who is supporting her husband; No. (5) is Commissioner Henry Mapp, international secretary; No. (6) is Colonel Mary Booth, daughter of the General; No. (7) is Lieut.-Commissioner Maxwell of Toronto, and No. (8) is Commissioner David Lamb, director of immigration.

SOCIETY PRESENTS PLEASING PROGRAM

Music By Coldspring's Orchestra Feature Event of Evening.

SPRINGVILLE, Jan. 10.—(Examiner Correspondence).—On Friday evening January 4 the Springville-Fairmount Literary Society was provided with a delightful program of music by the Cold Spring's Orchestra.

Despite the poor condition of the roads and the prevailing sickness in the community the attendance was very good.

At the close of the musical program Mr. Kitney spoke of the progress of the orchestra—its growth from a small beginning.

Miss Bennett, superintendent of Cold Spring's Sunday School, told in an interesting manner of its use and benefit to the school.

Fred Wilson spoke in favour of putting forth a similar effort at Springville. A vote of thanks was moved by S. S. Staples and seconded by Rev. A. H. McConnachie, for the splendid evening's entertainment given the society. Lunch was served at the close of the program which included the following selections by the Orchestra:—"The College Girls", "Onward Christian Soldiers", "Evening Slumbers", "Home Songs", "Work for the Night is Coming", "On Duty", Love and Roses" and "Abide with Me." Readings were given by Miss J. Tully and other numbers on the program included, "My Jesus I Love Thee"—clarinets; cornet solo, Harold Wilson; piano solo, Harold Kitney; duet, John and Charles Kitney; brass duet, Harold Wilson and Harold Kitney, and brass quartette, "I Need The Every Hour."

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., January 10 (Canadian Press). — Owing to the further strength displayed in the future grain markets yesterday, local cash grain prices were again stronger at the close, but the volume of business was small, the demand being still somewhat limited from country buyers. Manitoba No. 6 wheat all-rail in car lots was quoted at $1.06, and by water at 99c, with feed wheat at 94c per bushel. Manitoba feed barley advanced 1½c per bushel to 76½c. Canadian Western oats were unchanged.

A feature of the flour trade was the improved demand from United Kingdom buyers for spring wheat grades and a fairly large business was booked for January-February shipment and some for March. A fair amount of business was also done with the Continent and the British West Indies. The winter wheat trade was quiet.

The local United States demand for millfeed was fair and values were unchanged. Standard grades of rolled oats were steady under a good inquiry.

Jobbing prices for all grades of fresh and storage eggs were reduced another two cents per dozen which was attributed to the weakness of the wholesale market. The demand was good. Receipts were 1,562 cases.

The undertone to the butter market was firm, but the trade was of a limited character. Receipts were 81 packages.

The cheese trade was without any new feature to note. Receipts were 94 boxes.

The potato market continued firm, with trade moderate and increasing. Prince Edward Island Whites sold at 84c, and Green Mountains at 88c per 90 pounds, in bags. New Brunswick Green Mountains sold at 65c per 90 pound, in bulk.

Canadian beans sold well at $5.25 to $5.40 per bushel, wholesale.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 10. — (Canadian Press). — Corn value bulged more than 3c a bushel and wheat nearly 2c. Widespread unfavorable conditions hampering the movement of the corn crop was largely responsible, together with enlarged European buying of wheat from North America. Notice was also taken of renewed talk about chances of farm legislation during this session of Congress.

Closing quotations on corn were buoyant, 2¾ to 2¾ to 3 1-8 net higher. Wheat finished 1 3-8 to 1 7-8 up. Oats 7-8 to 1 1-4c advance and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12.

Corn trading especially developed into a broad affair yesterday with prices of all deliveries advancing to new peaks for the season. Offerings whether of future deliveries or of corn available for immediate use turned out to be entirely too meager to stem the general buying rush that took place, and the stampede to purchase was given further impetus through forced execution of standing orders to stop losses for speculators who heretofore had espoused the selling side of the market. Forecasts of stormy weather ahead were also a stimulating factor as pointing to worse delays than those due at present to extra moist conditions which particularly in sections of Iowa and Kansas have made roads impossible and put a stop to rural hauling.

Contributing to the upward swing of the corn market were Argentine advices which tended to arouse anxiety as to the Argentine corn crop outlook. There were also dispatches at hand indicating that other cities had been outbidding Chicago for rural supplies, and that considerable corn export business was in progress. Under such circumstances, the volume of corn trading here became the largest seen in some time, and the market closed practically the day's topmost prices.

Wheat market advances were influenced by the big gains in corn and by estimates that export purchases of wheat yesterday amounted to 1,700,000 bushels, including some domestic hard winter wheat at the Gulf of Mexico. There was also talk current that visible supplies of wheat will show a steady reduction from this time on, particularly in the United States. Attention was likewise paid to reports of precarious prospects of domestic winter wheat unprotected during recent freeze-ups.

Oats as well as wheat were higher owing in large degree to sympathy with corn. All deliveries of oats rose to within a fraction of the best figures on the crop.

Provisions were somewhat unsettled, with hedging sales in lard on advances, but with commission houses buying on the price dips.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

TORONTO, Jan. 10. — Wholesale egg prices declined sharply under the combined influences of liberal offerings and extremely light buying in the Toronto market yesterday. Fresh and storage supplies were quoted from 2c and 4c a dozen lower and the extreme decline was even larger for some storage graces. Wholesale quotations generally ruling during the first half of the week failed to attract buyer, with the result that yesday's revision was made with a view to moving the increasing local supply.

Fresh extras, delivered in Toronto, were quoted at a range of 42c to 43c a dozen, a drop of 2c to 3c, while fresh firsts ruled at 34c to 35c on the same delivery basis. Wholesalers offered 27c for fresh seconds. With extremely dull conditions ruling in the market for fresh eggs, storage supplies formed the bulk of yesterday's trading, but at lower prices.

Distributive Prices Drop.

Distributive egg trading was also marked by sharp downward price movements. In an effort to stimulate the movement of fresh supplies which have increased as a result of the recent improvement in country road conditions, wholesalers offered fresh firsts to retailers at a range of 48c to 50c a dozen in cartons, with firsts at 40c to 42c. Storage extras were marked down to a range of 36c to 37c in cartons, compared with 38c to 39c on Tuesday, while storage firsts were quoted at 33c to 34c.

The butter market also moved in an easier trend, with prices showing a decline of a half to one cent a pound. Finest No. 1 creamery was quoted at 40 1-2c to 41c a pound, delivered in Toronto, but wholesalers found some difficulty in moving quantities into distributive channels, due to the impending arrival of New Zealand supplies.

New Zealand butter was not generally quoted, but the possibility of sales at 40c produced a cautious attitude among prospective buyers. Number 2 grade domestic creamery showed a corresponding decline, at a range of 39c to 39 1-2c a pound, delivered in Toronto.

There was no perceptible change in wholesalers quotations to the retail trade, these remaining at 44c to 45c for No. 1 prints, with No. 2 prints at 42c to 43c.

The cheese market was extremely quiet at a nominal price of 20 1-2c for new, large cheese, waxed, No. 1, Government graded, delivered in Toronto.

Roberts, M.A., LL.D., F.R.S.C., who will be in Peterborough next Monday, 14th to lecture under the auspices of the Women's Canadian Club is the greatest figure in Canadian literature. The "Globe" says "he is the master craftsman of the whole field of Canadian literature." Not only as as poet, historian, novelist, scholar and writer of nature stories and tales depicting animal psychology, which have been translated into many languages, has Dr. Roberts won fame, but also as a gifted lecturer. He has a wonderfully attractive personality, an unusually fine voice, an entirely unaffected manner. His listeners get a literary feast of good things supplied by a man who has made the name of Canada famous by his poems and other writings all over the world.

This lecture which will be given in the Conservatory of music Hall on Monday evening, is open to the public who can secure tickets from members of the Club and at Kent's Drug Store, and a crowded hall is expected to hear this very eminent man. "The Manitoba Free Press' said the following of Dr. Roberts after hearing him lecture:

"An hour goes by, an hour and a half, and the only sound in that auditorium is that of applause, laughter, the ticking of a clock, and the voice of a man who appears to be indulging in a casual conversation with some cronies of his. The pillars, the great organ loft and high galleries fade. Friend is talking with friends. Major Roberts has entered into his hearers' house of life."

Bliss Carmen says:—"There is a dignity and firmness in his attitude towards the problems of this little earth, characteristic of the ampiest-minded artists of all times."

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

RESTRICTING THE INFLUX.

The announcement from Hon. Robert Forke that steps will be taken to restrict immigration from continental Europe will be received with satisfaction by most Canadians.

The fact that during the past year the flow of immigration from Europe was greater than the combined total of newcomers from Great Britain and the United States made some effort to adjust such a situation necessary.

Granted that most of these continentals make good citizens, yet Canadians of British stock could not watch the people of their race being outnumbered 3 to 1 among the arrivals in the West without feeling that a somewhat undesirable condition was being created.

Canada is not so desperately in need of new people that she has to accept all the continental Europeans who want to swarm in here.

Certainly they should not be admitted in greater numbers than new settlers from the British Isles, and Mr. Forke in planning restrictions to prevent the West from being over-run is moving wisely and in the best interests of the whole country.

Canada must remain British—even if that entails slower growth.

THE CANADIAN LEGION.

An active campaign aimed at bringing into its membership large numbers of Peterborough ex-service men who have not yet allied themselves with the organization is being launched by the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion.

In the interest of returned men themselves, and also in the interest of the community, it is to be hoped that this movement will enjoy success.

It is a good thing for veterans as well as for the city in which they live that this organization of returned men, linked up with similar bodies all over the Dominion and throughout the Empire, should be strong and flourishing.

Although Canada's overseas men have been home from the great adventure for a decade, there are still problems arising out of their service that need attention, still comrades requiring help, still injustices that should be righted.

An organization of ex-veterans, keeping alive the spirit of comradeship that distinguished the Canadian fighting forces, can do much for returned men and, incidentally, much for their home communities.

The Examiner would be delighted to be in a position to report that practically all the ex-service men in the city and district had become members of the Canadian Legion.

ENFORCING THE VOLSTEAD ACT.

The Volstead Act is the law of the United States, made operative through the consent of more than two-thirds of the State Legislatures and, furthermore, endorsed by the vote in the recent presidential election.

The American people adopted prohibition, the American people rejected a presidential candidate who was opposed to prohibition; the American people must, therefore, see to it that prohibition is enforced.

That it has not been enforced up to the present is clear, and failure along that line doomed the present conference between United States and Canadian representatives to ineffectiveness.

Until better proof has been given of the desire of the administration across the border to effectively prevent the sale of liquor within the United States, neither the Canadian people nor the Canadian Government can be blamed for lack of enthusiasm regarding suggestions from the United States pointing to the enforcing of the Volstead Act on the wrong side of the international line.

Once convinced of our neighbors' sincerity in regard to prohibition, we over here will be more ready to listen to such recommendations.

At present there is no desire to attempt to do for the United States what that country has but lethargically tried to do for itself.

WHY NOT FOR GIRLS?

The request of the Council of Women that a training school for girls on similar lines to the boys' farm at Bowmanville should be established in Ontario, is one that might receive favorable consideration from the Government.

The splendid results achieved in the handling of boys at Bowmanville justify the prophecy that a girls' institution conducted in accordance with the same principles would be equally successful.

In the case of the boys' farm, the expense has not been all met by the Government, but such organizations as the Rotarians and the Kiwanians have contributed generously.

Premier Ferguson in this regard took the position from the first that the training farm would have greater chances for success if it were not entirely a Government institution, and it is presumed that should the girls' training school project be undertaken assistance from other bodies would be expected for the same reason.

The percentage of failures among the boys has been so small that the scheme may be considered a complete success.

The Bowmanville farm has passed the experimental stage and is regarded as one of the most satisfactory plans for dealing with boys who are handicapped by home conditions or other circumstances that has been devised.

There is no apparent reason why girls in the same conditions could not be taken care of with equally satisfactory results.

DIPLOMACY AND SPORT.

The national game of England is not cricket, but football—that brand of it which is known in this country as soccer—and from time to time teams representing England or Scotland, as well as some of the crack clubs, have gone into other lands to give exhibitions of the game at which British players were universally believed to be supreme.

But soccer has caught on tremendously in foreign countries, especially in Germany and in South America, and to the surprise of the Britishers as well as the natives, some of the British teams were beaten as often as they won.

Naturally the foreigners believed that their own local players were just as good or better than the professionals who went over on educational tours to show them how to play the game.

Incidentally, the real reason for these defeats is that the players regarded such tours in the light of holiday trips with nothing at stake, and they never exerted themselves.

So often did these beatings occur that British football stock has fallen in certain countries. But there has been an unusual development.

It appears that a tour was being arranged in a foreign country for next season, and the British diplomat in that country, knowing the calibre of the players the Britishers would have to meet, and having knowledge of the blots on the British escutcheon in other lands, wrote to the British Foreign Office and invited the Government officials to take the matter up so that the Football Association would send the very best team they could muster.

This hardly seems a matter of official concern, yet there must be some sports among the higher officials of the British Foreign Office, because they sent representations to the Football Association on the matter.

There is also something far more significant behind the action than that.

It is a recognition on the part of the British Government that British prestige abroad suffers when its football teams are defeated, and that the men who represent Great Britain at football are ambassadors who play an important part in British relations with foreign countries.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

TEX RICKARD: KING OF BALLYHOO.

Tex Rickard (George Lewis) came out of the movies and the pages of Rex Beach and Jack London to do the thing in real life. The modern American scene, with all its strange characters, its charlatans, mountebanks, bosses, ballyhoo artists, sporting magnates and gambler adventurers, threw up nobody quite like him. Meeting him at the Waldorf Astoria, New York, where he lived, he was just the ordinary denizen of Wall Street. Well groomed, quiet spoken, courteous, affable, he struck the average observer as the typical New York broker.

He was much more than that. Born in Kansas, which, according to William Allen White, has "raised more Hell" and strange adventurers than all the States of the Union put together, Tex Rickard proved that truth was stranger than fiction. Thirty-three years ago he was in the first mad rush to Klondike. He prospected, dug gold, gambled, won money, lost it; did all of the things that bad men did in the pages of Robert Service. Then he drifte d back. He punched cows in Texas; gambled in Arizona, New Mexico and Nevada; was as much at home on Arizona sands as on Alaskan snows.

To the core of his heart, in his very marrow, he was a gambler. It was said of him that he went into Goldfield with a pack of cards and came out with a million dollars. Yet he didn't always win. Almost as often as he raked in other men's gold he stood on the other side of the green-topped table and saw his cash raked in by the other fellow. But he kept on gambling—gambling with life, and fate, and fools. Chiefly, in the end, with fools. These, finally, made him wealthy.

When he had tired of adventure in the "wide spaces," he came to New York. He found the big city easy. No one since P. T. Barnum had such a genius for capitalizing human folly, no one else perceived quite as clearly that "a sucker is born every minute." Rickard, in fact, became the King of Ballyhoo: a master of mob psychology. The Johnson-Jeffries fight, in which he capitalized racial prejudice to rake in a cool $100,000 taught him what could be done with the masses. The result was the "battle of a century." Georges Carpentier was but a fair middleweight. But he was a Frenchman, a soldier under Foch; and Rickard knew the value of that. So he brought poor Carpentier to America; called him "gorgeous Georges"; told of his gallantry and heroism; pictured him as a young Adonis; played upon the fancy and folly of every movie-mad flapper and sentimental patriot in the land. The end was slaughter for Carpentier, but much gold for "Tex."

After that, it was easy. Rickard had proved that Barnum was right; and he had mastered Barnum's technique. Nor did he confine himself to the peanut-eating, ginger-beer drinking class from whom Barnum reaped his harvests. Rickard perceived that people had changed, though their natures hadn't; so he went into Wall Street. There, he hobnobbed with millionaires, with the new rich. He put on benefit milk-fund bouts for Mrs. William Randolph Hearst and the Vanderbilts; brought women with low-necked gowns and diamond necklaces and men who "played the market" to Madison Square Garden. They made excellent window-dressing; got him more space in the papers.

The Dempsey-Tunney bouts are recent history. Nobody but a genius, nobody but an Emperor of Ballyhoo, could have staged them as Rickard did. There were those long months when, played upon by Rickard's master hand, we all read the news from the training camps, Dempsey, "the old Dempsey of Toledo"; Tunney, Tunney the scholar, the impeccable, moral young man who read Roger Bacon and Shakespeare; Tunney, the "Fighting Marine"—which would win? Right up to the curtain there was the suspense. And when the climax came, and millions "listened in" and other millions read bulletin boards, and tens of thousands sat in a driving rain to see the gladiators battle, Rickard counted his two million gate.

All down through history there have been Tex Rickards. If their methods have differed, it was simply because they lived at different times. But in the main, they have been alike. They have all gone on the principle that men like to be fooled, that all of them can be fooled some of the time and some of them all of the time, and that all that is necessary to get away with the fooling is a knowledge of mass psychology. Rex Rickard had that in abundance. He was the great advertiser, the peerless disciple of Ballyhoo: the most picturesque, colorful and romantic figure this age of "promotion" has thrown up. It will be some time before we look upon his equal.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Nothing seems to have transpired at the rum-running conference to give the rum-runners much cause for worry.

You can materially assist in the success of Old Home Week by sending in the names and addresses of old boys and girls to the committee. This information is essential to the success of the event.

A Sioux City (Ia.) citizen has been arrested 117 times for drunkenness since the beginning of last year. A remarkable record in a dry country!

A Thought

FAILURE AND SUCCESS

Our highest hopes are often destroyed to prepare us for better things. The failure of the caterpillar is the birth of the butterfly; the passing of the bud is the becoming of the rose; the death or destruction of the seed is the prelude to its resurrection as wheat. It is at night, in the darkest hours, those preceding dawn, that plants grow best, that they most increase in size. May this not be one of Nature's gentle showings to man of the time when he grows best, of the darkness of failure that is evolving into the sunlight of success. Let us fear only the failure of not living the right as we see it, leaving the results to the guardianship of the Infinite.—William Gordon Jordon (The Majesty of Calmness).

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

FRIDAY, JANUARY 11, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Planetary influences of much power are strong today, according to astrology, which reads that the morning hours should be especially auspicious for industry.

The lunation of this date indicates that unusual activity will mark the building trades, it is announced.

Agriculture again is subject to stimulating influences that promise relief from handicaps and increase in profits.

Trouble over competition between motor transports and the railways is foretold by astrologers.

The opposition of Saturn and Mars is interpreted as presaging serious international problems abroad, involving Germany, Poland, France and the Balkans.

For months astrologers have warned of epidemics in all parts of the world that will make the winter a time of anxiety and trial. They declare that pulmonary ills will multiply from this time on.

St. Louis, Memphis and New Orleans should be especially careful to observe sanitary precautions and to provide for care of the ill who suffer from colds.

In contrast to the darker predictions are many that promise much to the people of the United States. There will be an art awakening of such wide interest that it will embrace the entire country.

Music will be more and more appreciated, it is prophesied, and really great American artists will multiply.

In art the extreme modern influences will be modified and once more there will be a striving to present the beautiful instead of what is repulsive or freakish, astrologers foretell.

One of the signs of the times will be a tendency to value men and women according to their actual attainments, ignoring sex and recognizing achievements.

With the passing of the old era the feminist movement will be forgotten, it is pointed out, and women will gain their right places.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a successful year in finance and business. New channels of activity probably will open to men and women, but they should be careful in investing their money.

Children born on this day probably will be ambitious and able to attain high ideals. These subjects of Capricorn usually like what is novel or unusual. Many lawyers are born under this sign.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE BUY WHAT WE DON'T NEED

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

We all buy many things we don't need. High-powered salesmanship and clever advertising are largely responsible. Things are made so attractive that we come to believe them essential to our happiness, even though down deep in our hearts we know that they are no more necessary than a third leg.

The object of all advertising is to create new wants. We don't realize how badly we need a ten dollar letter opener or a twenty dollar pair of silk hose until these objects are pictured so vividly, and suggest elegance so alluringly that we fall for them.

Strictly speaking we never buy what we don't need, but we often buy things that meet a fancied rather than an actual need. These objects satisfy pride, and the love of self display rather than a practical need. They are roses instead of bread and butter.

The great majority of us need to exercise care in selecting essentials, the things which will give us the most lasting satisfaction. Nor is it always easy to determine what we need and what we don't. Ordinarily the need to eat is more urgent than the need to go to a concert. Yet there are times when a man may well scarifice several meals for a good concert.

"Buy what you don't need and ere long you will sell your necessities," said the wise old Ben Franklin a long time ago. We may indulge in fancied needs only rarely, if we do so at the expense of a fundamental need. It is foolish and short-sighted to buy what you don't need. You cheat yourself of something that would bring you greater happiness.

We buy what we don't need because we have not will power enough to decide for ourselves. Frequently we are carried off our feet by pride and the envy of our neighbors. We are motivated by the desire to keep up with those who can better afford to be extravagant than we.

Now and then we buy what we don't need just to enjoy the thrill of careless abandon and indifference to consequences.

CHARGED WITH THEFT.

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Knight Cooper, former district manager for the Continental Life Assurance Company appeared in city police court yesterday morning on a charge of theft arising out of the disappearance of some $210 from the defining account which he held with the company. Accused is at present out on bail of $4,000, to appear in court on January 17.

THE LUCKIEST LADY

— By —

Ruby M. Ayres

XXIX—MOONLIGHT AT SEA.

When would the end come, and what would it be? Either she would see Hugh Hubbard again, or else there would be nothing any more—just nothing.

"Tired tonight?" George Paget asked after dinner, and with an effort she roused herself and declared that she had not felt so fresh and wide-awake for years.

That pleased him.

"Good! I've got two stalls for a show," he said. "Thought you might feel a bit dull, with Hugh just gone."

Marna laughed.

"Silly! Why ever should I?"

Paget looked a bit ashamed.

"Oh, just thought perhaps you might, don'tcherknow," he said. "Hate people goin' away myself. Good sort, Hugh; one of the best."

"Yes."

"I sent the wire, you know. Just good luck, bon voyage, and all that sort of thing."

"Yes. He will be pleased."

Paget looked at his watch.

"Well, we ought to be starting," he said.

"I'll get my cloak. What show is it, "Musical comedy." He grinned at her boyishly. "Can't stand the other sort of tripe."

"That will be fun."

Fun! Marna laughed to herself as she went upstairs. Would ever anything be fun again? She felt as if her life was at an end.

The Little Flapper came into her room for a moment.

"I'm going to bed. I'm tired," she said. "I think I've got a bit of a cold."

"Have you? Get Annie to bring you something hot."

Marna kissed her absently and went downstairs again.

Harnigan was there with the big car.

"I'm glad it's not the little car," Marna said unthinkingly, as George got in beside her.

"Are you? Why?"

"Because——" She checked herself in time. She had been going to say "Because last time I was in the little car Hugh drove." That was all over. She and Hugh would never drive together again. Every moment now carried him farther from her.

The musical comedy was noisy, and very little more than a show of legs and scenery, but George loved it.

He applauded everything and admired all the chorus-girls.

"Rattling fine lot!" he said; he passed Marna his glasses. "Look at that second girl from the left. Some figure—eh?"

He was like a boy in his harmless enjoyment; he would have been amazed if he could have known how heartsick the woman beside him was feeling.

"Toppin' show! Best show I've seen for years," he declared as they left the theatre. He held his wife's hand all the way home.

"Haven't been out alone for ages," he said happily. "Quite like old times—eh?"

"Yes."

"Still happy to be with me, Marna?"

"Of course."

Such an effort to answer naturally! Marna pressed her feet hard to the floor of the car. She did not want to be with anyone; she just wanted to be alone, to hide herself somewhere in the dark, or to go to sleep and never wake up again. But she knew she must go on acting, acting!

When they reached home she went at once to her room, and when Paget followed her she gently checked him.

"I'm so tired. Do you mind sleeping in the dressing-room?" Then, as she saw the blank look on his handsome face, she said again, with a sob of utter weariness: "Don't mind, dear, but I am so deathly tired."

"'Course not! You've been gaddin' about too much. Must take it gently for a time." He bent and kissed her. "Sleep well."

"I shal sleep like the dead."

But, once in her room, Marna made no effort to undress or go to bed. She just sat down by the window in the darkness, and jerked back the curtains to look out at the night.

It was moonlight. It would be moonlight at sea, too, she knew—glorious moonlight. She shut her eyes and visualized a big ship ploughing its lonely way through vast waters.

What was Hugh doing? Awake, perhaps, and thinking of her as she was thinking of him; or perhaps he was pacing the deck with Saunders' sister . . .

Hours afterwards she fell asleep, still sitting there, her head resting on her arms on the window-sill, and there, early in the morning, George Paget found her.

He had wakened up suddenly and with a queer apprehension, and had flung on his dressing-gown and gone to his wife's room.

It was getting light, but the moon was still bright in the sky, and by its paling rays he saw Marna crouched by the window, still in the frock she had worn last night.

For a moment he stood looking at her, petrified with fear.

She was very pale—or was it the moonlight?—and she looked very young—almost like the girl he had married—but she did not look happy. There was a little, drawn line about her mouth, as if she were in pain, or perhaps as if she wanted to cry, and when at last he gently touched her, to rouse her, she started up with a stifled moan.

"Marna! My dear—are you ill?"

"Ill?"

Marna was on her feet, swaying with sleep, staring at him with unrecognizing eyes; then she laughed and made a gallant effort to recover herself.

"I must have fallen asleep. What time is it? I'll undress at once and go to bed."

He looked at her ruefully.

"It's time to get up, almost. Nearly seven."

"Seven!" She colored incredulously beneath his gaze. "And I've slept there all night!"

"Yes, and in the moonlight. Bad for you, Marna, don'tcherknow."

She laughed again without much mirth.

"Yes. I shall be funny in the head, George." She put up her hands to her hair. "It only shows how tired I really was. I told you I was tired."

He regarded her anxiously.

"I don't like it. Don't like it at all. You ought to see a doctor."

"What nonsense!" She was wide awake now—wide awake to the pain of another endless day. "I shall be quite all right when I've had a bath and changed. I wonder what made such a thing? I don't remember a word about it!" She put up her hand and touched his face. "Run away, and don't look so scared. I'm quite all right."

"I don't like it, Marna," Paget said again. "You ought to see a doctor."

But he went reluctantly away, and Marna began to undress. Her head ached miserably, and the thought of the day before her was like a strangling hand at her throat. Nothing to look forward to any more—just emptiness!

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

A COLD ON WILLIE'S CHEST

The world is full of great affairs,
And women have the vote,
And they have made these problems theirs,
I'm very glad to note.
But what are legislation, jazz,
The tariff and the rest,
When Mother finds that Willie has
A cold upon his chest?

Yes, just let Willie cough one cough,
Tonight from school returned,
And all these world affairs are off,
As far as she's concerned.
The world may go to war or not,
It may be wrong, or best,
She doesn't care, for Willie's got
A cold upon his chest.

It always has been that way, too,
And will forever more.
The talking men will have to do,
Just as they have before.
For here's the greatest issue now,
North, south, or east or west,
At least to Mother anyhow,
The cold on Willie's chest.

Oh, Mr. Hoover, Coolidge, Smith,
You're mighty great and grand,
When nothing is the matter with
The Willies in this land.
But greater far than your affairs
Is one you never guessed;
And that's when Mother finds that there's
A cold on Willie's chest.

"GET THAT CAR!"

NEW YORK, January 9. — Thus cried Dr. Louis White, when he looked up while reporting the theft of his auto to a policeman. The officer commandeered a passing car and caught the thieves, whereupon the good doctor visited his patients and told them all about it.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S CHOCOLATE CAKE

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

"Are you coming to my party?" asked Lulu Wibblewobble, the funny girl duck, as she waddled up the front steps of Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow one morning before school.

"Your party?" cried Uncle Wiggily, who was getting ready to go out and look for an adventure. "I didn't know you were going to have a party, Lulu. It's very kind of you to ask me. Of course I'll come! When is it?"

"Tonight," quacked the girl duck. "It's a surprise party."

"A surprise party!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily with a laugh. "I hardly think it can be that, Lulu. You see when you have a surprise party the one for whom it is given must be surprised. That is they mustn't know anything about the party until they get to it and every one calls out: 'Surprise on Lulu!' or something like that. So I think your party isn't going to be a surprise one."

"Oh, yes it is!" quacked Lulu, who seemed quite certain.

"Who is the surprise for?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "It can't be for you because you already know about it."

"Oh, no, I'm not surprised!" laughed Lulu. "But you were surprised when I asked if you were coming to my party, weren't you, Uncle Wiggily?"

"Of course I was, Lulu. It was a great surprise to me."

"Then we'll call it your surprise party!" quacked Lulu as she ran on to school so she wouldn't be late. "Be sure to be there, Uncle Wiggily. Don't forget my party!"

"I'll be there!" promised Mr. Longears and then, instead of going out to look for an adventure as he had intended he hopped back into the kitchen where Nurse Jane was giving the dishes their bath.

"Well, what is it now, Uncle Wiggily?" asked the muskrat lady housekeeper. "If you want to make another ice pudding you just can't! That's all about it!"

"Oh, but Janie! I don't want to make an ice pudding," said Uncle Wiggily kindly and with a reproachful manner. "I want to make a chocolate cake this time."

"I don't want any chocolate cake!" said Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"No, perhaps you don't," spoke Mr. Longears. "But I'm going to make one and it will be a surprise for Lulu," and the rabbit gentleman took off his glasses and rubbed them on his necktie to make them clean so he could see better to make the chocolate cake.

"What do you mean—a surprise for Lulu?" asked Nurse Jane.

"Why," explained Uncle Wiggily, "that poor little duck is getting up a surprise party, but she can't be surprised for she knows all about it. Though it was a surprise when she asked me. But if I were to bake a chocolate cake and take it to her then she would be surprised, wouldn't she?"

"Very much surprised indeed," laughed Nurse Jane, "if you could bake a chocolate cake that would be any good. You don't know how!"

"Oh, don't I?" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Well, if you'll just get out the flour and eggs and baking powder and lard and mustard and chocolate and mix them up for me into a cake I'll open the oven door so it will bake as nicely as you please."

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" laughed Nurse Jane.

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"The idea of putting mustard in chocolate cake!" cried Nurse Jane.

"Oh, well! I'm not fussy about a little thing like mustard," said Mr. Longears. "Leave it out if you like. Come on, Janie!" and he twinkled his pink nose so sweetly that the muskrat lady gave in and helped him mix the chocolate cake and then he opened the stove oven door for her.

"Talk about you making a chocolate cake!" laughed Nurse Jane when it was all done. "Seems to me I did all the work."

"Well, I thought of it," said Uncle Wiggily proudly. "Anybody can mix up sugar and milk and flour and baking powder and mustard—no, I forgot—we won't put any mustard in. Well, anybody can mix up those things if they have 'em. But it takes a smart rabbit to think of making a chocolate cake to give a surprise to a little Wibblewobble duck girl who is going to have a party."

"Oh, hop along with you!" laughed Nurse Jane. "You always get the better of me somehow or other. Take the cake!"

So Uncle Wiggily took the cake, wrapped in a clean napkin and along he hopped over the fields and through the woods that night to the duck house.

Trent River

TRENT RIVER, January 10.—The first big snow storm of the season accompanied by high winds came on Monday, causing the roads to become very dangerous for cars. The roads were covered with ice before the snow fell.

Personals

Miss Clara Jenkins, of Norwood, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Redden

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Redden and son Rufus were recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jenkins, of Norwood Road.

Miss Madolin Ruttan returned from Toronto on Monday evening after spending the holidays with her sister, Mrs. E. Howse.

The door receipts from the play, "The Man Outside," put on by Hastings talent under the auspices of the Trent River Efficiency League amounted to $44.30, twenty dollars of which will go to the players and the balance to the League.

[Weltman won the cross at the above-mentioned certain field on the concession]

CANADIAN LEGION B.E.S.L.

Peterborough Branch

LITTLE LESSONS IN LEGION OBJECTS

8. To see to the maintenance and comfort of those who require special treatment, of the disabled, sick, aged and needy; and to promote the welfare of the women, children and others their dependents.

One pension adjustment case has been successfully prosecuted by the Legion this year, so far. A comrade who had been receiving only $40 a month for a disability reported to the Legion, and his case was taken up with the authorities, with the gratifying result that yesterday notification was received of an increase of $16 a month, retroactive to August, 1928.

This is only a sample of the work done by the Legion in Peterborough. Veterans who, through ignorance of the provisions and extent of the Act have not been receiving the pension to which their war disabilities entitle them, have but to report to the Legion to have their cases taken up and considered.

It is not only in this way that the Legion looks after the men who for four years so successfully defended the principles for which the Empire stands. Yesterday afternoon the relief committee gave help to a veteran who had, through no fault of his own, been thrown out of employment. He was not a member of the Legion, but the Legion took no account of that.

• • •

Some say the Canadian Legion is not so necessary now as it was ten years ago, but the facts prove that it is becoming more needed every year. Disabilities unsuspected when men, eager to be quit of army life, signed "A1" papers in 1919, are now manifesting themselves. Men who had pensions adequate to their needs at that time, when unmarried, find that through war disabilities they are unable to support families, and the Legion believes that they should not be deprived by services for Canada, of that home life to which every man aspires.

• • •

The Legion exists to see that the desire of the people to adequately care for all those men who from 1914 to 1918 gave their lives and youth and health for the country shall be carried into effect.

ANSWERS J.B.

Editor, The Examiner.

Sir,—I read with interest a letter over the initials "J.B." in Saturday's Examiner. He says an Australian named Albert Scott helped England to beat Australia at Lords in 1891. There is no first-class player of that name recorded in the game at that time.

Perhaps he means "Albert Trott," but unfortunately for "J.B.'s" accuracy, Trott did not come to England until 1896. Moreover, there was not an Australian team in England in 1891 for Scott or Trott to play against. Neither Trott nor any other Australian ever played for England.—Yours, etc.,

OLD PLAYER.

TEAMS ARE AMATEUR

Editor of Examiner:

Dear Sir.—England won the series of test matches in Australia by a good margin. It was, as I pointed out, a struggle between mother and daughter in sport, and in one of the most beautiful games in the world. In the eyes of the sporting world, however, the side which always plays professionals, and not always natives at that, is not on exactly the same level as that country (Australia) whose teams are always amateurs and natives of Australia. The news of the recent victory, however, was headlined across all the great English papers. In England they recognize Australian supremacy in amateur cricket, as in tennis, which is, however clearly amateur in all countries where it is called so. Australia for years ruled the water in sculling. She sent some of the finest fighters like Jackson, the colored man, who even entered the ring. Fitzsimmons called himself an Australian, but was born in Cornwall, England. But the fact that Australia is supreme in amateur sport is not nearly so wonderful as the fact that South Africa is on a level with Australia in amateur cricket, and the West Indies almost on a level. In amateur sports the supremacy went years ago from Scotland and England to France and the United States in golf and tennis. Women in sport from both the United States and France have far excelled Old Country girls and Australia, too, while Canadian girls are runners and jumpers. The Olympic Games showed the world what amateur sport is and who is supreme except in cricket. Canada excels at only one game, and that is hockey. New Zealand, whose population is only one million, is champion of the Empire in football. We have had some good fighters and skaters and oarsmen, but Australia is champion sport of the Empire with South Africa and New Zealand second in some things and, England and Canada next. Even in rifle shooting Australia leads. —J. B

NEW YORK MARKETS

Over STOBIE-FORLONG & CO. Wire

2.30 P.M. Quotations

Toronto—Understand that Noranda for the month of December has produced 3,800,000 pounds of copper. They have also run into 250 ft. of high grade ore 350 ft. west of the shaft, in the direction of the Murray property. The stock looks very attractive at present prices.—Sig. Anderson.

Toronto— We hear that developments on Amulet during the past ten days have been the most important of any on this property in the last fifteen months. Yesterday's buying in the market was particularly well informed.—S. F. Co.

Toronto—On Noranda—a diamond drill, situated in a drift approximately 300 feet west of number 3 shaft, has been in ore from 500 feet level to an additional length to 215 feet, and at this time is still in ore. This may be a continuation of "H" orebody or possibly a new body. There is a distance of about 500 feet from "H" body to Murray boundary, which leaves a chance of the drilling being in this area. When this has been determined, the outcome will result extremely encouraging for both Noranda and Mining Corporation. The company have another drill situated further west of number 3 shaft, situated on 975 ft. level, driving a vertical hole, dipping a little to the northwest of number 3 shaft. It is not locally known if this campaign is on "H" orebdy or the recetnly rumored new body northwest of the diabase. The company is purchasing another drill, number four shaft is now down 275 ft. Output of three million eight hundred thousand pounds of blister copper for December last, recorded.—S. F. Co.

BIG MISSOURI

Toronto believes Consolidated Smelters no longer discounting bullish news coming from Big Missouri. Recent buying is said to be coming from excellent sources and we look to see stock go conliderably higher.

News From the Mines

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

Noranda.

We are now reliably informed that the drilling campaign from the 500 foot horizon of Noranda was directed towards the "H" orebody and was purely for informatory purposes. The drill was set up at a 75 degree angle, dipping north-west, and we understand the hole was put down 304 feet. Excepting the first 40 feet, the remainder of the hole was reported as being in high-grade copper ore.

Amulet.

According to advices received yesterday from Rouyn, another five-foot round has been taken out of the raise in the "C" orebody of Amulet. The most signifiant feature of this ore is the complete absence of zinc. Precious metal values alone, we are informed, will run as high as $10.00 a ton, and the copper will grade between 15 and 20 per cent. As no lateral work was done in this particular vicinity from the 125 horizon, it is not possible to give an estimate of the importance of this recent strike. However, the very high grade character of the ore is a most important feature in itself.

MANDY

Officials of Mandy report that sinking operations have been resumed and completion of the shaft to the 1,000 foot horizon should be effected in March. Foundations for the new compressor are practically completed, and when this machinery is put into operation enough air will be provided to operate several more drills, with a consequent speeding up of underground operations.

NORANDA

Lower level lateral work at Noranda continues to confirm previous diamond drilling indications. On the 725 foot level a crosscut with the face still in ore has been driven for slightly more than 125 feet, showing a grade of from 12 to 15 per cent. copper with some gold values. On the 975 horizon drifting has been carried for 100 feet east and west, with similar results. Much additional ore is being indicated in the "C" orebody, which on the upper levels was comparatively low grade, similar to "H." Diamond drilling between the 500 and 700 foot levels is showing much high-grade copper ore, and there appears to be a striking improvement in grade with depth.

MOND NICKEL

We are now informed that the drift at the 2,800 foot level in the Frood Extension has been advanced for a distance of 600 feet from the crosscut and is all in ore with an average value of $48 gross per ton. Three crosscuts have been driven across the ore zone, indicating widths of 180, 160 and 130 feet respectively. Although the shaft has been completed to the 3,300 foot level, no lateral work has been carried out below the 3,100 foot horizon. It is now believed that the bottom of the shaft may be pumped out to permit exploration of this lowest horizon. Diamond drilling has indicated that the ore grows progressively richer as greater depths are attained, and later work to date has proved these indications.

The diagram shows the proposed development of the Great Lakes and Atlantic Canal and Power Company in the province of Quebec to proceed with which authority will be sought at the next session of the Dominion parliament. The proposed development proceeds from a point close to Valleyfield, Quebec, along the St. Louis river to Laprairie basin, where it is estimated 2,800,000 horse-power can be developed within the next four years. From there, in the discretion of parliament, the line would run to a point south of Montreal or a canal would be constructed from Laprairie basin to the Richelieu river and so on to Sorel. Deepening of the St. Lawrence at Sorel is making the same water level on the Richelieu and St. Lawrence and eliminating the necessity for the lock at St. Ours on the former river. The plan of the Great Lakes Co. is alternative to the proposal of the Beauharnois Co. to proceed by way of Melochville to Lake St. Louis and the Laprairie basin. Promoters of the Great Lakes Co. announce that they will be able to provide the Ontario Hydro Commission with energy at $12 per horsepower when their undertaking is completed as compared with a price of $16 now paid by the Hydro for power developed at Gatineau on the Ottawa river. They add that they will deliver the power to Hydro at the interprovincial boundary and that Hydro would not be obliged to incude any heavy capital outlays for new transmission plant over which to deliver the power to consumers throughout this province.

Wheat and Corn Declines, Oats Market Is Firmer

CHICAGO, Ills., January 10 (Canadian Press). — Wheat prices underwent an early setback to-day and corn also declined. European markets failed to reflect fully yesterday's upturns on this side of the Atlantic, and conditions suggested that foreign buyers were not following advances either in wheat or corn. Opening unchanged to 1c higher, Chicago wheat soon declined all around. Corn started unchanged to ⅝c off, and subsequently showed a moderate general drop. Oats were firm. Provisions also tended to advance.

Past Year a Record For Dominion Life

A fifteen per cent increase in new business over the preceding year, is the record established by The Dominion Life Assurance Company of Waterloo during 1928.

With actually $30,033,000 of business recorded for the twelve months, the company exceeded the high objectivev set at the beginning of the year, at the same time showing an increase in business of more than $4,000,000 over the preceding year.

Although enjoying steady, consistent development since its establishment forty years ago, the growth during the past ten years has been particularly phenomenal—the company having quadrupled in size during the decade and now having over $125,000,000 of insurance in force in Canada.

FINE PROGRESS IS BEING MADE IN MANITOBA

North Part of Province Is On Eve of a Great Expansion Era.

BIG UNDERTAKINGS.

Province Will Take Its Place Among Mineral Producers of Dominion.

OTTAWA, Jan. 10.—The pre-Cambrian region in northern Manitoba and more particularly that area adjacent to the Saskatchewan boundary now stands on the threshold of a huge mining expansion. With the progress that has been made in railway construction, mine development and exploration, northern Manitoba is now about to take its place among the mineral producers of the Dominion. The major operations are at Flin Flon and Sherritt-Gordon mines. A part of the Flin Flon's large ore body extends over into Saskatchewan, but the Sherritt-Gordon mine is thirty miles east of the Manitoba-Saskatchewan boundary. Another property, the Mandy Mine, famous for its remarkable shoot of high grade copper ore, which was worked to a depth of 225 feet between 1916 and 1919 and produced over $2,000,000 worth of copper ore, is located about three miles southeast of the Flin Flon and one mile east of the Saskatchewan boundary. Numerous other properties which are spread over a wide area and which can reasonably be expected to contain the nucleus of valuable mines are being explored and developed by the many mining companies operating in this district. Although no attempt has been made to prove the Flin Flon ore body below 900 feet, it is estimated that their is sufficient ore in sight above this level to keep a 3,000 ton smelter going for twenty years.

Construction Held Up

Actual construction of this smelter has necessarily been held up during the past season awaiting adequate transportation, but the completion of the Northern Manitoba railway from The Pas to Flin Flon in record time now assures an early start on this large undertaking as well as on the 36,000 horsepower hydro-electric plant at Island Falls seventy-five miles farther north. In the construction of the latter, many thousand tons of freight will have to be hauled more than seventy miles over iced roads by tractors through a veritable wilderness. This freight will include 16,000 tons of cement and fifty or more pieces of machinery ranging from twelve to twenty tons each. Coupled with this huge construction program of smelter and power plant is a 75 mile power transmission line. The draining of a part of Flin Flon lake, in order to mine a part of the ore by open cast is in itself an engineering feat of considerable magnitude. It is expected that within a few years a town with a population of 5,000 and provided with light, water, and other modern conveniences will have grown up.

Diamond Drill Campaign

In the vicinity of Kississing Lake, the Sherritt-Gordon mines have added greatly to the known mineral resources of this region. A systematic diamond drill campaign has been adding consistently to the known extent of this huge deposit, while an energetic program of development under ground has been rapidly placing this property in shape for production. Surface diamond drill results would appear to indicate that the ore zone of this property has a total length of 13,000 feet or two and one half miles. The present underground work is being carried on by means of two shifts 7,000 feet apart. The recent announcement of the Canadian National Railways guarantees early rail transportation for this very important and promising property.

In order to lend all possible assistance to the development of the mineral resources of northern Manitoba, the Department of the Interior last summer established an office at The Pas in charge of an experienced mining engineer. This office not only undertakes the supervision of the technical field work in the administration of the mining regulations but through it the Department at Ottawa is brought into close personal contact with the problems of those working in the district.

PRICES ADVANCE ON WALL STREET

Easier Credit Conditions Tend To Strengthen New York Market.

BUYING FEATURES.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 10 (Canadian Press).—Easier credit conditions and favorable trade news, including an unexpectedly large increase of 303,712 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation last month, provided the groundwork for another brisk advance in prices in to-day's stock market. Renewal of selling pressure against some leading industrials caused a temporary sinking spell around midday, but fresh buying support was quickly supplied, and a long list of issues advanced 3 to 10½ points above yesterday's final quotations.

Maintenance of the Bank of England's discount rate at 4½ per cent. allayed fears of any immediate increase in the new York Federal Reserve Bank rediscount charge, as Wall Street has been led to believe that a higher London rate would precede any advance here. Call money renewed at 6 per cent for the first time since mid-November, and the financial district looked for a large reduction in brokers' loans after the close of the market.

Allied Chemical came back into the speculative spotlight by soaring 10½ points to a new high record at 259. American Machine and Foundry, National Bellas Hess and Radio (old) all sold 9 points higher.

Among the many other issus which sold at their best prices in years, if not for all time, were Electric Auto-Lite, America Steel Foundries, Commonwealth Power, Otis Elevator, Continental Baking A, and B, Real Silk Hosiery, Worthington Pump B, Stewart-Warner Speedometer and Underwood Elliott Fisher, the last named responding to the announcement of the acquisition of the Neidich Process Co., manufacturers of typewriter supplies.

Ed. Morris, Boston Red Sox pitcher; Irving Cloud of the Eastern Shore League; George Burdine of Evansville of the Three-I League; Jack Crouch of Wichita Falls; Carle Boone, Indianapolis, and Cecil Jones, Mobile, have reached Balboa in the Canal Zone to participate in the Winter League games there.

First Sip Shows How Different

Buckley's Mixture is quite unlike old-style cough syrups. It's a scientific combination of proven medicines. Very pleasant to take, yet literally acts like a flash in relieving Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Lagrippe, "Flu" and other dangerous developments. The first dose stops a coughing spasm —and there are 40 doses in a 75-cent bottle. At all druggist's —and guaranteed!

NEWSPRINT MANUFACTURE OVERSTEPS CANADIAN MARKET

Consumption Did Not Keep Pace With Fast Growing Production.

RE-ORGANIZATIONS MADE.

Consolidations Will Be Effective in Bringing About Economics in Operation.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 10 (Canadian Press).—Great activity and a great deal of expansion marked the past year in Canada's pulp and paper industry, writes A. E. Cadman of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association. Especially did the newprint branch of the industry develop rapidly, with several new mills, new paper towns at Spruce Falls and Dolbeau and increased production of existing mills. The expansion, however, proceeded at a more rapid pace than the consumption of newsprint, and mills were forced to operate on reduced schedules, even then surpassing the previous year's output by a large margin.

Many re-organizations and consolidations took place during the year, which will be effective in bringing about economies in operation, and it is expected that co-operation on the part of the manufacturers will overcome some of the difficulties and result in further strengthening of the industry.

Production of newsprint in 1928 was on a larger scale than in any previous year, and when the complete figures are available it is probable an increase of about 14 per cent will be shown. For the first ten months of 1928 the output of the Canadian mills amounted to 1,949,165 tons, compared with 1,710,230 tons produced during the corresponding months of 1927. By way of comparison it may be pointed out the production in the United States declined from 1,248,822 tons in the first ten months of 1927 to 1,169,215 tons in the ten months of 1928.

The bulk of the newsprint manufactured in Canada is exported to the United States, which takes each year about 90 per cent. of the total exports. Greatly increased shipments were made, however, to Great Britain and South America, while exports to Australia, New Zealand and South Africa were a little above 1927 figures.

Grades of paper other than newsprint find their principal outlet in the domestic market, and the mills making these grades have benefitted from the satisfactory business conditions prevailing throughout the dominion in the past year. Production of fine papers has been on a larger scale than in the previous year and the mills have been able to operate close to capacity. Development of the book-paper industry has been retarded to some extent by increased importations of this grade of paper made possible by a change in the Canadian tariff permitting a drawback of 80 per cent. of the duty on paper imported for use by magazines and periodicals.

Fine papers are not exported from Canada to any great extent as tariff walls and European competition are formidable obstacles to the development of foreign markets. Australia, New Zealand and Great Britain are our best markets for these grades, says Mr. Cadman, but shipments in 1928 were somewhat smaller than in the previous year.

THE POULTRY SHOW.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I have been interested in the appeal being made by the directors of the Peterborough Poultry Association for a liberal patronage of this very important show on the part of the general public.

I had the pleasure of visiting the exhibition on opening night and was impressed, not only with the number of entries, but also with the quality and variety of the birds shown.

The poultry industry is assuming large proportions in the Dominion This is evidenced by the fact that at the World's Poultry Congress, held in Ottawa last year, there was an attendance at the annual meeting of upwards of five thousand people, with representation from forty-four different countries.

In the Province of Ontario the value of poultry and poultry products amounted last year to the very respectable sum of upwards of $41,000,000. The same report intimates that there are upwards of 19,000,000 head of poultry in the Province of Ontario.

I would like to appeal for a generous patronage at the show on this the closing night.

the return to health of the General, which in any case will be some months.

The Mail also understands that General Booth proposes to appoint a commission to inquire whether any change in the Army is desirable, and if so, to what extent.

The official statement issued from Sunbury court on to-day's development was as follows:—

Expresses Appreciation

"The council resumed its sitting this morning, and after the usual opening services proceeded at once to consider business in connection with a letter of January 6, received from the General. As a result of the deliberations following reception of this letter, the council resolved to communicate with the General and submit to him the following resolution which was passed by the council without a dissentient vote:

"'The council desires to place on record its high appreciation of the life and labors of the General and joins him in gratitude to God for his partial restoration to health, and expresses the hope that this improvement may be maintained;

Suggests Retirement

"'The council being, however, unable to see the practicability of the suggestion made by the General, and realizing that it is most unlikely that at the General's advanced age he can ever recover sufficiently again to take up the burdens under which he collapsed; takes the opportunity of requesting him to co-operate with the council in securing the future welfare of the Army and to that end it resolves that; the General being, as his doctors assure us, capable of considering important questions and giving decisions thereon, the president, vice-presidents and five members of the high council be deputed to see the General and suggest that he should now retire from office, retaining his title of General and continuing to enjoy the honor and dignities attached thereto'."

SENATOR ROSS DIES AT GUELPH

leader in the Senate is deeply regretted among his associates here, where he was held in high esteem.

"I am deeply grieved," said Sir Robert Borden, "by the tidings that the Honorable W. B. Ross has passed away. For more than half a century I have known him intimately, and especially during the early years of our professional careers in Halifax we were close friends. That friendship has never been interrupted and I have always entertained for him a warm affection and admiration. He was a man of distinguished ability of the highest character; of generous instincts and of broad outlook. His death is a distinct loss to the public life of our country."

Sir George Foster commenting on the passing of his associate in the Senate said:

"It is with deep regret that I have heard the sad and unexpected news of the death of Senator Ross, leader of the Liberal-Conservative Party in the Canadian Senate. Although Senator Ross has not been in robust health for several years past, he nevertheless had been able to perform his responsible duties in his accustomed thorough and conscientious manner. His death is a distinct loss to the public life of Canada and particularly so to the Liberal-Conservative Party in the Senate. An able lawyer, a wise counsellor, and a loyal and sympathetic friend, his passing leaves a vacancy very hard to fill."

Three Vacancies

The death of Senator W. B. Ross, Conservative leader in the Upper Chamber, creates the third vacancy in the Senate. More important than that, it leaves the post of Conservative leader vacant. Indications now are that there will be no appointment to this post until parliament meets next month. Then, when the members of the Conservative party in the Senate are all here, it is probable that the selection will be made.

Time is rapidly wiping out the Conservative majority in the Senate, and the two parties are now almost even. Strictly speaking the Conservatives have still a majority of one, but in actual practice this will not necessarily work out. Senator J. G. Turriff, the only Progressive member on the floor of the upper chamber, may, by voting with the Liberals, place the government party on a par with the oppcsition. As a matter of fact there are frequently a number of absentees in the Senate, and the actual majority on any division may be very much affected thereby now that the parties have drawn almost even.

Since the serious illness of Senator Ross, there has been some conjecture as to who would succeed him in the event of his being unable to attend the coming session of parliament. It is difficult, however, to arrive at any definite idea of the probability until the Senators meet. Senator R. L. Calder has been mentioned as a possibility for the post of Conservative leader. Senator G. D. Robertson, a former member of the Meighen Government, is also a possibility. The matter will be settled probably next month.

There are now 48 Conservative Senators; the Senate when all the vacancies are filled has 96 members.

OFFICE TEAM LEADS LEAGUE

Tool Room No. 2 Crew Defeated 3-1 in C.G.E. League Fixture.

CLOSE CHECKING FEATURES.

The Office Hockey Team in Group 2 of the C.G.E. Works' League jumped into the lead last night by trimming the Tool Roome No. 2 team 3 to 1.

The going was fast but both teams lacked combination, lone rushes and close checking being a feature of the play. Weir, Tuck and Playford were outstanding for the winners while Roach and Milliken bore the brunt of the attacking for the Tool Makers.

The teams:—

Tool Room—Goal, H. Hollingsworth; defence, Connors and Craig; centre, Roach; wings, Milliken and Graham; subs. Snowden, Hughes.

Office.—Goal, Adamson; defence, Beavis and Weir; centre, Tuck; wings, Playford and C. Hall; subs., Gray, Payne and Whatley.

Summary:

1	Office	Weir
2	Office	Tuck
3	Tool Room	Milliken
4	Office	Weir

Penalties—Weir.

GIANTS NEED NEW OUTFIELD

McGraw To Re-organize Pitching Staff For 1929 Outfit.

NEW SECOND BASEMAN.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 10 (Canadian Press).—John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, probably will have to go into many a huddle with J. himself and his new assistants, Ray Schalk and Bert Niehoff, before he decides on the permanent personnel of his 1929 outfit.

Second base, the outfield and pitching staff will give the veteran manager food for much thought.

Three-fourths of the 1928 infield cast will remain, Bill Terry at first base, Travis Jackson short, and Fred Lindstrom at third. Second is uncertain. Andy will play the bag, but whether it is to be Reese or Cohen remains to be seen. No matter which Andy is given the assignment, the other will remain on call.

McGraw thinks the outfield problem may develop into an abundance of riches. He added a clever and experienced major league performer to his club when he procured the services of Fred Leach by trade from the Phillies, and Eddy Roush, Melvin Ott and Jim Welch are brought over from last year. If he should decide to have two outfields, he has Tony Kauffman, a reformed pitcher, Art Veltman and Chick Fullis to complete the array of talent.

SMALL STORES ARE SURVIVING ON TRADE

Drygoods Business Still Has Place For the Small Merchant.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 10. — (By the Canadian Press). —Assuring the members of the Montreal Wholesale Dry Goods Association that the day of the small retail merhant is not yet ended, J. V. Porteous, retiring president of the association, at the annual meeting said these small stores required the complete service which the legitimate wholesaler alone could give. Stating the wholesaler had one of the most difficult tasks in the whole chain of distribution to perform, Mr. Porteous said "The retailer is vitally interested in the future of the wholesaler, who has one of the most difficult tasks in the whole chain of distribution to perform. I am therefore of opinion that a large volume of business will pass through wholesale channels for many years to come."

STRUGGLE STARTS OVER SUCCESSION

Grand Duke Cyril is Considered in Line For Head of Russian Royalists.

CANNES, France, Jan. 10.—(Canadian Press).—The struggle for succession to the position held by Grand Duke Nicholas as official leader of the Russial Royalists, seemed to-day to have already started although the tomb had just closed over the Grand Duke's remains.

Neither partisans of Nicholas, however, nor those of Grand Duke Cyril, whom Russians regarded as the rightful ruler of their native land, have yet made formal declarations. Partisans of Nicholas were known to believe that his papers would contain his views as to his successor. Those who favored Cyril considered that any choice but him would be impossible.

NEW YORK CLAMORS FOR MORE SCORING

Three Low Scoring Games Between Gotham Clubs Raises Old Cry.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—That old hockey cry of "more goals' has broken out in New York with renewed force within the last few days, due in part to the almost goalless contests staged between two of the league's bitterest rivals, the New York Rangers and the New York Americans. These teams have clashed on three occasions this season and have recorded the grand total of three goals, the A's getting two and the Rangers one. Their last game ended in a scoreless tie and since then there has been much criticism regarding the hockey rules by fans and critics alike.

William Dwyer, owner of the Americans, announced yesterday that he would move at the next meeting of the National Hockey League for a change in the playing rules, with a view to producing more scoring.

On the other hand Lester, Patrick, manager of the Rangers, believes that the present rules do not need any revision. He claims that his team have done a fair amount of scoring in most of their league games and that the only reason they do not cage the puck more against their intracity rivals is because the A's present an airtight defensive system, which is almost as effective as the famed "Kitty-bar-the-door" style of game perfected some years ago.

Favor O. H. A. Rules.

Tommy Gorman, manager of the A's Captain Lionel Conacher and Billy Burch, star centre, advocate the adoption by the National Hockey League of the rules of the Ontario Hockey Association. This trio believe that the O. H. A. style would open up the game and result in more scoring while the fans would be treated to more spectacular hockey.

"We are no more advocates of defensive hockey than are the Rangers or any other club in the league" said Gorman. "But just as long as the present rules are in vogue, we will be forced to adopt tactics to cope with those of our opponents. Just as long as the rules allow the Rangers to throw four men around their goal and allow Frank Boucher, centre player, to loaf around mid-ice, waiting for the pass out, we will keep Billy Burch our own centre man, back there to cover him."

STEAMER IS SAFE.

Norwegian Vessel Reaches Georgetown Harbor For Load of Potatoes.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Jan. 10. —(Canadian Press). — Fears for the safety of the Norwegian steamer Andres were dispelled to-day when she struggled into Georgetown Harbour from Corner Brook, Newfoundland, several days overdue owing to bad weather. She could not report as there was trouble in her wireless equipment.

The Andres to-day commenced loading potatoes at Georgetown for New York and Havana. Four other steamers are also loading at that port.

TWENTY-ONE DEATHS REPORTED FOR DAY

Continued Abatement of Epidemic Throughout Ontario Is Reported.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 10 (Canadian Press).—Despite an increase of eight deaths when 21 were reported at the City Hall overnight, medical authorities stated the influenza situation is considerably brighter. A continued abatement of the epidemic throughout Ontario is reported from the Provincial Department of Health to-day.

By the end of the week practically every hospital in the city will admit visitors, but only the nearest relatives of the sick person will be allowed to visit. No announcement regarding the admittance of visitors has been made by the Hospital for Sick Children.

While many patients were discharged from local hospitals their beds were taken by new patients, although the new number was not alarming.

WOMAN FACES MURDER CHARGE

Mrs. Annie Oldham is Being Tried for Murdering of Her Infant Granddaughter.

CHILD DIED IN 1922

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Annie Oldham pleaded not guilty in assises yesterday before Justice Jeffrey, to a charge of murder by administering strychnine to Shirley Oldham, her fourteen months old granddaughter, born out of wedlock. The child died May 15, 1922, in the township of East Gwillimbury, where the accused lives.

Mrs. Oldham was found insane at the fall assizes in October, 1922, and has been an inmate of the Ontario Hospital for the Insane at Toronto since that time, until last Saturday when she was discharged from that institution as sane. She was immediately re-arrested.

Witnesses at the trial recalled how the accused had referred to the child as the devil, and had threatened numerous times to do away with it the first chance she had. They told of Mrs. Oldham's own admissions of giving the grandchild strychnine.

According to the testimony of Florence Oldham, mother of the dead child and daughter of the accused, the grandmother treated the new baby "just as any ordinary grandmother would do." Then her whole attitude changed and she could not stand to hear the baby cry. The baby was never left alone with the grandmother because, the daughter said, "she said she would do away with it the first chance she had."

SCRATCH AND BANK BOOK HOLD THIEF

(By Nea Service.)

NEWARK, N.J., Jan. 10.—A scratch on his face and a bank book lost in a scuffle at the scene of an attempted robbery forced a dapper youth to confess his guilt to police here recently.

A 14-year-old girl, Muriel Ainsworth, foiled the thief's attempt to rob the Ainsworth home, by screaming for help and beating off attempts to gag her. The robber retired to the street with the young amazon at his heels.

Then a policeman captured Frederick J. Ensor and Muriel identified him by scratches on his face and a bank book he had lost in battle with the young heroine.

FIVE NATIONS LINKED BY AIR

Four Mail-Passenger Planes Inaugurate Pan-American Service.

AUSPICIOUS OPENING

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 10.—(Canadian Press).—An international air line linking five nations with this country was inaugurated here yesterday with the departure of four mail-passenger planes of the Pan-American Airways for Havana, Porto Rico, and the Bahamas.

They bore an array of distinguished passengers, including Postmaster-General Harry S. New, William P. McCracken, Assistant-Secretary of Commerce for aviation and Miss Amelia Earhart, trans-Atlantic flyer.

Preceded by ceremonies which included playing of the British, Cuban, Porto Rican, Dominican and United States national airs, the first ship took off for Havana at 8.07 a.m. It carried 15 sacks of mail and four passengers, among whom were Mr. McCracken and Miss Earhart.

A second Havana plane, carrying more mail and one passenger, got away 16 minutes later.

The fourth plane winged away for Nassau, Bahamas at 9.05.

Multi-motored Amphibian planes, radio equipped, were used in starting the service over the 1,440 mile Pan-American route, which lies over Havana, Camaguey and Santiago, Cuba, Port Au Prince, Haiti, Santo Domingo City, Dominican Republic, and San Juan, Porto Rico, at the far tip of the West Indies.

Daily service will be maintained between Miami and Havana, a distance of 261 miles, while sailings will be three times weekly to the other points including Nassau. Plans are being made to extend the route later to Panama via Havana and the Central American Republics.

Wedding Bells

BOURRIE—HEFFERNAN

DOURO, Jan. 10.—(Examiner Correspondence).—St. Joseph's Church was the scene of a quite but pretty wedding on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, when Mary Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Heffernan, of Douro, was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Olive Bourrie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bourrie, by Rev. Father M. J. McGuire.

The bride was becomingly attired in a blue crepe frock with hat to match and blue coat trimmed with grey fur trimmings. She was attended by her sister, Elizabeth, who wore a tan crepe dress and coat and hat to match. Anthony Bourrie acted as best man. After a short honeymoon, the young couple will reside in Peterborough.

The first fabric-covered coach is now in use between London and Bournemouth, on the Southern Railway.

IN CONFERENCE AT OTTAWA

Among the representatives of the Canadian and United States Governments, now conferring at Ottawa on the question of checking liquor exports to the United States, are: (2) R. W. Breadner, Commissioner for Customs for Canada; (1) Miss C. L. Borges of Washington, and (3) F. W. Cowan, chief Canadian preventive officer.

POULTRY SHOW PROVES SUCCESS

white Chinese and Toulouse, and a very fine pair of grey Africans.

Black Muscovy ducks, with their red, warty faces, greenish-black Rouens, white Indian Runners, white Pekins and Aylesbury ducks, form other members of the "quack" family that came to the show this year.

Rhode Island Reds score heavily, and have a large section all to themselves. A big exhibitor here is J. Wilson of Port Hope, who won the championship in these birds at the Royal Winter Fair.

Barred Rocks and White Wyandottes have big sections, and there is a large showing of Bantams, in all the varieties of Cochin Black, Buff, black game, Rose comb, Golden and Silver Seabright, and Brahma bantams.

There are the soft white Silkies, with their black faces; classy Blue Andalusians; those aristocratic birds with gunmetal hackle feathers over soft, taupe-blue saddles; big breeding-pens hold Mediterranean and English and American families; Houdans with their fussy topknots peer out at the world like the small lapdogs whose eyes are always hidden from view; there are White Leghorns, pencilled, spangled and black Hamburgs; silver Polish, wonderfully marked in black and white; white-crested black Polish; Dorkins with their fantastic, red chou-like topknots; big, meaty Redcaps, huge Buff Orpingtons that seem to spread out of their pens, so large are they; wide-chested Cornish; black and white Orpingtons; Sussex fowl with snowflake white lacings on their brown feathers; Anconas; Black Minorcas; Partridge Wyandottes; Silver Campines; light and dark brown Leghorns; light and dark Brahmas; sturdy Black Langshans, with the long legs that their name implies, and Partridge, White, Columbian, Black, Silver, and Golden Wyandottes.

Jersey Black Giants, as large as their title would indicate, are interesting birds. A pair of them, dressed, occupies a place of honor on a table with a display of eggs.

Exhibitors from out of town this year include W. H. Bowhey of Aigncourt, W. Deshane of Trenton, J. Wilson of Port Hope, William Abernethy of Campbellford, W. Munro of Grafton, and Frank Andrews of Norwood.

EXPERIMENT MADE FOR SETTLING BOYS

British Boys Go To New Zealand School For Agricultural Training.

LONDON, England, Jan. 10 (Canadian Press).—An interesting experiment in Empire settlement has just been inaugurated; a dozen boys from British schools having left for New Zealand to become pupils at Waitaki School, Oamaru.

Waitaki School is one of the best known in New Zealand, and the system of training pursued there has been the subject of praise by many visitors from England, including the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, Lord Jellicoe, Admiral Halsey, and Mr. Amery. The headmaster, Frank Miller, C.M.G., is keenly interested in the problems of Empire settlement.

The boys will take a one or two years' course of agricultural training before engaging in farm practice. They will receive instruction in agricultural subjects, wool-classing, dairy science, and plot work from experts, and several afternoons a week will be devoted to practical work on adjoining farms in the rich agricultural and pastoral district near Oamaru. The boys who proceed to New Zealand under this new scheme are eligible for assisted passages, provided that they undertake to remain five years in New Zealand to engage in farming after the completion of the school training.

Mr. Milner gave the following guarantee, which means that the boys are given a wonderful opportunity to carve out a career for themselves:

On the termination of a year's course of work at the school, I accept the responsibility for placing the boy with a suitable employer for practical training in such branch of farming as commends itself to him with my approval. I also accept the responsibility of keeping in touch with the lad during this period of probation, and of obtaining for him expert advice. The boy will have the right of appeal to me in the case of any complaint arising out of his employment, and I shall do my best to rectify the same. Before the boy is placed with any farmer, such employer will be distinctly notified that the boy will keep in communication with me or my deputy, and that I shall act generally in loco parentis.

The cost of the boy's outfit is estimated at about $100.00, and $30.00 per term is regarded as a reasonable allowance for incidental expenses. Mr. Milner has arranged for the employment of the boys on farms during the vacations, should they require it, so parents are saved any anxiety on this score. If by any chance no regular employment for the vacation can be secured, free board and lodging will be provided at the school.

The scheme will add considerably to the responsibilities of the headmaster, who has suggested it only because he is interested, as he states, in the transplantation of British public school boys as most valuable colonizing material for the Dominions.

WOMAN MAKES LONG DANGEROUS FLIGHT

Lady Dorothy Mills Travels 2,000 Miles Through French Guiana.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 10.—(Canadian Press.)—The only woman, indeed the only white person, to take part in a 2,000 mile trip through French Guiana to study native religions and witchcraft, is Lady Dorothy Mills, who has organized the expedition and has just sailed from Liverpool.

"I hope to collect masks and idols, and shall go where the spirit moves me," she said. "By travelling alone one goes more into the spirit of the country. I never take any arms on my expeditions because no native or animal will attack unless you interfere first.

"Travelling is in my blood. Witchcraft is a subject that interests me a great deal. African witch doctors give natives medicine mixed with what they call magic, which is something I rather believe in. Their magic seems to be akin to our psycho-analysis or auto-suggestion, and the primitive races know more about nature in the rough than we do.

"They are not all cloaked up in materialism as we are. It is difficult for a white person to see through the barrier of mysticism which stands between them and civilization, and that is why I like to travel alone. It is easier to win the confidence of the natives."

During her trek Lady Dorothy will wear shorts when possible and breeches when necessary.

Eskimo Boys Suffer From Flu Epidemic

Benjamin Andlanak and Samuel Pudlutt, the two nine-year-old Eskimo boys brought down from the Arctic by the Rev. F. H. Gibbs, northern missionary, under the auspices of the Rev. A. L. Fleming, archdeacon of the Arctic, to learn the white man's ways at the Lakefield Preparatory school, have not escaped the flu-pneumonia wave.

It is reported from the school that "Ben" has developed pneumonia but at present his condition is not serious. "Sam" also had a touch of the prevalent illness."

Indiana Town Wants Slow, Quiet Trains

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 10.— Twenty-seven citizens of Cloverdale, Ind., a community of 700 in Putnam County, petitioned the Indiana Public Service Commission for relief from a "loud, clanking electric bell" maintained by the Monon Railroad on its main street crossing at Cloverdale.

They also object to the high train speed.

Heart Palpitated Nerves Bothered Her Sleep Was Broken

Mrs. Fred A. Pugsley, East Southampton, N.S., writes:—"I was bothered very much with my nerves and palpitation of the heart, and my sleep was broken at night.

I decided to try

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

and after I had taken six boxes I found that they had done me so much good I will gladly recommend them to all those who are troubled with sleeplessness caused by their heart and nerves."

Songs you know Voices you Love

Galli Curci . . . Jeritza . . . Ponselle—lovely voices crystal-pure . . . flooding your home with their beauty—brought there by the new Orthophonic Victrola

Melodies that sing away in your memory when the song itself is ended. A flute obbligato that keeps you wondering which is voice and which is instrument, so true to pitch, so resonant are both. Why!—you are at the concert, in your own home! Yet you feel here in your living room you must reach out and touch the living artist!

The seemingly intangible thing that makes musical dreams come true, as often as you wish, is "Matched Impedance", or "Smooth Flow of Sound", something scientists evolved only recently and gave to Victor—for you! Compare the new results with the old—and discover the difference.

For charming homes—you may select a cabinet of fine woods. Electric drive, which costs a little more, if you wish it, eliminates winding. Prices from $1400 to as low as $115 on convenient payments from "His Master's Voice" Dealers.

No Service.

There was no service in the Anglican Church on Sunday. The roads were so dangerous that Rev. Mr. Fenton was sent word not to come.

There was no service in the Presbyterian Church in the evening as Rev. Mr. McCleary was unable to be present.

Pastor Bee preached in the Baptist Church to a small congregation and Rev. Mr. Herrington preached in the United Church in the evening, but the congregation was small owing to so much sickness in the community. Rev. Mr. Herrington did not go to Bethel or Zion because of the dangerous condition of the roads.

Guild Meets.

The Anglican Ladies' Guild held their regular meeting at the home of Miss Morgan on Thursday, January 3, when a pleasant afternoon was spent. After the usual routine business the ladies busied themselves with their fancy work.

Received Message.

Rev. H. B. Herrington received a message on Monday morning that Mrs. Herrington's mother, who resides in Merricksville, is seriously ill and not likely to live. Mrs. Herrington is unable to go to her mother for a few days, being confined to her home with a severe cold. A sister and a niece of Mrs. Herrington's, who lives with her mother, are also ill with the flu.

Roads Very Icy.

On Monday morning, William Crowe started for Peterborough but could not make the grade at Hawthorne's Hill, turning around twice in his attempt. Many backed down the hills and it was necessary for all cars to be equipped with chains Thomas Clements, however, made a trip to Peterborough and back by noon, without a mishap.

Large Class Expected.

Miss Alexander is looking forward to a large class in Warsaw Town Hall, beginning on the afternoon of Monday, January 21.

DAIRY INDUSTRY MAKING PROGRESS

Future Export Trade May Have to be Curtailed to Meet Home Demand.

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 10.—(Canadian Press).—The dairy industry of Canada has never been in a stronger position than at present, declared Frank Herne, secretary of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association at the 62nd annual convention which opened here this morning. Production costs and market conditions were in such enviable relation that both the producer and manfacturer in the industry are reaping good returns. He prophesied that, unless productions were increased, it would be necessary in the near future to curtail the export trade so that the Candian trade could be supplied.

The secretary of the Association predicted a drop in cheese production this winter owing to the seasonable demand for whole milk. James Newbiggin of Atwood, the president, is presiding at the sessions.

W. F. Stevens, of Ottawa, a member of the National Dairy Council advocated compulsory pasteurization of milk for human consumption. Steps were being taken by the council, he declared, to bring about this legislation and he asked for the support of the dairy associations to this end.

An "eat more cheese week" was advocated by him.

RINK OPENS.

Curlers Will Open Season at Lakefield Rink To-night.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 10.—(Examiner Corresopndence).—The rink opened for skating on Monday night with a large crowd present. The skating enthusiasts have been impatiently waiting for the opportunity to enjoy their favorite sport.

The first schedule games in the curlers' schedule will take place on Thursday night.

This has been an unusually late opening for the rink.

Lumber Export.

During the past six months, William Tedford, of Lakefield, has shipped five carloads of timber which includes ties, telephone poles and posts.

A.Y.P.A. Euchre.

Eleven tables were played at the A.Y.P.A. card party on Thursday evening. Prizes were won by Miss Verna Payne and M. Smith while Miss Edith Nicholls and Roger Maloney won the consolation prizes.

FORTY CASUALTIES AMONGST RIOTERS

Japanese Peasants Rise in Rebellion When They Fear Flooding of Rice Fields.

OSAKA, Japan, Jan. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Forty casualties occurred in conflicts between disgruntled peasants and police at the village of Namoru yesterday. Considerable damage was done to property.

The peasants had organized a demonstration against a government riparian project which they feared would flood their rice fields. More than 2,000 of them marched on the village and 300 local police were not able to cope with the situation.

Troops have been dispatched to the Gifu prefecture and the tension to-day had lessened, with both sides adopting a more conciliatory attitude. It was stated that the crowds had not dispersed but there had been no recurrence of the rioting.

DOCTOR ENTITLED TO REWARD BY MILE

Judge in English Court Agrees Charge Is Most Reasonable.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 10.—(By Canadian Press).—"It is the custom of the medical profession that a specialist who goes out of town to a patient is entitled to charge one guinea per mile for the distance travelled," declared counsel in a case before Mr. Justice McCardie in the King's Bench.

Dr. John Henry Douglas Webster, of Cavendish Square, was seeking to recover $515, balance of fees which he asserted were due to him from Miss Muriel Clifford, of Bloomsbury. Miss Clifford had paid $150, and contended that the fees asked were unreasonable.

Dr. Webster agreed with the Judge that, perhaps normally, a doctor adjusts his fees to the social and financial circumsetances of the patient. On 14 occasions the defendant made appointments which she did not keep. Dr. F. H. Humphreys, consulting X-ray physician to the American Hospital, said Dr. Webster's charges were quite reasonable.

Mr. Justice McCardie: "How much money should you want to go to Newcastle"—"200 guineas. I should not only ask that, but I have actually had that amount for Newcastle."

"But I see, according to the timetable, that Newcastle is 268 miles from London?"—"On that occasion, when I was asked what my charge would be, the light was bad, and I mistook 268 miles for 200 miles, and said 200 guineas."

"So you lost 68 guineas through the smallness of the print in the time-table?"—"Yes."

It was clear that the difficulties that arose would not have been caused if doctors would tell their patients in clear terms at the beginning of the treatment the scale of fees they intend to charge, said his Honor. He held that Dr. Webster's charges were reasonable, and that he was entitled to everything except the $150 charged for the visit from Eastbourne to London. In such circumstances a doctor should make it clear that he was going to charge a special fee. He reduced this section of the claim by $130, and he, therefore, gave judgment for Dr. Webster for $385, with costs.

Awful Pimples On Face and Neck For Four Years

HARVESTERS ASK TO RETURN

Find On Returning To England That Canada Offers More Employment.

HALF REMAIN.

(By George Hambleton, Staff Correspondent of the Canadian Press)

ST. HELENS, Lancashire, England, January 10 (Canadian Press Cable).—A few miles outside of the city of Liverpool the little town of St. Helens tells an illuminating story of the returned harvester. Out of a total population of one hundred and ten thousand St. Helens has three thousand without any kind of employment and between three and four thousand working three days a week and on the dole the other three. Its main industry is coal, the mines now working part time. The introduction of new machinery has thrown men out of work in its bottle making industries, and to the harvester movement of last year St. Helens contributed its contingent of ninety-two out of which forty-eight have returned.

From those who remained in Canada letters are being received expressing their satisfaction and their determination to stay. Others who returned found work at their old jobs or joined the ranks of the totally or partially unemployed. But from these the local labor exchanges state they have received a number of applications to return to Canada in the spring. In several cases the applicant has asked to be sent back to the farmer for whom he worked last year. In his own words one of these men said he wanted "to be there for the seeding."

Mount Pleasant

MOUNT PLEASANT, Jan. 10 (Examiner Correspondence)—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Courtney, of Newburg were called here on Monday owing to the death of the former's sister, Miss Margaret Courtney, in London on Sunday. The remains were brought here for funeral.

DIAMOND FIELDS BACK TO NORMAL

Prospectors Appoint Committee to Interview Minister of Justice.

PORT NOLLOTH, South Africa, Jan. 10.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuters).—The diamond fields in Namaqualand are now normal except for the presence of a large precautionary police force, following the meeting of prospectors who had objected to government restrictions on diamond digging. The meetings were held yesterday and were orderly, a committee being appointed by the prospectors to wait on the government. This committee has already disagreed and to-day a new one was appointed. The members are now motoring to Cape Town to interview the Minister of Justice. It is generally considered the trouble was magnified in the first place.

DAILY READING

A FEW MINUTES A DAY WITH THE BEST OF THE WORLD'S AUTHORS CONDUCTED BY THE NEIGHBORS AND MARION

JANUARY 10, 1929.

Someone who never enjoyed the "soda farls" or "potato cakes" of old Ireland wrote some time ago asking me for a description of a gridiron. This called to mind the story by Samuel Lover, Irish artist, novelist and song writer, and I am giving it as to-day's reading selection. Lover was born at Dublin, Feb. 24, 1797, and died at St. Heliers, July 6, 1863. He wrote the novels "Rory O'More" and "Handy Andy" and the songs "Molly Bawn," "Low-Backed Car," and "Four-Leaved Shamrock."

THE GRIDIRON.

Mathews, in his "Trip to America," gives a ludicrous representation of an Irishman who has left his own country on the old-fashion speculation of "seeking his fortune," and who, after various previous failures in the pursuit, at length goes into the back settlements with the intention of becoming interpreter general between the Yankees and the Indian tribes; but the Indians rejected his proffered service, "the poor ignorant craytures," as he himself says, "just because he did not understand the language." We are told, moreover, that Goldsmith visited the land of dikes and dams for the puspose of teaching the Hollanders English, quite overlooking (until his arrival in the country made it obvious) that he did not know a word of Dutch himself! I have prefaced the following story thus, in the hope that the "precedent," which covers so many absurdities in law, may be considered available by the author, as well as the suitor, and may serve a turn in the court of criticism, as well as in the common pleas!

A certain old gentleman in the west of Ireland, whose love of the ridiculous quite equaled his taste of claret and fox-hunting, was wont, upon certain festive occasions when opportunity offered, to amuse his friends by drawing out one of his servants, who was exceedingly fond of what he termed his "thravels" and in whom a good deal of whim, some queer stories, and perhaps, more than all, long and faithful services, had established a right of loquacity. He was one of those few trusty and privileged domestics who, if his master unheedingly uttered a rash thing in a fit of passion, would venture to set him right. If the squire said, "I'll turn that rasca' off," my friend Pat would say "Throth you won't, sir," and Pat was always right, for if any altercation arose upon the "subject-matter in hand," he was sure to throw in some good reason, either from former services, general good conduct, or the delinquent's "wife and childher," that always turned the scale.

But I am digressing. On such merry meetings as I have alluded to, the master, after making certain "approaches," as a military man would say, as the preparatory steps in laying siege to some extravaganza of his servant, might, perchance, assail Pat thus: "By the by, Sr John" (addressing a distinguished guest), "Pat has a very curious story which something you told me to-day reminds me of. You remember Pat," (turning to the man, evidently pleased at the notice thus paid to himself)—"You remember that queer adventure you had in France?"

"Troth I do, sir," grins forth Pat.

"What!" exclaims Sir John, in feigned surprise, "was Pat ever in France?"

"Indeed he was," cries mine host; and Pat adds, "Ay, and farther, plaze your honor!"

"I assure you, Sir John," continues my host, "Pat told me a story once that surprised me very much, respecting the ignorance of the French."

"Indeed!" rejoins the baronet; "really I always supposed the French to be a most accomplished people."

"Troth then, they are not, sir," interrupts Pat.

"Oh, by no means," adds mine host, shaking his head emphatically.

"I believe, Pat, 'twas when you were crossing the Atlantic?" says the master, turning to Pat with a seductive air, and leading into the "full and true account" (for Pat had thought fit to visit North America for a "raison he had," in the autumn of the year ninety-eight).

"Yes, sir," says Pat, "the broad Atlantic,"—a favorite phrase of his, which he gave with a brogue as broad, almost as the Atlantic itself.

"It was the time I was lost in crassin' the broad Atlantic, a comin' home," began Pat, decoyed into the recital; "whin the winds began to blow, and the sae to row', that you'd think the 'Colleen dhas' (that was her name) would not have a mast eft but what would row! out of her.

"Well, sure enough, the masts went by the boord, at last, and the pumps were choak'd (divil choak them for that same), and av coorse the wather gained an us; and throth, to be filled with wather is neither good for man or baste; and she was sinkin' fast, settlin' down as the sailors call it; and faith I never was good at settlin' down n my life, and I liked it then less nor ever; accordingly we prepared for the worst, and put out the boat, and got a sack o' bishkits, and cashk o' pork, and a kag o' wather, and a thrifle o' rum aboord, and any other little matthers we could think iv in the mortia hurry we wor in—and fait, there was no time to be lost, for my darlint, the 'Colleen dhas' went down like a ump o' lead, afore we wor many strokes o' the oar away from her.

"Well, we dhrifted away a that night, and next mornin' we put up a blanket an the ind av a pole as well as we could, and then we sailed illigant; for we darn't show a stitch o' canvas the night before, bekase it was blowin' like Murther, savin' your presence, and sure it's the wondher of the world we worn't swally'd alive by the ravin' sae.

"Well, away we wint, for more nor a week, and nothin' before our two good-lookin' eyes but the canophy iv heaven, and the wide ocean—the broad Atlantic—not a thing was to be seen but the sae and the sky; and though the sae and the sky is mighty purty things in themselves, throth they're no great things when you've nothin' else to look at for a week together—and the barest rock in the world—so it was land, would be more welkim. And then, soon enough, throth, our provision began to run low the bishkits, and the wather, and the rum—throth that was gone first of all—God help uz—and oh! it was thin starvation began to stare us in the face—'Oh, murther, murther, captain, darlint,' says I, 'I wish we could see land anywhere,' says I.

"'More power to your elbow, Paddy, my boy,' says he, 'for sitch a good wish, and throth it's myself wishes the same.'

"'Oh,' says I, 'that it may plaze you, sweet queen iv heaven, supposing it was only a dissolute island,' says I, 'inhabited wid Turks, sure they wouldn't be such bad Christhans as to refuse us a bit and a sup.'

"'Whisht, whisht, Paddy,' says the captain, 'don't be talkin' bad of any one,' says he; 'you don't know how soon you may want a good word put in for yourself, if you shou'd be called to quarthers in th' other world all of a suddint,' says he.

"'Thrue for you, captain, darlint,' says I—I called him darlint, and made free wid him, you see, bekase disthress makes uz all equal—'thrue for you, captain, jewel—God betune uz and harm, I own no man any spit'—and throth that was only thruth. Well, the last bishkit was sarved out, and by gor the wather itself was all gone at last, and we passed the night mighty cowld. Well, at the break o' day the sun riz most beautiful out o' the waves, that was as bright as silver and az clear as crystha!—but it was only the more cruel upon us, for we wor beginnin' to feel terrible hungry; when all at wanst I thought I spied the land—by gor I thought I felt my heart up in my throat in a minit, and 'Thunder an' turf, captain,' says I, 'look to leeward,' says I.

"'What for?' says he.

"'I think I see the land,' says I. So he ups with his bring-'em-near—(that's what the sailors call a spyglass, sir), and looks out, and, sure enough, it was.

"'Hurra,' says he, 'we're all right now; pull away, my boys,' says he.

"'Take care you're not mistaken,' says I; 'maybe it's only a fog bank, captain, darlint,' says I.

"'Oh no,' says he ,'it's the land in airnest.'

"'Oh then, whereabouts in the wide world are we, captain?' says I, 'maybe it id be a Roosia, or Proosia, or the Garman Oceant,' says I.

"'Tut, you fool' says he—for he had that consaited way wid him—thinkin' himself cleverer nor any one else—'tut you fool,' says he, 'that's France,' says he.

"'Tare an ouns,' says I, 'do you tell me so? and how do you know it's France it is, captain dear?' says I.

"'Bekase this is the Bay of Bishky we're in now,' says he.

"'Throth I was thinkin' so myself,' says I, 'by the rowl it has; for I often heerd av it in regard of that same.'

"Well, with that, my heart began to grow light; and when I seen my life was safe, I began to grow twice hungrier nor ever—'so,' says I, 'captain jewel, I wish we had a gridiron.'

"'Why then,' says he, 'thunder an turf,' says he, 'what puts a gridiron into your head?'

"'Bekase I'm starvin' with the hunger,' says I.

"'And sure, bad luck to you,' says he, 'you couldn't ate a gridiron,' says he, 'barrin' you wor a pelican o' the wildherness,' says he.

"'Ate a gridiron?' says I; ''och, in troth I'm not sich a gommoch all out as that, anyhow. But sure, if we had a gridiron, we could dress a beefstake,' says I.

"'Arrah! but where's a beefstake?' says he.

"'Sure, couldn't we cut a slice aff the pork?' says I.

"'Be gor, I never thought o' that,' says the captain. 'You're a clever fellow Paddy,' says he, laughin'.

"'Oh, there's many a thrue word said in a joke,' says I.

"'Thrue for you, Paddy,' says he.

"'Well then,' says I, 'if you put me ashore there beyant' (for we were nearin' the land all the time), 'and sure I can ax thim for to lind me the loan of a gridiron,' says I.

"'Oh by gor, the butther's comin' out o' the stirabout in airnest now,' says he; 'you gommoch,' says he, 'sure I towld you before that's France—and sure they're all furriners there,' says the captain.

"'Well,' says I, 'and how do you know but I'm as good a furriner myself as any o' thim?'

"'What do you mane?' says he.

"'I mane,' says I, 'what I towld you, that I'm as good a furriner myself as any o' thim.'

"'Make me sinsible,' says he.

"'By dad, maybe that's more nor I could do,' says I—and we all began to laugh at him for I thought I'd pay him all for his bit o' consait about the Garman Oceant.

"'Lave all your humbuggin',' says he, 'I bid you, and tell me what it is you man, at all at all.

"'Parly voo frongsay,' says I.

"'Oh, your humble sarvant,' says he; 'why, by gor, you're a scholar, Paddy.'

"'Throth, you may say that,' says I.

"'Why, you're a clever fellow, Paddy,' says the captain jeerin' like.

"'You're not the first that said that,' says I 'whether you joke or no.'

"'Oh, but I'm in airnest,' says the captain—'and do you tell me, Paddy,' says he, 'that you spake Frinch?

"'Parly voo frongsay' says I.

"'By gor, that bangs Banagher, and all the world knows Banagher bangs the divil—I never met the likes o' you, Paddy,' says he—'pull away, boys, and put Paddy ashore, and maybe we won't get a good bellyful before long.'

"So with that, it was no sooner said nor done—they pulled away and got close inshore in less than no time, and run the boat up into a little creek and a beautiful creek it was, with a lovely white sthrand—an illigant place for ladies to bathe in summer; and out I got—and it's stiff enough in my limbs I was, afther bein' cramp'd up in the boat, and perished with the cowld and hunger; but I conthrived to scramble on, one way or t'other, tow'rds a little bit iv a wood that was close to the shore, and the smoke curlin' out of it, quite timptin' like.

"'By the powdhers o' war, I am all right,' says I; 'there's a house there'; and sure enough there was, and a parcel of men, women, and childher, ating their dinner round a table, quite convaynient. And so I wint up to the door, and I thought I'd be very civil to thim, as I heerd the Frinch was always mighty p'lite intirely—and I thought I'd show them I knew what good manners was.

"So I took aff my hat, and making a low bow, says I, 'God save all here' says I.

"Well, to be sure, they all stopt ating at wanst, and begun to stare at me—and, faith, they almost looked me out of countenance; and I thought to myself it was not good manners at all—more betoken from furriners which they call so mighty p'lite; but I never minded that, in regard o' wanting to gridiron; and so I says I, 'I beg your pardon ' says I, 'for the liberty I take, but it's only bein' in disthress in regard of ating,' says I, 'that I make bowld to throuble yez, and if yez could lind me the loan of a gridiron,' says I, 'I'd be intirely obleeged to ye.'

"By gor, they all stared at me twice worse nor before; and with that says I (knowin', what was in their minds), 'indeed it's thrue for you,' says I—'I'm tatthered to pieces, and God knows I look square enough—but it's by raison of the storm,' says I, 'which dhruv us ashore here below, and we're all starvin',' says I.

"So then they began to look at each other again; and myself, seeing at wanst dirty thoughts was in their heads, and they tuck me for a poor beggar, comin' to crave charity—with that, says I, 'Oh! not at all,' says I, 'by no maines—we have plenty o' mate ourselves, there below, and we'll dhress it,' says I, 'if you would be plased to lind us the loan of a gridiron,' says I, makin' a low bow.

"Well, sir, with that, throth they stared at me twice worse nor ever—and, faith, I began to think that maybe the captain was wrong, and that it was not France at all; and so says I, 'I beg pardon, sir,' says I, to a fine owld man, with a head of hair as white as silver—'maybe I'm undher a mistake,' says I; 'but I thought I was in France, sir: aren't you furriners?' says I—'Parly voo frongsay?'

"'We munseer,' says he.

"'Then would you lind me the loan of a gridiron,' says I, 'if you please?'

"Oh, it was thin that they stared at me as if I had siven heads; and, faith, myself began to feel flusthered like, and onaisy—and so says I, makin' a bow and scrape agin, 'I know it's a liberty I take, sir,' says I, 'but it's only in regard of bein' cast away, and if you please, sir,' says I, 'Parly voo frogsay?'

"'We munseer,' says he, mighty sharp.

"'Then would you lind me the loan of a gridiron?' says I, 'and you'll obleege me.'

"Well, sir, the old chap began to munseer me; but the divil a bit of a gridiron he'd gie me: and so I began to think they wor all neygars, for all their fine manners; and throth my blood began to rise, and says I, 'By my sowl, if it was you was in disthress,' says I, 'and if it was to owld Ireland you kem, it's not only the gridiron they'd give you, if you ax'd it, but something to put an it too, and the dhrop o' dhrink into the bargain and cead mile failte.'

"Well, the word cead mile failte seemed to sthreck his heart and the owld chap cocked his ear, and so I thought I'd give him another offer, and make him sinsible at last; and so says I, wanst more, quite slow, that he might undherstand—'parly—voo—frogsay, minseer?'

"'We munseer,' says he.

"'Then lind me the loan of a gridiron,' says I, 'and bad scran to you.'

"Well, bad win to the bit of it he'd gi' me, and the owld chap begins bowin' and scrapin' and said something or other about a long tongs.

"'Phoo!—the divil; sweep yourself and your tongs,' says I, 'don't want a tongs at all at all; but can't you listen to raison,' says I—'Parly voo frongsay?'

"'We munseer.'

"'Then lind me the loan of a gridiron,' says I, 'and howld your prate.'

"Well, what would you think but he shook his owld noddle, as much as to say he wouldn't; and so says I, 'Bad cess to the likes o' that I ever seen—throth if you wor in my counthry it's not that a-way they'd use you; the curse o' the crows an you, you owld sinner,' says I, 'the divil a longer I'll darken your door.'

"So he seen I was vex'd, and I thought, as I was turnin' away, I seen him begin to relint, and that his conscience throubled him; and, says I, turnin' back, 'Well, I'll give you one chance more—you owld thief—are you a Christhan at all at all! Are you a furriner?' says I, 'that all the world call so p'lite. Bad luck to you, do you understand your own language?—Parly voo frongsay?' says I.

"'We munseer,' says he.

"'Then thunder an turf,' says I, 'will you lind me the loan of a gridiron?'

"Well, sir, the divil resave the bit of it he'd gi' me—and so with that the 'curse o' the hungry an you, you owld villain,' says I: 'the back o' my hand and the sowl o' my fut to you, that you may want a gridiron yourself yit,' says I, 'and wherever I go, high and low, rich and poor, shall hear o' you,' says I, and with that I left them there, sir, and kem away—and in throth it's often sence that I thought that it was remarkable."

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion, at The Examiner Office.

Pick up your cudgels of war (Oh no! not one of the famous trophies) I am using one with a gold point and its poisonous liquid is blue-black ink, now choose yours. Yes, I have a bone to pick with you.

In one of your recent writings you drew attention to Dr. Barton's articles, and said that he didn't answer questions, because he didn't attempt to give a diagnosis by mail. Well, I have nothing against his writings but I do hope you didn't mean anything against Dr. McCoy. He doesn't give diagnosis by mail either, he always says to have a thorough examination made by one's own physician and to send him the report, then he gives his advice as to the best methods to use. I have received much help from him and always read his articles and follow his weekly menus as closely as possible. I'd like to tell you how much I really benefited by doing this, but there are many who know me and who have remarked about the improvement in my general appearance and they would be sure to recognize me, were I to be more explicit. Dr. McCoy only answers by mail, when it is a minor question, at least to my knowledge. I haven't seen an article or menu of his for sometime and am wondering if these are stopped. Do you know, or is this question out of your sphere?

I always save his recipes, I can't eat the kind of deserts and other nice things for which I see so many recipes in 'our pages.' They sound tempting, but that's as far as it goes with me, I don't let them tempt me to taste them.

Our pages certainly are entertaining, and helpful now. I used to read the paper in a few minutes, the Editor's page was the only one—really looked for, but now it's different. It takes time to read the Whatnot, the helps, and styles in homes, furnishing and dress. I like your Home Column, it's very good, and the readings, too. I don't often get around to reading a whole book, so enjoy these short extracts. I like best of all the one about "Helen's Babies," couldn't you give us more of that? I felt so relaxed after reading it. I think a good laugh occasioned by light reading is restful, don't you, it's like a good comedy.

Now my letter is getting quite lengthy but I must ask you a favor. I notice lately that our pages have been in the first section of the paper that's not so good because Father insists on having that section and it takes him from one and a half to two hours to read just the first page. Often he doesn't bother with the inner pages at all, but they must be there. So I would ask you if it is at all possible to get our pages into the last section of the paper. It's already nine o'clock p.m. and I haven't had a look at that coveted first part yet.

That's another reason why you're getting this letter; I've read my part of the paper, I've sewed till there's no more to sew, and I WANT those pages and the story, although I don't care for it very much. But I follow it up, it's really dull though, I think, but then fortunately we aren't all of the same taste, many of the neighbors may be enjoying it right now. I prefer adventure or detective stories.

I noticed some time ago that a neighbor made the lamp shades, as suggested by Amler, but used taffeta. I tried it and the taffeta split and cut, when stretched. But the ones of georgette were a success. Maybe the neighbor referred to has a better taffeta than mine, eh?

Much success to you, Marion.

A. M. L."

Thank you for your letter, "A. M. L.", which is very interesting to me. I enquired about the health articles, and the editor tells me Dr. Barton's daily talk replaces Dr. McCoy's, and that, "A. M. C." is all I know. I don't follow the health articles personally, although I must admit I like reading Barton—he is so interesting, and BRIEF.

It's nice to read what you write about our pages, but I'm afraid I have no jurisdiction over where they appear in the paper. I do believe in taking the easiest way out of a difficulty, and if I were in your place I'd cut the page out of the section and read it, sooner than wait till the good man got through.

Taffeta IS inclined to split on stretching—perhaps some neighbor will tell us the secret of preventing this.

I'll give you some more of Helen's Babies soon, since so many neighbors enjoyed it.

"Dear Marion:

I wonder how many of the city neighbors realize what a rough day it is out in the open, or what the country roads were like over the week-end? I experienced some of it, and can assure you that you have lots of thrills in sliding all over the road and not knowing where your car is going to land. Of course, there is a very dangerous side and after we arrived home this morning, the thankfulness that filled my heart that we were safe home, Marion, made me think of your Whatnot in Friday's paper "and made me sit down and write." 'Hope,' what a wonderful word. I wonder how we would get along without hope, such a small word, but O what a meaning. Now if we add Faith, how much more does hope mean to us in this New Year? How many resolutions, wishes and plans and how much have we hoped for in this new year? But unless we have faith and believe we can, I am afraid we will not get much more out of 1929 than the past year.

Then to be happier there are many things some of us will have to give up. Sacrifice for our own, sometimes seems easy, but for strangers, and when it comes to return good for evil, or smile when someone slams you, that's when it seems to pinch real hard. It seems to me to circle around and tighten up something inside, then how we make a mountain out of a mole hill. But after we have opened up or "exploded" as the boys say, the bands gives away, and we see ourselves as others see us. O how silly we have been; we sometimes wonder what it is all about. I wonder if anyone has any experience like this. Then how much happier we feel when we say that little word forgive. Then let us in the New Year put the word to good use. I, for one, have resolved to try to have a more cheerful smile, pleasanter word, refrain from nagging and hasty words. Then try to be the first to say forgive and I can assure you, to me, this will be a sticker, as it is not any means easy. Then I have hope to do. Faith I can with God's help. Added to these two the greatest of all—Charity, and I know I will have a Happy New Year.

I must say, Marion, I enjoyed reading your pages, the neighbor's letters are splendid and very helpful, and I must confess I liked reading 'Thinker's' and 'Another Thinker's' letters. It seemed so funny—something different. My husband and I enjoyed a good laugh, he doesn't read much of the woman's page, but I usually tell him or read to him anything that I think would interest him. He says Marion surely knows how to answer men. I enjoyed reading the Christmas stories they were so good. I am looking forward to the New Year Resolutions contest. I would like to join but I feel that is out of my line so I will have to write to the page. I feel a little more at home there. I hope I have not made this letter too long. Will close, wishing you and all a bright and Happy New Year.

Bessie."

* * *

Thank you very much for your letter, "Bessie" and for your private note. like what you write about adding "Faith to Hope," and I am sure I could almost write a Whatnot on it! I hope that you write oftener in future.

"Dear Marion:

I am enclosing a coupon for some helps if you have them on hand, also, Marion, I have an SOS. I wonder if any of the neighbors have a recipe for sausage meat, something that would taste like the ones we buy? I have some meat that I would like to use in this way, but I never made any, so don't know how to go at it or what flavoring to put in to make it taste like sausages. I would be very thankful if some neighbor has a recipe if she would send it in as soon as possible, and I trust I will have a recipe or some help that she will like some time.

We are just recovering from a visit from the flu, Marion, I hope you have escaped it as it is not a very welcome visitor to anyone I know.

Thanking you for the helps and wishing you a very happy and successful year.

Yours very truly,

Marleigh.

P.S.—Yes, Marion, I am giving up the old pen name altogether, so you can take it off your book so another may have it. Thanks."

* * *

Will some neighbor send the information asked for by "Marleigh"?

I'm sorry to hear you had so unwelcome a visitor at your home, "Marleigh." It certainly is not pleasant.

"Dear Marion:

I have been a silent tho' interested reader of your page in The Peterborough Examiner for some time and I saw your suggestion of a New Year Resolution contest, and decided to enter with the enclosed bit of verse.

I am also enclosing the coupon, but I will have to apologize Marion, for its being torn, we have all been ill here with flu, and sometimes and some way during the mixup this little coupon suffered, though I think enough has survived to answer the purpose.

Now, Marion, I won't take up any more of your valuable time and will close with my sincerest wishes to you for a very Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Sincerely yours,

Marmora. Two Eyes of Grey."

Your poem has been entered in the competition, "Two Eyes of Grey." I hope you have all recovered from 'flu—and I suppose you QUITE believe the people who say there is no 'flu in this district!

Have You Blue Eyes?
Character Told by the Eyes

Blue eyed and blond complexion are characteristics of sturdy Viking Ancestors. People with Blue Eyes indicate an optimistic disposition. Are yours Blue or Brown or Gray? Have you the downcast eyes of modesty, or the upturned eyes of devotion?

What Story Do YOUR Eyes Tell?

Besides being indicative of character and disposition, eyes tell the story of your health. They show the condition of the blood, digestion, liver and the organs of elimination. Do your blue eyes indicate the same robust health of your sturdy ancestors? If not: does a yellow tinge indicate a disordered system?

Don't spoil the fascination of your eyes—if the whites are not bright and clear, with a pleasing tinge of blue—if a yellowish tinge robs them of their beauty, it is a warning of sluggish liver and intestinal inactivity.

Eczema Formed Painful Blisters Cuticura Healed

"Eczema started with a fine rash on my arms. Later it formed blisters about the size of a bean which were full of water and very painful. It burned and was so sore I could not bear to touch it. The weight of a cup in my hand would fairly make me cry out with pain. I had my hands and arms tied up from the ends of my fingers to my shoulders. Sometimes it kept me awake for hours.

"A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I sent for a free sample. I purchased more, and in about three weeks I was healed." (Signed) Miss Emily B. Davis, R. R. 3, Northwood, Ont.

FLU
is now Epidemic!

Compared with 1918, this epidemic, so far, is mild; and yet, in spite of vastly increased capacity, the Vicks laboratories are once more operating night and day to meet the emergency demand for more and more Vicks VapoRub.

How best to use Vicks VapoRub

1. AS A PREVENTIVE

Several times a day, insert Vicks up the nostrils. Also melt a little night and morning in a bowl of boiling water and inhale the steaming medicated vapors. This helps to ward off germ-infection.

2. IF A COLD STARTS

If possible, go home and go to bed. Take a laxative and a hot lemonade. Apply hot, wet towels over throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. Then rub vigorously with Vicks. Spread on thickly and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-covering loose, so that the vapors, released by the body-warmth, may be freely inhaled. At the same time, Vicks also acts through the skin like a poultice. Repeat this treatment every four hours, eat lightly, and stay in bed until the cold is broken. Complete rest helps the body throw off the cold more quickly.

3. AFTER A FLU ATTACK

Physicians advise that the chief danger in this epidemic is influenza. Then, more than ever, colds, attacking the weakened system, may lead to bronchitis, sinus-trouble, or pneumonia. This is especially true of children or old folks. Heed even the slightest cold as a danger signal. Vicks is especially valuable here, because it is applied externally, and so can be used freely, as often as needed, without upsetting delicate digestions, as too much "dosing" is so apt to do.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

A rosette of tiny yellow ribbon flowers on a white crepe de chine frock is indicated in the sketch above at the right. At the left an ornament of ribbon roses and ends to be worn in the center of the frock at the waistline. Narrow taffeta ribbon was used for the two rosettes in the center, the little girl at the left follows the fashion of wearing ribbon bows on each shoulder, and the one below at the right has her yoke laced with ribbon which hangs in loops and ends at the left side. An appliquee ribbon bow is indicated below in the center.

Even the very little girls are showing a flare for greater feminity in dress nowadays. They may be just as great tomboys as ever but on occasions they are glad enough to don laces and ribbons and gloat over their little brothers to whom such things are taboo. It must gladden the hearts of those whose fortunes depend on the large demand for ribbons to see the way hair ribbons are coming back into vogue. Furthermore the cockles of their hearts must rejoice at the way French jitvenile dressmakers have led the way in the using of ribbon bows and rosettes for the trimming of little girls' frocks.

Of course, hair ribbons are a great nuisance to mother or nursery governess, nurse or "Nanny" or whoever it is who has the responsibility of the little girl's wardrobe. Still, hair ribbons do add an interesting variety to the arrangement of the little girl's hair and work real transformations making small daughters look like "little ladies" even when you know they are nothing of the sort.

The new ribbon trimmings for little girls' frocks are usually of a simple sort—bows, rosettes or small ribbon flowers. Usually these are made from plain pastel-toned ribbons, and the fashion for combining three or more pastel tones on the same frock is still in favor. Light pink frock with trimming of cream yellow, light blue and pastel green is charming, or the cream yellow frock may have ribbon trimming of pale blue, green and pink, or pale green may have mauve and pink.

Crepe de chine holds its important position for party frocks, with dimity and handkerchief linen likely to be important for spring and summer.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

I promised, yesterday, to give an outline of procedure at meetings, for the information of neighbors unacquainted with it, and I will devote to-day's Whatnot to that object.

* * * * * * *

Meetings can only be conducted in an orderly manner when there are certain basic rules observed. Everyone knows some of them, but the study of all is very complicated. A middle course will satisfy most people—the knowledge of how to bring forward resolutions, how to oppose pending resolutions, and what resolutions have precedence, or advantage, over others.

* * * * * * *

In the first place, in view of the many elections now taking place in organizations in the Peterborough district, it may not be out of order to tell the difference between a PLURALITY and a MAJORITY vote—a distinction but little known. A candidate has a plurality when she has a larger vote than any other candidate, and a majority when she has more than half the legal votes cast, ignoring blanks.

* * * * * * *

That is one definition easily remembered, and I am sure many neighbors will have use for this piece of knowledge.

* * * * * * *

There are two main methods of bringing business before a meeting—by motion of a member of the organization and by means of a communication. One point that should be remembered (but is too often ignored) is that a subject cannot properly be debated until it has been brought before the assembly by a member's motion, after that member has been recognized by the chair. In certain cases the motion must be seconded, and in all cases it should be stated by the chair, so that all in the meeting may understand its purport.

* * * * * * *

A simple rule governs what IS before the meeting. If several questions are pending (such as a resolution and an amendment and a motion to postpone) the last one stated by the chair is called the IMMEDIATELY PENDING QUESTION, and is the question before the meeting.

* * * * * * *

The proper way to "obtain the floor" is to rise and address the presiding officer by official title, such as "Mr. Chairman," or "Mr. President," or, if a woman presides (married or single), "Madam Chairman" or "Madam President." The presiding officer announces the name of the speaker, and the speaker then "has the floor" and may address the meeting through the chair.

* * * * * * *

After a member of the assembly "has the floor," she cannot be interrupted except under very strictly interpreted rules, the principle reasons for interruption being: a motion to reconsider; a point of order; a request for information that requires immediate answer. After a member has the floor she should not be interrupted unless the urgency is so great as to justify it.

* * * * * * *

A motion is a proposal that the assembly take certain action or express itself as holding certain views. It is made by a member's obtaining the floor and saying, "I move that," and then stating the action she proposes to have taken. If the motion is lengthy or of great importance, it is usually written in the form of a resolution, beginning with the word "Resolved," followed by a comma, and the word "That" written with a capital "T."

* * * * * * *

Considerable waste of time may be avoided if it is remembered that the following motions do not require seconding: nominations, raising of a question of privilege, questions of order, filling blanks, inquiries of any kind. All other motions, as a general rule, require a "second." The form is, "I second the motion."

* * * * * * *

When the motion has been moved and seconded, the chair states the question, as: "It is moved and seconded that the following resolution be adopted:" (reading the resolution), or "If is moved and seconded that we adjourn." If the question is debatable, the chair then asks, "Are you ready for the question?" and if no one rises she should put the question by calling first on those in favor of its adoption, and then on those opposed.

* * * * * * *

After a question has been stated by the chair, it is open to debate, unless it be one of the undebatable motions which I will mention later. A lot of time is wasted in many meetings by "talking over" business before it is properly placed before the assembly. No one who has once spoken to a question should be given the floor while anyone who desires to speak to the question has not had an opportunity.

* * * * * * *

A question may be brought up for debate, and then it may appear expedient to alter it in some way. It must be disposed of in some way before the meeting can consider another question. This disposition may be either to amend or to commit (send to a committee), and such motions are called SUBSIDIARY. Another motion which may interrupt the consideration of a question is called INCIDENTAL, such as a question of order. All of these may be superceded by certain motions which are called PRIVILEGED—such as a motion to adjourn.

* * * * * * *

One motion, frequently misused, is that to "Lay on the table." This motion takes precedence of all subsidiary motions, but yields to privileged motions. It cannot be debated, and cannot have any qualifications attached to it. It is not correct, for instance, to move that a subject "Be tabled until next meeting"; the proper form to accomplish this end is "Be postponed until next meeting." The object of the motion to "Lay on the table" is to lay aside the pending question in such a way that its consideration may be resumed at the will of the assembly as easily as if it were a new question, and the question comes up for consideration just in the same condition as when it was tabled.

* * * * * * *

No, this is not really difficult, neighbors. Books telling how to conduct meetings run into hundreds of pages—Roberts' Rules of Order, the standard in this country, has more than 300 pages—and when I attempt to boil these rules down to a few lines I am forced to leave out much that would be interesting and enlightening. But a little thought will enable you to gain enough grasp of the subject so that you will not feel lost in any meeting.

* * * * * * *

I have only room, now, for the list of the motions in their order of importance. In the following list the motion are in order, the first named having precedence. When any one of them is immediately pending the motions above it are in order, and those which follow it are out of order: Fix the time to which to adjourn; adjourn; take a recess; raise a question of privilege; call for orders of the day; lay on the table; previous question; limit or extend limits of debate; postpone to a certain time; commit or refer; amend; postpone indefinitely; a main motion. The first eight are undebatable.

* * * * * * *

This is, necessarily, a sketchy outline of procedure, and I shall be very glad to give any neighbor more detailed information on any question in which she is particularly interested. If you have any problems in conducting or speaking at a meeting, drop me a line and I will do the best I can to help out.

WOMEN, WOMEN!
THIS MUST STOP!

PARIS, Jan. 10 (By NEA Service).—Ever since Eve coaxed Adam into eating the forbidden apple, women have so addled men's minds that they've been a constant source of masculine downfall.

Modernizing that, it is found even at present, man is raising a kick against this detraction to his earthly mind by the fair sex.

Recently, an international conference of male university students was organized here to devise a means of forcing female students to separate classrooms.

Say the men: "They annoy us in our work. In the law schools, their bobbed hair, rouged lips and cheeks, and even blackened eyebrows and lashes strike a note entirely out of harmony with the traditional solemnity of the French judicial system."

The odor of perfume, the students say, detracts their attention from their work and, "even the professors sniff in ill-disguised reprobation."

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

By Jas. W. Barton, M.D.

WHY YOU FEEL DISCOURAGED

You have been planning a business venture, a business trip, perhaps a change in your occupation.

You grow enthusiastic, and spend a lot of time working out details. In a little while some of your enthusiasm is lost. You go over the figures and plans again and find that they are correct, and yet you begin to "cool off" on the project, to lose courage. What has happened?

In this planning and preparation for a change you have done two things. You have likely kept at your regular work or occupation, and also done the planning, figuring, and thinking on the new project. This has meant a double strain on you physically and mentally, and you are simply tired out. As your know, when you work with your body, your muscles, you create a poison that must be removed if the muscle is to continue to do its work properly.

When you work with your brain you likewise create poisons that should be removed by the circulation. There is only one way to get these poisons out of the system, and that is to stop manufacturing them for a time. In other words the reason you lost your enthusiasm for your work or stopped planning, was because your blood was poisoned from these extra fatigue wastes, and this poisoned blood bathed the brain and took away your courage. And so if you find that sometimes you seem filled with ambition, a desire to do things, and it is not due to any stimulant such as alcohol or too much tea or coffee, then that is your real self. If you lose this ambition or desire to do things it is because you are tired or need a change.

So just keep the above thought in mind, and don't feel badly if you lose some of your courage temporarily. Just take a good rest, mental and physical rest, and you'll come back to the plan or project with your real self and your real courage to back you.

A boy and a dog. They seem to go together at any time. He was a little boy with a round, apple-like face, red and glowing, and he had a collie dog called Major. His own name is Grover. He confided that his father had paid $3 for the dog and $8 for the very nice set of harness that went with it. On a little sled attached to the harness was a large tin pail. We asked him if the dog drew him on the sleigh and he shook his head. The big collie doesn't like the harness and his small master is trying to accustom him to it by putting a pail or other small object on the sled. He was adjusting a warm sweater about the big friendly dog, which sat down in the snow and wagged its tail.

The ladies who were fortunate enough to hear Mrs. W. E. Groves of Toronto, when she spoke at the Kiwanis Fair here this autumn, will remember how versatile she was. She was a very fine and inspiring speaker, she had composed several songs for children that were set to music by Miss Bertha Tamblyn of Toronto, who accompanied her on her visit to Peterborough, and now she has been elected as chairman of the Board of Education in Toronto, after having been for eleven years a member of that body. She is the first woman to hold the position of chairman of the Toronto Board of Education.

In the course of her address here, Mrs. Groves read one of her own compositions, entitled "The Blueberry Pie," giving the reactions of a consumer of one of these delectable delicacies, which had been made by her for the youth who remembered it in Flanders, on the fighting field.

So, as well as being a woman of much education and executive ability, a composer of music for children and of pleasing readings, Mrs. Groves is also a good cook. It is quite a combination.

When the Rev. Dr. Blagrave, speaking at the recent Commencement exercises at the Collegiate Institute, referred to the principal, H. R. H. Kenner, he spoke of him as being something like the man about whom the negro preacher enthused audibly. The warm partizan said: "He can do the undoable, he can think the unthinkable and he can unscrew the unscrutable!"

A very interesting production of the week will be a Costume Recital to be given in the parish hall of All Saints' Church on Friday evening, arranged by Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, and produced under the auspices of the Women's Guild of the church.

The first portion of what promises to be a very entertaining program, a little out of the ordinary, will be a sort of pantomine, in which a Contest of Holidays will take place.

New Year will be the first contestant, with attendants in the Seasons: Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter. They dance and sing, as do the other contestants in the Holidays which follow. These are the first of July, with a group of boys in costume, playing drums and singing "O Canada."

Then comes Thanksgiving, with a party of young girls preparing for the national feast day.

Christmas is the last holiday and Santa Claus gets the prize, after eight little children have depicted the splendors of his feast.

The costumes worn throughout the second portion, which is a program of old-time songs and old-time piano selections, will be of the court variety, with powdered wigs and panniered gowns. Many of the favorites of other days, and of this, also, for public favor never swerves from some of the lovely songs and music of older days, will be heard at this entertainment.

* * *

The program of the Women's Art Association to be offered to the members to-morrow (Friday) afternoon will be just a little different from the usual entertainment. Mrs. L. J. Pettit, who is convenor of the Dramatic committee of the society, is giving an introduction to a Dramatic Study Club, to be formed this month, in the way of a talk on "Dramatic Art." This will be as non-technical as possible and will afford an illuminating outline of the subject, which will be illustrated by means of Greek statue poses done in costume by Mrs. Pettit. These will include such presentations as "Triumph," "Justice," "Challenge," and many others.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief as effectively as the messy old mustard plaster.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, methol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

BAKED BEANS
(Contributed by Mrs. L. J. S.

1 quart of beans.
¼ lb. salt pork.
1 tablespoon of brown sugar.
1 teaspoon of salt.
1 teaspoon of mustard.
1 tablespoon of molasses.

Method.

Soak the beans in cold soft water over night. Drain, add fresh cold water and simmer until tender but not soft enough to break up.

A good test is to take up and blow and if the skins crack they are cooked enough. Drain and put in a bean pot or lard pail. Mix salt, mustard, and molasses and sugar with a little hot water and add to the beans with enough water to cover them.

Pour boiling water over the pork. Scrape rind and cut in ½-inch strips. Bury pork in beans. Cover closely and bake six or eight hours in a moderate oven. Uncover the last hour of cooking. Add a little water as needed to prevent burning when baking.

PEW FOR SALE!

LONDON, Jan. 10.—The vicar of Branbury has a pew for sale as the result of a will by the late Miss Salisbury Anne Charlotte Rothe. The bequest specified that "the pew in St. Mary's Parish, together with books, cushions and other articles usually kept therein" be given to the vicar "so that he may make of them what use he wishes."

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 10.—By switching cells with W. H. Kramer, John Henry, bank thief, escaped jail here recently. A woman called L. J. Brandbury, lawyer, and asked him to obtain bond for Kramer. Bradbury went to the jail, put up the bond and made an appointment to see the supposed Kramer in his office. But the supposed Kramer, in reality Henry, never showed up.

Blewett Sinks Winning Tally For Lakefield Crew

MARMORA DEFEATED 5 TO 4 IN THEIR INITIAL ENCOUNTER IN O.H.A. INTERMEDIATE RANKS

Game Was See-Saw Affair Until Final Moments of the Play.

NUMEROUS PENALTIES.

Blewett Served Four Penalties of Ten Imposed Upon Marmora Team.

When Lakefield's heavy right winger, Blewett picked up a loose puck in front of the Marmora nets and drove it home with but a minute to play in last night's Intermediate O. H. A. game at Brock Street rink, he set his team out on the long end of a 5-4 count and incidently provided them with a win in their first start of the season, against the Trent Valley League graduates who have chosen the local rink as their home ice for the winter's campaign. Last night's battle, and such it was, lacked the frills but had all the spills and thrills that could be desired and the large delegations of supporters that accompanied the rival factions from their home towns had plenty to holler about They saw Lakefield go to the fore with two goals to nil in the initial stanza added a third in the opening minutes of the second period and then loose two thirds of this command when the Marmora Coterie bingled two Santa Claus counters in quick succession. Later, they watched while Buck, playing at centre for the homesters put his team ahead for one minute in the third, the only occasion on which they held the command and then beheld the scrappy Sabatino clan run up two million dollar markers that settled the dispute—until the return game in the Northern village. The play in last night's game indicated that this will be a battle royal.

Penalties Numerous.

In all, Referee Bill Jackson of Peterborough handed out fifteen penalties imposed for offenses that ranged from stiff body checks to wood chopping and even a poke at one of the goalies. Conspicuous for his frequent sessions on the bench was Blewett who served four of the ten impositions suffered by his team, while the Marmora squad served five penalties.

Last Year's veterans.

Lakefield brought down a team composed almost to a man of last year's Intermediates, and with L. Sabatino, yellow-capped centre man providing scoring punch and unusually effective through an apparently recently acquired control of his temper, had the better of the first period. Both outfits, however, seemed to have difficulty in getting under way, and but for the flashes in which the two goals were scored, play was decidedly disinteresting. Sabatino's first counter resulted from a drive from the blue line three minutes after the game started, while his second was a long floater that drifted in after he had lifted it almost from centre ice. In the same period, Shannon and Ibey of Marmora, Woods J. Sabatino and Blewett of Lakefield served penalties.

Marmora Improves.

Entering the middle stanza with an uphill fight on their hands, the Marmora team showed considerable improvement and while the first two goals that came their way were of the "gift" variety, they deserved a tally on several occasions when they showed the first combination of the night. Buck was indirectly responsible for their first goal, eight minutes after Northey had counted for Lakefield, when he drove the rubber at Junkins who made a nice stop. It bounced out, struck Sabatino's leg and rolled back into the nets.

Ibey had a hand in the second score when he and a Lakefield player got into a squabble behind the latter's goal. The puck flew into the air and Junkins turning, tried to knock it back with his hand, only to muss it up and have the rubber drop into his own citadel.

Third Period Speedier.

The final session saw more fast hockey, though still of individual type, than in the previous two, as Lakefield fought to hold their slim lead, and the Green and White strove for the tying tally that would give them an even break for the decision. It came when, after ten minutes in which both teams had chances, W. Scott took a smart pass from Buck, and beat Junkins. Buck was pleased to imitate his team mate five minutes later when he waltzed in on the Lakefield goalie for a nice counter.

How Stabler took a pass from Northey to tie the count, and how Blewett pulled the game out of the fire for sure with the final score of the evening are subjects that hockey fans around Lakefield will recall with pleasure for some time to come.

For Lakefield, L. Sabatino, Blewett and Northey showed to advantage, while Buck, W. Scott, Shannon and McWilliams looked good for the Marmora aggregation.

The teams lined up as follows:

Lakefield— Goal, Junkins; defence, J. Sabatino and Woods;; centre, L. Sabatino; wings, Stabler and Blewett; subs, Wannamaker and Northey.

Marmora— Goal, Murray; defence, G. Scott and Shannon; centre, Buck; wings, W. Scott and McWilliams; subs, Neale and Ibey.

Summary.

Alley Gossip

K. OF C. LEAGUE.

The Monday Nighter's League at the K. of C. alleys started in again after their Christmas recess and the boys seem to have retained their old form.

Tommy Ryan and his heavy hitters are stronger than ever and handed a nasty new year pill to the McPherson crew in the shape of an 8 to 0 defeat. J. Doris came to the fore with 305 pins single and also waltzed away with high three. Joe Sharpe must have been doing a bit of practice on the side, as he surprised the Ryanites with a total of 325 in one game.

Shaughnessy gathered in 6 points from Ranger between an exchange of New Year's greetings and the southenders are still trying to dope out how it was done.

The mighty Fay gang managed to take the whole works from Willie Prindible, our local Tex Rickard, and his crowd after a strenuous battle.

Joe Marsden came through with a nice score of 358 single to help Duffus dab Lebarr with the kalsomine. There may be some truth in the rumor that the losers are getting in shape for curling.

DRAFTING ROOM LEAGUE, C.G.E.

The Drawing Makers performed in a creditable manner in view of the number of ducks and geese that were carried home a short time ago by the numerous winners.

The Hi-Pots forgot all they knew about Christmas charity and collected 6 out of 8 from the Short Circuits. J. McCabe took it into his head to show the boys that he knew what it was all about by shooting a nice 749. Alvin the 'rookie' of the Short Circuits, seems to be tiring of being modest and blazed his way to a total of 658.

Dave Grant's Volts had their walloping togs on and treated Hugh Morton's Up and Downers rather roughly, grabbing 6 points. Dave Grant was top dog with 40 and H. Foster was next with 573.

CURLING FINALS ON FRIDAY

Fur Rinks Eliminated From Contest in Bonspiel at Campbellford.

CLOSE SCORES.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 10 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Last night the local bonspiel passed through another degree, and four rinks were eliminated from the contest, leaving four contenders still in the race. The semi-finals will be played at seven o'clock to-night and the finals will be played Friday evening. For the first two rounds the ice has been in excellent condition and the play has been of a high standard. In most cases the scores have been close, but long ended counts have not been entirely absent. J. P. Archer defeated W. S. Wiggins eight to six. Harry Denike claimed a ten to two victory over James Gay. Archer will meet Denike to-night in the semi-finals. John Gay took F. C. Bonnycastle to task with the score eight to two, and Marshal West won from Fred Smith ten to five. John Gay will meet West in the semi-finals to-night.

According to the original scheme of the club for this season, the regular schedule should begin next week. At the present time another local bonspiel is being generally favored, and it is just possible that a similar event to the present 'spiel will be run off next week. The basic idea seems to be to give every member as many games as possible while the ice is in such excellent condition. This year the interest in the sport seems to have increased considerably over that of the past few seasons. The lowered membership fee is partially responsible. The bonspiel opening of the season is another factor in the affairs of the club. Although nothing definite has been done so far, there is much speculation among the members as to who will comprise a rink to play in the Toronto bonspiel. The district and tankard skips have not yet been named, but F. C. Bonnycastle is almost certain to have charge of one of the district rinks.

VARSITY STUDENTS WIN FIRST FIXTURE

Toronto Collegians Blank Preston Riversides 2-0 in Senior O.H.A. Tilt.

PRESTON, Ont., Jan. 10 (Canadian Press).—The University of Toronto team, winners of this year's Senior S.P.A. series, who have just completed their annual trip through the Eastern States during which they won two games, tied two and lost one, started off the Senior O.H.A. series last night by a 2 to 0 victory over the local Riversides, but the margin in goals was not a true indication of the play. The locals, although they were not in the best of shape, the Collegians having a decided margin in condition, were not out-played, the difference being that Snyder, in goal for the students, made several sensational save when the Riversides' attackers appeared to be in for certain counters.

Uncle and Nephew Win O.H.A. Battle

BARRIE, Ont., Jan. 10 (Canadian Press).—"Rabbi" Fryer, the Grand Old Man of O.H.A. hockey, scored three goals last night and his nephew, Elmer, two, to put over a 5 to 3 victory for Collingwood over Camp Borden in the Intermediate series. It was, therefore, a complete Fryer victory.

HOCKEY FAMILY

Prominent among the portraits in Canada's athletic hall of fame shines the figure of Lionel Conacher, outstanding star of many sports. And as with many other athletes, the great and only Lionel has a brother, whose budding record may yet vie with that of the "Big Train." We refer to Charley Conacher, right wing of the Marlboro Junior O. H. A. champions.

The Conacher family are remarkable in more ways than one. Among the eleven children, who assemble at the elder Conacher's board on festive occasions are three sets of twins. The eldest pair, a boy and girl, the next two girls, and the third a pair of boys who are working hard to achieve some of the fame of their elder brothers.

Lionel first interested the fans with his football ability. As a half back with T. R. and A. A. and Argonauts, he improved in the gridiron game, finally pairing off with Brag Batstone to help Argonauts with the Dominion championship. He also excelled as a lacrosse player with Maitlands and Irish Canadians, having few superiors in that sport. As an amateur boxer big Connie proved himself good enough to rank with the best heavyweights in the country but his kindly disposition held him aloof as, with all his ruggedness, he shrinks from hurting an opponent. He broke into senior baseball with Hillcrests, Ontario champions, later putting in a season with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Lionel played hockey for various Canadian teams, later going to Pittsburg, where he starred with the Yellow Jackets, twice winning the amateur championship of the United States. Then he turned pro. for the Pittsburg Pirates, and later was sold to the New York Americans. During his three years as a pro. Conacher has ranked as one of the greatest defence men on the ice, winning many games with his powerful rushing and, terrific shooting.

His brother Charley, after showing ability in several branches of sport, decided to specialize on hockey. His style of keeping in his own territory as well as his deceptive fake passing and deadly shooting, place him in almost the same class as Punch Broadbent, Baby Dye and Bill Cook. Like all the Conachers, Charley has a powerful physique. At nineteen he tips the scales at 160.

FAMOUS HOCKEY GAMES OF PETERBOROUGH TEAMS

By F.D.C.

The Peterborough intermediates of 1912, like their clever young junior team of the same year, fought their way well up the championship ladder before meeting defeat at the hands of the crack Midland team, led by the well known Eddie Gould.

The intermediate Petes had the honor that season of hanging up the highest O.H.A. scoring record in local history at the expense of the Belleville team who, playing at Brock street rink on the night of January, 1912, were beaten by the huge score of 30 to 1.

And Belleville incidentally got that one goal first—after which the Petes proceeded to run in 31 in a row, the biggest scoring feat in an O.H.A. match that has been seen here.

Maurice Park, now principal of the Queen Alexandra school, played centre for the Petes that night and achieved an individual record that will probably last for a long time when he scored nine goals in a row. He registered the last three markers scored by the Petes in the first half and then opened out the second half by banging in six more in succession. Altogether Park scored 17 times in that game while Kelly and Coughlin got four each

Belleville were hopelessly outclassed and often never touched the puck between goals, the Petes carrying it right back from the face off for a series of tallies.

Everybody on the Peterborough side except Goalkeeper Derocher and Percy Bond, now vice-president of the O.H.A. who couldn't hammer one in even when the Belleville team went completely to pieces.

No more one-sided hockey has ever been seen at Brock street rink than the second half of this burlesque exhibition when the Petes skated around the dazed visitors as if the latter were a row of posts.

The line up of this unusual game was as follows:

Belleville—Goal, Lafleur; point, Wallace; cover, Connolly; rover, Gerow; centre, Symons; right wing, Dawkins; left wing, Ford.

Referee—Harry Burgoyne, Toronto.

To-morrow — The Peterborough-Lindsay game of 1912.

Joe Jenkins, veteran catcher, has asked the Newark Club to place him on the retired list as a player in order that he might accept a job as umpire in the Western League.

O.H.A. Bulletin

The prevailing epidemic of influenza throughout the province has hit a number of O.H.A. teams and made necessary the postponement of two games in the intermediate series scheduled for to-night and one junior fixture scheduled for to-morrow night. The health authorities at St. Mary's have closed all public places and forbidden public gatherings, with the result the Clinton team will not play in that town to-night. For the same reason the Kitchener at Tavistock game has been put off until a later date, yet to be decided, while the Palmerston at Listowel junior game has been postponed. Like St. Mary's, Listowel has been closed up by the authorities until Monday night. The Markdale at Flesherton fixture, down for decision to-night, also has been postponed.

FOUR HOCKEY GAMES ON OPENING NIGHT

Church League Opens Schedule To-night at Cognawaga Rink.

The Church Hockey League begins its schedule to-night with the playing of four games at the Cognawaga Rink. One Midget, two Juvenile, and one Junior game guarantee the fans some exciting hockey.

The following games will be played to-night:

Midget—Mark Street versus All Saints', 5.30.

Juvenile—All Saints versus Trinity, 6.30.

Juvenile—St. John's versus Park street, 7.30.

Junior—Park Street versus All Saints, 8.30.

The balance of the schedule will be announced within a few days.

PETTINGER FOR TORONTO CLUB

Maple Leafs Secure Former Fort William Player From Bruins.

RIGHTS ON PLAXTON.

TORONTO, Jan. 10. — Connie Smythe did not do so badly on his visit to Boston after all as he left the Hub Wednesday with one new player on his roster and the rights to a local amateur compensation for losing George Owen, the former Harvard all-round star, who signed with the Bruins on Tuesday and played a big part in the victory over the Maple-Leafs that night. According to a wire from Business Manager Frank Selke, of the Leafs, the Toronto Club was given Eric Pettinger, the former Fort William centre ice star and the Bruins rights to Hugh Plaxton, whatever they are. Pettinger will report to the Leafs in time for to-night's game in New York.

There is no doubt that if Smythe had signed Owen to a Maple Leaf contract that both the Boston Club and Owen would have been "in Dutch" more or less around that city. President Chas. Adams and Manager Art Ross did not make a hit when they traded Frank Frederickson for Mickey Mackay and they have been panned considerably since that deal although Mackay played a big part in the win over Pittsburg last Saturday night and helped to lessen the criticism but it would have broken out anew and much stronger if Owen had joined Toronto. He is most popular around Boston, where he is engaged by a bond house and his signing with any other club in the league except the Bruins would probaly have hurt him in business.

This is the second time that the Leafs have had Pettinger, although he has never been in a local uniform. He first attracted attention from the professional clubs when playing centre for Fort William in 1926-7 season, but he was kept out of the Allan Cup finals in Vancouver against the Grads through a broken wrist. He was put on the local reserve list but when the Leafs purchased Sailor Herberts from the Bruins last season Pettinger and $12.500 were given to the Boston Club as payment. Pettinger joined the Boston Club this season and has been relieving Percy Galbraith on left wing. Hugh Plaxton was one of the outstanding stars of the starry array that composed the Olympic champions, but whether returns pro. or not is another question. If he does the local club will have accomplished a great stroke of business in securing him.

JACK DELANEY IS ILL WITH INFLUENZA

Former World's Champion May Not Be Able To Meet

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Jack Delaney, former world's light heavyweight boxing champion, is ill with influenza at his home here. He has been sick since last Friday and is under the care of a local physician, who intimated that Delaney "would probably be took weak" to fight Jimmy Slattery in Madison Square Garden on February 1.

The Phillies have signed Joseph L. O'Rourke, young infielder who had a fling in the Central League last season. He is the son of Patsy O'Rourke old-time player, who is now a scout for the Phillies.

CHANEY as a Detective in a Glorious Adventure

LON CHANEY
WHILE THE CITY SLEEPS

EDDIE JACKSON "THE COLLEGIANS"

Coming Monday—"MOTHER KNOWS BEST"

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

LON CHANEY AS A DETECTIVE IN "WHILE THE CITY SLEEPS" AT THE CAPITOL TO-NIGHT. EDDIE JACKSON, AND THE COLLEGIANS.

Lon Chaney has played many roles, sinister, mysterious and otherwise, but for the first time in his life he is now playing a policeman. The great character star is cast as a plainclothesman on the New York police force in his latest picture, "While the City Sleeps," which opens at the Capitol to-day.

It is a vivid story of the "inside" of the New York police force, in which Chaney plays a detective who takes a fatherly interest in a young girl whose "boy friend" is associating with a dangerous band of crooks.

These gangsters lead the boy into a loft robbery, but the detective, watching over him, saves him at the last minute and reforms him, so that the girl will have her lover. Which is a sacrifice on his part as he, too, deeply loves the girl.

Dramatic pursuit of crooks, a sensational battle of police and gangsters with machine guns, a running battle on the roofs of the city and the operation of the "shadow box" of the New York police are among the most dramatic highlights of the absorbing and powerful story.

Jack Conway, famous director of "Twelve Miles Out" and other noteworthy successes, directed the picture from an original story by A. P. Younger.

Anita Page, newcomer to the screen, who proved her worth as leading lady in "Telling the World" and who scored again in "Our Dancing Daughters," plays the heroine. The cast includes Wheeler Oakman, Carroll Nye, Mae Busch, Polly Moran, Lydia Yeamans Titus, Richard Carle, and others.

AT THE REGENT.

THEY'LL ROOT FOR RINTY AS THEY NEVER DID BEFORE

"Land of the Silver Fox" teems with vigorous action, while the setting of the frozen wilderness of upper Hudson Bay affords a background of rare beauty.

The story gives Rin-Tin-Tin splendid opportunity to display his skill, daring and agility. It offers color and emotion for the human cast, too. Leila Hyams and Carroll Nye as a pair of lovers held apart by treachery arouse sympathy, while John Miljan and Thomas Santschi are formidable and provokative villains.

The story of "Land of the Silver Fox" has to do with the silver fox trapping industry, concerning itself especially with the efforts of the manager of a trading post to thwart the long-delayed marriage of his ward to a young trapper. The scheming post-manager connives with a notorious killer to do away with the boy and steal a stock of pelts, but through the watchfulness of Rinty the scheme is frustrated and the obstacles in the lovers' path cleared away. This film, adapted by Howard Smith from a Charles Condon story was directed by Ray Enright.

Rin-Tin-Tin is "Land of the Silver Fox" now at the Regent.

AFRICAN JUNGLE BUILT FOR "TARZAN THE MIGHTY"

A Central African jungle was built on the lot at Universal's studio for the filming of "Tarzan the Mighty," Universal's thrilling chapter-play, the second chapter of which will be shown here at the Regent Theatre. "The Love Call" is the title of the second chapter, the first, "The Terror of Tarzan," having started last week.

On an area covering forty acres Universal planted thousands of jungle plants which had been brought from Africa, kept in a hot house on the boat and immediately put into the ground at the studio. Quick production was necessary to shoot the scenes before the plants died as a result of the change of climate. The work was done under the supervision of men who had liver for years in the real jungles of the Congo.

A scheme of concealed wires was employed to keep the wild beasts, most of whom were untrained, from escaping. The wires, strong enough to hold back attacks of a lion or an elephant, were surrounded by the plant grown Even the beasts did not know where they were until they dashed against them.

"The Love Call" is one of the most thrilling chapters in "Tarzan the Mighty." A synopsis of the first chapter is shown on the screen, so those who did not see hte beginning may still know how the story goes. Jack Nelson directed under the supervision of William Lord Wright.

Frank Merrill plays the starring role of Tarzan, while the cast includes ..Natalie Kingston, Al Ferguson, Bobbie Trevor and Lorimer Johnston.

AT THE GRAND.

"OLIVER TWIST."

The producer of "Oliver Twist," as it was presented at the Grand Opera House, last night, has much to be congratulated upon. To be able to take one of the voluminous books of Charles Dickens, and, by means of a series of brief scenes, to give an audience a comprehensive idea of the story which revolves about the fortunes of the famous lad, is a real achievement. The circumlocution with which the great Master writer wove the tale of his puppet figures is lost in the brisk modern handling of them. But still, none of the well-known figures are omitted.

Here is the pompous Beadle, the famous Mr. Bumble who encouraged his wife to cry because it was good for her eyes, here is the mild and benevolent Mr. Brownlow, befriending Oliver at every turn, here is Bill Sykes, true in every detail to the conception of him which Dickens placed on the canvas of his book.

Nancy is just a little more beautiful than the drab creature who helped Oliver in the story, but she is a memorable figure. The manner of her passing is almost as brutal as the reader could conceive when he read the book but the actors' passion for curtain calls saves the feelings of the audience to a certain extent. To perceive Nancy and Bill Sykes appear before the curtain, just after she has passed away in a blood-curdling manner, is to take away, to a great extent, the savor of the harrowing scene. It may not be artistic, but it protects the worked-up feelings of the watchers. One is rather glad, however, that Fagin does not take a curtain call after he throws himself insanely on the floor of his cell.

This figure of Fagin, as played by Barnsby Williams, is a superb characterization, and the dual role in which Mr. Williams assumes a second part, as the peppery Mr. Grimwig, with a kindly heart smothered almost entirely by the pangs of a gout-ridden existence, is a memorable one. There seems nothing incongruous in the spectacle of the swift change which takes the thieving Jew off the stage and brings back the same actor in another role. So different are they and so fine is the art of the man who portrays them. Fagin commences his part, with a decided English twist to his tongue, but the Yiddish element conquers this later.

Charles Dickens had the faculty of twining threads of tragedy and comedy in his stories. With marvellous effect, that atmosphere has been preserved in this play, just as th emid-Victorian costumes, the 'puce' gown of Mrs. Maylie, the gentle friend of Mr. Brownlow, preserves the soft, candle-lit way of the life of those days. The contrast afforded by glimpses, in turn, of the life of Fagin and his thieves, and the refined living of Mr. Brownlow and his friends, makes this play a notable production.

Fagin, of course, is the outstanding figure. Around the figure of this red-bearded Jew, invoking Providence in blasphemous, humorous sentences, shambling back and forth through his spider's den, as he weaves the web which will bring him what he craves for, in renewed riches, baiting, with cunning instinct, the ravenous passions of the men who are his tools, inciting his servile followers to theft and Bill Sykes to murder, around this figure revolves the story. Perhaps there was no more tense and terrible moment in the whole play than the brief space of time when Fagin paused at the door of Bill Sykes, den, to cast a reflective glance at the figure of Nancy. As she stood there, unconscious of the doom which waited for her in the bludgeon held in Sykes' quivering hand, Fagin looked back at her, realizing that he had brought her death upon her. Then, carefully closing the door, he went out, with satisfied revenge in the "click click" of a cruel tongue.

Fagin has a humour all his own. Through the conversation with his thieves and the soliloquies which intervene during his moments of seclusion, this sarcastic relish of the irony of life gleams forth, just as Dickens meant it to do. He seems to be a little sorry for the tools of his evil ways, but still he goes on to the final scene ,the cell where he bursts forth, in one last insane moment of fear, against the hangman's rope that waits for him.

By means of little inset cameos, brief and enlightening, the scenes have their explanation and the story moves to a peaceful climax.

The supporting cast is notable, in almost every instance. In the dual role of Fagin, the Jew, and of Mr. Grimwig, Bransby Williams has the support of a fine cast. Miss Kathleen Saintsbury makes a wonderful Nancy and other feminine characters are Mrs Maylie, friend of Mr. Brownlow, a part taken by Minnie Watersford, Rose Maylie, (Margaret Ives), a delightful glimps of old-time maidenhood who has a marvellous speaking voice and an awkward fashion with the ruffles on her flowing gown, and Mrs. Bedwin, (Ira Millias), Mr. Brownlow's house-keeper, who epitomizes in person all those delightful ladies of Dicken' books, who, with their mob caps and curtseys, represent the refined serving element of Victorian days.

Monks, or Edwin Leeford, the villain, is a typical example of the sort of unscrupulous, dark-haired man that Dickens loved to portray, and is well done by Harold Finden. The pompous beadle, Mr. Bumble, with his scarlet breeks and uppish air, is played by C. Harcourt Brooke, and Mr. Brownlow is acted by Fred Garratt. The brutish, savage figure of Bill Sykes has an excellent characterization by Lodge Percy and Oliver himself is enacted by Betty Booth. Other minor parts are taken by Ian Priestly-Mitchell, as John Dawkins, the artful Dodger, Kenneth Lascelles, as Charles Bates, Fred Clark as Barney, Leonard Turner as Toby Crackit,, a burglar, Henry Brittain as Giles, and Allan Dewar as Brittles.

The play is produced by Barnsby Williams, with Leslie Thurley as his general manager. Lodge Perc as stage manager, and Les Appleby as Advance representative.

Athough the audience was quite small last night, those who saw this entirely new adaptation of Charles Dickens' famous novel by Barnsby Williams and his company enjoyed an evening of wonderful interest and appeared to appreciate to the utmost the art of the players and the attractive manner of presentation.

Mr. Williams took occasion, at the conclusion of the play, to thank those who patronized the production and also spoke with regret at the very small attendance, which he regarded as a lack of interest in really worth-while dramatic productions. Jeanette.

MILLROSE A. A. MEET LISTS 18 EVENTS SO FAR

Understood International Relay Will Be Held Between Canada and United States.

ENTRY BLANKS OUT.

Percy Williams and John Ball Expect To Be Among Competitors.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Time-honored features top the program for the Millrose A. A. games which will be held at Madison Square Garden, on Saturday, February 9. Eighteen events in all, aside from the interstore and intercollegiate replays to be arranged, are listed on the entry blanks, distribution of which was begun yesterday. Millrose officials expect a quick response and anticipate a complete entry list long before the date set for closing of entries, January 31.

The Millrose "600" and Rodman Wanamaker Mile again are the featured events, but the program includes seven other "specials" for men. More may be added. The trophies which were at stake last year again will be the prizes in the mile and "600."

The Rodman Wanamaker Trophy for the longer race goes into its sixth year of competition, Lloyd Hahn having two legs on it, and Paavo Nurmi, Joie Ray and Jimmy Connolly having one each.

Leness First Winner

George Leness won the first leg on the John Wanamaker, Jr. Trophy which was put up in the Millrose "600" for the first time last year, replacing the Haughton Trophy which was won outright by Alan Helffrich. Leness is expected to defend possession of the award, but it is believed that Han will forego the chance to gain permanent possession of the mile trophy.

Georgetown University will try for the third year in succession to gain permanent title to the John Wanamaker's Paris House Cup, which annually is awarded to the college or club whose mile relay team makes the fastest time. The Hilltoppers carried it away in 1925 and 1926, but yielded to Syracuse in 1927 and to Holy Cross in 1928. Boston A. A. won the first leg in 1924.

The complete list of events scheduled so far are the Rodman Wanamaker mile; Millrose "600"; one-mile walk, 30-second limit handicap; special sprint series; 50-yard sprint, six-foot limit handicap; 1,000-yard run; two-mile run, miss and out; 880-yard run; 50 yard high hurdles, 6-foot limit handicap; running high jump, Millrose-Meadowbrook relay, one-mile industrial relay, one mile inter-club relay, one-mile interscholastic relay; and intercollegiate and interstore relays to be arranged.

Women's events include the 50-yard dash, 440-yard international relay, 440-yard industrial relay and running high jump.

Although the Millrose games committee is unwilling to talk on the subject, it is understood that an international relay between Canada and the United States is in the making. This will bring some of the Dominion's Olympic stars to the Garden. Included among them probably will be Percy Williams, the Olympic sprint champion, and John Ball, runnery up to Ray Barbuti in the Olympic 400 meters.

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 10.—(Canadian Press.)—When the original invitation to compete in the Millrose indoor games at New York next month was extended to Percy Williams in Amsterdam last August by Mel Sheppard, the former Olympic champion, the Canadian boy expressed the hope that Sheppard would assist him in securing proper spiked shoes for indoor racing. Williams had never raced on the boards, but knew that suitable shoes were essential. Today word was received in Hamilton that the Millrose official, living up to his promise of Amsterdam days, had sent a pair of special shoes to Williams and that they had gone forward to Vancouver by air mail.

Boston, New York and Philadelphia are greatly interested in the invasion of the indoor tracks next month by the Canadian contingent which will include Williams, of Vancouver; Ball, of Winnipeg; Fitzpatrick of Hamilton; Wilson, of Montreal; and Phil Edwards. Williams and Ball will compete at Boston on February 2, all five at New York on February 9, and at Philadelphia on February 12, while Ball and Williams will be in action at New York again on February 18. The Canadians will have a medley relay team in the Millrose games and also in the Meadowbrook games at Philadelphia. The Canadian girls' Olympic delay team will also compete at the Millrose games as will the Hamilton Central Collegiate relay. All details have been completed by Mr. Robinson of Hamilton, who will be in charge.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

The Intermediate Petes play in Bowmanville to-morrow night, and the St. John's team journeys to Lindsay.

* * * * * * *

The game last night between Marmora and Lakefield was a ding-dong battle, although both teams showed the lack of practise. Marmora led 4 to 3 in the middle of the third period, but the northern town squeezed out a victory when Northey tied up the score and Blewett, the hefty defence man, scored the winning goal one minute before the end when he grabbed a loose puck, and slammed it it.

* * * * * * *

The Church Hockey League opens its schedule to-night with four games, on the Cognawaga Rink.

* * * * * * *

Some of the players in the city don't seem to appreciate the purpose of the O.H.A. in adopting the blue line into the rules. It was innovated to speed up the game by giving the team a chance to break away fast from the opposing forwards. It should receive more attention from the local managers.

* * * * * * *

The Oshawa Times hastens to prophecy that Bowmanville will beat the Petes in the Intermediate game in the Goodyear town. However, on the locals' showing the other night and their improvement in practise there seems no reason why they should not repeat the victory gained on home ice.

* * * * * * *

With seven players among the fifteen highest scorers in their group, the Leafs are showing the way to the other teams in the group in the matter of goal getting. The Leafs have won more games and lost more games than any other team in their group to date. They are the only team in any of the professional hockey leagues to escape a tie contest.

* * * * * * *

Major penalties have been noticeably lacking in the N.H.L. this year, and no player has had to suffer the automatic suspension that comes after three major penalties have been called against him. Lionel Connacher looms up as the "bad man" of the circuit, although previously the big fellow had always worn the reputation of being a clean player despite his size and ability to spill the puck carriers.

Belleville To Enter Junior Basketball Team

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 10.—At a meeting held at the Y.M.C.A. in the interest of basketball last night, it was decided to enter both in the junior and intermediate sections of the Eastern Ontario Amateur Basketball Association. It is several years since the local Y.M.C.A. has been represented in junior basketball, having confined their activities to the intermediate group, but this year it has been thought advisable to also enter the junior series due to the fact that there is much excellent material from which to build up a team.

Last night's meeting was well represented by the players from both groups, and judging from the interest shown in the game, the association is due to have a banner year in this department of its activities.

TEAMS BATTLE TO ONE-ALL TIE

Canucks and Maroons Tangle in Opening Fixture of Juvenile League.

MAPLE LEAFS WIN 3-2.

The six teams in the Juvenile Hockey League got away to a good start on Tuesday night with two games ending in a draw. All games will be scored on points; first and second teams to play off. The next games will be played on Tuesday night. Fans that are interested in these youngsters should be on hand at the Sacred Heart Rink, as they will see some real fast hockey in these games.

In the first game the Maroons and Canucks fought it out to a one-all draw. The Canucks, getting the first goal, tried hard to hold back the small but fast Maroons, who scored in the last five minutes to tie it up in the last five minutes of the play from a scramble from behind the Canuck net. Referee, H. Ranger.

In the second game, Harold Wright's Adanacs made the Tigers step every minute of the second game and held them to a one-all draw. This game was full of thrills and spills, as both teams are tough aggregations, and were out to bring home a victory. Referee H. O'Toole.

The East City Maple Leafs sent the Bucaneers down to a 3 to 2 count, which left the Maple Leafs as the only winner of the night. Referee, W. Rogers.

Canadians and Rangers Play On Successive Days

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 10.—At a special meeting here of officials of the National Hockey League yesterday it was decided that the game between the New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens which was postponed last Tuesday would be played off here February 9, the night before the next scheduled appearance of the Flying Frenchman.

With two games on successive days, Leo Dandurand, president of the Canadiens, said that 250 supporters of the team would make the trip on a special train. In return for the consideration of the Canadiens' officials in agreeing to the postponement, Colonel John S. Hammond, Rangers' president, issued on invitation to those making the trip to attend the boxing show at Madison Square Garden, February 8, as the guests of the club.

Binghampton has signed Johnny Coughlin, a third baseman, wno had the misfortune to break a finger in the first game last spring. After the accident he did not appear in another New York-Pennsylvania League game.

SWEDISH-CANADIAN RELATIONS CLOSER

Interest in Dominion Grows in Nation of Northern Europe.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 10.—(Canadian Press.)—Interest in Canada is continually growing in Sweden and the Swedes more and more realize their kinship with their Canadian cousins.

Canada is a country with great possibilities, it offers a hard life, but sturdy people will always find a living there, is the opinion of Major Ahlstroem, a distinguished Swedish officer, who has spent several months in Canada. Major Ahlstroem was a member of an official committee which included W. Weibull, agricultural expert and E. Haglund, another Swedish official, who were sent out from Sweden to investigate the possibilities of an increased Swedish immigration to Canada.

Mr. Haglund emphasized his favorable impression of Canada, the natural wealth of which can hardly be estimated. "On every side are signs of development," he said in a newspaper interview in Stockholm, "and the whole Dominion is seething with energy. At present there are only 10,000,000 people in Canada, but in the general opinion 100,000,000 people could live there." He advised, however, only farmers and farm hands to emigrate to Canada for the present.

The "Sevensk Handelstidning," a leading commercial weekly of Stockholm also stresses the importance of opening more extensive commercial relations between Canada and Sweden, considering the rich crops of the former country, its natural resources and its prosperous population for which the Swedish people have the warmest sympathies.

There are also signs of closer cultural relations between the two countries, such as the recent visit to Stockholm of Mme. Eva Gauthier, a Canadan singer, who gave a concert which was favorably received by the critics.

The "European Elegia," translated by Watson Kirkconnell of Wesley college, Winnipeg, has been favorably reviewed in "Svenska Dagbladet," leading Stockholm newspaper, by Anders Oesterling, a member of the Swedish Academy and one of Sweden's most renowned poets. Mr. Kirkconnell's hundred lyrical translations from various languages, among which Sweden is represented by three poems by Almquist, Froeding, and Heiderstam, show an unusual philological knowledge as well as ingenious skill of interpretation, says Mr. Oesterling.

COLLEGIATE NOTES

During this week an inspector from the Department of Education is at the Collegiate. Wednesday morning in the auditorium the inspector gave an interesting talk on education and the method to gain it.

The Collegiate rink opens Friday evening, weather permitting. There will be a band in attendance.

The P.C.I. basketball team go into action Saturday in an exhibition game with the Collegiate. In a previous announcement it was omitted that there was no admission charge, this being the first game of the season.

I Would Not Like To Be Without Them

Says Ontario Man of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. N. Shafer Used Them For Pains in the Back Caused by Severe Colds

Kitchener, Ont., Jan. 9.—(Special)—During the winter months colds and chills double the work of the kidneys. It is therefore necessary to strengthen them and safeguard yourself against serious results. Dodd's Kidney Pills are a reliable Kidney medicine.

Mr. N. Shafer, 31 Irvin St., Kitchener, writes:—"I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills on different occasions and found them very effective for pains in the back caused by severe colds. I keep them on hand all the time and whenever I feel the need I take them until the pain leaves. I am past fifty and would not like to be without them."

Your health, strength and vitality depend upon the condition of your blood, for it is through the blood that every part of your body is nourished.

Pure blood cursing through the body carries to the different organs the nourishment they need to keep them healthy.

Minister of Interior Issues Statement On Progress Of Power Development.

MANY INSTALLATIONS.

OTTAWA, Jan. 10.—With world interest centered upon the efforts being put forth in almost every civilized country to secure additional supplies of low-priced power for the needs of industry, the annual review of hydro-electric progress in Canada by the Honorable Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, is of timely significance, indicating as it does, that throughout the Dominion the greatest activity prevails in harnessing for industrial, commercial and domestic use the advantageously situated and ample water-power resources of the country.

During the year 1928 the energy of the water-wheels or turbines actually installed and brought into operation amounted to 550,000 horse-power, thus bringing the total for the whole Dominion to 5,328,000 horse-power. In addition to this large increase there are many projects under active construction, some of them nearing completion and others just recently initiated, whose combined installations will result in adding more than 1,200,000 h.p. to the country's total. There are also many projects of magnitude in the formative stage, some of which will undoubtedly be undertaken in the near future.

What this great activity means to the prosperity of the country may be gauged from the huge sums of money which must be expended to bring these projects into being and to apply the power to its ultimate uses. For the actual development, transmission, and distribution of the power capacity installed in 1928, together with that now under active construction, it is estimated that not less than $330,000,000 will be required; while for every dollar expended in power development competent authorities have estimated that six dollars are required in its application. It is necessary, therefore, to visualize the effects throughout the country of the expenditure of an amount reaching, probably, $2,300,000,000.

With regard to the activities of 1928, although the works of greatest magnitude were in the province of Quebec as has been the case for the past few years, probably the most interesting feature is that practically every province is represented in the year's program.

CANADIAN AUTHORS HOLD POEM CONTEST

Competition Conducted By Association Will Close February 15.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 10. — (By Canadian Press). — Seven prizes for poetry will be awarded by the poetry group of the Canadian Authors' Association for poems submitted in a competition which is to close February 15, 1929, it was announced at a meeting of the Association held here last night. Another feature of the meeting was a lecture on "The Insides of Novels" by the guest of honor, Dr. Pelham Edgar, Professor of English at Victoria College, Toronto.

The prizes offered by the poetry group are as follows:

A prize of twenty-five dollars, offered by Sir James Aikins, of Winnipeg, for the best short, original, unpublished patriotic poem, by a Canadain residing in Canada.

A prize of books or a framed picture (value twenty-five dollars) offered to members of the poetry group only by Lady Roddick, for the best, short, original, unpublished poem on bout Montreal, or some feature of local interest, such as the river, the mountain, the harbor, the bridge, etc.

A prize of twenty-five dollars, offered by Mrs. R. E. MacDougall, for a short, original, unpublished poem on any subject. This contest is open to any poet residing in Canada.

A prize of fifteen dollars for the best original French poem, on any subject, offered by Miss A. Beatrice Hickson

A prize of ten dollars, offered by Warwick Chipman, for the best short poem, written by any college student in Canada during the present year.

A prize of ten dollars, offered by Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Buyers, for the best short poem written by a high school boy or girl in Canada during the current, year, certified by a teacher.

A prize of a book, or a subscription to a magazine, to be awarded by vote of the members of the poetry group, for the best poem by one of them, submitted for criticism and discussion in open forum.

Rules of the contest ask for typed manuscripts which will not be returned. Only one poem may be submitted by each competitor for any prize and winners of a major prize in previous contestts within two years may submit a poem but will be hors concours.

Only short, unpublished, original poems are eligible. A poem printed for private circulation or in a college journal is regarded as unpublished.

Sun Life Policyholders To Receive Special Bonus

In Addition To Regular Dividends in 1929 of approximately $17,500,000

SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

MONTREAL January 8, 1929.

To Our Policyholders:

We have just completed another wonderful year, with profit earnings never before equalled. Our Directors have therefore inaugurated the principle of allowing a Special Bonus on maturing participating policies. The basis for 1929 may be summarized as follows:

> On policies ten years in force, maturing by death or (on 'reserve dividend' policies) by the expiry of the reserve dividend period, a bonus of 10 per cent of the reserve, increasing yearly to 15 per cent on policies in force twenty years or longer; on endowments, at maturity, a bonus of 10 per cent of the face value of policies ten years in force, increasing yearly to 15 per cent on policies in force twenty years or longer.

Details will be given in the forthcoming annual report.

This special bonus is in addition to, and independent of, the usual annual profit distribution, the scale for which, for the ninth consecutive year, will again be increased.

We congratulate our members on this happy announcement. It has been made possible only by the large profits earned on the securities selected for the investment of the Company's funds.

As ninety-five per cent of all surplus earned by the participating assurances accrues to our policyholders themselves, they enjoy practical mutuality, combined with the enterprise and stability of stock management. The effect of this combination is evidenced by the results.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR

As long as men and women accept the word of Satan, in preference to the word of Jenovah God, they will continue to preach that man is immortal, that man has a soul, but is not a soul, and that the word hell means endless torments. They preach these erroneous doctrines notwithstanding the plain statements of Scripture to the contrary; and further they are so infatuated with error, that they ignore the simple definitions by Webster's Dictionary of the words—soul, meaning a person, life; the word, spirit, meaning life, and the word hell, simply meaning the grave. Satan has deceived the world for centuries and has skilfully used as his agents, those who pose as teachers of the people in regard to the truth of God, but who like Janner and Jambres withstood Moses, so do they resist the truth, men of corrupt minds, reprobate concerning the faith.—M. OBITUARY

MRS. THOMAS EASTWOOD.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HALL'S BRIDGE, Jan 10 — The death occurred this morning at 2 o'clock of Mrs. Thomas Eastwood, aged 81, at Buckhorn House She leaves to mourn her loss one son John and a sister, Cora

The funeral will take place on Saturday at 11:30 to Rays Cemetery, Lakefield

MRS. (REV.) J. P. WILSON

The death took place in Belleville last Sunday afternoon, January 6, 1929, of a former resident of Peterborough, Mrs. Elizabeth E. Barr Wilson, wife of the Rev. Dr. J. P. Wilson, who for many years was pastor of George street Methodist church and pastor of the new Trinity church after it was built.

The late Mrs. Wilson was possessed of many amiable qualities which endeared her to a large circle of friends since her residence in Belleville which begun after Mr. Wilson was superannuated some years ago.

MRS. GEORGE HATHERLY

The death occurred at Winnipeg on December 30, 1928 of Mrs. George Hatherly, at her residence, 581 Anderson avenue. Deceased was 69 years of age, having been born in Hamilton township, about three miles from the head of Rice Lake. She came with her parents to Otonabee township, and for a number of years has resided in Winnipeg.

Left to mourn are her sorrowing husband, one daughter and two sons, namely: Mrs. Kennedy, Henry and Frederick, all of Winnipeg; one brother, James of Peterborough; three sisters, Miss Mary Hatherly, of Norwood, Mrs. A. Wilson of Emerson, Manitoba, and Mrs. J. J. Jinkins of Dummer.

The funeral took place from her late residence to Brookside cemetery on January 2, 1929.

MRS. ELIZA PATTERSON.

There passed away at noon on Wednesday an old and respected resident of this city in the person of Eliza McKnight, relict of the late George Patterson, who predeceased her eight years ago. She was born in Ireland eighty-seven years ago, and at an early age came to Canada with her parents and brothers, who are long since deceased. Her early home was near Frazerville, in South Monaghan, but the greater part of her married life was spent in Peterborough.

Of a family of ten children only four are left to mourn her loss. These are: Mrs. Edward Weese, Mrs. Sidney Crowe, and Bruce of this city, and Wilfred of Kelso, Washington.

The funeral will take place at 2 p.m. on Friday, January 11, from the home of her son Bruce, 59 McDonnel Street. The services will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Blagrave, and interment will be at the Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS EDWARD CLANCY

The death occurred early Thursday morning of Mrs Edward Clancy, 59 Division Street, Oshawa, in her 57th year, following an attack of double pneumonia The late Mrs Clancy was a daughter of Mr and Mrs Daniel Winn and before living in Oshawa, resided in Downeyville and Lindsay. The deceased was a woman of fine character and was loved and respected by all who knew her She had been ill for a month and passed away quite peacefully

Besides her husband, she is survived by five daughters, Isobel, Marie, Genevieve, Mary and Winnifred also two sons, Patrick and Dan all at home; also one sister, Mrs. Patrick Collins of Reaboro, and three brothers George Winn of Calgary, Patrick Winn of Downeyville and Dan Winn of Toronto. The funeral was held on Saturday morning at eight o'clock from St. Gregory's Roman Catholic Church. Following the funeral Mass which was chanted by Rev. Father Bench, the party left for Downeyville Interment took place in St. Luke's Church Cemetery, Downeyville.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Mr. Hiram Bertrand, who departed this life Jan. 10, 1916:

When the evening shades are falling
And we are sitting all alone,
To our hearts their comes a longing
If he only could come home.

The golden gates were open
A gentle voice said come,
And with farewell unspoken
He calmly entered rest

REBEL FORCES HOLD SUPERIOR POSITION

No Further Fighting Has Been Reported in Afghanistan.

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 10—(Canadian Press). — Rebel sunder Bauhai Sakao appeared to-day to be retaining their superior position in their attack on loyal Afghan troops near Kabul. Otherwise there was no further news of fighting in Afghanistan.

No telegraph land lines were working with Afghanistan, all apparently having been cut.

A Royal Air Force plane flew from Peshawar to Kabul and back yesterday carrying British and Afghan mails. In view of the situation permission was given for a weekly air mail service from India to Kabul.

It was announced to-day that a total of 132 persons had been evacuated by air from Kabul.

ATTORNEY GENERAL DELIVERS ULTIMATUM

DEPUTATION FROM COUNCIL VISITS COMMANDER BOOTH SEEKING HIS RESIGNATION

General Will Give His Reply On Monday To High Council of Army.

TURBULENT SCENES.

Evangeline Booth Is Summoned To Bedside of Her Sick Brother To Discuss Situation.

SOUTHWOLD, England, Jan. 11 (Canadian Press).—An official statement issued in behalf of General Bramwell Booth late to-day said that after listening carefully to a deputation from the Grand Council which had urged his retirement, he announced that he would give his answer on Monday.

The deputation which came to inform General Bramwell Booth that his retirement was requested, spent a half an hour in his cottage and then motored away.

The deputation arrived two hours before it was expected.

When asked on leaving if they had seen General Booth, Commissioner Cunningham said, "We can give you no information."

There was only a small gathering outside the General's seaside cottage against which the rain beat wildly while the roar of the breakers as they beat upon the beach could be plainly heard.

The representatives of the High Council were admitted as soon as they arrived.

LONDON, Jan. 11 (Canadian Press).—Having recommended to General Bramwell Booth that he retire as Command-in-Chief of the Salvation Army, the High Council to-day waited his reply. Should the General refuse to retire voluntarily, the councillors will meet to consider their next move.

Turbulent scenes were said by to-day's Daily Mail to have occurred in the High Council Chamber at Sunbury-on-Thames when the proposal for retiring the General was under discussion.

The Commander had sent a letter to the council proposing that control of the affairs of the Army should be put into the hands of a commission which would included Evangeline Booth, leader of the reform element. They were to administer his office for him while he was ill.

When the General's letter was read someone questioned its authenticity. About that time the lights went off and a messenger arrived with a note for Commissioner Hay, President of

LITTLE CHANGE NOTICED IN KING

London Paper Says There Are Still Anxious Days Ahead.

DIFFICULTIES TO FACE.

LONDON, January 11. —(Canadian Press). — It was authoritatively stated this morning,that King George had passed a quiet night. There was no change in his condition.

The Times in an editorial to-day tried to impress upon its readers that there were still anxious days ahead. The paper said:

"The King's doctors have numerous difficulties still to face and the heavy burden of responsibility that devolves upon them has not yet been lightened. The mere fact that winter is so little advanced must of itself set bounds to optimism."

The Royal Family meanwhile was not encouraging any dismal view and continued to take part in public functions and amusements.

The Daily Mail said that the Prince of Wales twice this week joined the dancers at a society club in the West end. Princess Mary attended the enthronement ceremonies of the Archbishop of York.

The Dukes of York and Gloucester were still shooting pheasants at Sandringham where the Prince of Wales and Prince George are expected to go next week.

The Daily Express quoted a palace offical to-day as denying a despatch from the Hague saying that the Royal Dutch Air Line had arranged to transport daily to London a supply of fresh milk and cream for the King. The official said that milk for the King was still being supplied by his own farm at Windsor.

KING ALEXANDER TAKES CONTROL

Assassination of King Alexander of Jugoslavia is looked for by Croats living in Canada as a result of Alexander's coup d'etat of last week by which he took for himself the powers of dictator. Satisfaction with the move gave way quickly to a feeling of unrest, particularly among the Croats, when it was announced that Alexander had established a system of censorship of telegrams and letters. On Jan. 9 the Jugoslavian king suppressed five newspapers and when leaders of the Croatian peasant party met at the provincial diet building at Zagreb they found it locked against them. Zagreb the Croats contend, is their capital. In the pictures ABOVE are shown: No. (1) King Alexander of Jugoslavia; No. (2) Queen Marie of Jugoslavia, a daughter of Queen Marie of Roumania, and granddaughter of Queen Victoria of England. She is holding the heir to the Jugoslavian throne, Prince Peter; No. (3) is Stephan Raditch, assassinated leader of the Croatian peasant party, who has become a national hero since his death; No. (4) is General Hadjitch, strong Serbian military leader and righthand man to General Peter Zivkocitch, the new Jugoslavian premier. The map of Jugoslavia shows Zagreb, regarded by the Croats as their capital; Belgrade, the capital city, and other important centres.

Prosecute In Future Jailer

Attorney General Price Is Aroused To Action To Prevent Jail Breaking.

HELD RESPONSIBLE.

Comments Of Ease Of Escape At Peterborough and Chatham.

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 11.—(Special to Examiner). — The recent jail escapes of John Parks from Peterborough, and Orville Shaw from Chatham has roused Attorney-General Price to action designed to prevent recurrences of such escapes in the future. Civic officials stated here to-day that Mr. Price made strong comments on the ease with which these men secured their freedom and stated that in the event of another escape in Ontario, the governor of the jail who had the men in his custody would not only be held responsible but would be prosecuted.

Such action was taken in the case of Hutchison. Stratford county constable who had S. Rozan in his custody when he escaped a few weeks ago. Hutchison was convicted and given a jail sentence for laxity in performing his duties.

The Attorney General's attitude is not aimed at the Hamilton jail authorities. During the past thirty years there has been but six jail escapes and only one during the past six years. The only sensational episode during the present generation at the jail here was when Kowalski the murderer ran amuck nine years ago murdering two guards and seriously injured a third. He was over-powered before he gained the outer portal of the building and a few days later paid the penalty for his crimes.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Recently the government removed the governor of the jail at London from office following a sensational escape from that institution and this policy may be adhered to in the future.

Not only is there a strong possibility that jail governors will find themselves without employment if

HOME RULE IS MAIN ISSUE IN ELECTION FIGHT

Candidates in By-election Are Demaning Home Rule For Scotland.

SEVERAL PLANS.

Liberal Candidate Favors Control of Taxation But Not of Customs.

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Jan. 11.—(By George Hambleton, Staff Correspondent of the Canadian Press.)—The political big guns are moving into North Midlothian, where a by-election will be decided on Jan. 29 With Home Rule for Scotland the leading issue, Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, and Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson on behalf of Andrew Clarke, Labor candidate; Sir Herbert Samuel for David Ke , Liberal, and Lord Linlithgow for Major John Colville, Conservative, are all expected to take part in this unique by-election campaign. So far, while the party organizations are keeping a close eye on the contest, lack of local enthusiasm is reported generally. Major Colville indeed describes apathy as the "fifth candidate" in the fight. To the pleas of Lewis Spence, Scottish National Party candidate, for equal status as between England and Scotland, Colville replies separation of the two countries would mean dislocation of trade.

Outlining further the position of the Scottish Nationals, Spence explains his party waints introduction of a one-clause bill in London to repeal the act of union of 1707. If the bill is not passed by a majority of Scottish and English members combined, and the vote shows a majority of Scottish members in favor of the bill, his party would withdraw from Westminster and constitutionally demand formation of a Scottish parliament as expressed by the majority of the representatives of the Scottish people. The Scottish parliament thus set up would be the appropriate body to treat with the British parliament regarding the new union between England and Scotland on an equal basis. The Scottish parliament, too, should alone frame the constiution of the Scottish State.

Control of Taxation.

Keir, the Liberal candidate, speaking at New Craig Hall last night favored creation of a Scottish parliament with control of taxation in Scotland, but with customs and excise matters reserved to the Imperial par-

LOCAL NASHUA PAPER COMPANY HAS MADE RAPID ADVANCEMENT GENERAL MANAGER ANNOUNCES

First Year's Business Amounted To $230,000, While 1928 Totalled $800,000.

EMPLOYEES BANQUETED.

Mayor Denne Expresses Gratification at the Success of Peterborough's Industry.

An instance of the manner in which one of the manufacturing plants of the city has advanced with rapid strides to a position of successful prominence was given last night at the dinner-dance of the Canadian Nashua Paper Company, held in the Downyflake, when the general manager, J. R. Marshall, referred to the volume of business done during the past year by this organization.

Coming to the city less than ten years ago, and starting on bedrock the total receipts of the company last year amounted to over $800,000 and their objective, which at one time was placed at a half million, now has been advanced to a million. In their first year, the volume of business done amounted to about $230,000.

Mr. Marshall spoke of the pride and satisfaction afforded the management by the rapid strides made by this youthful industry and the fact that it was now a fixed and permanent factor in the manufacturing life of Peterborough and would be, "as long as there is business to be done in Canada." He said that, up to the present, all money had been used for salaries, upkeep and improvement of the plant, and that now, after nearly ten years, was the first time when the company could think of making the investors some return by way of dividends.

Saying that the whole-hearted cooperation of the employees had been a great factor in achieving this result, Mr. Marshall extended the sincere appreciation of the management to all, from the lowest to the highest, who had helped during the past decade, and quoted the attitude of Sir Christopher Wren's workman, who said he was "helping to build a great cathedral" rather than simply laboring for a daily wage, as the finest type of mental approach to one's job.

Mayor Denne, a guest at the dinner last evening, spoke briefly in response to the toast to "Our City." He expressed his gratification at the success of the Canadian Nashua Paper Company and also referred to the excellence of such gatherings as bringing all members of a plant together in a happy social way. He expressed his gratification at the action of the citizens in supporting the Johnson Motor Company by-law and said that another item in the future advancement of the city as an industrial center was the proposed doubling of its present plant by the Canadian General Electric Company and its program of expenditure within the next few years of six million dollars in this way.

United Empire Loyalists Make Claims To Lands Given Up By Their Forefathers Who Were Forced Out of the States

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 11.—(Canadian Press).—United Empire Loyalists at a meeting of the Toronto branch of the association, passed a resolution last night, sanctioning an effort to press their claim to property in the United States, confiscated following the war of secession.

James R. Roaf, K.C., presented the motion. It proposed that the British Government make an offer to the Government of United States to abrogate the clause in the Treaty of Paris, 1783, which provided for the recovery of lands of the Loyalists, some of it in what is now the heart of American cities. In return for abrogation of this clause the resolution requested that Loyalists giving up their claim to lands should be reimbursed by the sum of $5,000,000,000.

SENATOR REED OF MISSOURI MAKES LONG AWAITED ATTACK ON KELLOGG-BRIAND TREATY

Britain Is Strongly Criticized By Missourian in United States' Senate.

ADMITTED EXCEPTIONS.

These Are Attributed To Efforts of British Empire During Negotiations.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Senator Reed, of Missouri, famous as an irreconcilable opponent of the League of Nations, to-day made his long awaited attack on the Kellogg-Briand treaty to renounce war as an instrument of national policy.

The Missourian declared that he would have refrained from speaking against the pact if an interpretative resolution or report had been brought in, but that the failure to thus clearly set forth United States views made it necessary for every Senator to look closely into what the treaty meant before giving his advice and consent to ratification.

As he spoke Senator Reed had before him on an easel a large map of the world showing the British possessions and spheres of interest in bright red coloring.

"What the nations of the world have not been able to accomplish in all time" Reed declared, "is now proposed to be done by the magic stroke of Mr. Kellog's pen.

"On its face the treaty would do away with all wars but the negotiations had scarcely begun when Mr. Kellogg began to admit exceptions.

"I wish to call your attention to those exceptions so we can see what is left of this treaty after we have considered them."

He listed the wars which would be excepted from operation of the pact—defensive wars, and those involving the League of Nations, and Locarno Treaties.

Each Nation Its Own Judge

In addition he said certain zones of influence are to be expected and the right is not to be denied a country to protect its trade and nationals and lastly that each nation was to be its own judge of what constituted self defence.

He attributed these exceptions to the efforts of Great Britain during the negotiations. Then, walking to his map, the Senator detailed the scattered world-wide defenses of Great Britain, dwelling particularly upon Canada, Bermuda, Jamaica and other points near the United States. In five hours time he declared Great Britain could destroy the Panama Canal.

"And in the negotiations for this treaty," Senator Reed shouted, striking the map with his pointer, "Great Britain reserved these as spheres of her interest in which she would not be bound by the treaty this is what Great Britain says is not in the treaty and she reserves complete freedom of action.

OLD HOME WEEK PLANS ARE MATURING FAST; HELP NEEDED

Influx of Sixty Thousand Expected For This Year's Big Event.

NAMES WANTED.

Mailing of Invitations Will Start Next Week—None Should Be Missed.

Preparations for Old Home Week are well under way. The committees in charge of the dozens of events have met, and will report shortly at the general meeting.

In the meantime, the big task is to get the names and addresses of old Peterborough district boys and girls, so that invitations may be sent to them. An attractive letterhead has been designed, and a letter is being drafted for mailing next week.

There are already upwards of 2,000 names on the list, but it is desired to double this before the first mailing. This letter invites every old boy and girl to whom it is sent to gather other names and forward them to the committee, and it will be such a delight to these old boys and girls that everyone who knows an address should send it to the committee at once.

It is expected that 60,000 persons will come to Peterborough during Old Home Week. They will be royally entertained, and they will have a splendid time visiting old friends and making new friends. Every citizen of the city, and every resident in Peterborough county, should make sure that any old boy or girl known to them is on the list and will not be forgotten.

A coupon is printed on another page for the convenience of those sending in names.

Organize In Lindsay.

LINDSAY, Jan. 11.—Former Peterborough old boys residing in Lindsay and district are talking of organizing in preparation for the Old Boys' Reunion to be held in the Electric City during the coming summer. There is said to be quite a number of the old boys in town and they are

TWO MEN EXECUTED.

High Officials of China Fall Into Hands of Manchurian Leader.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Jan. 11. —(Canadian Press). — Yang Yo-Ting and Chang Tinhual, two men who held high post under the late dictator, Chang Tso-Lin, were reported to have been executed this morning. They were taken into custody at the head-quarters of General Chang Hsueh-Liang, president ruler of Manchuria, last night.

DR A. ANDERSON HEADS HOSPITAL

Former Peterborough Boy is Appointed High Position in Edmonton.

PARENTS IN CITY

By a unanimous vote of the hospital board, Dr. Andrew F. Anderson, prominent Edmonton physician and a resident of that city since 1911, has been named general superintendent of the Royal Alexandra hospital. His appointment was sanctioned at a special meeting of the hospital board held recently after a committee had unanimously recommended the choice.

Dr. Anderson is an old Peterborough boy and will be remembered by many people in this city. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Anderson and his sister, Miss May Anderson, accountant at Barries' Ltd., reside at 207 Dublin street. He was born in Campbellford in 1878 and he with his family soon after moved to the city. He received his early ducation in the local public schools and after graduating from the Collegiate Institute entered the Trinity Medical College at Toronto to study for his career. He later, in 1902, graduated from Manitoba University. Until 1910, he successfully followed his profession in the province of Manitoba; then, following a year of post-graduate work in New York City, went to Edmonton and resumed his medical practice. He is a specialist in internal medicine.

Prominent amon Edmonton practitioners Dr. Anderson is a past president of the Edmonton Academy of Medicine, and of the Alberta Medical Association and is a member of the Canadian Medical Association. For the past eight years he has been associated with some of the most successful doctors in Edmonton in a clinic.

While his qualifications as a hospital superintendent are recognized, the new appointee also can hold his own on a curling rink. He is past president of the Royal Curling Club and an enthusiastic devotee of the game.

Dr. Anderson is a charter member of the Edmonton Kiwanis Club, a Master Mason and a member of the Knights of Pythias. Mr. Anderson will officially take over his duties, it is expected, on February 1, and his first big task will be the preparation of plans for the $292,000 hospital and nurses' home extension approved by the voters in December.

RATE OF PULSE HAS IMPROVED

His Majesty Is Reported To Have Passed a Quiet Day Yesterday.

PROGRESS IS NOTED.

LONDON, Jan. 11 (Canadian Press).—A quiet day without change was the story told by last night's bulletin from the medical attendants of the King. More informing was the weekly review in the British Medical Journal, which remarked:

"His Majesty is making as much headway as can be expected at this stage of his long, grave illness. Since the beginning of the New Year the upward steps toward recovery have, we believe, outnumbered the downward steps."

The Journal added that an early and smooth convalescence was out of the question after such a severe illness, but it pointed out that the general symptoms have been bettered of late, that the wound from the chest drainage operation is healing satisfactorily, and that the pulse rate has improved and is less easily disturbed.

KING OF AFGHANISTAN YIELDS TO DEMANDS OF REBEL LEADERS

Program of Western Reform is Withdrawn and Fighting Ceases.

PROCLAMATION ISSUED.

New Plans Are Believed To Have Been Forced On Country Too Quickly.

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 11 (Canadian Press).—Publication of a proclamation in an Afghan newspaper today revealed that King Amanullah of Afghanistan has yielded to the rebels who had been fighting him, in withdrawing nearly the whole program of his Western reforms.

Arghan gain sent to Turkey to be educated are to be recalled. The Purdah, or seclusion of women, system is to be restored; conscription is to be withdrawn; women's associations are to be closed; European dress is discarded and soldiers are permitted in the future to become followers of holy men or "Pirs."

The proclamation was signed by King Amanullah, by various tribal chiefs and by Hazrat Sahib, who was released from prison by the King recently after having been arrested for his anti-reform views.

In addition to the withdrawal of the Westernization program, a council of fifty notables will be formed, including the clergy, sirdars or nobles and officials to amend the law according to the Moslem code and to review decisions of the newly-constituted assembly and council of provincial representatives.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—British officials who have been watching the situation beyond Khyber Pass closely believe that the recent trouble in Afghanistan should be rapidly liquidated if the proclamation of King Amanullah reported from New Delhi is authentic.

King Amanullah's whole difficulty, it is felt here was that he attempted to force a primitive and isolated country to swallow wholesale Western reforms faster than they could be digested.

Few of Amanullah's tribal countrymen have had any opportunity to see

6,000 FARM LABORERS COMING TO CANADA

MEN ARE BEING TRAINED IN THE BRITISH ISLES

Immigrants From Central Europe Will Be Restricted To Limited Number.

ALL BEFORE END OF JULY.

Department Will Assist Any Others Who Want To Come To Canada On New Rate.

OTTAWA, Jan. 12 (Canadian Press)—Arrangements have been completed by the Department of Immigration to place in farm employment in Canada 6,000 British trained immigrants, which is the maximum number that will be available before the end of July. The department will assist in placing as many as possible of any others who want farm work and come to Canada on the new $50 rate. This was announced last evening by W. J. Egan, Deputy Minister of Immigration.

In this letter the Deputy Minister instructs the transportation companies to reduce to thirty per cent of last year's total the number of farm laborers from non-preferred countries moved by each company in 1928. The entire movement must be completed by May 31 this year.

Mr. Egan intimated that since his letter was written some representations have been received from the railway companies as to the working out of some features of the new arrangement and that these representations are now being given consideration.

The Deputy Minister explained to the railway companies that it had been the experience of the department during the past three years that not more than thirty per cent of the alleged farm laborers brought from non-preferred countries actually stayed on the land.

The cutting down of the European immigration means considerable loss of business to the railways; but not as much as first supposed. They have been instructed to reduce the farm laborer class of immigration from Central and Southern Europe in 1929 to 30 per cent of what it was in 1928, but there is to be no reduction in the immigration from the preferred countries—France, Holland, Belgium, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Iceland, Germany and Switzerland.

Too Many Foreigners

Unquestionably there was a very strong feeling against the unduly large proportion of foreign as compared with British immigrants shown in the immigration statistics for the last few years, the letter set forth and the movement under the railways agreement was largely responsible for this condition. The restrictions, however, do not apply in any way to the movement of Central European agricultural families coming to Canada for land settlement, nor to the movement of houseworkers who are coming under proper arrangements for their protection.

The Province of Alberta has made representations to the department that, while they are anxious to secure a supply of British farm labor and also a supply from preferred countries, they already have in the province all the non-preferred country immigrants they require for farm work this year. In view of this situation the department will endeavor to carry out Albert's wishes, and the province is being so advised. The text of Mr. Egan's letter to the railways appears below:

"Referring to the conference held in my office on the 26th ultimo on the subject of farm labor requirements for the spring of 1929 and also to our discussion of the results of the movement from Continental Europe under the railways agreement during the past three years, I think it well, before stating the conclusion reached, to refer briefly to existing conditions and what has brought about these conditions.

"Unquestionably there is a very strong feeling against the unduly

Marriage Is Made Free When Rate War Breaks Out Between County Magistrates

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 11.—Magistrates of Clarksville continue to marry couples free in their war on one or more of their rural colleagues in the Quarterly Court who have recently made a practice of "parking" in the County Court clerk's office to accept the cash of couples who did not choose the formality of marriage by a clergyman.

The four city magistrates posted a large placard in the clerk's office announcing they would perform marriage rites free between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. The country magistrates are compelled to go home for that reason the city "squires" did not extend the free marrying privilege overnight.

The first couple to take advantage of the magistrates' generosity were Miss Ines Maxwell and Girtie Sharber of Nortonville, Ky., who were married by Squire Kelly.

Because Tennessee allows girls to wed at the age of 18 without parental consent, while the Kentucky law compels them to be 21, and because of Clarksville's proximity to the Kentucky line, this city has long been a mecca for Kentucky's lovelorns fleeing from the wrath of objecting parents.

RAPID PROGRESS IS MADE IN WEST

Expansion of Agriculture on Prairies Going Ahead With Tremendous Power.

7,700,000 ACRES ADDED

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 11 (Canadian Press). — Contrasted with its spectacular speed in pre-war days, the course of prairie settlement in recent years has seemed slow and subdued, says a statement published by the Department of Interior. But as a matter of cold fact, despite the absence of sensational features, the expansion of agriculture on the prairies has been plowing ahead with tremendous power. The rate of advance, as indicated by Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports, is little short of amazing. Between 1920 and 1928 Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have increased their field crop acreage, on the average, by nearly a million acres annually. Within that eight-year period they have brought into production an added area of roundly 7,700,000 acres.

Obviously, the statement adds, Western agricultural advantage is fully holding its own in the varied field of Canadian natural resources development. Less in the limelight and naturally reduced in pace as compared with earlier years of the century, it still ranks and promises long to continue as an unsurpassed factor in the Dominion's economic growth.

BANKER TRANSFERRED.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 11 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Another change in the staffs of the local banks comes in the form of the transfer of G. R. Campbell of the Royal Bank to Grand Valley. Mr. Campbell has been on the local staff of this bank for more than two years and occupied the position of ledger keeper. Douglas Maybee will occupy the position thus left vacant and there will be an opening for a new junior. It is expected that a local boy will be selected to fill this place.

Obituary

ROBERT HARRISON.

The death occurred at the Protestant Home yesterday of Robert Harrison. Mr. Harrison has been a resident of this city for the past thirty years, and an elder of St. Paul's Church for twenty-five. He was also the clerk of session for many years and treasurer of the Peterborough Presbytery. He was born in the Township of Asphodel in 1843, and married Eleanor Susan Finlay on October 6, 1869. For a short time he resided in Ashfield, Huron County, but later took up residence in this city. His wife predeceased him in April, 1925.

There are left to mourn his loss three brothers and two sisters: Joseph of Lamont, Alberta; William of Norwood, and John of Asphodel; Mrs. T. E. Finlay of North Dakota, and Miss M. Harrison of this city.

The remains will be in the Comstock Funeral Home until Saturday noon, when the funeral will be held at 1 p.m. in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, the Rev. William Allan officiating. Interment will take place in Norwood.

Ontario Native Wines Are Reduced In Price

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 11 (Canadian Press).—A reduction in the price of Ontario native wines has resulted from the cancellation of the Ontario Government 50 cents per gallon wine tax. The wine companies are now recasting their figures with a view to arranging for the reduction, and the lower prices will probably be announced by the Ontario Liquor Control Board within a few weeks.

FOUR NEW MEN ARE ELECTED TO COUNTY COUNCIL

John Clarke, of Galway, Heads the List of Veterans With 12 Years' Service.

BRECKENRIDGE FOR WARDEN

Splendid Showing Made by All Old Members Seeking Re-election.

When the Peterborough County Council assembles late in January to erect a warden and organize for the year 1929 four new faces will be seen and four old members, two of them past wardens, will be missed. J. A. Middleton Jr., warden 1927, has withdrawn from municipal politics as has W. T. Curtis of Havelock, warden in 1926. The two other members who will be missing will be John Scott of Asphodel who served 9 years in the county council and William Montgomery of Norwood who represented that village for 6 years. J. A. Middleton had represented Smith for 11 years and Curtis had been a member of the council for 6 years.

Every old member of the council except one who stayed in the field for 1929 was elected by acclamation which speaks well for the services rendered by the 1928 county council.

John Clarke of Galway and Cavendish will again be the veteran of the council having served continuously since 1917. Other old timers are H. B. Rye of North Monaghan with seven years to his credit; J. F. Breckenridge of Belmont and Methuen with six years; James Hawthorne of Dummer and last year's Warden Morley Smithson B.A., of Otonabee each with five years to their credit; H. B. Parker of Harvey is the next in line with four years; while C. Tanner of Lakefield, Fred McIntyre of Otonabee, T. Cavanagh of Ennismore, J. Leahy of Douro and Allan Caldwell of Chandos, have all served two years; W. Waterman of North Monaghan, V. Windsor of Burleigh and Anstruther and H. Coons of Smith have one year's service. The new members are Adam Humphries of Asphodel, Gordon Fitzgerald deputy of Smith, Robert Tedford of Norwood, and R. Sanderson of Havelock.

Who will be the Warden is the first question that will be asked when the council assembles. Of the five oldest members three have already sat in the Warden's chair so the race will in all probability be between Reeve Hawthorne of Dummer and Reeve Breckenridge, Belmont and Methuen with the odds going to the Reeve Breckenridge who served the county well last year as head of the finance committee. Reeve Hawthorne will in all probability get the chairmanship of the finance committee which will be used as the stepping stone to the warden's chair in 1930.

In the 1928 county council the total years of service in the council for all the members was 66 but with the withdrawal of four old members the total has been reduced to 49.

Probably the most accurate clocks in the world are two at Greenwich Observatory. Each is checked every 30 seconds by a pendulum swinging in a vacuum.

BUSSES ARE USED BY 4,200 PEOPLE DAILY

1,250,000 Passengers Were Carried on Local Transportation Line in 1928.

750 MILES PER DAY

Company Makes Every Effort Possible to Keep Equipment in First-Class Condition.

That over 1,250,000 passengers a year on a average of 4,200 every day are transported about the city by the Peterborough Bus Line was the information given The Examiner to-day in an interview with Lorne Mitchell, manager of the local branch of the Border Transit Company. The number of passengers carried varies greatly depending on the weather. On a wet, rainy or stormy day the busses are taxed to capacity every trip and in the winter months about 8,000 people are carried daily. Mr. Mitchell in reckoning the yearly total of passengers was only considering it on 300 day basis because the number carried on Sundays is very small.

The busses travel 750 miles per day which is approximately 285,000 miles a year or 11 times around the world and consume the daily quantity of 150 gallons of gas. The consumption of gas is increased away above normal, the busses only getting five miles a gallon, because of the frequent stops at corners and the continuous strain of running so often in second gear. The George Street trip is 3.08 miles long and each bus on this run do a daily distance of 193 miles. Running between Byersville and East City the busses make a trip of 3.3 miles and run up a total of 170 miles per bus. The Jackson Park run is the longest, 4 miles being its distance and the mileage increase shown on the dial at the end of each day is 204.

Five busses run continuously from 6 a.m. until 11 p.m., but during the morning, noon and evening rushes the service is increased to seven busses.

Five Mechanics.

Every effort is made by the company to keep the busses in smooth running so that the fine standard of service may be maintained. Five mechanics and a washer are employed to keep the busses in running order. The least fault receives immediate attention and the engine in the four-cylinder busses is removed on the completion of every 50,000 miles and a newly over-hauled one replaces it. It is expected that within the next week a new six cylinder engine will arrive and this same plan will be carried out on the larger busses.

Mr. Mitchell in speaking of the maintenance department referred in glowing terms to the work of Fred Timbs, the expert who is in charge of the maintenance and drivers. Mr. Timbs received his early experience during the war driving one of the big lorries through Flanders mud and over shell-torn roads. He returned to enter the employ of the Gotfredson Plant in Walkerville, where helearned valuable informmation on that make of bus and later was connected with the London Omnibus Company. "He can take a motor out at night and have another in its place by morning, having the bus already to move out at six o'clock, and it is under his expert guidance that our upkeep and service is maintained," declared Mr. Mitchell.

Conditions Difficult.

"I would like the people in Peterborough to understand and appreciate a little the difficulties we encounter in trying to keep up our service during the winter. The winter here is so rigorous for motor vehicles that it is an enormous proposition to keep our busses running on schedule. Take for example last Saturday, when the pavements were frozen and slippery because of the rain, our busses were stalled frequently and in spite of all our efforts, the busses ran behind schedule."

Mr. Mitchell intimated that soon the service would be further improved by the addition of two larger busses.

Wooler

WOOLER, Jan. 11.— (Examiner Correspondence).— With the cold weather and snow, the flu epidemic seems to be abating, no new cases having been reported since New Years' Day.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Rowe spent Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Ervine Scott.

Mrs. Alice Gunter returned to her home on York Road, after spending two weeks with her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. L. H Rowe.

Mrs. Etta Rowe and son Howard are ill with the flu.

The Misses McKenzie, of Orillia, haver eturned to resume their duties as teachers in the local schools.

Miss Margaret Teal has returned to her school at Bethel for her sixth term.

Mrs. Wilfred Wessels was called to the bedside of her aged mother in Bethel on Sunday morning, to find her very weak. She did not railly but passed away early in the day.

FOUND DEAD IN HER HOME

Norwood Lady Is Believed To Have Died Early Wednesday Night.

LIVED ALONE.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Jan. 11.— Mrs. Harry Murphy, an elderly lady who resided alone was found dead in her home on Queen Street, on Thursday afternoon. The deceased has suffered recently from heart trouble and it is believed death was due to that cause.

W. T. Doughty, a neighbour had noticed that there was not stir about the place and upon investigating, he found the door locked and noticed that the light was still burning. He forced the door open and found her lifeless body lying beside a couch. It is thought that she must have died sometime on Wednesday night as she had not retired for the night. One son, James Murphy lives in the village and T. Rorabeck of town is a brother of the deceased.

District Churches

AT STIRLING.

STIRLING, Jan. 11.—Owing to the icy condition of the roads and the high wind that prevailed on Sunday, the attendance at the various churches was not very large. At St. Paul's United Church, Rev. E. W. Rowland was able to occupy the pulpit after his indisposition of the previous week. At St. Andrew's Church the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed.

AIR IS CLEARED AT CONFERENCE

Little Was Accomplished At Anti-Smuggling Meeting—Negotiations Continue.

EXPRESSIONS OF GOOD WILL

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 11 (Canadian Press).—The anti-smuggling conference concluded yesterday with mutual expressions of friendship and goodwill. Nothing practical has been accomplished but there has been a clarification of the desires of each, and the next conference or interchange of letters between the governments can deal with salient features of the problem.

The United States delegation urged strongly that only the refusal of clearances to liquor-laden vessels for the United States would be of any use to them in prohibition enforcement. This request will be submitted by the Canadian delegates to their government. Extradition problems are to be the subject of correspondence between the two governments.

PORT LAMBTON MAN SHOOTS HIS WIFE

Then Turns Gun On Himself—Both Are In a Very Critical Condition.

WALLACEBURG, Ont., Jan. 11 (Canadian Press).—Matthew Doyle, Port Lambton, is believed dying and his wife is in a critical condition following a shooting affray yesterday. Doyle, according to the police, shot his wife and then turned the gun on himself. Doctors removed the bullet from Mrs. Doyle's head and report her chances of recovery are good. Doyle has not yet recovered consciousness.

MONTREAL, Que., January 11 (Canadian Press). — The foreign demand for wheat here yesterday was moderate and sales of No. 3 Northern were made to the United Kingdom and the Continent at three cents per bushel under the Winnipeg May option, and No. 4 wheat at eight cents per bushel under, c.i.f. bay ports. Sales of No. 4 Western barley were made to New York interests at two cents per bushel over the May option, c.i.f. bay ports, and rejected barley at 63¾c per bushel, f.o.b. Port William.

In sympathy with the continued strength in the future grain markets local cash prices for car lots were again advanced, but the volume of new business was small. Manitoba wheat was three cents per bushel higher with No. 6 grade quoted at shaded. The buying continued of a Manitoba feed barley was ½c up at 77c, and Canadian Western oats were advanced ½c to 3c per bushel.

The local and foreign inquiry for spring wheat flour continued good, and the undertone to the market was firm. The winter wheat situation was quiet.

A moderate amount of business was done with United States buyers in millfeed. The local trade was fair and values were firm.

Rolled oats were steady under a quiet demand.

The weakness that has characterized the local egg situation of late was again the feature of the trade yesterday, and jobbing and wholesale prices for all grades were again shaded. The buying ontinued of a hand-to-mouth character. Receipts were 3.937 cases.

The trade in butter was active and values were firmly maintained. Receipts were 15 packages.

A feature of the local cheese trade was the stronger feeling that developed for Western fodder made No. 1 colored and prices advanced one cent per pound. This was attributed to the increased demand from spot buyers and the scarcity of supplies. Sales of odd small lots were made at 10 to 19¼c per pound. Sunumer made Western No. 1 white and colored was unchanged at 23 to 23¼c per pound. Receipts were 186 boxes.

The tone of the potato market was firm and the trade was active. Prince Edward Island Whites sold at 84c, and Green Mountains at 88c, per 90 pounds, in bags. New Brunswick Green Mountains sold at 65c per 90 pounds, in bulk.

Canadian beans were firmer at $5.40 per bushel, wholesale. The demand was good.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 11. —(Canadian Press).—Ardor to buy grain future deliveries broke out afresh yesterday and hoisted wheat and corn both to about 15 cents a bishel above quotations current Tuesday. On the bulge, corn and oats established all-round new high price records for the season. Incentive to purchase on the part of many traders was found in reports that President-elect Hoover has a definite and specific program for farm relief.

Closing quotations on corn were unsettled, 1½ to 1⅞c net higher, with wheat 1½ to 2c up, oats ½ to ⅝c advance and provisions showing 2c to 10c gain.

Throughout the day various reports about prospects of farm legislation at Washington were given attention among grain traders, but it was not until toward the last that developments regarding the subject became apparently the dominating incluence. This was after remarks attributed to Senator Brookhart of Iowa touching a conference he had with Mr. Hoover were given circulation and were generally construed here as bullish regarding grain values, although seeming to imply that the President-elect's plans would not be given affect until during an extra session of Congress. Earlier yesterday both wheat and corn had declined owing largely to profit taking sales, but renewed buying whirled the two cereals upward in the final dealings and the close for each grain was within ¼c of the day's top level.

The fact that European markets yesterday failed to reflect fully Wednesday's advances here did a good deal to bring about temporary reactions in Chicago prices for wheat and corn alike. It was asserted that foreign buyers were not following upturns, and reports of soaking rains in Cordoba Province, Argentine, noted as an additional bearish factor as to corn. Later, however, advices that 75 per cent. of the Argentine corn area continues to be drought-stricken did much to turn the corn market here upward. There were also late indications that export demand for United States corn had broadened both in the west and at the seaboard as well.

Wheat owed some of its strength to comphensive reports that the crop outlook for domestic winter wheat is not nearly so favorable as at the first of the year. A substantial amount of acreage, especially in sections of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, was represented as apparent to be smothered out. Yesterday's export sales of wheat from North America were estimated at 600,000 bushels. Oats as well as wheat reaped much of the time to follow the lead of corn in which buying on a large scale was credited to some leading Chicago traders.

Provisions were responsive to grain strength and to reports of a proposed increase in the import duty on vegetable oils.

TORONTO, Jan. 11.— Lack of demand caused a fractional decline in prices of No. 1 creamery butter in the Toronto wholesale market yesterday when wholesalers quoted 40c. to 40½c. for supplies delivered in Toronto as against a general range of 40½c. to 41c. on Wednesday. Market conditions were extremely dull, and buyers shewed no disposition to place quantity commitments until the market for expected arrivals of New Zealand butter is determined. A shipment of New Zealand supplies was reported en route to Toronto from Halifax yesterday. There was no change in prices for No. 2 grade creamery, which ruled at 39c. to 39½c. a pound. Prices to retailers were also unchanged at range of 44c. to 45c. for No. 1 prints, with No. 2 prints at 42c. to 43c.

Egg Undertone Is Weak.

Liberal offerings of fresh eggs continued to impart a weak undertone to the egg market, although there were no further downward price revisions. The drastic decline in egg values on Wednesday proved a stimulus to buying, but the volume of sales continued light, with large supplies remaining in wholesale hands. Fresh extras were quoted at 42c. to 43c. a dozen, delivered in Toronto, with firsts at 34c. to 35c. on the same delivery basis.

Egg quotations to the retail trade were unchanged at 48c. to 50c. for fresh extras in cartons, but the bulk of trading was carried on in storage grades at a range of 36c. to 37c. a dozen for storage extras in cartoons, with firsts at 33c. to 34c.

Romance of Half Century Ago Culminates In Happy Marriage Of Couple At Apsley

(Examiner Correspondence)

APSLEY, Jan. 11.—On New Year's Day, at Apsley, by the Rev. Mr. Wesley, of Lakefield, Margaret Carl was married to Boyd Clute. Quite a romance is hidden in this brief announcement, which culminates a love affair of half a century ago. The bridegroom's age is given as 69 and the bride's 75. The bride was the bridegroom's first sweetheart in their youthful days, but somehow they drifted apart and lost sight of each other until last year. In the meantime, Mr. Clute had become a widower twice over and the bride had been a widow nearly twenty years, when the former reverted to thoughts of his first love. His enquiries were successful, and a correspondence was opened between them, carried on by proxy on the bride's part, who was unable to read or write, and which resulted in their marital union, appropriately enough on the first day of the New Year. The bridegroom lives at Warkworth, while the bride resided at Oak Lake, about twenty-five miles east of Apsley.

Bridgenorth

BRIDGENORTH, Jan. 11—(Examiner Correspondence).—There were a number of accidents on Sunday and Monday due to the very slippery condition of the roads. On Monday a large number did not vote because they did not care to venture out on the roads.

Miss Lewis, of Port Hope, has returned to her school on the Fourth Line of Smith.

Miss Mildred Dunford, of Smith, spent a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dunford, of Douro.

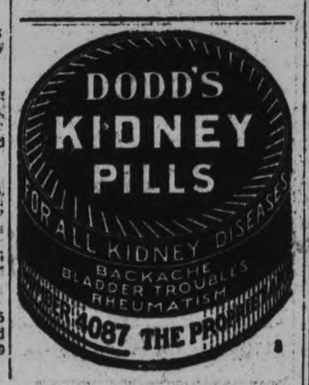
Miss Davidson, teacher at Branche's School, has resumed her duties.

Mrs. Watson Carter and son Albert, were recent guests at the home of the former's son, Mr. Robert Carter.

Miss Marion Storey, of East Emily, was the recent guest of her cousin, Miss Margaret Mann.

Miss Jean Paul of Smith is engaged in nursing at Lakeburst.

Mr. Clarence Mann, who has been visiting his brother, Mr. Earl Mann of Detroit, has returned home.



WEDDING BELLS

HUDON—McLELLAN

LINDSAY, Jan. 10 (Special to The Examiner).—At eight o'clock on Wednesday morning, at St. Michael's Church, Belleville, the marriage was solemnized of Mercedes McLellan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McLellan, Belleville, to Joseph Hudon, Lindsay, formerly of the staff of the Bank of Montreal, Peterborough, and son of Mrs. Hudon and the late Col. J. A. G. Hudon, of Kingston. Rev. Father Killeen officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Kathryn McLellan, while Harry Hurley, of Belleville, assisted the bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Hudon left on a wedding trip to Montreal and Quebec. On their return they will reside in Lindsay where the groom is a member of the Bank of Montreal staff.

A DIFFICULT TASK.

The difficulty of dealing with the present epidemic of measles will be readily admitted.

When there are people who have no consideration whatever for the health of others the authorities have no easy task to stop the spread of contagious diseases.

Undoubtedly cases of measles developing during the Christmas season have in some instance been concealed, and children recovering from the attack are now back at school and infecting other youngsters.

There is little that can be done to deal with people who are criminally indifferent about what happens to others so long as they themselves are spared expense and inconvenience.

Good citizens are not quarantine-evaders; they endure the annoying features of having their homes placarded because they realize that they are doing what they can to prevent a disagreeable disease from spreading and to save others from suffering and inconvenience.

It is a pity that those who are conscientious in this respect are often paying the penalty for the carelessness and indifference of some one else—and still more a pity that there is not some effective way of dealing with people who help to create an epidemic because of their own selfishness.

THE POULTRY SHOW.

While the influenza epidemic proved a double handicap to the Peterborough Poultry Association's annual show, keeping a number of well-known exhibitors away and interfering with the attendance as well, the officers of the organization are to be congratulated upon what must, under the circumstances, be considered a very successful show.

The quality of the poultry shown was on the whole unusually excellent, and the competition in many classes decidedly keen, giving the judges much trouble in selecting winners.

Undoubtedly the Peterborough Poultry Association by its annual show and in other ways has done much to improve the strain of poultry in this part of Ontario, helping materially to interest poultry men in better birds and, by the spirit of competition aroused each year, stimulating them to greater efforts to improve their stock.

In its own field the Poultry Association has been doing much the same work as the Industrial Exhibition, and the officers who have "carried on," sometimes in the face of discouraging conditions, deserve thanks for the efforts they have made and for the success that has crowned these endeavors.

The public should reciprocate by providing more liberal patronage for the annual show, the most ambitious endeavor promoted each year by the association.

BUYING IN CANADA.

A resolution urged upon its readers on New Year's Eve by the Vancouver Sun called upon them to buy goods made in British Columbia during the New Year.

If that resolution were amended by substituting the word "Canada" for "British Columbia" it might profitably be adopted by the whole country.

Resolving to buy goods made in one's own Province is commendable so far as it goes; such a course is good for that particular Province.

But resolving to buy goods made in Canada is good not only for one Province but for all the Provinces.

Our trade returns show that there is room for improvement so far as our home purchases are concerned.

We are spending close to three million dollars a day upon United States products.

Divert only a small part of that sum to the purchase of Canadian-made goods and the whole Dominion would feel the effect in its pocket-book.

"Money spent at home stays here and works," points out the St. Catharines Standard.

The close to three million dollars we send across the border every day in the year does its work over there, providing employment for United States workers and prosperity for the people of the United States.

With more home buying this year the most rosy predictions of Canadian prosperity would look pale compared to the reality.

A MILLION SAVED.

Through the Penny Bank, the school children of this Province have been taught to save considerably over a million dollars.

The last annual report of the institution shows that the amount to the credit of the depositors at the close of its financial year was $1,083,316.58, which represented an increase of almost 14 per cent. over the year before, while at the same time the number of schools participating has increased from 310 to 352.

Rightly, the president of the Penny Bank speaks of this as a "gratifying result," and rightly, too, he pays a tribute to the splendid part played by the teachers of the Province upon whose shoulders much of the detail work necessarily falls, and by others who have been of great assistance.

Says Mr. MacKenzie:

"This gratifying result is due to the continued co-operation among the separate agencies which are at work—the Ontario Department of Education, the Boards of Education in the various cities and towns, the managers of the chartered banks and their staffs throughout the country, and most important of all, the teachers in the schools, without whose appreciative interest the bank might afford an opportunity for the thrifty, but would fail in its purpose of encouraging and developing the habit of thrift among the multitude of school children."

It is gratifying to know that the showing made by Peterborough schools since the Penny Bank commenced operations here a year ago has been well up to the average, and that Peterborough children have done their full share toward piling up that splendid deposit total of well over a million dollars.

Compiling such a sum is a noteworthy achievement in itself, but it is not so valuable as the drilling in thrift that its saving has given the children of Ontario.

100 YEARS FROM NOW.

When Lord Birkenhead, that once licensed libertine of British politics, left Whitehall for the London financial district and Fleet Street it was predicted that he would enliven both journalism and finance. Nor were the prophets wrong. When Birkenhead is not joining the board of directors of some financial or industrial enterprise, he is writing or dictating an article that is both provocative and unique. His latest production appears in the Cosmopolitan, a curious magazine which Mr. Hearst runs for dissatisfied wives and tired business men, and which, we understand, pays its contributors fabulous sums for their articles. In this article, entitled "What the World Will Be a Hundred Years from Now," the former Lord Chancellor of England peers into the future, and this is what he sees:

Babies will be produced by chemists in laboratories.

We will all live to be 150.

The entire institution of marriage will be changed.

No one will need to work more than two hours a day.

Sitting in our homes we will see and hear events the world over.

An atom will produce energy equal to ten million horsepower hours.

All this, of course, makes a safe prediction; safe because none of us can live to be able to laugh at Birkenhead. But if we could live, would we be able to laugh at him? Who, in other words, can say with certainty that these predictions are crazy, that they can't come true?

After all, are the things Birkenhead foresees for 2029 more remarkable, so far as change is concerned, than what has happened since 1829? If anybody one hundred years ago had said that within a century people would be telephoning across the Atlantic; that a person would sit in London and hear a concert in New York; that men would be flying from San Francisco to Australia; that a 'plane would fly over the North Pole—what would have been said about him? So, after all, Birkenhead's predictions—or some of them—may not be so fantastic.—Ottawa Journal.

CONTROL OF ZINC PRICES.

Announcement was made a few days ago that the American zinc industry had entered the international zinc cartel, making it one of the most powerful combinations for the control of a raw material in the world. It is stated that 96 per cent. of all the zinc produced now comes under the terms of a carefully organized restrictive agreement, having for its chief purpose the maintenance of firm prices and the limitation of production. Canada and Mexico are also stated to have joined the cartel. The United States is the largest zinc producer in the world with an output of 613,000 tons, while Canada stands sixth with an output of 81,802 tons in 1927.

This news will not be a surprise to many who have been following the fortunes of the zinc mining industry for some time, where as in the case of newsprint and some other commodities, over-production has made it very difficult for the operators to make a profit. The fact that only four per cent. of the world's production is now uncontrolled is important. The countries from which this four per cent. comes include Japan, Spain and Rhodesia, all of which are expected to join during the next year. As stated above, Canada stands sixth among the world's producers and contributes about 4.5 per cent. of the world's total.

Unofficial reports are to the effect that the United States has agreed to keep out of the European markets, but it is believed that this is unlikely, unless the European producers have agreed to keep out of the United States markets. The relationship in which the important producers stand is made evident from the following figures of output: United States, 613,000 tons; Belgium, 222,000 tons; Poland, 165,000; Germany, 92,000; France, 91,000; Canada, 74,964, and Australia, 54,000 tons. Canada, it is said, has promised only to cut her exports to the European markets by seven per cent. This is the figure by which the members of the cartel are stated to have agreed to cut production during the first three months of the new year. This figure may be lowered or increased at the end of three months as is thought desirable. So far, it is stated no definite price has been established, but the members are stated to have agreed that the price should not fall below £27 a ton.

Much interest attaches to the development of the zinc cartel from a continental group representing only 48 per cent. of the world's production to its present dominant role and marks another achievement in the efforts to bring important industries of the world into friendly co-operative pools.

According to present plans the cartel will run for six months at least, but it is confidently believed that it will be continued after that. One reason for believing so is that the United States, which for some time was unwilling to join with the European and other members of the cartel, has now seen fit to do so. It is evident that the United States zinc producers during the past year have changed their viewpoint on the matter. Three offices will be operated, one at London, one at New York and one at Brussels. Each will keep closely in touch with the territory in which it is situated and will at the same time keep in communication with the other offices and thus a complete control of the industry will be maintained.

The stabilization of prices and the probability that they will be maintained at a profitable level will mean much to the producing mines in this country, which include the Consolidated Smelters, while there are others at a more or less advanced stage of production. For instance, zinc is a constituent of the ores of the Waite-Montgomery property as well as the ores of the Treadwell Yukon Company in the Sudbury district.

Profitable prices for zinc would mean much to those mines of which zinc is the main source of profit. Meanwhile, if efforts to increase the demand are successful the industry may shortly be put on a basis where it can operate profitably.—Monetary Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

There will probably be a rod in pickle for the politician proposing a rod license in Ontario.

Wonder if Big Bill Thompson knows that Canada is going to station a trade commissioner in Chicago?

And now they are using artificial snow for toboggan slides! But you still have to walk back up hill.

The prominent flyweight boxers in the limelight at the present time include Frenchy Belanger, Steve Rocco, Sammy Rothstein and Corporal Izzie Schwartz. Shades of John L. Sullivan!

The last unceded Indian territory in the whole of Canada is to be bought by Ontario this year. The red man's domain has gone forever.

A Thought

A THOUGHT

Go off by yourself and moan:
We have worries of our own.
Keep your troubles in their place;
We have all that we can face.
Everybody bears the cross;
Undergoes some sort of loss;
Though we whistle at our tasks,
Half of us are wearing masks.
There are wounds we don't reveal,
Heart stabs that will never heal,
But we fight on just the same,
Cloak the hurt, conceal the maim,
Play the man and play the game.
We can hide the pain, and you
Must stand up and under, too!

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

SATURDAY, JANUARY 12, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Many planetary influences are strong today, according to astrology, which finds that benefic aspects dominate.

Under this sway the judgment should be keen and there should be the sort of foresight that assures success. It is an auspicious day for planning big projects.

It is held to be favorable for making advertising contracts or for interviews with editors. Authors should benefit, for publishers are supposed to be approachable.

Women are fairly well directed, but they may be inclined to be extravagant. it is a perilous rule under which to let a girl order a dinner that a man is to pay for.

There is a good sign for shopping, and clothing bought under this direction of the stars should be becoming, and in other ways satisfactory.

Importers and all who cater to the wants of men and women of wealth should profit tremendously in the next few months, if the stars are rightly read.

This should be a fortunate wedding day, although there is a possibility of many differences of opinion in the home. Love will linger through quarrels, it is foretold.

Discontent among certain workers may disturb manufacturers as the winter advances, but they will be insignificant.

Under this sway elderly persons may be a bit trying, for they are likely to stress the good old times and to find fault with the present.

Because in the new era of the world, progress has been so rapid that older persons can not adjust themselves to changed conditions, the death rate among prominent men and women will continue to be high, the seers explain.

New leaders among the men and women will be recognized in great numbers in 1929, it is foretold.

Women are to carry heavy responsibilities in public work astrologers forecast, and the younger generation will perform splendid service.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of many new activities. Profit may be expected from quarters not generally productive and other pleasant surprises are indicated.

Children born on this day probably will be strong mentally and physically. These subjects of Capricorn usually are adaptable and diplomatic. They generally succeed in the commercial world.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY SUCCESS DOES NOT BRING HAPPINESS

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

Success does not always bring happiness. Happiness and success are both desirable and very much in demand. No one seems to have more than he wants of either. But happiness and success are not necessarily related.

Success means hitting the mark, attaining the goal, arriving at your destination, bringing home the bacon. The successful man is the one who has arrived. He may or may not be happy. If he is happy, the chances are he owes it to something other than his success. The lure of success is not so much in the satisfaction of having arrived as in the fun of trying.

Many of us have the wrong idea of what happiness is. Practically every one believes that if he is only successful, happiness will follow as a matter of course. And yet those who have succeeded say that in order to feel themselves still in the race for happiness they must keep on finding new worlds to conquer.

Success has to do with material things, such as earning a big salary, making a lot of money, winning a game, overcoming an opponent or an obstacle, doing a difficult job well,—reaching the goal.

Happiness, on the other hand, is a state of mind. It is an attitude, a point of view, one's outlook upon life. Hence it has no direct connection with success. We usually associate happiness and success because we are accustomed to set our hearts on something and refuse to see any use in living unless we can have the particular thing that we consider essential to our well-being and happiness.

Success in this sense conditions happiness but does not guarantee it. When we look at life from this angle, we can't be happy till we get what we want. It does not necessarily follow, however, that we shall be happy if we get what we seek.

The queer part of it all is that the man who sets a high standard of success may achieve most, but he is least likely to find happiness. Happiness is found more often on the road to success than in the house of success. Perhaps this accounts for the fact that the man who puts up a game fight and loses, finds happiness as readily as the man who wins.

We usually think of happiness as a reward for success. But no man can be truly happy who owes his success to unsportsmanship in the game of life. The essential of happiness is not sheer success; it is honest heroic effort. Success is incidental and its own reward. Happiness is a bigger thing that concerns the whole man rather than any one phase of his life, such as success.

THE LUCKIEST LADY

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XXX—A MONTH OR A LIFETIME

With the early tea came a message from the Little Flapper.

"Miss Biddy's head aches, and she's got a sore throat. She thinks she's got a chill, madam."

"I'll go to her."

Marna ran across the landing to Biddy's room.

The girl was lying in bed, her face flushed and her eyes bright, but she smiled when she saw Marna.

"So sorry, darling!" Her voice was hoarse and strange. "I feel just rotten! Do you mind if I don't get up?"

"Biddy!" Marna bent over her. "You caught cold the night before last, going out in the rain. It's all my fault."

"Nonsense! I often get cold. But if I can just stay in bed for a day—"

But the Little Flapper was in bed for many days with a sharp attack of pneumonia.

Looking back on it afterwards, Marna thanked God for that illness.

"It saved me—it just saved me from despair," she told herself when, after a hard fight, the Little Flapper was pronounced to be out of danger.

There had been no time for Marna to think of herself, no time for anyone to think of anything except how they could help to keep death at bay.

"If she dies it will be my fault," Marna told herself bitterly a hundred times. "If she dies, my selfishness will have killed her." She never left the girl for a moment.

"I shall have two patients on my hands instead of one, if you won't rest," the doctor said; but Marna would not listen. She did everything for Biddy herself; she never left her till the crisis was past.

"She owes her life to you," everyone told her.

"She might have owed her death to me," was the unspoken reply on Marna's lips.

Mrs. Blair came and went, a faithful friend. She talked common sense and preached the doctrine of hope when everyone else believed that all hope was gone.

"Die! Pooh! Of course she won't die!" she declared. "It will be an everlasting disgrace to all of you if she does."

And when the Little Flapper pulled round the corner, and began to smile and take an interest in life again, Mrs. Blair smiled, too, and permitted herself the satisfaction of saying "I told you so." She spent hours by the Little Flapper's bedside then, while Marna at last got the rest she so badly needed.

"She saved your life," she told Biddy bluntly. 'And I hope you'll never forget it."

"She's done everything for me always," Biddy answered. "And I'd die for her."

Mrs. Blair said "Humph! It's often easier to die for people than to live for them."

She put a strong, capable arm beneath the Little Flapper's head and fluffed up her pillows.

"Hasn't Dolly been to see me?" Biddy asked.

Mrs. Blair made a little grimace.

"I haven't seen Dolly for weeks," she said. "Not since you've been ill, anyway, but I've heard all sorts of things about her, and about the way she's going the pace. John's done with her, anyway. He told me that she was the worse for drink at the Elfin Club the other night. I don't know what the world's coming to! In my young days we were never allowed a taste of wine, and now the girls drink as much, and more, than any of the men. I hope John means what he says. Dolly's too much of the modern product for me to want her as a daughter-in-law."

"I thought John was so fond of her," Biddy said faintly.

"So he was, but he's sensible, and the way she has been behaving lately has disgusted him. I tell him there are just as good fish in the sea as any that are caught."

"Poor Dolly!" Biddy whispered, for she had been fond of the Big Flapper, in spite of their frequent disagreements.

"Thank Heaven Marna's brought you up to be a self-respecting girl," Mrs. Blair went on energetically. "She'll have no need to be ashamed of you—at least, I hope not," she added, fixing the girl with her stern, kindly eyes.

"I'd die for her," Biddy said again, and then unthinkingly she added: "I'd give anything to make her happy."

"Happy!" Mrs. Blair pursed up her lips and settled the voluminous folds of her old-fashioned frock. "It's a tall order to try and make anyone happy," she said. "Folks have to make their own happiness nowadays, and very few of them have the capacity."

"How long have I been ill?" Biddy asked presently.

"Nearly a month. It's almost the end of May now. You'll have all the summer for convalescence—that's something in your favor."

A month! The Little Flapper made a slow calculation. Hugh Hubbard was not yet at the end of his journey, and yet to her youth a month was almost as long as a life time. It seemed impossible that there could be such great distances to divide people.

"I should like Dolly to come and see me," Biddy said presently. After all, she and Dolly had had a great deal in common, and the Little Flapper felt that during her illness she had lost touch with life, and that the Big Flapper could put her into contact with it once again.

But no visitors were allowed for another week, and then one afternoon Marna told her that Dolly was coming to tea.

"Not to stay long," she said with pretended severity. "And there's not to be too much chattering."

She drew back the curtains which had been closed for Biddy's mid-day sleep.

"It's a heavenly day," she said. "And the lilacs are all out in the Park, Biddy."

"Are they, darling?" Biddy answered absently. Her eyes were on Marna's face—such a pale, tired face it looked, and surely—surely she had grown much thinner?

A pang of anxiety touched the girl's heart; she held out her hand.

"Come here, Marna."

"Well, what is it?"

Marna sat down on the side of the bed.

"I wish there was something I could do for you, just to show how much I love you," Biddy said.

Marna did not answer at once; she looked away, across the room to the window through which the spring sunshine was pouring.

"Perhaps some day there will be," she said.

"Oh, I hope so! It's always you who give to me; there never seems to be anything I can give to you, or do for you," the Little Flapper said wistfully.

Marna smiled and patted her hand.

"Perhaps some day there will be," she said again. "And I think this must be Dolly Benson."

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

MEN AND BOYS

Dad smiles at things that trouble me:
So many times he cannot see
Much harm in things that boy will do
That have me worried through and through.
When little arguments I start
He always takes the youngster's part,
And says (it's strange about a dad),
"Oh, well, that isn't very bad."

I think his father ought to take
That boy in hand, for that boy's sake.
And yet he smiles, and lets things go,
And that's what makes me worry so.
Poor Daughter has to toe the mark,
Has to come in before it's dark,
But, if the boy stays out at night,
His father says, "Oh, he's all right."

But I've been thinking lately, I
Believe I know the reason why.
Why Father says, "Don't scold the kid"
He's doing just what Father did.
For men are men, if large or small;
They stick together, after all;
For when the youngster's pranks annoy,
I've caught him winking at that boy.

Perhaps we needn't fret, at that,
Whatever mischief boys are at.
Mothers and daughters, dads and sons,
They have their secrets, certain ones.
Dads know a boy, a boy a man,
Better than any woman can.
And I'll be satisfied, and glad,
If Son turns out as well as Dad.

Little Lessons in Legion Objects.

9. To educate public opinion regarding national duties to the dead, the disabled, and others who have served their dependents.

In the opinion of the local executive, the best way to achieve this objective is by the Legion and its members carrying it out practically, and more emphasis will be laid on memorial services and parades as the years go by.

Combining memories and practical work, the Legion is doing a splendid good in the community. As example of its practical use is the obtaining of work, this morning, for a veteran who is not even a member of the Legion. Word was received yesterday, too, of another pension adjustment case satisfactorily settled.

In community work, the Legion has appointed a committee to co-operate with the Old Home Week organization, and only awaits next week's meeting of the central committee to learn that particular duties will be assigned to the Legion.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AT LULU'S PARTY

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

"Am I too late?" asked Uncle Wiggily as he held the big chocolate cake in one paw and, with the other, knocked at the door of the house where the Wibblewobble family of ducks lived.

"Too late? Indeed you aren't!" quacked Mr. Wibblewobble, who opened the door, because Lulu, for whom a party was being given, was tying a ribbon around the feathers of her neck so she couldn't answer. "You're the first one here!" quacked the old gentleman duck as he let the rabbit hop in. "What have you there?"

"A chocolate cake," answered Uncle Wiggily. "I made it myself as a surprise for Lulu, seeing as how the party itself isn't a surprise to her."

"Oh, ho!" quacked Mr. Wibblewobble, his yellow bill opening and shutting like a pair of scissors when they want to cut something. "A chocolate cake! I love chocolate cake!"

"I made this one myself!" went on Uncle Wiggily. "At least I opened the oven door for Nurse Jane after she had mixed up the flour and sugar and eggs and all that."

"Well, now let's you and I eat the cake!" quacked Mr. Wibblewobble.

"What! Eat Lulu's surprise party chocolate cake!" cried the rabbit gentleman. "Never!"

"Why, I thought that's what chocolate cakes were for," spoke the disappointed duck. "To eat."

"Yes, to eat," agreed Uncle Wiggily, but wait until the party starts and then Lulu will cut the cake and we'll all eat it."

"The party will start pretty soon now," quacked Mr. Wibblewobble. "Here comes a lot more."

Surely enough, all of a sudden, up the front steps came piling a crowd of animal boys and girls—rabbits, pussy cats, puppy dogs, guinea pigs, squirrels and cute little mice, with long tails, named Jillie and Jollie.

"Hurray! Hurray! Hurray!" cried the little animal boys and girls. "Hurray for Lulu's party!"

"Yes, and hurray for Uncle Wiggily's chocolate cake!" quacked Mr. Wibblewobble. So the party guests gave three cheers for the chocolate cake and then the fun began.

"Now we'll play some games!" quacked Lulu. So while Uncle Wiggily and Mr. and Mrs. Wibblewobble looked on, the children played "London Bridge is Falling Up," "Oft Posis," or maybe its was Post-office," and "Puppy Dog Out of the Corner."

Then Uncle Wiggily said:

"I wish you children would play some game that I could have a part in. I can't play 'London Bridge is Falling Up,' because my rheumatism won't let me jump. But I think I could play 'Hide and Go Seek,' Lulu."

"Then we'll play that game," quacked Lulu. So she shut her eyes and began to count. As soon as this happened all the animal boys and girls started to run to hide so Lulu could not find them. Uncle Wiggily made a jump to get behind the piano, for he thought that was a good place. But at the same time Mr. Wibblewobble, who was also playing, made a dive for the same p ace and he and Uncle Wiggily got behind the piano and both their tails stuck out, for there wasn't room for a duck and a rabbit in that small place.

Then Lulu quacked:

"Ready or not I'm coming," and she opened her eyes and began to look for those hidden and the first thing she saw was her father's feathery tail and Uncle Wiggily's fluffy tail sticking out, one at each side of the piano and Lulu laughed and quacked: "I spy Unkie Wig! I spy my Daddicums!" So she caught them both and then they had to shut their eyes while the others hid themselves.

Well, so the party went on and everybody was having a good time and at last Mrs. Wibblewobble gave a loud quack and said:

"Now it is time to eat!"

"Hurray!" cried the animal boys and girls.

"My goodness! How glad I am! Now I can have some of that chocolate cake!" quacked Mr. Wibblewobble, and Grandfather Goosey Gander said:

"I'll have a piece, too!"

Then they all hurried out to the table where there were so many good things to eat that you could hardly count them. And just as he was going to sit down Mr. Longears heard some whispering.

"Oh, my goodness!" thought the rabbit when he heard this whispering. "This is terrible!"

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

The jail door should be yawning for the cowardly dog-poisoner who has been at work here. Any individual who would be guilty of such wholesale slaughter as to deliberately poison eight dogs belonging to one owner on the one night, is scarcely fit to be allowed at large. I think that a person who would coolly set out to destroy a bunch of dogs in this manner would not hesitate very long about killing a human being.

SNOW IS SCRAPED FROM CITY STREETS

Peterborough's Main Thoroughfares Will Cause No Trouble to Motoring Public This Year.

Peterborough city workmen with their two power scrapers are making splendid progress in keeping the snow off the streets. This year a new scheme is being tried. The graders start at the curbs and scrape the snow to the center of the streets thus doing away with all the digging in the spring to open up the gutters and it is hoped the water will get away much more rapidly. The graders work on the main streets at night while in the day time they are operated on the side streets which are paved. No ruts are to be seen and the snow is being scraped close enough from the pavement to just allow good sleighing. Special attention is being paid to the intersection so that there will not be any deep ruts after a few mild days.

STIRLING COUPLES ARE HONORED

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Marshall and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Handy Moving From Town.

STIRLING, Jan. 11.—(Examiner Correspondence)—Last Thursday evening a number of men of the village met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Marshall to bid them farewell on their departure for Toronto and also to Mr. and Mrs. Sam Handy, who are moving to Weston. Dr. Walt made known the object of their call and Reeve Montgomery presented the gentlemen with a club bag and a small sum of money. For the past thirteen years Mr. Marshall was manager of the Stirling Cheese-box and Basket Factory.

W.M.S. Meets

The monthly meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held at the home of Miss Jessie Tice on Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. J. Montgomery presiding. The program used was the one outlined in the December issue of the Glad Tidings for the Presbyterian women's day of prayer. Scriptural readings were given by Mrs. J. M. McGee and Mrs. C. G. Bailey, and prayer was offered by Mrs. A. B. Fargey, Mrs. Noland and Mrs. D. Green. An excellent paper on "Stewardship Within the Kingdom" was given by Mrs. Annie Bissonnette.

At the conclusion of the meeting, a vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. M. W. Sine for ten years of faithful service as treasurer of the society. Mrs. J. M. McGee was appointed treasurer to succeed Mrs. Sine who recently resigned.

St. Paul's W.M.S.

The W.M.S. of St. Paul's United Church held their monthly meeting in the Sunday School rooms on Tuesday evening. The installation of officers for the coming year and officers of the Mission Band took place. Rev. Mr. Rowland sang a solo "The Old Rugged Cross" which was every much enjoyed. This was followed by slides of Africa, where the United Church has mission fields.

LIQUOR CARGO SEIZED

Rum Craft Are Being Checked Up by Provincial Police.

CHATHAM, Ont., Jan. 11.—(By the Canadian Press).—Provincial police officers to-day seized the "Onoway," a rum craft laden with liquor. This afternoon the cargoes of both the Anna, seized several days ago and the Onoway will be transferred to this city. The order for the transfer was received from London. The police guarding the boats are unable to give any information regarding the seizures, stating that they have acted on orders from their superiors.

The preparation of the new register of voters, which includes nearly 27,000,000 names, will cost England more than one million dollars.

MINING NOTES

—Through Stobie Furlong Office.

Toronto—De Forrest Crossley Radio statement will be out and published in about a week's time. Told by good sources that earnings of between $6 and $7 per share will be shown. Stock looks good for 10 points.

Toronto—We expect to see a good advance in Falconbridge Nickel, within a few days.

Mining Corporation has been listed on the New York Curb market for some time past, but very little interest has been taken in the stock there. It is understood however, that certain interests are going to endeavor to revive trading in this particular stock on the curb. If there efforts meet with any kind of success, it should certainly do the mining market here in general, and mining corporation in particular, a lot of good.

We are advised that Amulet raise from 250 ft. level continued in high grade copper ore for over 30 ft. This ore encountered, was not anticipated for another 40 ft. and opens large possibilities for "C" orebody developing into a high grade copper deposit.—Smith.

Just advised strike of considerable importance has been made on 14 level on Slocan Rambler, and drift is now in ore. Stock extremely low-priced at present.—Sig. Smith.

Toronto— Have been advised officially that fissure at Kootenay-Florence is now in 125 feet, with no indications of faulting. West face shows a width of seven feet, with four feet of solid galena. East drift shown width of 18 ft. from foot wall, with hanging wall not yet in sight. Ore on this level is substantially higher grade, than on number '. This news is of decided importance, when one considers that dividends were paid by the company, on the lower grade opened on the upper levels. Stock is undoubtedly on the bargain counter at present prices.—Sig. Smith.

Toronto—We are advised that Gilbec Miens have shipped their first carload of ore of approximately 50 tons, to the Noranda smelter. Shaft sinking continues in ore. This surely looks like a good bet.—Smith.

BUYING OF STEEL FEATURES MARKET

Irregular Higher Price Movement Prevails On New York Exchange.

NEW YORK, N.Y., January 11 (Canadian Press). — Heavy buying of the steel shares based on reports of unusually favorable trade conditions, featured the irregularly higher price movement in to-day's stock market. Although operators for the advance retained control of the general price movement, some liquidation developed in the food and motor shares several of which fell back 2 to nearly 7 points around midday. Trading was fairly heavy in volume, but the ticker kept well abreast of the market.

Retention of the 6 per cent. call money renewal rate despite the disappointingly small decrease in brokers' loans helped to maintain bullish enthusiasm. The Chicago Federal Reserve Bank followed the action of the New York institution in making no change in its 5 per cent. rediscount rate. Except for an advance in Brass Ingot prices, a sharp rise in Rubber Futures and the first decline in the price of Welded Pipe since 1923, the day's trade news was rather colorless in character.

The announcement of a new public utility holding company by J. P. Morgan & Company interests revived speculation for the advance in the power and light stocks. Commonwealth Power and American Water Works quickly advanced 4½ points, the former to a new high at 117⅝, and several others moved up a point or two.

The brisk demand for U.S. Steel Common, which advanced more than 4 points to 168¾, was influenced in part by unconfirmed rumors that the corporation might distribute part of the $26,000,000 recently received in Federal tax refunds as an extra dividend. Bethlehem was heavily bought in anticipation that dividends would be resumed on the common stock at the annual rate of $14.00 or $5.00 at the directors' meeting late this month. Vanadium ran up more than 4 points. Last quarter earnings of the leading producers are expected to make an excellent comparison with the corresponding quarter of 1927.

LEADING ISSUES REGISTER GAINS

Stronger Tone Features Active Trading On Toronto Stock Exchange.

CANADA DREDGE ADVANCES.

TORONTO, Ont., January 11 (Canadian Press).—A strong tone featured the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day when several prominent issues record substantial gains and trading was active throughout the list. De Forest Crossley came into the limelight and rose to 60, but at noon had receded to 57, a net gain of 8; Durant fell back ½ to 19.

Canada Dredge ran up a gain of five points at 70 but closed at noon at 69½, a gain of 4½. Maple Leaf Preferred gained 6 to 111; Standard Paving 3¼ to 33¾; Waterloo 3 to 36, and Northern Bakeries, 10 to 60. Weston went up 3½ to 105; Loblaw 1⅛ to 104½; McKinnon ½ to 70½; Page Hersey, 1 to 130; East Steel Products, 1½ to 50; Lake Superior Corporation, 3 to 27; Atlantic Sugar, 1 to 16¼, and Cockshutt, ¾ to 45½.

Brazilian dropped ¼ to 78¼; Canadian Industrial Alcohol, ¼ to 40¾; City Dairy, ½ to 78; Photo Engravers, ½ to 43; Steel of Canada, new, 1 to 64; Canada Malting ½ to 30½; McColl-Frontenac, ¼ to 31¾; Super Petroleum, 2 to 36, and Super Pete. Vt., 1½ to 38. International Nickel went down 3-8 to 55, and British American Oil, 1-8 to 53¾.

Dominion Power gained 1 to 82; Hamilton Bridge 2¼ to 42½; Imperial Oil, ½ to 99½; Continental Sand and Gravel, 3 to 23; Power Corporation, ½ to 99¼; and Service Station, 1 to 69.

News From the Mines

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

CONSOLIDATED SMELTERS

According to a report from Winnipeg, a drill has been sent by Smelters to explore a new copper-nickel option in the Bear River section of Central Manitoba. This work will be carried out on the Mayvill group.

AMULET

It is impossible to stress too much the importance of the recent ore encountered at Amulet under the "C" orebody. A report yesterday states that another 5 feet of high grade copper has been taken out in the raise, making 20 feet in all. Underground work on this body at the 150 foot horizon proved the copper content of "C" to be considerably greater than indicated by diamond drilling. It should be remembered that "C" orebody is flat-lying and by diamond drilling is indicated to be 500 feet long, 180 feet wide and approximately 30 feet deep. Subsequent lateral work from the 150 and now from the 250 indicates a considerably larger body than was expected. Aside from the absence of zinc, the high grade copper zone now being worked has considerable merit, due to the farily high precious metal content.

The first hole put down on what is now known as "E" orebody, after passing through a zinc-copper ore, entered a zone where the zinc was negligible, and the copper of good grade. From the limited amount of work done on this body to date, it is impossible to say whether or not it is flat-lying, but in any event the length of core in ore—about 50 feet—lends the suggestion that it has fairly good depth.

GRANDVIEW

We understand that the initial mill unit of 400 tons capacity of the Grandview Lead Mines, located in the Metalline district just south of the international boundary in Washington, has been completed and foundations are being prepared for a second unit of the same size. The concentrating plant has also been completed. The mine is presently indicated to be a fairly low grade, large sized, zinc-lead proposition, some 1,500,000 tons having already been blocked out with an average value of $13.50 per ton. Low cost mining should result from the fact that this tonnage is concentrated in a small acreage and is close to the surface. Several deposits have already been exposed, which will undoubtedly be glory-holded.

WOODBINE

Activity and strength in Woodbine yesterday may be attributed to a report from Stewart, B.C., that a strike of four feet of good grade ore had been made in diamond drilling on Woodbine. Assay results are not available as yet, but we understand that Consulting Engineer Batten has gone to the mine to investigate the importance of the new find.

KOOTENAY—FLORENCE

No doubt the recent strength in Kootenay-Florence is due to the continued good results from the 905 east drift which has advanced 52 feet along the footwall side of the fissure vein. A sample taken of the fissure, 35 feet from the crosscut, across 12 feet gave 5 ounces of silver, 10 per cent lead and 10 per cent zinc to the ton. We understand that much of the ore is solid lead sulphides and is being sacked for direct shipment to the smelter. We understand also that preparations are being made for the installation of a mill.

BIG MISSOURI

While details are lacking, we understand that the annual meeting of Big Missouri held in Tacoma a couple of days ago was a most enthusiastic and optimistic one. Last year's board of directors was re-elected en bloc.

Wright—Hargreaves

We understand that the easterly continuation of the Lake Shore's north vein has been drifted on for 700 feet at the 2,000 foot horizon of Wright-Hargreaves, and results obtained are favorable. In the meantime, the south vein has also been encountered at this horizon and drifting to the west is reported to be in good ore. A crosscut has been started toward the north vein at the 1,750 foot level.

STADACONA

Fairly good progress is being made in shaft sinking at Stadacona. This work has now advanced to 125 feet and will be carried to 150 feet where a station will be cut. When this work has been completed, the shaft will be carried on to the 300 foot horizon where lateral work will be carried out for the purpose of exploring favorable diamond drill indications at this approximate depth last year.

Wheat and Corn Values Decline in Early Session

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 11 (Canadian Press).—Wheat and corn both underwent early downturns in price today. With wheat influenced largely by the fact that Liverpool quotations continued unresponsive to advances here. Better weather for corn movement was a bear factor as to corn. Opening 3-8 to 1 1-8c off, Chicago wheat prices afterward held near to the initial range. Corn started 1-8 to 7-8c down and later showed but slight power to rally. Oats were easy. Provisions held about steady.

BRADING BREWERIES DIVIDEND

The Directors of the Brading Breweries Limited, Ottawa, have declared a further dividend of 50 cents per share on the common no par value stock, payable on February 1st. The business continues to show satisfactory results. Owing to the demand for its products, the Company has placed its beers and porter in every warehouse in the Province of Ontario and this will no doubt result in a great increase in the turnover. With its largely increased storage and fermenting facilities, the company is now in a splendid position to take care of all business offering.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, N.Y. Jan. 11—(Canadian Press).—Foreign Exchange steady; demand rates (in cents): Great Britain 484 11.16; Canadian dollars at 7-32 of one per cent. discount.

Young Clergyman Becomes Bewildered

While addressing the Peterboro Kiwanis Club to-day, the Rev. William McDonald related the story of an inexperienced young minister who, in announcing his text, became bewildered and read it "I came t-to heal the d-dead, e-c-cast out the sick and to r-raise the devil!"

CANADIAN WHEAT IS FACTOR THROUGHOUT 1928 TRADE YEAR

Marketing of Crop Extends Through Whole Year To Stimulate Business.

PRICES LOWER.

Expect Yield For Year Will Exceed 500 Million Bushel Market.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 11 (Canadian Press).—The fields of Western Canada produced in 1928 a larger crop of grains than ever before in the history of the country, in spite of frost damage which occurred just before cutting and which besides reducing the grade of a great deal of the wheat materially reduced the yield, T. A. Crerar, president of the United Grain Growers, writes in an annual financial review.

It is probable, he continues, that the total quantity of wheat when all returns are in will exceed 500 million bushels by a considerable margin. That is more than twice what our wheat crop was expected, on the average, to be in the years before the war and greater by 200 million bushels than the average for the 10 years preceding 1927. The frost damage, besides reducing the yield, lowered the grade of a high percentage of the crop. In addition, wheat prices are on a considerably lower basis this year than in any year since 1923, so the years production is not proving as profitable as was earlier hoped. On the whole the year's production probably provided a fair net return over cost, although there were a considerable number of individual farmers and certain districts hardly so well off at the end of the year as at the beginning.

Not many years ago the marketing of the Western crop and the spending of the proceeds was to a large degree carried on in the fall months of the year. With the increased crops we are now producing, which form a much larger part than formerly of the total international trade in wheat and flour, the marketing of our crop extends through the whole year. Instead of providing a temporary stimulus to Canadian business for a few brief months, as was to a considerable extent the case not so many years ago, the marketing of our crop provides a major stimulus to Canadian business through the whole year. That fact should be born in mind by those who have experienced some measure of disappointment in the results so far apparent from Western business.

On the whole, although present prices are somewhat disappointingly low, the market outlook for Canadian grain can be considered satisfactory. Both world population and world consumption of wheat seem to increase steadily. Although temporary periods of apparent world surplus of wheat may be encountered, it is altogether likely that Western Canada can find a satisfactory market not only for continued production of wheat from her present crop acreage, but also from the largely increased acreage that is likely to be in wheat before many years.

It is true that Russia remains an unknown factor and that part of the present existing market for Canadian grain is due to the fact that Russia is no longer able to export grain, and indeed seems to find difficulty in feeding her own people. There seems to be no indication, however, that Russia will be able in the near future to recover her place in the world's grain trade and before that can happen there is a reasonable likelihood both of increased world demand for grain and a tendency towards decreased production in some countries, notably the United States.

BIG MISSOURI LEADS MARKET

382,606 Shares Change Hands in Active Session On Standard.

EXCHANGE FIRMER.

TORONTO, Ont., January 11. — (Canadian Press). — An entirely stronger tone than during the past few days was evident on the Standard Mining Exchange today. Big Missouri was the outstanding issue of the morning market when 382,606 shares changed hands and the price soared from 1.09 to 1.39, a net gain of 29 cents.

Amulet gained 1 to 3.46; Dome Mines 5 to 10; Graham 4 to 35; Howey Gold 2 to 1.18; Hollinger Consolidated 5 to 9.05; Kootenay Florence 1 to 24; Lake Shore 10 to 19.10; Macassa 2 1-4 to 27 1-4; Malartic 1 to 91; McDougall 4 to 53; McIntyre 40 to 21.50; Murphy 1 to 60. Sherritt Gordon moved up 10 to 6.90; and Vipond 1 to 93.

Noranda after opening at 65.00, a gain of 1.00, slipped back and at noon sold at 64.25, a net gain of 25 cents. Ajax Oil dropped 3 to 45; Barry-Hollinger 2 to 36; Newbec 1 to 35; Nippissing 10 to 3.50; Pioneer Mines 2 to 33; Sudbury Basin 5 to 8.70; Teck-Hughes 10 to 9.00; Tough-Oakes 1 1-2 to 8 1-2 and Wright-Hargreaves 5 to 2.00.

Central Manitoba moved up 4 to 73; Falconbridge 45 to 6.70; Mandy Mines 5 to 1.35 and Pend Oreille 25 to 11.00; while Abana dropped 15 to 3.45; Hudsan Bay 15 to 2.0.10 and Jackson Manion 4 to 30.

IN POLICE COURT

In Police Court this morning, an elderly man of this city was committed as being insane. In due course, he will be taken to an institution.

The earliest known lottery was drawn at Bruges on February 24, 1446.

SOCIETY EXCEEDS ITS ALLOCATION

George Street Women Sent $1,054.25 TO Branch Treasurer During 1928.

The first meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of George Street United Church for the year was held on Tuesday afternoon in the board room of the Sunday School Hall, with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. E. W. Coon, occupied the chair, and after opening hymn and prayer, a message was read from Mrs. McGillivary, the board president of the Women's Missionary Society. The devotional exercises were in charge of the executive of the society.

Mrs. Coon announced that the motto for 1929 for the society was "Gratitude for the past and vision, high purpose and courage for the future," and reference was made to the meeting of the Presbyterial in St. James' Church on February 22 and 23.

The secretary, Mrs. W. H. Morton, gave a very comprehensive report of the last annual meeting and the executive meeting held on the previous Saturday, and the treasurer, Mrs. Dulmage, reported that $1,054.25 had been sent to the branch treasurer, thus exceeding their allocation of $1,000. This report was received with great applause.

A motion was passed that the president, Mrs. Coon, vice-presidents, Mrs. E. E. Harvey and Mrs. A. Stinson and secretary, Mrs. Morton, arrange the program for the mid-weekly prayer service in February, which is to be in charge of the Women's Missionary Society. Prizes for the Mission Band were to be donated as usual by the W.M.S. Society.

Group Leaders.

The following group leaders agreed to again act in that capacity for another year: Mesdames Wood, Knox, Walker, McMillan, Rowe, Spencer, Rutherford, and the matter of securing a couple of other group leaders was left in the hands of the executive.

A resolution was passed that the local society adopt two missionaries for special prayers and that they would keep up a correspondence with them so that they might become more closely in touch with their work. Miss Coon and Miss Rowe were adopted.

A study of the yearly report was then taken up, which proved very interesting and instructive. Mrs. Coon had given out questions to different members, who prepared the correct answers from the yearly report.

The following heralds were appointed for the year 1929: Japan, Mrs. A. Mowat; China, Mrs. S. R. Armstrong; French, Mrs. A. I. Brown; Indian work in Canada, Mrs. W. H. Copp, African, Mrs. McHoull; India, Miss McCamus; Oriental, Mrs. Stevens; Trinidad, Mrs. Routley; Korea, Mrs. Knox.

A sick and visiting committee, with Mrs. Hales as convenor, was appointed: Mesdames J. Spencer, A. I. Brown, F. Mather, B. M. Frederick, Redpath, McKee, Copp and Flannery.

The meeting closed with the singing of a hymn, and prayer by the president.

HENRY WARNS CAR DRIVERS

Minister Issues Instructions To Arrest Motorists Using 1928 Auto Markers.

ISSUE DEMAND FALLS OFF.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 11.—(Canadian Press.)— Hon. Geo. S. Henry, announced this morning that within a few days instructions would be issued to the various police officers of the province to arrest all motorists using 1928 auto markers.

"There has been ample time for everyone to get licenses," he stated. "The does not allow any period of grace."

Demand for 1929 markers has fallen off during the past few days.

CLASSES RETURN MONDAY MORNING

The attendance of pupils at the Public Schools has steadily improved throughout the week, and it is now considered safe for the Kindergarten pupils to return to school on Monday next, Jan. 14th.

Pupils returning to school from homes where there have been measles or other contagious diseases will require to have certificates of admission from the Medical Officer of Health.

escapes feature their administration, but they may also be prosecuted.

"The government has a right to demand the resignation of any official whose administration allows a dangerous criminal to escape from custody," stated an official this afternoon. "The public is entitled to protection and they will get it."

Investigation into the Chatham and Peterborough escapes is being conducted under the direction of the provincial secretary.

HOPE IS HELD FOR RECOVERY

SARNIA, Ont., Jan. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Slight hope is held for the recovery of Matthew Doyle, a retired farmer living at Port Lambton Ont., and his wife, who received bullet wounds in a shooting affray yesterday morning. Both are unconscious, and details of the shooting are not available.

Police claim the shots were fired by Doyle with a .38 calibre revolver. Five shots were fired, two entering his wife's body, two lodging in the wall of the Doyle home, near his wife, and the fifth entering Doyle's head.

The couple are about 55 years old.

WINNERS ARE ANNOUNCED

Several Prizes Are Carried Off By Farmers in Districts at Ottawa Show.

IN OATS AND WHEAT.

Indicating that the farmers in this part of the Province are not backward in the high grade of crops which they raise, come the results of the Field Crop Commpetitions held at the Ottawa Winter Fair near the close of 1928.

Thomas W. McIndoo of Ida R. R. 1, and vice-president of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition, secured a fifth place with his Banner variety oats, while Edgar E. Clark of Norwood secured placing with his O. A. C. 72 oats.

In the Fall wheat competition the first and second prizes went to Vincent Jones of R. R. 2, Omemee and George Bonner of Millbrook R. R. 1, both of whom exhibited Dawsons Golden Chaff.

NEW MINSTREL TROUPE FORMED

C.G.E. Social and Athletic Club Plans To Hold Entertainments.

A meeting was held on Wednesday, Jan. 9 in the lecture room of the Canadian General Electric Company to ascertain how many employees were in favor of forming a Minstrel Troupe. The meeting was very well attended and the following officers were elected:

Chairman—Ted Markham.

Recording Secretary — Norman Crowe.

Committee — B. McDonald, A. Breadman, T. Parker.

This Minstrel Club will no doubt be a first class success as there is no lack of talented artists among the employees and if the committee are able to secure the names of these people, they will have very little trouble in staging good entertainment for the members of the Social and Athletic Club.

Any person who has any suggestion to make with regards to the organizing of such a club or any other phase of minstrel work is invited to get in touch with any of the above officers. Another meeting will be held in the near future.

LABOR CONDITIONS ARE IMPROVED

Number of Men Out of Employment is Less Than Half That of Last Year.

Labor conditions in the city this winter are vastly better than they were last year or for many years previous was the information given The Examiner at the local Labor Bureau to-day. The number of men now out of employment is less than half that of last year.

The reasons for the improved conditions were stated to be: The factories are all busy filling orders that have been received and no men have been laid off. The open winter has allowed outside work to be continued long past the normal time when such work would be forced to stop. There is increased prosperity throughout the whole length and breadth of Canada, and this is having a major effect on the local labor situation.

One drawback to the mild winter, however, is seen in the fact that the usual wood cutting work carried on by farmers and lumber companies has been hampered by the absence of snow, which prevents them from drawing the wood from the woods In fact, the calls for woodcutters has been unusually small this year.

COMPANY SEEKING BIG POWER RIGHTS

Wants To Develop 25,000 Horse Power on the Pigeon River.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Jan. — (Canadian Press). — The Pigeon Timber Company, one of the oldest corporations at the head of the lakes, recently re-organized, is seeking power rights on the Pigeon River which forms a part of the International boundary between Canada and the United States it was announced yesterday by E. E. Johnson, president of the company. The company is appealing United States authorities, Ontario and Dominion Governments, the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario and the International Waterways Commission for the right to develop 25,000 horse-power on the Pigeon. The company has acquired some 6,400 acres of timber lands on both sides of the river which includes the power sites at High, Middle and Cascade Falls.

CONFESSES MURDER.

Few Minutes Before Man Hanged Himself He Made Confessions.

CALGARY, Jan. 11. —(Canadian Press). — Malcolm McLean, aged 42 years, gunman, safe-blower and hold-up man, who hanged himself from the rafters of a cell at City Police headquarters early on January 3, confessed to a fellow prisoner two hours before he hanged himself that he was the man who killed Franklin Bourne, alias Frank Stewart, local taxi-driver, who was shot to death in his taxi-cab two months ago. Chief of Police David Ritchie announced yesterday.

Leslie James Skelton Dies At His Home in Colorado Springs.

BORN IN MONTREAL.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Jan. 11 (Canadian Press).—Leslie James Skelton, 80 years old, widely known in this country, Canada and Europe for his landscape paintings, died yesterday at his home here after an illness of more than a year. He was a native of Montreal.

Skelton came to Colorado Springs in 1892 to recover his health, and while here produced many of his paintings. "Gathering Storm in Estres Park" is perhaps the best known of all of his pictures.

Skelton's works are in the permanent collections of the National Gallery at Ottawa, the Montreal Art Association and at Colorado College.

He was born April 27, 1848. A brother and sister living in Montreal survive him. His wife died here several years ago.

The Famous "Four-Twenty"

ROGERS Batteryless RADIO

Only $165 Complete* (except Speaker)

The Biggest Value in the Whole Field of Electric Radio

IT would have been nice, of course, to have had a Rogers in time for the Holidays—but even some of the folks who ordered sets early were disappointed this year. The flood of orders from those who wanted Batteryless Radio was more than the Rogers factory—even with its enlarged facilities—could cope with, temporarily. Now, however, you can get delivery on practically any of the new, 1929 Models—including the famous "Four-Twenty" Model shown above.

This Model "Four-Twenty" Rogers is, just as our headline states: "The biggest value in the whole field of electric radio."

The model that preceded it was first introduced to the public in 1926 and outsold all other electric sets in 1927 at $225! The present price of $165 is only possible because of Rogers greatly increased production and you can rest assured that if any other comparable electric radio could be sold at this price you would soon hear about it.

Ask Us To Show You . . .

Test this famous model as to distance, selectivity, volume, tone-quality (any way you wish) in your own home at our expense. If it doesn't perform to your entire satisfaction send it back. If it does—and it will—we'll make it easy for you to keep it.

REPORTS FOR PAST YEAR READ AT CONGREGATIONAL MEETING

James Douglas Gives Satisfactory Report of This Year's Finances.

USHERS APPOINTED.

Twenty-five Members Make Up Newly-Formed Ugoigo Society.

CAVAN, Jan. 11.—(Examiner Correspondence).—On Monday evening the annual Congregational meeting of the Cavan United Church was held, with the pastor, Rev. F. Carpenter, presiding. R. S. Staples was appointed secretary for the meeting

Reports of the various church organizations were given. The treasurer of the Ladies' Aid, Mrs. James Douglas reported a splendid year's work. The receipts of the Society had been $502.07 and there were thirty-five members.

Mrs. Richard Matchett gave a brief outline of the work of the W.M.S. They had eighteen members; ten meetings had been held, with an average attendance of nine. The allocation for the last year was $60 and this had been reached. Six neighboring W.M.S. societies were entertained at a sectional rally at which a returned missionary was the speaker. The Fairmount Society was visited and a W.M.S. anniversary tea was held.

Reginald Sutton reported for the newly-formed Ugoigo Society of young people of which he is president. There are twenty-five members and is organized under five departments, religious, literary, missionary, athletic and social.

A report of the choir was called for, but owing to illness in the family of the organist and choir leader, Mrs. A. B. Kennedy, she was absent.

Clifford Elliott reported for Cavan Sunday School. They had a balance of $86.68 on hand with supplies yet to buy. Donations were given to many good causes such as the Sick Children's Hospital, Missions, the Church Fund and O. E. Council.

Sidney Boyle reported for Cavan Centre Sunday School. It has an enrollment of 25. The officers of the school had passed a motion to close the school for lack of attendance, and let those who could, join Cavan Sunday School.

Report of Year's Finances.

The treasurer of the Church, James Douglas, presented a splendid report of the year's finances. The balance on hand at the beginning of the year had been $115.08; receipts were $1,500.93, making a total of $1,616.01. The expenditure was $1,606.57, leaving a balance on hand of $9.44.

Richard Matchett presented the report of the session. There are 58 families in the church, making a total of 200. There were two marriages and two deaths. The number of resident members is 112 and non-resident members 12. Eleven members were received into the church during the year on profession of faith and eight were received by letter. At the last meeting of the Session, a resolution was passed to bring before the annual meeting, that the Session should be appointed by the Congregational Meeting, two of them for four years, and two for two years. As their terms expired, they could be re-elected or others put in their places. This suggestion, however, did not meet with approval and the Session was re-appointed.

The Board of Managers was re-elected. Will Seymour's name was put in place of Harry Seymour's as he is absent from the Circuit. The Board of Managers for 1929 is: H. Snider, S. Boyle, aJmes Douglas, William Tinney, J. Perrin, Reginald Sutton, William Seymour, William Pritchard, A. B. Kennedy and Will White.

The ushers for 1929 are: Ray Staples, Will Swain, Eldred Snider, Archie Matchett, Milford Byers, Leslie Pritchard and Norman Braithwaite.

A vote of thanks was given the Choir for services given during the year. At the close of the meeting lunch was served by the ladies of the Church, during which a social time was enjoyed.

MEN ARE BEING TRAINED IN THE BRITISH ISLES

large proportion of foreign as compared with British immigrants shown in the immigration statistics of the past few years. The movement under the railways agreement is very largely responsible for bringing about this condition. The agreement itself was intended to encourage a movement only of the agricultural class, but after three years' experience it has become evident that out of the total arrivals, probably not more than thirty per cent have made any real effort to remain on the land. It is unnecessary that it more than mention this in passing, as the representatives of both railways emphasized the drift from the farm to other more lucrative occupations.

Close Co-operation Sought

"You will recall that one of the recommendations made by the select standing committee on agriculture and colonization was that there should be closer co-operation between the federal government and the provincial governments, both in regard to farm placement and land settlement. Having this recommendation in mind, the provinces were approached some time ago regarding plans to increase British immigration, and during the discussions it became evident that several provinces held the view that it is impossible to deal satisfactorily with British immigration until a complete understanding was reached regarding immigration from Central Europe. After describing conditions arising out of the large continental movement of the past three years, the provinces stated emphatically that the federal government should immediately undertake a survey of the whole farm labor requirements. The minister promised that this would be done and that the results would be communicated to the provincial governments for their concurrence or revision. So far as Ontario is concerned, the provincial government undertook to make their own survey.

"We have already discussed with you the results of this survey and the fact that the Province of Alberta has definitely stated that while they are anxious to secure a supply of British farm labor and also a supply from preferred countries, they already have in the Province, all the non-preferred country immigrants they require for farm work this year. In view of this situation we will endeavor to carry out Alberta's wishes, and the Province is being so advised. Our investigations show that during the period of the railway agreement, many thousands of non-preferred country immigrants drifted almost immediately upon arrival into non-agricultural work, including industrial employment in centres of Eastern Canada, thus contributing to the displacement of Canadians and otherwise filling positions that might have been filled by immigrants from the Mother Country. The survey shows conclusively that the movement of farm labor required this year from the non-preferred countries, is less than one-third of the total movement of last year.

30 Per Cent. Allowed.

"In view of the above it has been decided that between now and May 31 next, the movement under the railways agreement shall be reduced to not more than 30 per cent. of the farm laborers moved by each company during last calendar year, and since the farmers of Canada are in no way benefited by a movement of people. Under the guise of agriculturists who do not follow that occupation in Canada, it is essential that in this year's immigration from non-preferred countries, the transportation companies shall give much greater care to the selection of the type of immigrant likely to accept and remain at farm work. It is to be understood that the limitation of this paragraph does not apply in any way to domestic servants, agricultural families with capital coming for land settlement or to wives and children joining the head of a family already settled in Canada.

"While the above percentage is considerably higher than the department's estimate, which by the Province was substantially reduced, it has been fixed in consideration of (a) the assurance given by both companies that they have definite orders on hand for a larger number of farm workers from non-preferred countries than shown in the department's estimate, and (b) because of the general terms of the railway's agreement.

"In connection with placement it is desired that both companies shall recognize Alberta's wishes to a placement in that Province.

Moved in Any Number.

"Agricultural families with sufficient capital coming for settlement on the land, may be moved in any number and at any time the railways wish to move them, provided that such families are given proper directional assistance. The particulars of placement of all such families must be reported to the department from month to month giving in each case the Canadian address of the family.

"With reference to domestic servants the arrangements of last year will continue with the following changes which have been found necessary:

"(a) That all direct and descriptive nominations must in future show the period within which the domestic will be accepted by the nominator. This procedure has for several years been followed in dealing with British nominations with most satisfactory results. If nominated domestics do not move within the period specified in the nomination form, our examining officers overseas will regard such nomination as cancelled. Nominations will not be approved by the department unless the domestics are to be moved within a maximum period of five months; (b) the bulk movement for Western Canada will be regulated by the number of applications for domestic help placed by the companies in Commissioner Galley's hands from month to month. The department's reports show that in the past three years the number of such applications has never anything like equalled the bulk movement of domestics.

"Domestics moved under the railways agreement must in future be brought forward in parties of not less than 25. This arrangement being necessary to enable women officers of the department to accompany parties of domestics on their rail journey in Canada.

British Are Wanted.

"It is hoped that the advent of the 10-pound rate for all British immigrants—other than those who receive more favorable terms under the Empire settlement agreement—will result in a very substantial increase in the British movement and that this increased movement will fill any demand for general labor, which, in the past few years, has been filled largely by non-preferred country immigrants who came here declaring their intention to take farm work, but drifted almost immediately into other employment. You will recall the suggestion made at the conference that both railway companies should make a canvass of their requirements for maintenance and construction work and advise us what proportion of this demand will have to be met by the importation of labor. We are convinced that there are many available men in the British Isles accustomed to hard manual labor who might be secured and whose services might be utilized for such work. If there is a demand for these men, and it is found that they cannot move without passage assistance, we are prepared to recommend that the British Government make it possible for such men to reach their place of employment. We hope to hear from you shortly in this matter.

"If, as the season advances, it is found that the above arrangements fail to produce the required amount of labor, some change will be made, and of this you will be advised in due course.

"(Signed)

"W. J. EGAN,

"Deputy Minister of Immigration and Colonization."

OBITUARY

CRAWFORD C. SLACK.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Jan. 11.—(Canadian Press).—After only six days sickness of pneumonia, Crawford C. Slack, known far and wide throughout Eastern Ontario as a contributor of verse to newspapers died yesterday at his home in Athens at the age of 73. A painter by trade, he nevertheless devoted a great deal of attention to music and writing and produced at least one book of verse. Besides his wife, he is survived by one daughter, Mabel A. Slack, Montreal.

MRS. JOSEPH FLETCHER

MARMORA, Jan. 11 (Examiner Correspondence). — On Wednesday morning, Elizabeth, wife of Joseph Fletcher and daughter of the late Richard Leonard, passed away at her home in Marmora Township, aged 58 years. She had been in failing health for some time, but only took to her bed a few days ago. She was of a very industrious nature, and was looked upon as a good neighbor. She is survived by her husband and five children. Her children are Mrs. Fred Mumby residing at home, Mrs. Roy Blakely of Marmora Township, Mrs. H. Armstrong and Mrs. H. Dewey of Belleville, and Joseph at home.

The funeral takes place on Friday afternoon; service at St. Paul's Church being followed by interment in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

MRS. JOSEPH NORTHEY

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—The funeral passed through the village on Thursday morning of Ethel Bernice Eason, aged 31 years, wife of Joseph Northey, of Lot 5, Concession 5, Burleigh. Rev. W. H. Taylor of Apsley was in charge. Interment was made in Lakefield cemetery.

Mrs. Northey has been ill for some little time, but nevertheless her death was a shock to the community in which she lived and where during her brief residence she had made many friends.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JOHN H. McWILLIAMS.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 11.—The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon of the late John H. McWilliams from the residence of his son-in-law, Walter Preston, Queen street, with James Ross officiating, assisted by Rev. T. M. Wesley. The attendance of relatives and friends was large and also there was a goodly turnout of old friends who had known the deceased in the earlier days of the village and who had shared his interest in the development of the community. Words of comfort and hope were given by Mr. Ross in his brief address, for, owing to the cold weather and the prevalence of sickness, the service was not prolonged unduly.

The pallbearers were Messrs. William Adams, Thompson Braden, Stephen Harrison, A. V. Hill, Robert Jory and Charles Thompson. Interment took place at the Lakefield cemetery. Rev. T. M. Wesley took the service at the graveside.

Mr. McWilliams belonged to a group which is diminishing fast of men and women who have left in the village for more than half a century and have seen many changes, and who in moments of reminiscence could tell many interesting things about the old days when Lakefield was a lumbering centre and when the purchasing power of a dollar was considerably greater than it is to-day. To the very last Mr. McWilliams kept his interest in the community and in national politics and world affairs and his death marks the passing of another of the old guard.

MRS. THOMAS EASTWOOD.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HALL'S BRIDGE, January 11. — There passed away early on Thursday morning, at the Buckhorn House, Mrs. Thomas Eastwood. Mrs. Eastwood had been known in the vicinity of Hall's Bridge for many years and will be sadly missed.

She was born, at Sutton, on November 8th, 1846. In 1869 she married Thomas Eastwood of Rawdon Township. Mr. Eastwood pre-deceased his wife in 1915. Forty three years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Eastwood came to Hall's Bridge and built the Buckhorn House where it now stands.

Mrs. Eastwood has been ill for about two weeks and gradually became weaker until she passed away on January 10th.

She had three children, Susan, Margaret and John. John Eastwood and an adopted daughter, Cora Beatrice are left to mourn her loss.

The pallbearers were Messrs. William Adams, Thompson Braden, Stephen Harrison, A. V. Hill, Robert Jory and Charles Thompson. Interment took place at the Lakefield cemetery. Rev. T. M. Wesley took the service at the graveside.

MRS. ALDEN ARTHUR.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WOOLER, January 11.—The whole community was shocked to hear of the death of Mrs. Alden Arthur, which occurred very suddenly early on Tuesday morning. Mrs. Arthur was as usual doing her household duties when at 4 p.m. on Monday she was taken ill with a convulsion and never regained consciousness, passing away early Tuesday morning.

She leaves to mourn her loss, a sorrowing husband and one little daughter, Lila, aged nine years.

Mrs. Arthur was an active member of the Women's Missionary Society, being the Strangers' Secretary of this auxiliary. She was past president of the Altruist School class and a member of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church.

SOCIAL EVENING.

Concert Held Under Auspices of Apsley United Church.

APSLEY, Jan. 11. — (Examiner Correspondence)—The United Church at Apsley held a supper in the Town Hall on Christmas Day, followed by a concert and Christmas Tree in the Church, and which was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. A little more than $40 was realized from the joint event. The program was in charge of Rev. W. H. Taylor, who acted as chairman. Recitations were given by Chesel McColl, Ruth Johnston, Margaret Taylor, Russell Earnshaw, Clifford McColl and Leslie McColl. Songs were given by the school children. Others numbers on the program included two dialogues, "The Christmas Eve Pilgrimage" and "The Servants Girl"; reading, Mrs. Taylor; carol by choir; dialogue "Harry's Pockets"; monologue, Chesel McColl; duet, Ruth and Wilbert Johnston; hymn by choir; song, Mrs. Coll and dialogue, "Christmas Plots."

Santa Claus distributed gifts from the tree at the close of the program.

A Synthetic Lover

By WILL T. AMES.

Little Daisy Hemphill didn't "type" circus in the least. Nevertheless there was so very deep a strain of it in her blood that the night which witnessed the tragic derailment of the Hardenburg performers' train took away both her parents in one awful moment.

The All America show was already in winter quarters. Madame Felice Hebert, who had known "the Empillo boy, premier double bareback act," ever since Daisy was a child, and who had lived more than one winter in the sunny back room of their cottage in the All America's home town, threw up both arms and shrieked when Bob Sloan, boss of the paint shop, brought the terrible news into the wardrobe loft. Then she grabbed her hat, tore down two flights of steps, raced the entire 200 yards of trackage and exercise ground to the back gate, hailed a passing taxi and in six minutes was at Daisy's boarding house, holding the grief-shaken orphan in her arms.

When the first dreadful days were over and Daisy came to facing the future a kinless orphan, it was only her own inherent sense of justice that prevented the hard-working wardrobe woman from taking upon herself the place of both father and mother and maintaining Daisy through her final year of school.

"But I'm not going to do that," argued Daisy. "I'm not going to school. I'm going to work."

And to this arrangement Mme. Felice was eventually compelled to acquiesce. But she had her way about one thing. "If you're going to earn your own living, Daisy," she said, "you're coming into my loft with me. I simply won't have you knocking around any old place."

And that's how it came that Daisy Hempell came to be earning her living stitching vari-colored jewels in huge designs on mammoth elephant blankets of black velvet. And Daisy's job was a very much more responsible one than it sounds.

For, be it known that the bushels of gems employed by a big circus in belizening the trappings of its beasts are no ordinary fabrications of glass. If they were, a week of the wear and tear of the road would leave no single gleam in them. Instead they are truly synthetic jewels and cost a pack of money.

Now it happens that just at the time when Daisy became a seamstress to elephants, camels and Arab chargers, these highly essential gems had become very hard to get and extremely high in price. They cost thousands where formerly they had cost hundreds, but inasmuch as it was now assured that no other circus would be able to rival the magnificance of the All America's trappings next season—for Enoch Prout, the All America's purchasing agent, had cleaned out the market—it was regarded as excellent business.

Mme. Felice, as a department head, was a highly trusted and responsible executive, as well as an artist. All the store of cunningly fabricated jewels was left in her care, and was kept, along with a fortune in costly stuffs, in a great strong box in the loft.

Now there were a dozen girls at work in the wardrobe loft. But for eleven of the dozen Bob Sloan, the paint shop foreman, had no eyes at all. Bob, from the day of his first catching a glimpse of Daisy, adored her. He might have won her, but there came to the quarters just at that time a winsome youth named Joe Taggart. Joe had been candy butcher with a rival show.

And he hadn't been in evidence a week before he had discovered Daisy and laid seige to her.

But there was one thing about Joe Taggart that often sent Daisy's thoughts flying to steady old Bob. It was when, now and then, she caught Joe looking at her out of the corners of his eyes. Bob had never done that. And it made Daisy uneasy.

Then came the night. They had been to the movies. Joe had pretended to be going to kiss her and had pulled a handkerchief from his overcoat pocket to wipe his lips in mock preparation. All play, for Daisy never let Joe kiss her. You know. But when he had gone Daisy found, on the floor of the hallway, a letter without an envelope. Words in it caught her eye and she read it. This is what she read:

"Joe—for the love of Mike, how much longer is it going to take you to pull that trick? You say the girl's a simp? Well, get busy with her and cop the goods. Mac's frothing at the mouth because his tinsel room is held up waiting for them sparks. You'll be losing the thousand and your pickings with this show if you don't get a wriggle on you. Get going.

BLANEY."

"I brought it to you, Bob," said Daisy to Sloan the first thing next morning, "because I thought somebody ought to know."

"I'm glad you did," said Bob soberly. "Felice would have made an awful noise. And we must keep this quiet for your sake. I'm sorry, little girl! You liked him a lot, didn't you? It's too bad to have him turn out to be here just to steal a lot of wardrobe jewels for McGuire. I'll take this to the boss, and I'm sure he'll just shoo him away quietly."

Daisy looked up into the kind, deeply concerned eyes of the man for a long moment. "Bob," she asked irrelevantly, "you're eleven years older than I am, aren't you? If you were eleven hundred, do you suppose you'd know anything?" Then she turned and walked back to the wardrobe stairs, and Bob, wondering, couldn't see her smile but followed her.

Michael Drayton's poem tells about the Battle of Agincourt, fought December 22. Drayton was born in Warwickshire about 1563 and died in 1631, being buried in Westminster Abbey.—M.

THE BATTLE OF AGINCOURT

Fair stood the wind for France,
When we our sails advance,
Nor now to prove our chance,
Longer will tarry;
But putting to the main,
At Kaux, the mouth of Seine,
With all his martial train,
Landed King Harry.

And taking many a fort,
Furnished in warlike sort,
Marcheth towards Agincourt,
In happy hour;
Skirmishing day by day
With those that stopped his way,
Where the French General lay,
With all his power.

Which in his height of pride,
King Henry to deride,
His ransom to provide
To the King sending.
Which he neglects the while,
As from a nation vile,
Yet with an angry smile,
Their fall portending.

And turning to his men,
Quoth our brave Henry then,
"Though they to one be ten,
Be not amazed.
Yet have we well begun,
Battles so bravely won
Have ever to the Sun
By fame been raised.

"And for myself," quoth he,
"This my full rest shall be,
England ne'er mourn for me,
Nor more esteem me!
Victor I will remain,
Or on this earth lie slain,
Never shall she sustain loss to redeem me.

"Poictiers and Cressy tell,
When most their pride did swell,
Under our swords they fell;
No less our skill is,
Than when our grandsire great,
Claiming the regal seat,
By many a warlike feat
Lopped the French Lilies.

The Duke of York so dread,
The eager vaward led;
With the main Henry sped,
Among his henchmen.
Excester had the rear,
A braver man not there,
O Lord, how hot, they were
On the false Frenchmen!

They now to fight are gone,
Armor on armor shone;
Drum now to drum did groan,
To hear was wonder;
That with the cries they make
The very earth did shake,
Trumpet to trumpet spake
Thunder to thunder.

Well it thine age became,
O noble Erpingham,
Which didst the signal aim
To our hid forces;
When from the meadow by,
Like a storm suddenly,
The English archery
Stuck the French horses.

With Spanish yew so strong,
Arrows a cloth yard long,
That like to serpents stung,
Piercing the weather;
None from his fellow starts,
But playing manly parts,
And like true English hearts,
Stuck close together.

When down their bows they threw,
And forth their bilbows drew,
And on the French they flew,
Not one was tardy;
Arms were from shoulders sent,
Scalps to the teeth were rent,
Down the French peasants went—
Our men were hardy.

This while our noble King,
His broadsword brandishing,
Down the French host did ding
As to o'erwhelm it;
And many a deep wound lent,
His arms with blood besprent,
And many a cruel dent
Bruised his helmet.

Glo'ster, that Duke so good,
Next of the royal blood,
For famous England stood,
With his brave brother;
Clarence, in steel so bright,
Though but a maiden knight,
Yet in that furious fight
Scarce such another.

Warwick in blood did wade,
Oxford the foe invade,
And cruel slaughter made,
Still as they ran up;
Suffolk his ax did ply,
Beaumont and Willoughby
Bare them right doughtily,
Ferrers and Fanhope.

Upon St. Crispin's day
Fought was this noble fray,
Which Fame did not delay,
To England to carry;
O, when shall Englishmen
With such acts fill a pen,
Or England breed again
Such a King Harry.

PLAYS PRESENTED IN WARSAW HALL

Wholesome Comedies and Dramas Given By Young-Adams Company.

WARSAW, Jan. 11.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The Marks-Young troupe put on plays in Warsaw Town Hall three evening last week and on Monday and Tuesday of this week. The plays were wholesome and clean, amusing and generally with a lesson. Among them were "Ten Nights In a Bar Room", "Gossip" and "Spooks". Three times they gave a second show in the one evening for which a charge of twenty-five cents was made. Rarely did any one go out after the first show. On Tuesday afternoon the school children were given a show after o'clock, "Maggie and Jiggs" for fifteen cents, each child received a candy.

Personals.

Mrs. Taylor, formerly Miss Laura Edwards, of Medicine Hat, is visiting her sister, Mrs. George Garbutt.

Mr. Gordon Crowe received a painful injury to his ear a few days ago when a twig sprung back into it, and piercing the drum. It is not yet known just how the injury will heal.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion, at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

This is my first letter to your page, but I enjoy reading the letters from the neighbors. Some particularly are full of good thoughts and suggestions.

The Christmas Number was a credit to the homemakers of Peterborough District. I agree with those who think such correspondence such as that of Thinker (number one and number two) should be cut out to leave space for better things.

I am sending a recipe for Handy Buns.

MANVERITE."

Thanks for your encouraging letter, "Manverite," and for your private note. I ascertained that five columns of news from your district were published in November and over three in December. The matter is being taken up by the Editor.

Thank you for the recipe, "Manverite."

"Dear Marion:

I am very fond of reading your page. This is my first letter, very sorry I hadn't written before. I have found many healthbut recipes in your page. Would you please send me the recipe for potato cake.

Burleigh Falls. VONNY."

Thank you very much for your letter and recipe "Vonny." I am glad that you find our pages helpful.

How do YOU tell the difference?

Solid silver and silver plate may look very much alike. Pure soap and impure soap may also look very much alike.

Yet it's easy to tell the difference if you look for the "sterling" mark on silver and the "purity" mark on soap. But this "purity" mark is not on every soap. Sunlight is the only soap which is so carefully made from highest grade ingredients that it is stamped: "Guaranteed pure and to contain no injurious chemicals."

Being all pure soap, Sunlight dissolves readily. It forms plenty of suds so quickly . . . lasting suds which cleanse most economically. They wash more clothes beautifully clean without harm to fabric or colours . . . and Sunlight's pure, gentle suds never could roughen or hurt your hands.

To the women who have once used Sunlight, other soaps are never really satisfactory. Look for the $5,000 Sunlight Guarantee of Purity on every carton. It means real economy—longer life to your clothes—protection to your hands.

A pleasing feature of the annual meeting and banquet of the choir of St. John's Church, which was held last night in the parish house, was the presentation to two senior members of the choir, Mr. H. W. Morphet, who has been a member for the past forty years, was presented with a portrait of himself and his grandson, Tom Hooper and Mrs. A. L. Amys, another senior member, who was on the same occasion celebrating a birthday anniversary, was given two books of silverware containing a dozen silver salad forks. Both presentations were suitably acknowledged by the recipients. The presentation to Mr. Morphet was made by Mr. W. J. Kent, People's Warden of St. John's Church, and the gift to Mrs. Amys was presented by Mr. A. Stevenson, Vicar's Warden. Last evening, also, good conduct prizes were presented by the organist and choir leader, Mr. F. G. Mann, A. Mus., to boy choristers Roy Pitchford and Everett Gibbs.

A spirit of camaraderie, jollity and good fellowship animated the gathering which took place in the Downyflake, last evening, when the management of the Canadian Nasha Paper Company entertained the employees and their friends at a dinner and dance. The staff, which comprises about seventy men and women, and their guests, made a total of nearly one hundred and fifty who sat down to a splendid repast, served in fine style by the Downyflake proprietors, at tables placed lengthwise down the long upper room. The head table, where J. R. Marshall, general manager of the company, occupied the chair, and where Mayor and Mrs. Denne were guests of honor, was arranged with vases of daffodils and the long room was bright with softly-shaded lights and overhead streamers of varicolored paper.

Music during the dinner hour and for the dance which followed it was provided by Stewart Widdess' Silver Slipper Orchestra and gaily tinted paper hats distributed as favors added to the bright note of colour which dominated the entertainment, which was a real "Get Together" party without any stiffness or formality and demonstrated to a high degree the fine spirit of friendship and co-operation which apparently animates the relations between employer and employed in this organization.

A charming interlude in the dinner program was the singing of Mrs. George A. Richmond, wife of the mill superintendent, whose clear, sweet soprano was heard to fine advantage in two pretty songs, "Roses of Pacardy" and "The Mystery of Life." Accompaniments were played by Miss Ethel Deyell.

A program of toasts included "The King," proposed by Mr. J. R. Marshall "Our City," proposed by Mr. V. Hamilton and responded to by Mayor Denne; "Our Employees," proposed by Mr. Ray Harding, mill manager, and responded to by Mr. James Mabee; "The Company," proposed by Mr. Jack Cunningham, and responded to by Mr. J. R. Marshall, and "The Ladies," proposed by Mr. A. Costello, sales promotion manager, and responded to by Miss Lillian Hall, chief accountant. The sincere good will which makes for a spirit of real co-operation was manifested in all the brief speeches of the evening. Mr. Marshall spoke of the loyalty and energy which characterized the work of the employees and the manner in which they had assisted the company in reaching its present high-water mark of prosperity and success, while Miss Hall voiced the united appreciation of the staff in referring to the consideration and kindness shown them at all times by Mr. Marshall and his lieutenants.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

I have been thinking, neighbors, of what your letters mean to me, new friendships, neighborliness, new ideas, and just plain pleasure. I haven't written poetry since I was in my 'teens, but just thinking about all the good things that have come to me in letters is enough to make me wish to break into verse.

• • • • • •

Probably nothing I could write would be half so suitable as Riley's introduction to his "Songs of Friendship":

O friends of mine, whose kindly words come to me
Voiced only in lost lisps of ink and pen,
If I had power to tell the good you do me,
And how the blood you warm goes laughing through me,
My tongue would babble baby-talk again.

And I would toddle round the world to meet you—
Fall at your feet, and clamber to your knees.
And with glad, happy hands would reach and greet you,
And twine my arms about you, and entreat you
For leave to weave a thousand rhymes like these:

A thousand rhymes enwrought of nought but presses
Of cherry-lip and apple-cheek and chin,
And pats of honeyed palms, and rare caresses,
And all the sweets of which as Fancy guesses
She folds away her wings and swoons therein.

• • • • • •

And I am only one neighbor—when you think that every letter you write to our page goes to ten thousand neighbors, doesn't it give you a little thrill? Think how far your hints and kind words go!

• • • • • •

That is why I think these pages are so much worth while. Every neighbor has an opportunity to enjoy so much and to give so much.

• • • • • •

I am looking forward to receiving many more letters this year. I like to have the opportunity to reply personally to many letters, but I can't do this when neighbors forget to write the name and address on their letters.

• • • • • •

Some neighbors apologize for writing long letters, but I thoroughly enjoy them. Reading a nice long letter, gossipy about the writer and her family, and writing the answer is just as enjoyable as an evening's conversation.

• • • • • •

So don't be afraid, neighbors. You can't bore me, but you can disappoint me awfully by not writing.

• • • • • •

And don't forget the competition on "My New Year Resolution," which closes to-morrow night. There are already many entries in, but I don't want yours to be missed.

• • • • • •

Even if you have no expectations of winning one of the three prizes, write your resolution anyhow for the help or pleasure of your neighbors.

• • • • • •

I guess it will be up to me to judge the competition, since the vote is six to one against having the judging done by the neighbors.

• • • • • •

Unless there's a flood of votes for the neighbors to judge between now and to-morrow night, I'll get right to work and announce the winners just as soon as I can.

• • • • • •

With oranges getting cheaper, it will soon be time to put up orange marmalade, and I think it would be nice to have several of the neighbors' recipes.

• • • • • •

On a trip to England some years ago I got to like Marmalade, and I enjoy it with toast. Here, just to start you off, is a recipe contributed by Mrs. H. C. Huffman to the Trinity Church W. A. Book of Tested Recipes: Grapefruit and orange marmalade: Two grapefruit, 2 oranges, 2 lemons. Slice and add 7 pints of water, let stand 24 hours, then boil 1½ hours. Pour 1 pint of water over seeds in a separate dish and boil about 5 or 10 minutes. Let all stand for another 24 hours. Add water off seeds; a cup of sugar to a cup of pulp, and boil about 1½ hours, or until it jells.

• • • • • •

Another thing, neighbors, wouldn't it be nice if those who use the recipes suggested on our pages were to drop a little line telling us their success. I'm sure it would be appreciated by the neighbors who give the recipes.

• • • • • •

Do you play bridge? You should, because bridge brings out qualities that would otherwise be dormant. I saw a quiet little mouse of a man at a bridge the other night talking a streak.

• • • • • •

And bridge develops self-confidence. The fact that this confidence is generally unwarranted does not matter.

• • • • • •

It develops resourcefulness and facility of facial expression. A good bridge player is one who can make mistakes look as though they were made with a purpose.

• • • • • •

When the player is low in trumps, and a careless opponent leads off trumps, the good player will indulge in a half-suppressed smile as though the opposition had fallen into a deep laid plot, and he really WANTED trumps led.

• • • • • •

At a party a few evenings ago we were wondering why, in such good company as usually indulges in bridge, it should be considered necessary to cut the cards. Maybe someone will tell.

• • • • • •

I like bridge, really, because it is good relaxation in pleasant company. I don't mind admitting I'm a clever player . . . . but I never seem to get the good cards others do! As a result of this ill-fortune, it's a lucky night when I crawl up out of what these baseball fans would call "the cellar."

• • • • • •

But I keep on making partners miserable, and hoping that some day I may be dealt four aces, four kings, four queens and a jack. Then I would have a hand worthy my genius, and I could show just what possibilities I have.

• • • • • •

And, talking about bridge, how about your New Year resolution?

Sisters of St. Joseph Wish to Thank All Who Made Old People Happy.

The Sisters of St. Joseph's House of Providence wish to thank in a very special way all who helped in making Christmas and New Year's a festive season for the old people under their care.

The Kiwanis Club, in particular, deserves special mention, having sent a beautiful greeting card to each person in the house. They also sent a crate of oranges. Several members, a few days after Christmas, entertained the Sisters and residents of the House, with a choice program of vocal and instrumental music which was much appreciated and enjoyed by all.

The Junior Choir of Immaculate Conception Church sang during the midnight Mass, and afterwards; their perfectly trained voices adding charm to the familiar Christmas hymns and carols. Little Gertrude McDonald accompanied the organ and choir, in a very effective manner, on the violin.

The following is a list of donations received:

A Friend, $20; Very Rev. Dean O'Sullivan, $10; Rev. Father M. McGuire, Douro, $10; Dr. A. A. McKenty, $10; Mr. Thomas Brennan, $25; Rev. Father G. Maher, $5; Miss M. Hurley, $5; Mr. John Grady, $10; Mrs. R. Sheehy, $3; Mount St. Joseph, a crate of grapefruit; Mr. Timothy Crowley, six Christmas trees; Mr. R. H. Hunter, a Christmas Cake; Rev. Father Costello, a large box of chocolates; Mr. Thomas Heffernan, one bag each of potatoes, carrots and beets; Mr. J. P. McCarthy, a bag of flour; Mrs. McCarthy, a goose; Hon. G. N. Gordon, a turkey; Mr. Thomas Brennan, 2 geese; Mr. D. M. Minicola, holly; Mr. G. Merry, Kirkfield), 2 turkeys; Mr. J. T. O'Connell, a quarter of pork; Mrs. Butler, fruit cake; Mrs. P. Americans Blank Maple Leafs 2-0 — Bruins Win at Montreal

COUGARS PLAY OFFENSIVE HOCKEY TO DEFEAT PIRATES

Pittsburgh Sextette Goes Down To 4-1 Defeat in Hard Fought Battle.

CANADIENS LOSE 4-2.

Americans Retain Leadership of Canadian Division By 2-0 Win.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 11. —(Canadian Press). — The Detroit Cougars loosed a skating offensive against the Pittsburg Pirates in a National Hockey League game here last night, that resulted in a four to one defeat for the Pittsburg team.

Despite the heavy Detroit score, the game was hard fought and at one time the entire Pittsburg sextette faced two Cougar defence men and a goalie, penalties having accounted for three men in the box.

Bruins at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 11. —(Canadian Press). — The Boston Bruins won their second victory on Montreal ice, defeating Canadiens 4 to 2 here last night. To win the game—a fast, open encounter—the visitors had to overcome a two-goal lead the Canucks obtained less than two minutes after the start of the first period. The ultimate winners trailed by one goal at the end of the initial session, tied it up in the second, and they won out in the third with two goals.

Americans Retain Lead.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 11. — The New York Americans held their place at the top of the Canadian section of the National League by turning back the Toronto Maple Leafs, 2 to 0 in a slow game last night.

Injury to goalie Chabot near the end of the first period cost Toronto its chance of victory.

Senators Defeated.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 11. — In an old-fashioned scoring feast last night, New York Rangers, leaders of the American section of the National Hockey League, hung the worst defeat of the season on the tail-ending Ottawa Senators.

By the healthy total of nine goals to three. It was one of the worst defeats an Ottawa team has suffered in years.

Battle To Tie.

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 11. —(Canadian Press) — The light-weight Chicago Black Hawks went at top speed last night to gain a 1-1 tie with the hard-checking Montreal Maroons in a National League fixture at the Coliseum.

HARRY DENIKE HEADS LISTS

Campbellford Curlers Decide To Hold Another Bonspiel Next Week.

PRIZES FOR SERIES.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 11 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Last night saw the end of the local bonspiel, which marked the official opening of the curling season here. So much interest was taken in this first event of the season that it has been decided to hold a similar event next week. This time there will not only be a primary series but also a consolation series, with prizes for winners of both. The draw will take place at 7.15 to-night in the members' room of the rink. Since the beginning of the first series, another rink has been added to the membership, which may necessitate several changes in the personnel of the rinks already formed.

To Harry Denike goes the honor of topping the list in the first series of the season. Beginning on Monday night, he won consistently, ending by winning a double header last night at the finish of the bonspiel. Denike began his winning streak by defeating D. E. Tait, nine to eight. The next night James Gay went down to defeat before him by the score of ten to two. With these two victories behind him, Denike went into the semi-finals last night against J. P. Archer, and won ten to nine. Good fortune was on Denike's side. At the last end a slight miscalculation on the part of Archer when playing his last stone knocked one of Denike's stones in for a counter and won the game. Only for this, the score would have been tied and an extra end played to decide the winner.

This piece of good fortune gave Denike the privilege of meeting John Gay, who had defeated Marshall West ten to three. Eight ends decided the victory in favor of Denike with a score of seven to four.

John Gay went up to the semi-finals by way of a bye in the first round, defeating F. C. Bonnycastle in the second round, Marshall West in the third. The winning rink was: H. J. Adams, C. P. Shepherd, Joseph Poulton and Harry Denike, skip. The runners-up were Rev. W. J. Mark, George Innes, R. J. Allan and John Gay, skip.

O.H.A. BULLETIN.

Listowel and Palmerston juniors have agreed on home referees for their four-game series, Cully Rocher officating at Listowel and W. R. Johnston at Palmerston.

Cully Rocher will handle the Elora at Fergus intermediate game to-night, and Reg. Reid, of Stratford, instead of Russel Sandercock, of Paris, will referee the London at Ingersoll junior fixture.

Lou Marsh has been selected to officiate in the important Big Four game between Varsity and Toronto Canoe Club at the Arena Gardens to-night, replacing Ross Taylor.

Other changes in referees for to-night are as follows:—

Bowmanville at Oshawa (at Whitby)—Jack Carmichael, Toronto.

Clinton at New Hamburgh—George Karges, Kitchener.

Markham at Aurora—Dalt Lowry, Toronto.

Amateur cards will be returned to the clubs next week.

Referees for Saturday's games follow:

Intermediate Series
Stratford at Kitchener—A. R. Oliver, Galt.

Junior Series
Trenton at Royal Military College—Harry Batstone, Kingston.

Connie Mack of the Athletics has sent Ike Powers, young right-handed pitcher, to the Portland Club of the Pacific Coast League.

NIAGARA JUNIORS DEFEAT HAMILTON

Cataracts O.H.A. Team Plays Championship Hockey To Win 8-3 Victory.

GRIMSBY, Jan. 11.—Gene Fraser's Niagara Falls team disposed of Hamilton in an impressive manner here last night, winning the Junior O.H.A. fixture by an 8 to 3 score. The Cataracts displayed championship power with the Heximer boys on the front line, turning in smart efforts while the defence was as solid as a rock. The Frasermen were better in the first and second periods, when they collected six goals and held Hamilton scoreless, but in the final frame they forgot their good hockey to take part in rough play and were outscored 3 to 2. Among the many penalties during the game was Rees, the Niagara net minder, who was sentenced to a two-minute term for clashing.

Teams:

Niagara Falls—Goal, Rees; defence, Shannon and Franks; centre, S. Heximer; wings, Obbs, Heximer and Moreau; subs., Delaney and Kaminsky.

Hamilton—Goal, Haslem; defence, Dunkley and Howard; centre, Conick; wings, Gillingham and Letzer; subs., Evans and Smiley.

O.H.A. SCHEDULE.

FAMOUS HOCKEY GAMES OF PETERBOROUGH TEAMS

By F.D.C.

One of the most exciting battles fought by the Peterborough intermediates in 1912 was the spectacular game in Lindsay, a train load of Peterborough fans getting a real kick out of seeing the Petes beat their old rivals 6 to 4, in a game that fairly sizzled from start to finish.

The Lindsay team of that season, led by the redoubtable Pete Spratt, succeeded in getting the brother of that well known player, now Rev. Father John Spratt, to come down from school in Toronto to strengthen his home town team in this most important battle. The presence of the two Spratts in the Midget line-up gave Lindsay fans all kinds of confidence in their team and as the Peterborough supporters were equally sure that their favorites could not be beaten there was an unusually large amount of betting, adding to the excitement.

The Peterborough rooters club with a number of songs especially prepared for the occasion made things lively before the game and the Petes proceeded to make it lively for the confident Midgets. The blue and white crew outjumped the enemy. They opened the game at such a clip that Park and Kelly had both scored goals before Lindsay could make a dangerous move and those two quick counters represented the margin by which the Petes ultimately won, the final score being 6-4.

It was a grand game of hockey with both teams out to the last notch to win and the only thing that marred the Petes' joy over their great victory was a bad accident by which Pete Spratt, the Lindsay defence star had his leg painfully cut by Bearss' rkate.

The Lindsay Post singled the game "the fastest ever witnessed by local fans" while the Warder described it as "hockey that has not been surpassed here for speed in many a day."

The Lindsay papers claimed more speed for their crew but admitted that the winners had the advantage in team play and combination.

The line up:

Lindsay— Goal, Gamble; point, Pete Spratt; cover, Roberts; rover, Stoddard; centre, Jack Spratt; right wing, Cote; left wing, Cain.

Peterborough — Goal, Derocher; point, Bearss; cover, Bond; rover, Giroux; centre, Park; right wing, Coughlin; left wing, Kelly.

To-morrow— The Midland-Peterborough game of 1912.

Peterborough Cricketers

A game played here between a picked team from the Colborne district on the Lake front on August 26, 1875.

Lloyd of Peterborough bowled 64 balls, got 9 maiden overs, 8 wickets for 6 runs.

T. Rutherford bowled 60 balls, got 8 maidens, 1 wicket for 8 runs.

Peterborough produced great cricketers in old times. Such men as S. Ray, W. A. Stratton, W. Hartley, J. Montgomery, Max Miles and William Hamilton, W. Spence, Ed. and R. B. Rogers, Rackham, Hammond, Bradley, Ferguson, Strong, Thomas, and many others who won fame for Peterborough.

CAMPBELLFORD PLAYS MARMORA

Two Teams Tangle in Trent Valley League Fixture.

ON CAMPBELLFORD ICE.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan 11. —(Examiner Staff Correspondence). —Good hockey is expected at the game to-night between the local players and Marmora. Last night, the practice took the form of a regular game with the signed players taking turns on the first team line up against a second team picked with the purpose of making the strongest possible opposition. Just what will be the outcome is doubtful since the season is still young and none of the teams have established a reputation for winning or losing up to the present time. The Marmora sextette are reported as being in good trim and a fast moving crowd. There is every reason to suppose that they will make the local men hustle to keep victory at home. It is not unlikely that the long end of the score will go out of town. The game will be the first of the season on local ice and a record attendance is expected and being arranged for.

BISONS DEFEAT DUTCHMEN 7-1

Score of Buffalo Equals High Team Score of Year.

MANY PENALTIES.

BUFFALO, Jan. 11.—Buffalo had a field day with Kitchener here last night, defeating the Flying Dutchmen for the third straight time this season in Canadian Professional League hockey 7 to 1. The score of the Bisons equalled the high team score of the year in league play. Kitchener gave way to an individual defensive game in the final period and with Moore, pulled out of the net time and again the Bisons bounced through four goals.

Plenty of penalties were dealt out by Referee Goodman, one of them being a major against Campbell who threatened Brydson and then when ordered off the ice returned to the side of the little Buffalo right wing and engaged in another exchange of words for which he received the major.

Skinner, Kitchener's ace, was not in the game, being out because of three majors. Hoffinger made his debut with the club. Brydson on the wing and Frew on the defence, were Buffalo's stars. In their last game Buffalo defeated Kitchener here, 5 to 0. The teams:

Buffalo — Goal, Taugher; wings, Brydson and Bogardis; centre, Roth; defence, Lederman and Frew; subs, Hughes, Murray, Huard, Lott, Desy.

Kitchener — Goal, Moore; wings, Campbell and Palangio; centre, Miller; defence, Berlet and McFarlane; subs, Miller, Gross, Randle, Hoffinger, Savage.

Referee—Jerry Goodman.

The Summary:

First Period.
1—Buffalo, Brydson 14.30
2—Buffalo, Hughes 2.15

Second Period.
3—Buffalo, Haurd (Lott) 6.40
4—Kitchener, Miller 2.10

Third Period.
5—Buffalo, Lott (Murray) 8.00
6—Buffalo, Murray (Roth) 2.00
7—Buffalo, Desy 1.00
8—Buffalo, Roth 1.00

Penalties — Berlet, Gross, Huard, Lederman, Murray, McFarlane, Berlet, Frew, McFarlane, Campbell (major), Bogardis, Savage, Martin, Hiller.

COLLINS WITH HOWLEY CLUB

Browns' Pilot Plans To Develop Stronger Pitching Staff.

PROMISING MATERIAL.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 11. —(Canadian Press). — The same team that surprised baseball by finishing a strong third in the 1928 American league race will be virtually intact when the St. Louis Browns go into the 1929 campaign.

Manager Dan Howley not only has lost none of the first string strength of last season, but had added what he considers to be some promising new material, picked up from the minors. He also believes the team will show marked improvement because of experience.

If he can develop a stronger pitching staff, and possibly do some shifting in the infield to strengthen the second base position, now regarded as open, Howley feels confident the team will be a grave menace to the Yankees and Athletics in the scramble for the flag.

The new flock of pitching prospects includes, Warren Collins, veteran major leaguer who is staging a come-back from Toronto; Herb Cobb, from Wichita Falls; Chad. Kinsey, from Tulsa, and Oscar Estrada, blown in by the draft.

Hub (Dutch) Leonard, former American League left-hander, and his wife were rescued from their home near Fresno, Cal., last week when flames attacked the building. Both were in with influenza and timely action by neighbours probably saved them. The home, valued at 40,000, was wrecked.

NURMI PLANS TRACK DEBUT

Believed Phantom Finn Will Compete in Brooklyn College Games.

EDVIN WIDE AT NEWARK.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 11—(Canadian Press). — Paavo Nurmi, the Phantom Finn, has definitely decided the time for the beginning of hi second invasion of American tracks and his Swedish rival, Edvin Wide, has indicated that his decision may be made soon. Official announcement that Nurmi's debut will be made in the Brooklyn College games January 19, was made yesterday when his entry for a special 5,000 yard invitation race was received. Although Wide has made no decision yet, he indicated yesterday that his first start may be in the Newark A. C. games, February 7, but that much depends on his condition.

A field limited to six of America's leading runners will provide competition for Nurmi in his first race. Invitations have been sent to Leo Lermond, Boston A. A. distance star, Over Anderson, a member of the Finnish Olympic team, and Frank Titterton of New York.

HOCKEY SCHEDULE OPENS TO-NIGHT

Mayor Roland Denne Will Face Off Puck For First Senior Tilt.

The fans will get an opportunity to see four good hockey games to-night when the City Hockey League opens its schedule at the Brock Street Rink. Mayor Roland Denne will face off the puck for the first senior game at seven o'clock.

The teams are all in good shape for the openers, having been practising constantly since the first appearance of ice. The smartest puck chasers in the city have been lined up on these teams and the quality of hockey should be high.

PLAY AND ITS PART IN LIFE IS DESCRIBED

Rev. William McDonald Delivers Splendid Address at Kiwanis Club.

NEW PRESIDENT PRESIDES.

Playing Gives Charm, Brightness and Beauty To Inner Man, Says Speaker.

"And as a preacher I would not always say to you 'let us pray' but sometimes, 'let us play'" concluded the Rev. William McDonald of Knox United Church in his address before the Peterborough Kiwanis Club at the luncheon meeting to-day where he spoke on "The Factor of Play in Life." The reverend gentleman's talk to the club—and such it was—proved an intensely human and happy one, quite in the spirit of his address delivered on a former occasion when he spoke on "The Spirit of Kiwanis."

To-day's meeting, the first at which President-elect J. J. Turner has presided since his installation last Friday night, proved decidedly entertaining, with the speaker choosing so happy a subject, and the presence of the Regent Theatre orchestra which contributed several well received numbers.

The Speaker.

Introduced by E. Vernon Morphet, the Rev. William McDonald gave as the genesis of his subject, "The Factor of Play in Life" a newspaper clipping in which the great sports promoter, Tex Rickard's death was announced, with the addition that he had intended in the near future to give up his business to enjoy the play that he had missed as a lad.

The speaker had found a dictionary interpretation of the word "play" to read "to do something not as a task nor of necessity but for the pure pleasure to be derived from it" to which he would add, "it is the art of interior decorating, of hanging up pleasant pictures in the store room of memory."

"If this art of playing is neglected it is bound to react on our lives," said Mr. McDonald, "and too often we make to much of a business of our entertainment. When we grow older, we put away childish things including the art of playing, and so, if I may say it with all due reverence, 'except ye change your ways and learn to play as little children, ye shall in no way enter into the Kingdom of Happiness."

Chapter from His Experience.

With the further declaration that playing gives charm, brightness and beauty to the Inner Man, the speaker went on to relate a chapter of his own experience. Following a break-down in his health, caused from a too-serious application to his work, he had, some years ago, been persuaded to go to California. There, he had felt the pleasure and benefits of absolute relaxation, of a climate so varied as to be suited almost to any whim, and special features of entertainment and industry that had enabled him to return imbued with a spirit to consider life worth living and even find virtue in the chorus of a popular musical comedy::—

"I want to be happy,
But I can't be happy,
'Till I've made you happy too."

President J. J. Turner expressed the thanks to Mr. McDonald, previous to the dismissal of the club.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

The City Hockey League opens to-night at Brock Street Rink, a Junior and three Senior games scheduled for the event.

Bill Brindible is enthusiastic about his Canuck Junior team, which takes to the ice to-night. Bill has the following players: Leo Burke, D. Hatton, R. Creighton, K. Carroll, F. Meagher, T. Starie, H. Jones, B. Jones and J. O'Toole.

* * * * * *

The Peterborough Juniors have a smart aggregation of hockey players but unless they show better team work than they did in their first game their chances are slim. The Petes lost to Bowmanville on Brock and Bowmanville had already been defeated by the Oshawa Shamrocks at Whitby 5 to 1. With more practising the locals stock will improve but they have a big proposition on their hands.

* * * * * *

The Peterborough Intermediates cross sticks with Bowmanville in the Goodyear town to-night and considering the Petes' 7-3 victory here last Monday they should win again.

* * * * * *

There is another howl being raised by New York hockey fans, who demand a change from the tight defensive game that the N.H.L. rules seem to have brought about. The officers and players of the Americans will recommend to the N.H.L. governors the adoption of the O.H.A. rules right through. Annually someone tries to change the pro. rules but nothing ever seems to come of it. It illustrates, however, the great set of rules the O.H.A. has and the high place they have in the eyes of all hockey players.

* * * * * *

George Godfrey, negro heavyweight, is in the rough again. He was fined $1,000 and placed under suspension by the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission yesterday for fouling Al. Walker in a bout in Philadelphia, Monday night. Godfrey fouled Harry Gains, Canadian heavyweight champion, in Toronto last year and lost the title to him as a result.

* * * * * *

The New York Americans drew away from the Leafs in the close scramble for top place by defeating them 2 to 0 in New York last night. The defence of the Leafs was weakened by the injury to Chabot, who had to be subbed by Benny Grant and at least one soft goal slipped past the rookie. Babe Dye, bored in the other shot and there can be no alibis offered when one of Dye's bullets stretched the twine.

* * * * * *

The awakening Boston Bruins continued their winning streak by downing the Canadiens right in Montreal in one of the most open games of the season, overcoming a two goal lead to do it.

* * * * * *

The rapidly slipping Senators are still hunting for some player to take Frank Nighbor's place on the forward line. The Pittsburg Pirates turned down a $10,000 cash offer with a substitute player thrown in from the Senators for the services of Hib Milks, stellar forward. The Pirates aren't hitting on all six themselves and they did not desire to weaken their lineup any.

GOOD BATTLE MONDAY NIGHT

Lindsay Midgets Here For Important Game With Saints.

One of the most interesting junior games of the season will be staged at Brock Street Rink, Monday night when Peterborough's old time rivals, the Lindsay Midgets will tangle with the St. John's crew. The Midgets and Saints clash tonight, in Lindsay and whatever happens in this meeting, Monday's battle will be full of pepper, as the Saints will be in a position either to take the lead in the group race or to increase their margin, depending upon to-night's result.

Lindsay have practically all of last year's team which took the series from St. John's while the latter have a number of new players. The Saints have won themselves quite a following in Peterborough because of their clean hockey and the fact that they fight until the final bell and Monday night's crowd is likely to be the largest so far this season.

S.S. TEACHERS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Chairman of Knox United Sunday School Board Receives Gift.

The annual meeting of the teachers and officers of Knox United Church Sunday School was held in the primary room on Tuesday evening, a most enjoyable supper being served by the superintendant and the teachers of the junior department. Rev. Wm. McDonald made presentation of a gift to M. Clarke, chairman of the school board and superintendant of the senior department of the school on behalf of the teachers and board. Mr. Clarke in a few well-chosen words expressed his pleasure in the gift and the loyal support of the teachers and officers in the Sunday School.

Some very excellent and encouraging reports were read by the secretaries of the departments and classes, followed by the routine business.

MAY BE DISQUALIFIED.

W. A. Summerville Elected To Board of Control in Toronto Did Not Have His Taxes Paid.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 11. —(Canadian Press). — W. A. Summerville, former alderman, elected to the Board of Control at the recent civic elections may not be able to take his seat, it was stated yesterday. Mr. Summerville may have been disqualified because of unpaid taxes. The oversight occurred when a clerk in Mr. Summerville's office became ill and was unable to carry out instructions given him. Mr. Summerville was unaware that the taxes were unpaid when he signed his declaration of qualification.

The last state lottery in England was drawn on October 18, 1826, at Cooper Hall in Basinghall street.

BURNS' NIGHT IS BEING PLANNED

"A Nicht Wi' Burns" is the unofficial designation given to the evening which St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Ladies Aid are mooting for January 25, the 169th birthday anniversary of Scotland's beloved peasant poet, Robert Burns. They at a recent meeting proposed such an evening for the congregation, and on that occasion a short resume of the life and works of the bard will be delivered by Rev. William Allan and a program in keeping with the event will be provided.

Irvin Jeffries, young shortstop, sold by Dallas to the Chicago White Sox, is coaching basketball at Shawnee Templar.

SATURDAY NIGHT AT BROCK STREET RINK

Special Request Band Concert By Ten Piece Band Under Capt. Peryer.

The regular Saturday evening skating will be participated in at Brock Street Rink tomorrow, Saturday night, with a fine sheet of ice and an excellent band concert.

The patrons of the rink are asked to leave with the Manegr request pieces for the band to play, and they will take up as many of them as possible.

Every endeavour is being made by the rink management and the band to give good musical programmes.

Skating will be from eight until ten-thirty to-morrow night. Ice cleaned at half time.

KING YIELDS TO REBELS

Western institutions in operation and none of them ever enjoyed such a triumphal tour as King Amanullah had last year, when the whole of Europe was on dress parade for him.

It is believed here that Amanullah has demonstrated his ability by getting out of the present difficulties without losing anything more than his reforms, which he can now set about to introduce gradually in districts more ready to accept and appreciate them.

Comes to a Head.

Trouble in Afghanistan which had been brewing with more or less intensity ever since King Amanullah began a campaign to introduce western reforms much as President Mustapha Kemal did in Turkey, came to a head last month when fighting broke out around Kabul, the capital, itself.

After many severe encounters, the rebellious tribesmen were repulsed from the city and retreated to the hills beyond where skirmishing continued for many days. It was reported that Amanulla at one time had taken refuge in Kandahar, but this later was denied.

The King's forces eventually were reported victorious and Kabul, on December 31, was stated to be quiet.

During the conflict the British Legation, which is several miles outside Kabul, on one of the main highways, was within the line of fire and some fear was felt for its safety. Many foreigners took refuge within its walls and eventually the greater part of the women and children there were carried to safety by British airplanes sent from the Indian border.

As late as January 8, new fighting was reported around Kabul, but this was not substantiated by further reports.

Meanwhile disaffection among the Shinwaris, the first of the tribesmen to rebel, was more or less satisfactorily patched up by the Governor at Jalalabad, leaving the revolt of the tribesmen near Kabul still to be settled.

HOW TO STOP FOOD FERMENTATION

In Stomach and Avoid Sourness and Indigestion

It is gas, formed by fermenting food, that after meals bloats your stomach, causing sourness, heartburn, fullness, uncomfortable fullness and pains of indigestion. Drugs, stomach tonics and artificial digestents like pepsin fail to give satisfactory relief because they have little or no effect on the stomach acids that have been proved to be the real cause of sour stomach and practically all indigestion. Instead an absolutely pure anti acid or neutralizing agent should be used after meals to neutralize this dangerous acid in the stomach, and undoubtedly nothing could be better or safer for the purpose than pure Bisurated Magnesia. This you can obtain from any good drug store in either powder or tablets, and in most cases a teaspoonful of the powder, or two tablets taken with a little water after meals will be sufficient to instantly neutralize excessive acidity of the stomach, stop and prevent premature souring and fermentation of the food and permit a normal, painless digestion of whatever you have eaten. Try this simple prescription and be delighted with your entire freedom from indigestion.

RANTING RINTY'S ROUSING BEST "LAND OF THE SILVER FOX"

Special Children's Pay Day Matinee To-morrow Afternoon

Few human beings are as well or as widely known as Rin-Tin-Tin. Or as well-liked, for that matter. And now he comes again, in a picture which seems to have more zip and pep and go, than any of his former ones, and that is saying a lot. In "Land of the Silver Fox," Rinty, having been bought from a hard master by a young fur trader, decides to fight for his new friend whatever the odds.

The boy wants to get married to a pretty girl at the trading post, whose guardian, himself, wants to get her, and for the purpose sends Rinty and the lad off on a journey across the snows, at the same time plotting with a killer to do away with the youth. This he almost does, but Rin-Tin-Tin falls upon the bad man with such fury that he is glad to get away with his life. The villain makes his way back to the post and tells the girl's guardian that the boy is safely dead.

Months pass before Rinty can lead his wounded young master back and when the two get home they find the girl about to be married, against her will, to the guardian. This is just the beginning of the rough stuff, when Rinty pulls such fast ones as to make you grip your seat and hold on! You ought to see this one! It's your old friend Rinty at his rousing best!

AT THE CAPITOL.

LON CHANEY IN "WHILE THE CITY SLEEPS."

The big, ugly man who has achieved such prominence in recent years as a creator of dramatic, forceful roles with a sinister tinge, has chosen a different metier for this picture. In it, he is the star plainclothesman of the New York City police force, trialing a gang of crooks and loft robbers and getting his man, the famous "Mile Away," in a running battle that leads through attics and over the roofs of New York tenements.

"Mile Away" is a most villainous crook and gets his name by reason of his constant alibi that he was a mile away when a certain crime was pulled off. When Bessie Ward is about to testify against him in court, he has her taken for "a ride" and leaves her bullet-ridden body for the police to fume over. Then Myrtle, her sister, also comes within the range of her activities and he tries to finish her in the same fashion. But Dan Coghlan (Lon Chaney) steps in and the battle becomes a contest of wits between the gun man and the savage hunter of the police force, intent on getting his man and stopping at little in the pursuit.

It is a forceful, entertaining picture, with a fascinating glimpse of New York's underworld life in its filming, and quite an extraordinary line-up of crooks in some of the scenes. The battle between the gunmen and officers of the law, in which the latter track the criminals to their garret refuge and then root them out by means of tear bombs, is a memorable bit.

In this picture, Chaney plays his favorite role, that of a rather martyrised lover. He falls heavily for Myrtle and she promises to marry him, but Marty, the youth she really fancies, returns to New York and Coghlan hands her over to him with the same gesture of hurt affection that has become familiar in so many other of his feature pictures.

—Jeanette.

TWENTY BILLS ARE ENTERED

Present Indications Are That Session Will Have Few Private Bills.

"THROUGH BY EASTER"

TORONTO, Ont., January 11 (Canadian Press). — Present indications are that the forthcoming session of the Ontario Legislature will see fewer private bills introduced than has been the case for some years. With notifications that have already been received as a basis, it would appear that the total number will not exceed 55 as compared with 63 of last year and 69 during the session of 1927. Twenty bills have been gazetted to date, as compared with 27 at this time last year, and this despite the fact that the session is opening a week earlier this year than last.

Cabinet Ministers are busily engaged in preparing their departmental legislation. There is every indication that as far as Government measures are concerned the legislation will be important. Trivial matters are not going to be introduced this session. Right-of-way will be given largely to the Old Age Pension scheme. The slogan is "Through by Easter," and to live up to schedule little time will be wasted on matters of minor importance.

BELIEVED SANE

Alienists Find Gordon Northcott to be Feigning a Form of Insanity.

RIVERSIDE, Calif., Jan. 11 (Canadian Press).—A special commission of alienists yesterday reported to the Superior Court, Judge George R. Freeman, its opinion that Gordon Stewart Northcott, alleged boy slayer, is sane and its "malingering or feigning a form of insanity." Northcott is on trial for the murder of Lewis and Nelson Winslow and an unidentified Mexican youth, alleged to have been tortured and put to death on his chicken ranch.

BIG RESPONSE MADE TO AID RELIEF FUND

$2,300,000 Has Already Been Subscribed by Private Subscription.

LONDON, Jan. 11. (Canadian Press Cable).—The Lord Mayor's fund for relief of distress in the mining districts now approaches a total of $2,300,000 and the Government is to contribute an equal amount. Sir Kynaston Studd, Lord Mayor of London, has called a meeting of Lord Mayors and Mayors of northern areas to-day to discuss generally the distribution of the funds.

Contributions from overseas have greatly encouraged the organizers, for although the sum already subscribed is very large, much more remains to be done.

WORKS OF METCALF AND BELLOWS DISCUSSED AT ART STUDY CLUB

Mrs. H. E. Connolly and Miss Linden Hall Deliver Fine Papers at Meeting.

BORN IN STATES

Beginning of Metcalf's Career He Excelled as an Illustrator.

At the recent meeting of the Art Study Club of the Women's Art Association, when American Painters formed the subject of the evening's program, interesting papers were given by Mrs. H. E. Connolly and Miss Linden Hall, the former taking the life and work of Willard L. Metcalf as the basis of her paper, the later considering the art of George Bellows.

Willard Leroy Metcalf was born on July 1st, 1858, at Lowell, Massachusetts, and at the age of seventeen entered, as a wood engraver, the studio of George L. Brown, who was an artist allied by sympathy and preference with the Pre-Raphaelite movement in England. He taught his willing pupils all he knew and later Metcalf went to the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. At the beginning of his career he excelled as illustrator, but in 1887, at the age of twenty-nine years, he went to Paris to study, entered the Julien Academy and worked under Boulanger and Lefebvre. He also knew life at Giverny in the days of Robert Louis Stevenson and had a canvas accepted by the Salon in 1888.

Coming back to New York, he resumed work as an illustrator and also went ahead with his figure work in painting, but it was in 1903 that he came to a decision with regard to his work and spent a year in Eastern Maine doing nothing but painting. In later years, he owed his prominence to the truthfulness with which he painted American landscapes and the wonderful colors which he injected into his scenes of the New England countryside.

Only a few days before his sudden death, Metcalf declared to a lifelong friend that he meant to "go out and paint better than ever" but Fate prevented this after the morning of March 9th, 1925.

Among his best known paintings are "May Night" (Corcoran Gallery), "On the River" (Cincinnati Museum) "May Pastoral" (Museum of Fine Arts, Boston), "The Family of Birches" (National Gallery, Washington), "Twin Birches" (Pennsylvania, Academy, Philadelphia), "Ice Bound" (Art Institute of Chicago) "The First Snow" and "The Partridge Woods" (Boston Museum of Fine Arts), "The White Veil" (Detroit Museum of Art) and "Le Sillon" (Hackley Art Gallery (Muskegon, Michigan).

George Bellows

George Bellows, landscape and portrait painter, was born in Columbus, Ohio, on August 12th, 1882. His father, a prominent architect and builder of that city, wished his son to become a commercial magnate, preferably a banker, but the call of art was too insistent and even in the kindergarten, at the age of five years, he was known as "the artist."

During his vacations from the Ohio State University, which he attended, his time was spent n making cartoons for the Ohio State Journal. At the university, he played baseball and could have lived as a professional at the game. But he persuaded his father that art was his true avocation and in 1904-1907 spent three years with Robert Henri of New York, an eminent painter.

In 1906, Bellows first exhibited and his paintings caused much comment, some favorable and some otherwise. Bellows was in love with force and aimed at smashing effects in painting. To his young strong vision, the stuff of America's national life made a vivid appeal and he responded with the eager spirit of a craftsman who was also a sportsman.

This sporting knowledge and experience was demonstrated vividly in one of his well-known pictures entitled "Ringside Seats," in which he tried one of his many sensational experiments, putting whitest white against blackest black in mass formation and "Introducing John L. Sullivan" a shrewd bit of satiric summarising.

In 1906, he opened a studio in New York and exhibited three portraits in that year. In 1908, his first landscape was shown in the National Academy of Design. The following year, he became an associate of this Academy and in 1910 was appointed as instructor in Life and Composition classes at the Art Students' League. In 1913, the Museum began to buy his works and he was elected a National Academican. To the Metropolitan went his "Up the Hudson," a fresh landscape vision of lively detail and handling and to the Pensylvania Academy his "Ann in White."

Bellows was not only never influenced by European tradition in painting, but he did not set foot in Europe during his lifetime. All of his work was the result of what he saw, with an eager, healthy vision, set down with splendid, sudden vigor.

Some of his better-known works are his bathing scene called "42 kids", his "River Front", his dramatic picture of "The Murder of Edith Cavell," "The Crucifixion" and "The Violinist and Mary."

He died in 1924 and a demonstration of his popularity with his fellow-painters was given in the Memorial Exhibition of his work shown in the Metropolitan Museum in November of the year following, 1925.

BIG DEMAND FOR COAL.

CARDIFF, Wales, January 11. — ((Canadian Press). —A most welcome inrush of foreign orders for South Wales coal is shown in the activity at the Cardiff Coal Exchange. Exports totalled 440,000 tons during the first week of the year, not including coastal trade and bunker coal for ships. Export concerns at Newport it is stated are being bombarded with orders, they are unable to completely fulfill and extra shifts are being worked at the collieries in an effort to meet the demand.

DEPUTATION VISITS BOOTH

the Council. The Commissioner read the note by flashlight, and learned that the presses had been stopped for the current edition of The War Cry, the Army's organ, in order to insert the text of the General's letter.

20,000 Copies Destroyed

In the excitement cries of "traitor" were directed at the official responsible for the insertion of the letter. He was severely criticized and the Council acted quickly. The printing offices were ordered by telephone to destroy the entire edition, which numbered 20,000 copies.

The Daily Mail also published what was claimed to be the text of General Booth's letter to the council. This said that the fact that the council had been called left him no room to doubt that the Commissioners who requisitioned the council were influenced by a desire to deprive him of the power "which belongs to every Salvation Army head under our foundation deed; that of appointing or naming a successor."

The General said that had he been asked to resign it would have been a different matter, and he would not on his own account have regretted the request much.

Unstinted tribute is paid to General Bramwell Booth's character and leadership of the Salvation Army by the British press to-day, the whole tendency of comment on the crisis in the Army's affairs is towards supporting the decision reached yesterday by the High Council to ask General Booth to voluntarily retire from active duty.

Summoned to Bedside

Evangeline Booth, leader of the reform element in the Salvation Army, was requested to visit her brother, General Bramwell Booth. She left immediately for his bedside.

This will be the first time that Evangeline has seen her brother since she has been in England.

It was believed that the General wanted to discuss the situation with his sister and possibly desired to suggest a compromise over the question of his retirement and the administration of Army affairs.

Evangeline arrived at Southwold about noon and immediately drove to her brother's house, to which she was admitted by a maid.

Soon after midday the General was brought downstairs from his bedroom.

looking forward with pleasurable anticipation to the big re-union. Among those who are taking the initiative in the matter are "Billy" Carlisle, manager of Neil's shoe store, Fred Edmunds, a former ventriloquist and magician, and now manager of the Wonderland Theatre; "Charley" Davidson, merchant tailor, and a former trombone player in the 57th Rangers band in the days when Finch Miller was leader, and when "Charley" was known as "Johnny Dugan"; Tom Begley, a former member of the Examiner staff and now manager of Sir Henry Drayton's cash and carry store. There are said to be fully fifty former Peterborough residents in and around Lindsay, and an effort is going to be made to get them interested in the big re-union.

Each of the huge steel doors of the Bank of England vaults weighs 12 tons.

OAT HULLS ARE USED TO MAKE NEW CHEMICAL

Furfural is Being Manufactured by the Quaker Oats Company.

IN BIG DEMAND

Used in Manufacture of Wide Range of Resins and Preservatives.

When a manufacturing concern as large as the Quaker Oat Company finds on its hand a by-product that is not revenue-producing, and in such quantity that even its disposal presents something of a problem, the resourcefulness of chemical laboratories at its command is taxed to the utmost in an effort to reach a solution not only of the disposal but the non-profitable phase of the problem. On one of these occasions, told of by D. E. Shumway, of Chicago, Operating Manager of the Quaker Oat Company, while on a business visit to the Peterborough plant, the experiments have resulted in the discovery and manufacture of furfural.

What is Furfural?

As is generally known, there is a very large quantity of oat hulls left over following the manufacture of various products in the Quaker Oat Mills both in Peterborough and at Cedar Rapids, Iowa. For some time there was practically no good use to which that by-product could be turned, but chemical experiments in several large laboratories lead to the discovery, some five years ago that furfural could be produced from the oat hulls. It is a brown colored liquid chemical, which for want of a better classification, may be placed in a similar group with formaldehyde, and which has proved adaptable in the manufacture of a wide range of resins, and preservatives.

No Local Manufacture.

With the discovery came the problem of manufacturing the new product in marketable quantities, for it was at first considered merely in the light of a laboratory curiosity, selling at $1.00 a pound, but at the mills in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the production has, of late years, been increased until now, furfural is manufactured and sold in tank car lots, and shipped to many parts of the United States, Canada and even to the Orient where it is used as a preservative for chop-suey.

Asked as to the possibilities of its being manufactured at the Peterborough plant, Mr. Shumway replied that at present, there is only one other source beyond the Cedar Rapid mills, and that is in France where a chemical company is interested in its development. He stated that while there is an increasing demand for the product, there will be no attempt made to fit the local plant to make furfural in the near future.

The visiting official, in discussing the many uses to which the new by-product may be put, stated that it is used in the manufacture of synthetic resins from which radio dial fittings, panel boards and other equipment are made; it is effective in the coloring of wood, in rosin bleaching, and in the purification of anthracene, a raw material used in the dye industry. Furfural is also employed in the manufacture of light resins used for engraving and printing; as a preservative of certain foods, as an embalming fluid for laboratory specimens, for flavoring of tobacco, accelerating the purification of rubber, and in the manufacture of grinding wheels.

Another unusual use to which the new chemical is being applied is in the manufacture of fungicide, which is resorted to in the killing of disease on corn and other seed.

PEOPLE ARE BEHIND THE KELLOGG PACT

Women's Organizations in Toronto Hear Fine Address at Big Rally.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Representatives of fifty different women's organizations of Toronto held a meeting yesterday for the purpose of promoting international goodwill. The speaker of the day was Miss Ruth Morgan, of New York. She was introduced by the chairman of the meeting, Mrs. Davidson, as "the inspiration of the British-American woman's crusade." Miss Morgan is chairman of the committee of international co-operation to prevent war, and chairman of the National Voters' League of the United States.

Miss Morgan assured her hearers that Americean opposition to the Kellog pact was only perfunctory and that the spirit of the nation was behind the pact and it would be ratified.

HOME RULE IS MAIN ISSUE IN ELECTION FIGHT

liament. "The Nationalist candidate," Keir declared, "is standing for something which has not been clearly defined but I believe it to be a Scottish Army and Scottish Navy, although what the Scottish Navy is going to be I have not been able to find out."

Clarke, Labor entrant, is temporarily out of the fight with a sore throat.

While the Home Rule issue lends an unusual interest to the campaign, other factors are entering into the fight. The effect of the local government bill in curtailing authority of some of the old Scottish boroughs, depression among shale oil workers, and unemployment generally are alike sources of attack on the government candidate.

The vote in 1924 was: Sir George Hutchison, Cons., 11,329; A. B. Clarke, Labor, 9,173.

OBITUARY

DR. D. H. CAMERON
OSHAWA, Ont., Jan. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Dr. D. H. Cameron, one of Oshawa's outstanding physicians died suddenly this morning following a heart attack.
Dr. Cameron was well known in this section of Ontario as a sport enthusiast in rugby and hockey. He was about 48 years of age and leaves his wife and seven children. He was a former member of the board of education. A Presbyterian and a prominent Liberal. Dr. Cameron came to Oshawa from Cochrane in 1917, suffering five times from fires which swept the north country during his residence there.

WEDDING BELLS

CREALLY—DALTON
A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized by Father J. J. O'Brien at Sacred Heart church on Tuesday morning at eight o'clock, when Miss Emma Francis, daughter of Mrs. F. Dalton and the late James Dalton, became the bride of Daniel C. Creally, second son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Creally of Armagh, Ireland.
The bride entered the church attired in a beautiful gown of Orchid Satin with hat, shoes, and stockings to match. She carried a bouquet of beautiful American Beauty roses.
The best man was Frank Courynea of Niagara Falls N. Y., and the bridesmaid being Miss Francis Hines who wore a dainty gown of peach crepe, with shoes and stockings and hat to match, and carried a beautiful bouquet of Madame Butterfly roses.
After the wedding ceremony was performed, a dainty wedding breakfast was served, at the home of the bride's parents. Amid showers of confetti, the happy couple left on the noon train for points east, where they will spend their honeymoon. On their return they will reside in this city.

Y.W.C.A. PLANS NURSING CLASS

In the Last Few Years Five Classes Have Been Held.

109 Members.

The Y. W. C. A will again this year conduct a Red Cross Home Nursing Class. These classes have proven most interesting and helpful. During the last few years, the Y has held five classes attended by 1019 members.
The course includes lectures and demonstrations on— Bedroom in Health and Sickness, Signs of Sickness, Care of the Patient, Feeding the Sick, Treatments, Communicable Diseases, Emergencies, Health in the Home, Maternity Nursing, Infant Care and Food Combinations.
Miss Jessie Deyell, assistant Public School Health Nurse will have charge of the class at the Y. M. C. A. this season, and applications indicate that this will be a very popular class this year. The course is open to all who care to register and a very valuable book on Home Nursing is included with the class instruction.

Railways Prepare For War

Branch Line Projects Of Two Great Systems Are Worrying Cabinet

Situation Involves Not Only a Gigantic Expansion of Program On Part of Canadian Pacific Railway Company, But Is Causing No Little Concern To Canadian Government.

RURAL SECTIONS SUPPORTING THE CANADIAN NATIONAL IN BIG DEVELOPMENT FOR NORTHERN SASKATCHEWAN

C.P.R. Plans As Announced Would Cut Across the Present Terminals of Almost Every Important C.N.R. Line and Literally Take the Territory From It

OTTAWA, Ont., January 12 (Special to The Examiner). — Canadians have become accustomed to think of their railway building era as passed, but in the Winnipeg announcement, seemingly innocent, that the C.P.R. proposed to spend $50,000,000 in the next five years in northern line extension in the Prairie Provinces is a glimmer of a situation that rivals the laying of the first threads of steel across the Prairies.

The situation created by the announcement involves not only a gigantic expansion program in which the C.P.R. threatens battle to the death with the National Railways for supremacy in the North of Saskatchewan, but involves political implications which are causing no little concern to the Mackenzie King administration. Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways, has already interceded with the presidents of the two roads in an effort to procure an agreement that will minimize the conflict as between the roads and lessen the political danger to the Government.

It is said the rural sections of the West are supporting the Canadian National Railways program, while the cities and towns are throwing their weight behind the Canadian Pacific. No less than six seats now held by the Government are said to be in jeopardy by reason of the impending railway war, one of them being that of Premier W. L. M. King.

The announcement that the C.P.R. intends to apply to Parliament for ratification of plans to extend their lines north, east, and west into Northern Saskatchewan and Prince Albert means that an effort is being made to checkmate C.N.R. expansion in a district formerly considered its exclusive territory. The National Railways heave already done some construction, most of the lines leading to the richly mineralized hinterland being in a state of incompletion, final plans for completion not yet having been announced.

Cut Across Terminals.

C.P.R. plans, as announced, would cut across the present terminals of almost every important C.N.R. line, and literally take the territory from it. For months the two lines have been waging a war on the Prairies, and countless resolutions by municipalities, local councils, boards of trade, farmers' unions, and grain growers' organizations have been passed favoring one side or the other. At the coming session of Parliament, that fight will be transferred from the Prairies to Parliament, and will be waged with greatest intensity in the Railway Committees of the Commons and Senate.

It was to avoid such disastrous conflict that Hon. Charles Dunning intervened, according to information gained to-day. He had learned that the Canadian Pacific Railway contemplated such a program, and that it was even more extensive than so far intimated, and he suggested that E. W. Beatty, Canadian Pacific Railway President, get into touch with Sir Henry Thornton, of the National, and endeavor to come to some agreement. Such a meeting between the moguls of the Dominion, was held in Montreal last week, but no announcement as to its result was made. It appears that the Canadian Pacific Railway has agreed upon tentative concessions. One of the original Canadian Pacific Railway plans was to build a line from Nipawin north-easterly to Reindeer Lake. The announced line will run only to Island Falls, some 100 miles short of the original objective. Another northerly line from Prince Albert was designed to run as far as Lac La Ronge, but its destination is now announced as being Foster Lakes, which is in the neigh-

W. H. YOUNG IS NEW PRESIDENT

Peterborough Horticultural Society Holds Its Thirty-fifth Annual Meeting.

FINANCIAL REPORTS.

W. H. Young was elected president of the Peterborough Horticultural Society last night, at the thirty-fifth annual meeting of the organization, held in the office of the District Agricultural Representative, at 289 George street. Although there was a scant attendance of members, the meeting proved very interesting and was featured by an informative talk given by the District Representative, J. B. Nelson, who spoke on the aims and objects of horticultural societies, as formulated many years ago when they were first instituted.

The slate of officers for the ensuing year includes also A. E. Prest, first vice president; John Seymour, second vice president; S. T. Harris, secretary-treasurer, and five new directors to fill the places of those retiring after two years. These new directors are A. J. Madill, George Clark, A. Spenceley, F. Holmes, and J. S. McGiffin.

Directors who are still completing their term of office are Mrs. S. T. Harris, Miss M. Easson, H. L. Beal, H. Carter and F. Hall.

H. L. Beal is chairman of the finance committee; F. Hall, chairman of the parks, beds and premiums; A. J. Madill, chairman of junior membership; J. H. Callander, chairman of publicity, and W. H. Young, of shows. Auditors are F. Holmes and D. Grant. The chairman of the membership committee will be appointed later by the executive.

The meeting, which was presided over by the president for 1928, Alderman W. Stocker, opened with an address by the president, in which he referred to the rather disappointing membership of the past year, in a total of 194, which was far below the mark set in 1922, when a record membership totalled 502.

Referring to the agitation for a town planning committee and for civic beautifying, Alderman Stocker said that Peterborough should have at least one thousand members in its Horticultural Society.

Speaking of the fine record made by A. J. Madill as chairman of the junior membership committee, Alderman Stocker said that the local junior organization possessed the largest membership in the province, which was due to Mr. Madill's good work. The Kiwanis Club had presented a silver cup for annual competition among the schools and this had proven an incentive to the pupils. Reference was also made to the splendid co-operation and support afforded by Directors F. Hall, H. Carter and W. H. Young, and the speaker also thanked all members of the executive for their loyalty during the year.

Old Familiar Places

We may rove the wide world o'er
But we ne'er shall find a trace
Of the home we loved of yore,
Of the old familiar place;
Other scenes may be as bright,
But we miss, 'neath alien skies,
Both the welcome and the light
Of the old, kind, loving eyes,
Home is home, of this bereft,
Memory loves again to trace
All the forms of those we left
In the old familiar place.

We may sail o'er every sea,
But we still shall fail to find
Any spot so dear to me,
As the one we left behind.
Words o' comfort we may hear,
But they cannot touch the heart,
Like the tones, to memory dear,
Of the friends from whom we part,
Home is home, the wanderer longs
All the scenes of youth to trace,
And to hear the old home songs
In the dear familiar place.

PARIS PACT DOES NOT FORCE A NATION TO GO TO DEFENCE OF ANOTHER IN EVENT OF WAR

Declares Secretary of United States Frank B. Kellogg Before Senate Committee.

EVIDENCE GIVEN IN CAMERA.

Senator Reed of Missouri Avows His Opposition to the Kellogg Treaty.

WASHINGTON, D.C., January 12 (Canadian Press). — The Paris pact for renunciation of war commits none of the signatories to it to go to war in defence of any country attacked in defiance of the treaty, Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg informed the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations during the recent hearings. He added that Canada made it plain that the Dominion would not be a party to the treaty unless that were understood.

The evidence given in camera by the sponsor in this country of the so-called Kellogg Treaty has been made public by the Senate Committee with Mr. Kellogg's permission. It shows that there was some blunt talk and lively interchange when Mr. Kellogg appeared before the committee to speak to his treaty, which has been adhered to by the Governments of Great Britain and the Dominions, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Belgium, and many smaller Powers throughout the world.

Opposes Treaty.

Senator "Jim" Reid of Missouri, who yesterday bitterly attacked the British so-called reservations to the treaty, had already begun that attack in the committee hearings, the evidence discloses. He impelled Mr. Kellogg to state emphatically that "there is absolutely nothing in the notes of the various Governments which would change this treaty."

Senator Claude Swanson interposed: "In the notes of Canada and the British Empire they specifically stated that they signed with the distinct understanding that the obligations of Locarno and the obligations of the League were not in any way interfered with by this treaty."

Secretary Kellogg replied: "Yes, they said that my explanation of protecting them by having them sign this treaty was sufficient. That is the reason the number of nations was increased. Great Britain said that the nature of the obligations was such that she could not sign for the Dominions and India, and she asked the nations to invite them to join, which they did. They all accepted."

The British Government's references in its note to special zones of influence did not give that Government a reserved right to say what should be done anywhere in the British Empire, Secretary Kellogg said in answer to Senator Reed. "I do not believe," he said, "that leaves Great Britain free to make war anywhere in the world where she considers it to her interest. The treaty contradicts it, absolutely."

There was prolonged argument between Secretary Kellogg and Senator Reed over the meaning of the British note. Presently Mr. Kellogg said: "All that the British note said or would mean, if it was written into this treaty, was that there were certain regions the welfare and integrity of which was necessary to the security and defence of the British Empire. I said over and over that any country had that right in self-defence."

TO A SNOW FLAKE.

If I could fall as softly,
And be as stainless white—
If I could cover ugly things
And leave the world as bright—
If I could cheer the children
As you are sure to do—
If I could be as beautiful—
I'd be a snow flake too.

OLDEST CITIZEN PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Justus Dunn Dies at Ripe Old Age of Ninety-five Years.

RESIDENT SINCE 1837.

The oldest citizen of this city passed quietly away last evening in the person of Alice Simons, wife of the late Justus Dunn in her ninety fifth year at her home, 167 Charlotte Street.

Mrs. Dunn was for many years president of the St. Peter's Ladies Aid and a member of the Catholic Women's League and the Sacred Heart Society. She was always actively at work for the interests of the Orphanange and the poor of the city, and she was a most loyal member of the St. Peter's Cathedral. She was always a good, kind, amiable, little woman and she warmed the hearts of all she met with her sunny, sweet personality.

She leaves to mourn her loss, besides a host of friends, her sorrowing niece Miss Annie Simons, who has lived with her all her life and a number of other nieces and nephews in the city.

Came in 1837.

The late Mrs. Dunn, who was ninety five years of age was born in Brockville on November 16, 1834, and came to Peterborough with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Simons in the year 1837, and to within a short time before her death, could recall many stirring and interesting incidents in the life and progress of the city of Peterboro

HON. H. MARLER IS NAMED FIRST ENVOY TO JAPAN

Member of Privy Council of Canada, Having Been in Cabinet in 1925.

EDUCATED AT McGILL.

New Choice Belongs To Family Which Has Lived in Canada Since 1768.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 12.—(Canadian Press).—The Prime Minister announced last evening that the Canadian Government proposed recommending to His Majesty the appointment of Hon. Herbert M. Marler of Montreal as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the Dominion of Canada to Tokio.

Mr. Marler is a member of the Privy Council of Canada, having been a member of the cabinet in 1925. He belongs to a family which has lived in Canada continuously since 1768. He was educated at McGill University, from which he graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Civil Law with first-class honors. He is by profession a notary of the Province of Quebec and is the son of W. de M. Marler, D.C.L., LL.D., of Montreal, who was for many years a professor of the Law of Real Estate in McGill University, and who founded the firm of W. de M. & H. M. Marler of Montreal, in which he and his son have been associated for over 30 years. In 1902 Mr. Marler married Beatrice Isabel Allan, a granddaughter of the late Andrew Allan, one of the Allan line, and of the late Matthew Henry Gault.

Hailed With Approval.

Official announcement that Honorable Herbert Marler, of Montreal, would be recommended to His Majesty, The King as Canadian Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at Tokyo, Japan, has been hailed with general approval and satisfaction in the Capital.

News of Mr. Marler's appointment, made at yesterday's Cabinet Council, came as a distinct surprise in political circles, as it was expected that he would contest Stanstead riding in Quebec, in the next general election. He was nominated last summer as the official Liberal candidate in this constituency.

The appointment of a minister to Japan, which was authorized by parliament last session, is technically made by the Imperial Government although concurrence will be only a formality.

According to Premier Mackenzie King, the appointment will shortly be followed by the coming of a Japanese Minister to Ottawa. Tokyo authorities, he said, were only awaiting appointment of a Minister of the Dominion. Shu Tomii, charge d'affaires of the Japanese Legation here, stated to-day that he had not been advised of an appointment by his government.

While it is not yet definitely known when Mr. Marler will leave for Japan to assume his new post, it is believed he will depart as soon as he has settled his private business affairs.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 12 (Canadian Press).—Hon. Herbert Marler, of Montreal, stated here to-day that he had accepted the post of Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at Tokyo, Japan.

Announcement of his appointment was made in Ottawa last night and communicated to Hon. Mr. Marler.

In an interview to-day the new Minister stated that he had received no instructions from Ottawa as to when he would be expected to leave for Tokyo. He did not think he would reach Japan before next July. Hon. Mr. Marler stated he would have to familiarize himself with his new duties, and his personal business would send him to England next May so that he did not believe he would be able to assume his new position until mid-summer. Although Mr. Marler was gratified at his appointment, it came to him as a complete surprise.

GREAT LONDON DAILY IS FAVORABLE TO NEW CANADIAN IMMIGRATION PLANS

LONDON, January 12. —(Canadian Press Cables). — In and editorial welcoming the restrictions on entrance into Canada of "non-preferred" migrants from Europe, the Times to-day say the fact is further proff of the sincere desire of the Canadian authorities that Canada shall remain predominantly British and it is clearly of the utmost importance the British should not miss the new opportunity.

The Times stresses the failure of the recent campaign in South Wales by the Canadian Immigration and Colonization Association, which it attributes not merely to apathy and ignorance but to the cumulative effect of many years of insidious propaganda of a certain type of extremist agitator against emigration.

The successful settler being the best propagandist, The Times expresses the hope that future harvest expeditions will be organized far less hurriedly and more carefully than the last. It urges extension and modification of the Overseas Settlement Act designed to attract a greater number of unmarried youths, and concludes the extension of training centres in Britain may ultimately adjust the supply to the demand. "But the demand will be immediate and in justice to the reputation of our people and the future of so important a partner in the Empire, it must be fully met," the Times says.

Booth Is Expected To Refuse Lay Down Command of Army

Dispute May End In Lawsuit Over Control of Property—High Council Is Requested To Give the General's Solicitor, William A. Jowitt, a Hearing.

REPLY IS EXPECTED BY MEMBERS ON MONDAY DEPUTATION MAKES REPORT ON CONFERENCE

Captain Herbert Hart, Former Secretary To Founder of Army, Comes With Last Minute Proposal of Peace, But Is Refused An Interview.

LONDON, Jan. 12 (Canadian Press).—There was some indication to-day that General Bramwell Booth might refuse to retire as head of the Salvation Army and take the matter to the courts.

The High Council was requested to allow William A. Jowitt, K.C., who has been retained to act for the General, to attend the council session and address the members. It was felt in some circles that the engagement of Mr. Jowitt might mean that the dispute was to end in a law suit over control of the Army's property.

General Booth promised the seven officials who presented a resolution asking his retirement, that he would answer their request on Monday. In the meantime the deputation was to report to the High Council meeting at Sunbury-on-Thames.

The High Council of the Salvation Army again went into session to-day, to receive a report of the deputation which visited General Bramwell Booth yesterday bearing the council's resolution asking him to retire.

While the council was in session, there was a sensational incident outside Sunbury Court, when one of the Army's officers was challenged and was conducted into the lodge at the gate. He was Captain Herbert Hart who, it was said, had come to propose a last minute compromise over the question of leadership of the Army. He was not allowed to approach the council with his settlement plan.

Deeply Disappointed

Captain Hart, who formerly was Secretary-General to William Booth, the founder, told an interviewer that he was deeply disappointed that the council had refused to see him.

"I came here with a plan to settle this unfortunate business, but they won't allow me in," he said. "I object very strongly to the General being dismissed this way.

"My proposal is that General Booth, instead of being dismissed, be promoted to the rank of Field Marshal, and that under him be two councils; one advisory, and one administrative. The administrative council should have Commissioner Higgins, Chief of Staff, as president. The other members should be Commander Evangeline Booth and Commissioner Catherine Booth, representing the Booth family; Commissioner Lamb, representing the Social and Emigration departments; Commission Cunningham, Secretary for European Affairs; Commissioner Laurie, representing Finance; Commissioner Wilson, Trade and Headquarters, and Commissioner Kitching, the Literary Department and The War Cry."

A despatch to The Daily Herald from Southwold last night said it was understood on good authority that General Bramwell Booth intends to fight to the last ditch against the High Council's efforts to depose him. It is said that if the council decides to dismiss him he is prepared to take the matter to the law courts.

QUEEN MARY REPORTED ILL

Physicians at Buckingham Palace Had Two Royal Patients To Care For To-day.

CONDITION STATIONARY.

LONDON, Jan. 12. — (Canadian Press).—Physicians attending King George had another royal patient to care for to-day—Queen Mary.

The Queen was reported to be suffering from catarrh in common with thousands of her subjects. She did not take her usual drive yesterday but her condition was understood not to be serious.

The King's condition remained stationary but without any indications that anxiety had increased and the Royal Family expressed satisfaction that there had been no retrogression.

The week now ending is the eighth of the King's illness and the main trouble has been the continuance of weakness which is taxing all the skill of the doctors and nurses.

The cold weather which is prevalent with bitter penetrating winds added to the handicap, although all the resources of science were employed to counteract these unfavorable conditions.

The Queen has not been outside of Buckingham Palace for the past two days. In view of the extremely cold weather. It was considered advisable for her to remain within her

RAPID PROGRESS HAS BEEN MADE

Canada Steps To Fore in Past 28 Years—Trade Grown Tremendously.

HISTORY IS RECALLED.

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—The approaching session of Parliament calls attention to the tremendous changes that have occurred on Parliament Hill since the beginning of the present century.

Within the short space of twenty-eight years Canada has forged to the front as one of the world's leading nations, with a foreign trade of $2,500,000,000 this year, as compared with less than $400,000,000 at the beginning of the century.

The only member of the House of Commons who was here for the session of 1900 and has been in the House continually since, is Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, the Speaker, who has sat for Gaspe since 1896.

In 1900, Hon. Richard B. Bennett was still studying law in New Brunswick, little thinking that one day he would be leader of His Majesty's Loyal Opposition at Ottawa. Hon. W. L. McKenzie King had graduated from the University of Toronto a few years before and was just completing a post-graduate course at Harvard University, following which he reentered the public service at Ottawa in 1900 as Deputy Minister of Labor and editor of the Labor Gazette.

Women Attain Power.

There were no Progressives in those days; the women did not even have a vote, let alone a representative in Parliament; Canada had only one trans-continental railway, there were only seven Provinces, Alberta and Saskatchewan being formed five years later, and the population of the Dominion was slightly more than five millions.

The Government leader at the time was Sir Wilfred Laurier, who had been in the saddle since 1896, while Sir Charles Tupper led the Opposition.

Among the members of the Commons were several who are still in Ottawa. Hon. Frank Oliver then sat for Alberta; John Dowsley Reid, now in the Senate, represented Granville South, and Sir Robert Borden sat for Halifax. The latter became leader of the Conservative party some time later.

Henri Bourassa was in the House, representing the present constituency of Labelle and he reigned over Canada's participation in the South African war.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier sat for his old constituency of Quebec East, which remained faithful to him to the last, and Hon. W. S. Fielding, who is still in Ottawa, was Minister of Finance, representing Queen's and Shelburne. The late John Ross Robertson sat for Toronto East, while Hon. Hewitt Bostock, now Speaker of the Senate, and

FREED WOMAN IS REVEALED AS NOTED SPY

Unofficially France Works For Five Years To Obtain Her Pardon.

AL. SMITH'S LAST ACT.

Woman Served Her Native Country Well During Great War.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—When the steel doors of the dismal prison for women at Auburn swung open this week to return Mme. Paulette Saludes to the outside world by virtue of a pardon from Governor Alfred E. Emith al almost his last official act, it was because her native land did not forget.

Mme. Saludes, who shot and killed Oscar Martelliere, a broker, who made a plaything of her love, must go at once to France and never return to the United States, according to the provisions of her pardon. And in France she will find herself welcomed, perhaps not openly but welcomed nevertheless, by the French government and given a pension for the rest of her life.

This is not exactly a surprise to officials who long ago decided that Mme. Saludes—petite, aristocratic and not yet deprived of her beauty—was a somebody in her native land. Throughout her trial, her conviction and the five years she has been in prison, however, she has concealed her identity and until now has been a deep enigma.

Now, however, it is revealed that during the world war she was one of the most trusted and effective spies for France and the allies. Now it is explained why the French ambassador at Washington and the French consul in New York interested themselves so deeply in her case, at the same time making it plain they were not acting officially.

Offered Self to France.

Mme. Saludes was unmarried in 1914 when France went to war with its traditional enemy, Germany. She came from a family that always had given its all to native land. It had suffered greatly at the hands of Germany in the war of 1870. Its hatred for the victors of that bloody struggle had been kept alive through the years and Paulette Delorme had been instilled with the belief that if ever the opportunity offered to do harm to Germany, duty demanded that the Delormes sacrifice even life itself to do it.

So when in 1914 war came again Saulette Delorme offered herself to France in whatever capacity she could be used. Eventually she became a spy. The details of the duties she performed have been withheld. No nation makes such things public any more than France did that it had emblazoned the name of this frail little woman upon its secret archives as one who deserved high honors that never could be paid her.

With a simple "Thank you" in her ears, Paulette Delorme returned to her home village. There, in time, came James Saludes, a veteran of the war, to woo her and win her heart and hand. France was in the throes of reconstruction. America beckoned and Saludes and his bride came here where he organized a lumber company, that being the business with which he was most familiar.

Then He Sailed Away.

In 1923, some five years later, he sailed for France to collect outstanding money after transferring to his wife's name all that he owned that she might act in his absence.

Mrs. Saludes naturally sought the advice of Oscar Martelliere, supposedly well-to-do broker and friend of her husband. Martelliere was her guide in both business and personal affairs. Eventually he told her what he said was a secret entrusted to him by her absent husband. Saludes, he said, had no intention of returning or ever living with her again. True or not, Saludes never has returned.

Mrs. Saludes believed Martelliere, particularly as for some time she had not heard from her husband. It was but a step from that to having Martelliere make love to her. His wife, he said, did not love him. He no longer cared for her, but he

Father Shoots Roadhouse Proprietor For Giving Liquor To His Daughter

CAMDEN, Ark., Jan. 12.—(Canadian Press).—The wrath of the father of a 15 year old girl to whom liquor is alleged to have been served along with about 75 other students at a party held by Camden High school students at a roadhouse near here last fall culminated yesterday in a shooting affray in which the proprietor of the roadhouse was wounded critically.

Alex Hardin, 25, the proprietor, today lies at a hospital in a serious condition with four bullet wounds in his body and F. E. Sullivan, the girl's father, is in jail charged with the shooting. Little hope is held by hospital officials for Hardin's recovery.

Use Of Elk Teeth For Ornaments Is Diminishing Large Herds In West

OLYMPIA, Wash., Jan. 12.—Don't buy elk teeth for ornaments, is the plea of the biological survey, in a bulletin being sent out.

They are pretty ornaments and for years have been used by Indians, especially squaws, for that purpose; but the difference is that red men use only the teeth from elk slaughtered for food and their skins, while white men kill elk, extract two teeth and waste the rest.

Large numbers of bull elk have been sacrificed in various sections of the northwestern states by hunters who illegally poached upon government reserves, and despite the vigilence of rangers and guards, shot down animals in all seasons.

JURY FAILS TO PLACE CAUSE OF DEATH

Crowd is so Large Theatre is Secured For Murray Inquest

t Inquiry Into Death of Rawdon Township Farmer, Coroner's Jury Returns Verdict of "Died From Causes Unknown" —Witnesses Tell of Big Barn Fire.

O EVIDENCE OF FOUL PLAY· CONSTABLE CLAIMS; FRED THAIN WAS LAST MAN TO SEE MURRAY ALIVE

rother-in-law Said He Found the Lantern in the House Besides a Pair of Lace Rubber Boots—Coke Fire Had Been Out For Several Hours.

STIRLING, Jan. 12 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Morley Murray, ate of the township of Rawdon, came to his death by causes unknown. This was the verdict of the coroner's jury yesterday after hearing the evidence presented and deliberating upon it for thirty-five minutes plus an additional four minutes which was for the purpose of adding a rider to their verdict before it was formally presented. But no change was made. Long before the hour set for the opening of the hearing, the council chamber of the village of Stirling was filled to capacity, and as many more spectators unable to gain admission. To hold the hearing there would have been a difficult task, and at the last minute, the coroner and other officials managed to get the use of the theatre in the community hall. The auditorium which seats five hundred, was just large enough to accommodate the crowd that stormed the doors as soon as the word went round that the inquest would be heard in the theatre. The Provincial police assumed the role of traffice officers and ushered the crowd to their seats in as orderly a manner as possible.

The stage which has been the scene of so many pleasing entertainments, was the setting for the last hearing of a tragedy which bore marked contrast to the colorful decorations of the hanging and props. In the centre was a large table, the council table pressed into service for the occasion. At one end was a smaller table. At the large table were seated, Dr. Alger, the coroner; and Miss Tilley of Belleville, the stenographer for the court. C. B. Donan, the attorney for the Crown who conducted, the inquiry, employed the smaller table. Arranged in a single row along the rear of the stage, were the nine good men and true who constituted the jury. As each witness was called, he came to the stage, was sworn and allowed to be seated at the large table while giving evidence. When the last witness had been heard and the usual opportunity afforded any person present who wished to give evidence, C. B. Donan addressed the jury and they retired. Thirty-five minutes later they returned and presented their verdict to the coroner. It did not seem complete, and the jury returned to their room, only to return four minutes later with the same verdict they had originally brought in. It was duly and officially presented, signed, and the inquiry closed.

The Verdict

"We, the gentlemen of the jury, on the inquest of Morley Murray, whose death occurred at his home on the 26th of December, 1928, have agreed that death was due to unknown cause." This was the brief report brought to the court after a deliberation of more than half an hour and signed by the foreman, S. Mason. That is was unanimous was proven by the official signatures of each of the jurors before the coroner and attorney as witnesses.

Before the inquest was formally opened, the officials requested the spectators to refrain from smoking as it was against the rules of the building and also out of respect to the generosity with which the use of the theatre had been granted. Then, for two hours and twenty-five minutes, evidence was heard.

Bertha Baker (Mrs. Jason Baker) was the first person to give evidence. She is the woman who sent the alarm along the telephone line on the night of the fire. Her home was on the ninth concession of Rawdon township, she said. And she had lived there for the past seven years. It was about a quarter of a mile from the Murray farm, the buildings of which were not visible from her residence. She had known the deceased for about twenty years. Since the death of his wife more than two years ago, Murray had lived alone. She had last seen him alive on Sunday, December 23rd. Murray had seemed in good health then and had been waiting at the road for his brother, John, to meet him. She had noticed the fire about ten-thirty or eleven o'clock on the night of December 26th. Her son, who was ill, was the first to see it when he went upstairs to bed. The building could not be seen, but the flames could. Her husband was not at home, but in the village of Springbrook, and came to the fire from there. Her son was unable to leave the house. She herself had rung several of the neighbors on the telephone and given them the alarm. She had not been sure whether it was the Murray buildings or the school house. But Mrs. Verney Heath had come on the line and said it was Morley Murray's house.

Known Murray for Many Years.

William Lindsay Morton was the second witness. He identified himself as resident on Lot 21, Concession 9, of the Township of Rawdon. He was twenty-seven years of age, married, and had lived at his present residence for the past eight years. He had known Murray all his life, but had not seen him since ten days before the fire. Their houses were about seventy rods apart, but he had never had occasion to see Murray during that time, nor Murray occasion to see him. On the night of the fire he had been in West Huntingdon and had returned home about half-past one in the morning. He went straight to the fire and found practically everybody from the entire neighborhood there. By that time the building was pretty well consumed.

Describing Murray's stock on the farm, he said it was mostly "young stuff" as far as the cattle were concerned. There were two horses, thirteen or fourteen pigs, and a few hens. He did not know whether Murray had been in the habit of taking ashes out to his hens in the barn or not. Witness said he had gone to West Huntingdon about four o'clock in the afternoon with his wife to visit her mother who was ill. He had noticed Murray's cattle to be out, some of them on the mow floor of the barn. It was not unusual for the cattle to be out. But it was not like the deceased to allow them to enter that section of the building. Witness had remarked this to his wife, thinking that Murray must be away and momentarily considering stopping long enough to stable the stock. But the illness of his wife's mother seemed more urgent at the time. He saw no smoke issuing from the chimney of the house. So far as he was aware, Murray had no enemies and was in good health. Witness did not assist in the search of the ashes for the remains, although he spent some time at the scene.

GOING TO TOKIO.

Hon. Herbert Marler, of Montreal, who will be recommended to His Majesty by Premier King as Canada's first minister to Japan.

CANADIAN BOYS WILL BE GIVEN SAME CHANCES AS ENGLISH LADS

Government Is Just As Ready To Help Boys of Canada Settle On Farms.

LOAN OF $1,250 NECESSARY.

Ontario Will Welcome Hon. Robert Forke's Proposal, Declares Deputy.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 12 (Canadian Press).—Canadian boys will be given the same opportunity to settle on land of their own as lads from Great Britain, it was stated by Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, here yesterday.

"We want Canadians to know that we are just as ready to help Canadian boys to settle on the land as we are to help boys from Great Britain," he declared.

When the Provincial Government expresses its willingness to put up a loan of $1,250 to Canadian boys to settle in Manitoba, be they farm or city lads, and have shown the requisite initiative and acquired the necessary experience, the Dominion Government, Mr. Forke declared, would be ready to make the same loan to the Canadian boys as it does at present to the British.

No definite plan has been worked out, the Minister stated, because there has been practically no desire shown by Canadian boys for a scheme similar to that for British boys.

When questioned regarding the proposal of Hon. Robert Forke, W. B. Roadhouse, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, said last night that the proposal would be welcomed by the Ontario Government.

"It would be welcomed as far as we are concerned," he said. "There have been schemes for financial assistance to British boys. This has raised the question of assistance to our own boys."

CAMPBELLFORD MAN HONORED

Marmora Hockey Players Unable To Make Way Through Snow Drifts.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 12.—All the troubles for the Marmora hockey players and fans who had braved the raging elements to be at the game in Campbellford last night, did not end with the play at the Arena. The blizzard which had raged at intervals during the last two days made the road to Marmora impassable. One car which started back to that town was forced to return to town here. Others did not consider it wise to even start, but took rooms at hotels in town. At a late hour last night, it had not been learned whether or not any of the cars had managed to reach their home town.

Results Given For Trent Valley League

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 12 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — There were three games in the Trent Valley Hockey League last night and in only one case did the visiting team manage to wrest victory from their hosts. Tweed journed to Madoc and walked home with the victory by a score of two to nothing. Stirling went to Frankford but only got two goals to the five that the home team counted. Campbellford also retained the honors for their home town when they won from Marmora in twenty minutes overtime with a score of three to two.

SEVEN KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Army Plane Comes Down in Forced Landing Shortly After Taking Off.

ONE ESCAPES.

MIDDLETOWN, Pa., Jan. 12 (Canadian Press)—The big army transport plane, C-2, carried seven men to death when it was smashed to pieces in a desperate attempt at a forced landing a few minutes after taking off from the army air depot here yesterday.

Only one man of the eight soldiers from Bolling Field, Washington, who started on the return flight to their base, escaped with his life. He is Sergeant Patrick Conroy of New York City ,who last night was unconscious and in a critical condition, suffering from a fractured skull.

PRESENT POLICY IS FOLLOWED

Dominion Government Will Grant No Pulpwood Concessions in West.

OVER PRODUCTION IN PAPER.

OTTAWA, Ont., January 12 (Canadian Press). — The Dominion Government will continue its present policy of refusing to grant any further pulpwood concessions in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and the railway belt lands of British Columbia for at least another year. This declaration was made by Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, this evening in discussing conditions in the pulp and paper industry in Canada. Dominion jurisdiction over pulpwood concessions does not extend to Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritime Provinces.

The utmost confidence in the future of the pulp and paper industry was expressed, however, by Mr. Stewart In the existing situation, though, he believed it advisable to continue his policy of refusing to grant any additional concessions in the Provinces where his department has jurisdiction.

"I foresaw over-production coming over two years ago," Mr. Stewart said, "and declined then to grant any further permits for the erection of additional mills in Manitoba and the other Western Provinces, although several applications were made to me to construct new mills and get more territory. It was apparent that the market was being overdone, and this judgment in declining to grant applications on these grounds has proved to be correct. The industry will simply have to wait until consumption catches up with production, and that will require a year or so. There is nothing to be alarmed about, and I have the utmost confidence in the future of the industry in Canada."

FARM WORKERS FOR ONTARIO

Province Will Get More Than Even Before Says Hon. John Martin.

IN CLOSE TOUCH.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 12.—(Canadian Press).—In the opinion of Honorable John S. Martin, Ontario will get more farm workers from Great Britain this year than ever before. In commenting upon the migration arrangements referred to in a letter by W. J. Egan, Deputy Minister of Federal Department of Immigration and Colonization Departments of the Railways Mr. Martin said:

"Our demand seems to be for Scotch and Irish workers. We keep in pretty close touch with the situation, and I think the new arrangements will have no effect on the farming situation in Ontario, because from reports we are getting now we are going to have more workers than we ever had. Last year, on account of the medical regulations we did not get our quota,, but this year with the change, we ought to be able to handle all we can get, and get all we can handle."

SOCIETY MEETS AT ROSENEATH

Much Business Transacted at First W.M.S. Meeting of New Year.

INTERESTING PROGRAM.

(Examiner Correspondence).

ROSENEATH, January 12.—The Women's Missionary Society of the United Church met for their first meeting of the New Year at the parsonage. The president for the year, Mrs. (Rev.) Brown, conducted the meeting. After the opening exercises, the business was transacted by appointing Mrs. George Mouncey to be missionary monthly superintendent, as Mrs. Arnold withdrew on account of other duties. A eltter from Miss Field was read asking for some information on W.M.S. work.

Watch tower heralds were read by Miss Eliza Brown on West Canada; Mrs. Orra Varcoe on Japan; Mrs. Andrew Brown on India; and Mrs. William Arnold on China.

Mrs. Delbert Brisbin was appointed stewardship superintendent and Mrs. Lily Turner organist. The devotional leaflet was given by Mrs. A. Brown on "The Soul of Religion," saying, "We should be ever faithful in what is given us to do. We are responsible for our stewardship toward God." This was followed by a beautiful prayer by the president, who also read an interesting story of David, comparing his life with the people of the present day.

Mrs. Lily Turner was elected strangers' secretary.

It was decided to again serve a light lunch at each meeting by a committee appointed to take refreshments.

Miss Annie Brown was appointed mite-box superintendent.

At the close of the meeting a social time was enjoyed when a dainty lunch was served. The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. A. Nichols.

ARMY CRUSADERS ARE COMING TO CITY

Party Consisting of Officers and Mission Sisters Coming For One Week.

A party of Church Army Crusaders, consisting of both officers and mission sisters, will visit Peterborough for ten days, holding missions in the Anglican churches. Beginning in All Saints' and St. George's Churches on Tuesday, January 15, they will hold special services each afternoon and evening, with special services for women and children.

These enthusiastic church workers from the Old Land have been in Canada for about a year, holding missions chiefly in Western Ontario. Their own original way of working together, with their evident sincerity, has made a great appeal wherever they have gone. A week-end visit made by another group nearly two years ago introduced the Church Army to Peterborough people, and this longer visit will now give us the opportunity of benefiting by their efforts in our churches.

Captain Casey, who is leader of the Church Army Crusaders in Canada, will personally conduct the mission in All Saints' Church. He will also address the Kiwanis Club at their luncheon on Friday, January 18.

American Ports Are Losing Business Because of Rate Differences.

SUBMIT REPORT TO SENATE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 12. —(Canadian Press). —American ports are losing export business because of the difference in the methods of inspecting grain for export in this country and in Canada; and the difference in rail and ocean freight rates, Senator Walsh (D), of Massachusetts, told the senate yesterday.

The Massachusetts senator is author of the senate resolution calling for a survey of the alleged diversion of grain from ports of the United States to Canada by the shipping board, Departments of State and Agriculture, and the Interstate Commerce Commission. He has been informed these branches of the Government have completed their respective surveys and will forward the information to the senate within a few days. HAMILTON MAN TAKES OWN LIFE

Found in Room of St. Catharine's Hotel Dead From Strychnine Poisoning.

LEAVES PATHETIC NOTE.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Jan. 12 (Canadian Press).—A young man between 23 and 25 years of age, said to be E. Camp of Hamilton, but who registered at a local hotel as A. Wilson of New York, was found on the floor of his room yesterday dead from strychnine poisoning. On the dresser lay an unsigned and unaddressed note saying: "Good-bye, dear; you made me do it." The police have learned that he had called upon a local 16-year-old girl, who knew him as Camp. He arrived at the hotel on Tuesday night, checked out Wednesday morning, and returned last night. The poison was purchased at a local drug store on Wednesday.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

NO doubt there are many people who have heard of a man named John Bunyan, even if they have never read a book called "The Pilgrim's Progress." It is with the hope that some of these people might read my column this week that I have been led to devote this space to a short sketch of that inspired writer, whose use of the English language at its best is second to none. And I shall be satisfied if I can feel assured that I have played some small part in sending such people to one of the brightest gems of all literature to make themselves acquainted with a book which is not nearly as widely read or as well known as it ought to be in this day of sex-problem scribbling.

A BABY BORN

As we measure Time's distances, it is quite a journey back to the year 1628. But it is a journey well worth taking. England, at that time, was dotted over with a great many more or less interesting hamlets or villages. Near Bedford, there was a village known as Elstow which was destined to be lifted out of its obscurity by reason of something that happened within its borders in the year 1628.

If you could get access to the record of births you would discover that more than one home in Elstow provided a birthplace for a baby that year. It had been decreed that one of those children would cause that obscure place to become the Mecca of a great multitude of the choice people of the earth. Whatever impression the other children may have made has been lost in the passing of the years—but this one lad born then has made an impression that will last as long as time itself shall last.

A TINKER'S SON

Had the wise men of those days been asked where such a child should be looked for in all probability they never would have thought of directing anyone to the humble home of a brazier or tinker. Yet it was in such a home that John Bunyan was born. His father was a hard-working man of respectable character who sent his boy to the village school, where he learned some of the rudiments of that language which he was later to make such excellent use of.

God sometimes seems to take a delight in going contrary to some of our popular notions. Surely the writer of a work like "The Pilgrim's Progress" should come from some great university after having been born in the home of some rich man. But instead of that being the case he first sees the light in the home of one of the common people. I don't know that he ever saw the outside of a university let alone spend any time on the inside taking on the necessary polish for the production of a classic like the immortal allegory which came from his pen.

A GODLESS LIFE

After spending some years at school he left to work at his father's trade. After a while he gave this up and enlisted as a soldier. All the evidence clearly shows that his early life was godless in the extreme. In his "Grace Abounding," he writes: "In cursing, swearing, lying and blasphemy, I had but few equals." He does not tell us this to glory in it, but to magnify the grace of God which could reach down to one so deep in sin and lift him up to a life of righteousness and purity.

THE SPIRIT'S POWER

Continuing in this downward course for some years, he could get no rest of either heart or conscience because of the strivings of the Holy Spirit. Although his personal testimony is not to be questioned for one moment, it should be kept in mind that it was written in later life when, in the nature of things, his sins would cast a deeper shadow on his soul in the fuller light of his nature and intensified spiritual experience.

"Grace Abounding to the Chief of Sinners," is really his spiritual autobiography. In it he tells us that even as a child of nine or ten years of age his sin caused him distress of mind, the thought of future judgment filling him with terror.

A WISE WIFE

Again and again he experienced the most remarkable providential deliverances. When serving in the army he was drawn with others to besiege a certain place, but just at the last one of his comrades begged to take his place and, doing so, was killed. While this event made a great impression on him at the time, it was not of a lasting nature.

Soon after leaving the army he married one who proved not only to be good but wise. She did not seem to bring much in the nature of a dowry, her sole possessions being two books, "The Plain Man's Pathway to Heaven" and "The Practice of Piety." These she persuaded him to read with her, and the truths read revived his longing to give up his evil ways.

NO INDEFINITE STRUGGLE

I think it is quite apparent that at this time Bunyan had no real sense of the sinfulness of sin, it was the consequences he dreaded. The Law of God, which he had broken, with its death penalty hung like a heavy thundercloud over his head.

In an effort to get right with God he commenced to attend church regularly and tried hard to carry out other religious observances; yet Sunday afternoons would find him with his old companions taking part in his favorite sports on the village green.

About this time he heard a sermon on the sin of Sabbath-breaking which greatly distressed him, but shaking off even this impression he was soon back indulging in his old habits. Suddenly that Sunday afternoon God spoke to him, "Wilt thou leave thy sins and go to heaven, or have thy sins and go to hell?" Stunned with terror, thinking now he must have sinned beyond forgiveness, he left the game; but later he returned to it in desperation, and to his sinful ways.

HIS GREAT FEAR

Shortly after this he was arrested in his sinful ways by a severe rebuke administered by an ungodly Elstow woman, who charged him with being likely to spoil all the youth who came under his influence. Her words silenced and shamed him. He wished he could go back to childhood, so as to learn to talk without swearing; to try now, he thought, would be hopeless. But try, he did, and with some measure of success. He began to read the Bible, setting the Commandments before him as his guide to heaven. His conduct so improved that those who had known him for years were amazed, and began to speak of him as a godly man. At first this filled him with satisfaction and pride; but, as he afterwards wrote, he was all this time nothing more than "a poor, painted hypocrite," going about like the Jews of old to establish his own righteousness. He had yet to learn that supreme lesson which every seeking soul must learn before he can become a finder, that "all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags," and that "Christ," and Christ only, "is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth."

HOME TO PRISON

Such a soul-struggle cannot go on indefinitely. Sooner or later light must break upon and shine into the darkened soul. Sometimes it is brought to pass by a very simple agency. I was so in his case. Through overhearing a conversation between some godly women on the things of God he was led to see the necessity of the new birth, of the grace of God in Christ, of the power of the Holy Spirit. His attention was riveted, he was humbled and alarmed, his cherished self-righteousness vanished, he longed to know more. Through these women he was introduced to their minister who proved to be a veritable "Evangelist" to the distressed and burdened soul.

THE PEN OF A READY WRITER

Without a doubt Christian's fight with Apollyon in "The Pilgrim's Progress" depicts Bunyan's own experience of Satan's fiery darts and of the power of that wonderful Sword, "the Sword of the Spirit," by which he was enabled to vanquish his hellish foe.

AN INTERESTING STORY

Although it would be a pleasure to narrate the steps by which Bunyan was led into the ministry, space will not permit at this time. The years that followed were years of great usefulness, fierce temptations, and domestic sorrow. Death robbed him of his wife, leaving him with four little ones, the eldest of hom was blind. Fortunately for his children as well as for himself, he married again, one who proved herself a good mother to his children and an heroic helper in his own time of need.

A POOR, PAINTED HYPOCRITE

In the year 1660 Charles II. is on the throne, and the old tyrannical laws against non-conformists are being reinforced with vigor. Bunyan is one of the first to suffer.

HOME TO PRISON

It was whilst leading a meeting at the village of Samwell that he was arrested and finally sent, to use his own words, "home to prison." By some he was urged to submit and give up his preaching so that he might gain his liberty, but to all such suggestions he replied: "If I were out of prison to-day, I would preach the Gospel again to-morrow by the help of God."

THE PEN OF A READY WRITER

For twelve years the "Den"—the name he gives the prison in "The Pilgrim's Progress" — was his home. The parting from his family, he tells us, was "like pulling the flesh from his bones."

His prison library consisted of three books—the Bible, a Concordance, and the Book of Martyrs. During his imprisonment he wrote twelve of his more important works, including the first part of "The Pilgrim's Progress" and "Grace Abounding."

As an author, Bunyan indeed had the "pen of a ready writer." Many works passed through the press in his lifetime, others were published afterwards. His great allegory, "The Pilgrim's Progress," became popular at once. Twelve editions were published within the first ten years, and a hundred thousand copies had been sold in England alone before the author died. Such a circulation at that time was phenomenal. It is the history of a soul, and, apart from the Bible, is the greatest spiritual classic the Church possesses. It is read by all ages, by all classes of society, and in all civilized countries.

It was only the other day that the civilized world was celebrating his tercentenary. 1628 will always be a notable year because one was born whose holy life and influence is still making a profound impression upon multitudes of thinking people.

—Allan Fairbairn.

The Minister Remarks—

—Principles and convictions are awkward things to have if you want to live a quiet life and be popular.

—In my time I have had to work with people who seemed to have been born in the "objective case."

—Give me men to work with who refuse to work in blinkers with a conscripted intelligence and a standardized mind.

—That man will count for most in the church who is willing to take risks and is never panicky in face of danger.

—Tie me up to the man who will go to a tiresome task with undaunted courage and unfaltering patience.

—O, for Christian workers, not gullable, who will refuse to be brow-beaten by any majority, however powerful. —A. F.

Go And Do Thou Likewise

IT IS very astonishing to know how many people can admire a good deed without feeling any disposition to try and imitate it. There is always some reason why they could not possibly do it. It would be so much harder for them "It did not cost the person who did it any effort,—don't you know?" For shame! Good deeds do not come easy for any one. If you don't say to yourself, when you see a good deed, "I will do that myself when I get a chance," there is something wrong with your machinery and you had better have it repaired.

Moved With God

WE CALL the "feelings" of our souls "emotions," because they move us. They are steam in the boilers of these human engines. They furnish driving power. Nothing is more certain that that emotions will move us—to something, to either good or bad. Beware, then of jealousy. Do not flatter yourself that it will lies dormant in your heart. It is a fierce and terrible energy. It is like a keg of powder waiting for a spark. It will drive you to some dark and desperate deed, as it did those Jews spoke of in Acts 17:5. Jealousy is a fire; extinguish it. It is a snake; scotch it.

Try Some Thinking

ON entering a certain office I saw a wall motto which consisted of just one word—"Think." As I took it in it began to take effect! I found myself wondering how much honest, hard working, eight hours a day thinking there is in this supposedly smart age of ours. Much less, I fear, than we self-conceited human beings are accustomed to believe. Much of the material which passes among thoughtless people as thinking is nothing more than automatic reaction among the brain cells, involving little more conscious effort than digesting an ordinary meal.

Most men know what it means to tackle a new job. Many of us undergo a thousand mental agonies until we have found the job reduced to a routine. What are these agonies but the creakings and complainings among brain cells which haven't been exercised for months, perhaps for years.

A man's mind should be in just as good training as his muscles. He should make it capable of taking up new burdens and meeting emergencies, just as he tries to make his body capable of additional muscular effort when that effort is called for. His brain should be a well oiled, smooth running machine. It ought to feel fatigue as little as the legs and arms of the average schoolboy.

Most people who enter that office have to pay for what they get, but here is a bit of the most valuable advice which may be had without the expenditure of a single cent.

The man who has learned how to make the full use of his mind has as much advantage over people who only use part of their minds as a trained fighter has over one who has skimped his physical training. —A. F.

A Pen Picture

THE house is very quiet, not a creature is stirring, everyone is at rest. How peaceful it all is—how still! But, hark—I hear footsteps—see those men approaching! Do they expect to find some treasure in this house while people are sleeping? . . . . Now they have come out of the house as quietly and stealthily as they entered it, and they seem to have got their booty and are hastening away with it.

Watch them closely as they hurry along, the hours pass by as they journey on carefully guarding their parcel; night comes, but they give themselves little rest, and pursue their course with the North Star behind them. I do not think that I see the men following the highways or lodging in public places. People who carry valuables, especially stolen goods, generally shun observation.

It is a long journey—some seventy miles. Now they ford mountain torrents, now traverse a valley, now cross a river, now pass through hilly country. At last they reach their destination, and confidently produce their offering. Who—who—are the persons hastily summoned to meet them?

I see the same figures again, but in a higher position than they ever occupied before, and the treasure which they brought so carefully is not occupying an honored place in the house of the friend to whom it was given, but is hidden out of sight in a receptacle lately closed but re-opened for the moment, and no one shall see it again.

DURING the Peninsular War, two of Sir William Napier's brothers—both captains of different regiments—were seriously wounded in the same encounter. The brothers were placed in a house at Condeixa; but, besides their wounds, they, like all the army, suffered terribly from famine, for the French had destroyed everything before them, and the villagers themselves were absolutely starving. A tallow candle that the brothers found in the house was eaten up with the utmost relish. By some chance a loaf of bread came into the hands of Captain Light, a cavalry officer, at the end of a long day's march. Hungry as he was he would not look at it, but mounted again, and rode twenty miles to Condeixa, over the mountains, and there, fearing a refusal, he flung the loaf into the room where the brothers lay, and rode back to his regiment.

Wasters Of Time.

I think the statement is too absolute when a celebrated preacher and author says that it never pays to meddle—but, I am in hearty agreement with him when he says that too much precious time is wasted because of the unpunctuality of people with whom we have appointments. Needless interruptions are a great nuisance and deprive us of both time and strength. Why should we have to listen to people who have nothing to say, or give them ten minutes to do what could quite easily be done in two? —A. F.

ACCIDENT RATES CLIMB.

There is discouragement for those who have been endeavoring to make the Canadian people safety conscious in the announcement that the insurance underwriters have decided upon a 50 per cent. increase in accident insurance rates for automobiles.

Such a pronounced raising of the scale means, of course, only one thing, that accident hazards have increased so much that insurance companies cannot profitably protect people against automobile accidents at the old rates, and that a charge half as great again will have to be made, even though that may involve in many cases the dropping of policies.

The action of the underwriters should be a challenge to intelligent people to do what they can to prevent accidents, by being careful themselves and by seeking to persuade others to be careful.

As for those who cannot so be described it is unfortunately true, as Principal Taylor of Queen's University said the other day, that "you can't legislate for the fool."

It may be necessary, however, should the toll of death and serious injury continue to increase, to take steps to prevent fools from driving—by permanently cancelling the driving licenses of those whose records show they are not safe people to be allowed the privilege of operating a motor car.

ALL THE FACTS WANTED.

When the Bell Telephone Company commenced its present series of advertisements, The Examiner congratulated the company upon its decision to take the people of Canada into its confidence on matters in which the public was vitally interested, pointing out that the failure of the Bell Telephone bill to be approved in Parliament was due largely to the fact that important information was not available.

It is to be hoped that before the series is concluded light will be thrown upon the Bell's relations with its subsidiary companies, and upon other points that may arouse controversy.

The company must lay all its cards upon the table or it will find a strong current of public opinion still opposed to its request for increased capitalization.

The Bell Company has chosen the right method of reaching the people—but it must use that method wisely and frankly if it hopes to achieve the passing of the legislation it desires.

Too much opposition was stirred up last year to be wiped out now by generalities; the public wants all the facts before it is ready to concede that the company's proposal is justifiable.

WANT LONGER SEASON.

One question brought before the game fish conference this week that was of the greatest importance to this whole section was the argument advanced by delegates from the Kawartha district that the open season for game fish in Kawartha waters should begin on June 15, as formerly.

An inquiry among the summer resort proprietors of this district some time ago revealed the fact that fishing was considered much the most potent attraction for tourists.

That being so it necessarily follows that cutting down the open season automatically cuts down the tourist season proportionately, resulting in much loss of revenue.

George Potts, of Bobcaygeon, claims the shorter season means a loss to that one community of $50,000 a summer.

If such losses helped to protect the game fish they would be accepted without protest, it being realized that with the disappearance of fishing altogether the revenue from tourists would be to a large extent wiped out.

But many Kawartha Lakes representatives declare that the July 1st opening may be all right in some districts, but is unnecessarily late for these waters where, they declare, the bass are through spawning by the middle of June.

It should be possible to verify this claim, and if it is substantiated the extension of the season might well be taken under consideration.

A TERRIBLE TOLL.

A survey recently made in the United States revealed that, during a period of ten years, deaths from accidental causes constituted almost 6 per cent. of the total. A large part of this mortality was, of course, due to the automobile. Automobile accident death rates in the Republic have shown a steady increase from a rate of 8.1 per 100,000 population in 1914 to a rate of 13.7 for each 100,000 population in 1927. Drownings, while of importance, were not nearly so frequent as automobile accidents and occurred largely in May, June, July and August. Actually, the survey showed, three-fourths of all deaths from drowning occur in these four months. The majority of deaths from accidental falls occur during the months of December and January, the period of freezing and greatest darkness. During the World War, the total deaths of United States soldiers were 120,505. But from January 1, 1919, to December 31, 1926, automobiles killed 137,017 people in the Republic. The number of persons injured in the same period was approximately three and a half millions. More than one-fourth of all those killed or injured were children under 15 years of age. Certainly, under the circumstances, the automobile may be classed as the most deadly weapon in the human armament. In the absence of statistics on accidental deaths in Canada during the same period, the probability is that, making allowance for the difference in population and traffic congestion, the ratio in the Dominion was approximately the same. All the money that has been spent for automobile accident prevention has been money well spent. Only by education against carelessness and by strict enforcement of the laws relative to motoring can some inroad be made against this terrible mortality.—Hamilton Spectator.

A free country is one that passes laws to please its conscience and then breaks them to please its appetite.—Brooklyn Times.

A SUCCESSFUL IMMIGRATION EFFORT.

With immigration occupying such a prominent place in public attention and likely to be a most important topic of discussion during the forthcoming session of Parliament, The Examiner is glad to be in a position to publish some interesting information in regard to an immigration scheme that has proved decidedly successful.

A local citizen interested in Western development made some inquiries of one of the original members of the Barr colony and has received in reply the following interesting data:

Lloydminster, Sask.

Dear Sir:

Re your questions as to the Barr colony, I now enclose what I consider a fair and considerate answer to the same. As I was one of the original colonists and left Liverpool on the S. S. Lake Manitoba on April 1, 1903, and have lived here ever since, I may be considered to have a fairly good knowledge of conditions during these years.

There came out from England approximately 2,000 Barr colonists in the years 1903, 05 and 06.

What percentage on proportion made good farmers? A.—75 per cent.

What percentage proved successful in other pursuits? A.—20 per cent.

What percentage fell by the way? A.—5 per cent.

What percentage appeared in courts, civil and criminal? A.—Practically nil.

What percentage were convicted or lost their case? A.—Practically nil.

Records in saving banks and general conditions are excellent.

What support to schools, churches and public institutions? There is an excellent public school, cost $45,000; also high school; also the usual school in every township—all well attended. All religious persuasions are well represented—Anglican, R. C., United, Presbyterian and Baptist. All fraternal societies—Masons, Oddfellows, Elks and Rotarians, and all in good condition and going strong.

Liabilities incurred for charitable support and in jails, prisons and asylums—practically nil.

Yours sincerely, J. G.

Surely here is a record of which to be proud.

This colony of Britishers, coming to Canada a quarter of a century ago, has made good, with only 5 per cent. of failures and with three out of every four of the colonists making a success of farming, while 20 per cent. have prospered in other pursuits.

Practically no crime; excellent records in regard to general conditions, savings, etc., churches of all denominations, fraternal societies, good schools—this is the showing of the Barr colonists.

The record achieved shows that group immigration can be successfully promoted when the immigrants are of the right type.

LEAGUE'S BIRTHDAY.

To-morrow, January 10, is the ninth birthday of the League of Nations, an anniversary which should not be permitted to pass without special reference. This great humanitarian undertaking is essentially one which depends for its success upon the degree of enthusiasm inspired in the people. Statesmen cannot alone bring about the realization of the ideal; they meet together, as representatives of their respective nations, in solemn deliberation, and accomplish much. Wars have been prevented, friendly relationships restored and the prospects for international peace immeasurably advanced through the existence of the league, which has to its credit a wonderful record. Nine years is a brief period, after all, and there is every reason for satisfaction with the progress which has been made. The dangers of discord among the members, of jealousies and suspicions and conflicting ambitions, which it was predicted would soon make an end of the league, have not arisen. There have been differences, of course, divergent aspirations and it has not been possible at times to secure absolute uniformity as to the best way of promoting the interests of the league; but, on the whole, proceedings have been harmonious and extremely helpful. The nations have been drawn closer together and have gained a mutual appreciation of their respective problems; there is a better understanding and a greater degree of co-operation for common ends. Though the United States has not yet seen the wisdom of coming into the family circle, the independent moves made by that country to ensure the triumph of virtually the same principles as those espoused by the league are very welcome, and are an indication that popular opinion in the great Republic is heartily in favor of the effort, if reluctant to accept the organization in its present form.

What the whole world approves must eventually win out, and there never was a time when the yearning for peace was more universal than it is to-day. Governments, it is true, in their pathetic impotency, vie with each other in naval and military preparations and billions of dollars are wasted which might be put to more beneficent purposes; it is for citizens to make their voices heard in protest against this extravagant and dangerous policy and to insist that the pacific ideals of the league shall prevail. With a united public opinion at the back of them, the statesmen would be able to act to much greater advantage. That is why it is to-day so desirable that anniversaries such as that to be celebrated to-morrow should receive popular recognition.—Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The theory advanced by some people that Peterborough does not need a transportation system is refuted by the fact that the Peterborough bus line carried a million and one-quarter people last year.

It is announced that 6,000 Britishers trained in farm work in the Old Country are coming to Canada this year. There will be no difficulty in finding places for new citizens of this type.

It is to be hoped that tooth-brush swallowed by a London man was not the family one.

Imports from the United States were 60 per cent. heavier than exports during the first eleven months of 1928, and, as the Globe points out, tourist traffic will have to increase considerably to make up the difference.

The Attorney-General says that the next jail governor who lets a prisoner escape will be prosecuted. Interesting, if true.

Air mail facilities are rapidly being expanded in Canada. Witness the new service between Montreal and the East to be inaugurated at the end of the month.

A man may be discreet in love, but he loses half the fun.—London Calling.

News of Our Own Village

J. Williams, well known in the used car line, who has been the guest of Col. Dalt Johnston for a coupla weeks, left last week to visit friends near Aylmer, west of here. While in the village Mister Williams did business with Fred Hall, our worthy sheriff, and Walt Jackson, the hockey bell-ringer, both of whom sez they would like to see him again.

• • •

Many of the village houses is decorated with measles cards, the red letters giving a cheery aspect to the winter landsacpe.

• • •

Fred Hall, our worthy sheriff, sez the worst thing about his automobile being stole was the story that the darned thing wouldn't run up a hill.

• • •

Barney Quinn, one of the big butter and egg men of this section, was in from Havelock, east of here, to watch the Marmora and Lakefield lads play hockey Wed. nite. Barney woulda looked more at home out there on the ice than he did among the cash customers, say we.

• • •

Vin McElderry has been elected president of the village lawyers' union. It aint been decided yet whether the boys is going to hold out for a 4-day week this year or not.

• • •

We try to keep the breath of scandal out of these here columns, but your scribe has to state that Frank Dawson, Geo. Paxman and other well known citizens was out with chickens 3 nites in a row this week.

• • •

Among them what was taken by surprise by the blizzard at this point Mon. was the snowplow men. Perhaps they went to bed early that nite and didn't know it was snowing.

• • •

The village Utilities Commission got a chunk of jack back from the Hydro recently but so far aint announced no cut in the light bills.

• • •

Geo. Gordon give Canada quite a boost when he spoke at the Rotary Club Mon. The boys et at Graham's Hotel as usual.

• • •

An actor named Williams from London, east of here, played at the Opry House Wed. Some of the company musta missed the train for this fellow took 2 parts. He was all right, too.

• • •

Owing to the scarcity before New Year's it was thought they wouldn't be enough birds left to hold a Poultry Show this year. But the gang gathered together a bunch of them and put on the show anyway. That's the spirit boys, say we.

• • •

Fred Dela Fosse, our learned librarian, sez the villagers has been doing considerable reading this past year, so it won't be necessary to put in Snappy Stories and the Eye Opener to perk up the library circulation.

• • •

Col. Dalt Johnston asked about "The Prisoner's Song" sez the favorite up on the hill seems to be Tosti's "Good-Bye."

• • •

"The village buses carried over a million folks here last year and sometimes," growled the Hall of Wisdom philosopher, "it looked as if they was all in the 1 bus at the 1 time."

A Thought

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTES FOR LOYALTY

Men—not machines—make progress and profits—loyalty is given, not ordered. As a chain is only as strong as its weakest link, so, too, the organization is only as efficient as loyal wholehearted co-operation makes it.

And to such loyalty there are three divisions—loyalty to ourselves that keep mind and body "on the job"—loyalty to our job that gives it the best that is in us—loyalty to the patrons of the products of our factories, that gives evidence of "THE WILL TO PLEASE" in every service.

In such loyalty lies the power that drives on to progress and prosperity for the organization—and the individual.

EVENTS IN HISTORY

January 12, 1819—Upper Canada Association of Baptists founded.

Jan. 13, 1849—Vancouver Island is ceded by the Hudson Bay Company and proclaimed a British Colony.

THOUGHT HE WAS HOME

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Reuben Lounes, 62, who comes from South Carolina, "where we go huntin' anytime and anywhere we want to," wanted to do some hunting. He oiled up his trusty rifle and went out to Central Park to bag some bears. A stray shot ht Greanino Garcia. An unobliging cop hauled Lounes to the jug where, to the southern gentleman's disgust, he was told there was no hunting allowed in Central Park.

THE LUCKIEST LADY

XXI—DOLLY'S DEMAND.

It was Dolly! A very smart Dolly, with more than a touch of carmine on her lips, and a new hardness in her eyes which the Little Flapper was quick to notice.

"And you must only stay half an hour," Marna warned her as she left the two girls together.

Dolly waited till the door was shut, then she walked over to the dressing-table and produced a powder-puff with which she carefully dabbed her face.

"So you nearly snuffed it!" she said inelegantly.

"Yes." The Little Flapper watched her with quiet eyes. "I should have died if it hadn't been for Marna," she said.

"'When pain and anguish wring the brow, a ministering angel, thou!'" the Big Flapper said flippantly. "Well, if there's one thing I detest it is nursing. I hope when I die I shall be knocked down by a good London omnibus and finished straight off. No picturesque lying in bed and drinking filthy medicine for me!" She turned round and came nearer to the bed.

"You look worth just about two-three!" she declared.

"I look better than I did a week ago," Biddy said defensively. She felt almost inclined to cry. "And you'd look as rotten as I do if you'd been as ill as I have!"

"I know. I'm not blaming you, and with all the Pagets' money you'll soon be yourself again. Lucky dog! Wish I were you. I've never got a bean to bless myself with. The guv'nor's as mean as the devil—he's got one-way pockets."

The Little Flapper laughed softly.

"You always want such a lot of money," she protested.

"You can't do a thing without it nowadays," Dolly protested. "I've joined the Elfin Club. Everyone who is anyone belongs to the Elfin now."

"I've never heard of it."

"No, it's quite new. Renny Martin started it, and he must be making pots out of it."

"Oh! What do they do there?"

"Dance, and play cards—and drink," Dolly said airily. "I've learned to play poker. It's a thrilling game, only I'm never very lucky at it. Have you ever played?"

"No, but Uncle George does."

"Well, he's rich enough to be able to win. It's the kind of game where the man with the most money always wins."

"What a funny sort of game!"

"It's a ripping game. Shall I pour out the tea?"

"Yes, please."

Dolly scanned the tea-tray.

"No cocktails or brandy, I suppose," she submitted with a grimace.

The Little Flapper opened her eyes wide.

"Good heavens! Of course not!"

"Why 'Of course not'? Everyone does it now. Tea's rotten without cocktails."

"Rotten with it, I should think," Biddy said disgustedly. She raised herself on an elbow. "What's the matter with you, Dolly?" she asked interestedly. "You seem quite different, somehow."

Dolly's eyes wavered, but she laughed. "Different? Rubbish! It's your imagination. I'm having the time of my life! Renny's been taking me all over the place."

"That man!" Biddy said eloquently.

"Well, and what's the matter with him?" the Big Flapper demanded. "He's a sport, and he knows everyone in town. Can I smoke"

"I don't know if Marna would mind."

"Well, we can find out afterwards. Marna doesn't mind anything very much, does she?"

"What do you mean?"

Dolly Benson lit a cigarette and sat down on the arm of a chair, showing an unnecessary expanse of silk stocking and smartly gartered leg.

"Well, she goes the pace herself in a quiet way, doesn't she?"

"Marna does?"

"Yes, your beloved Marna. Pooh! Don't look so angry, and don't tell me you don't know. I don't blame her, as I told you before, but she and Hugh Hubbard—well——" She finished with an eloquent shrug of her shoulders.

"What about them?" the Little Flapper asked very quietly.

Dolly laughed.

"Nothing! Only that they're no better than the rest of us. Renny's seen them together lots of times when they weren't supposed to be! Not that I blame them."

"I don't believe a word of it!" The Little Flapper had flushed angrily, and her voice trembled. "It's wicked of you to tell such lies—just because you're jealous——"

"Jealous!" Dolly's voice rose shrilly. "Who am I jealous of, I should like to know? You'd better be careful what you're saying, you——" She calmed down suddenly, laughed, and, taking out her lipstick, turned again to the glass.

"I'm not going to quarrel," she said calmly. "Have some more tea? I shall have to go soon, or I suppose Marna will come in and turn me out."

She took Biddy's empty cup and refilled it.

There was a little silence. Biddy was trembling with anger. She had never really disliked Dolly Benson until now; she was amazed to find how much people could change in a short time. It was only a few weeks since she and the Big Flapper had met, and yet in that time it seemed to her that Dolly had changed almost beyond recognition, or else that her own tastes and affections had altered in the most astounding manner. She cast about in her agitated mind for something to say, but before she could speak the elder girl said abruptly:

"Have you got any money, Biddy?"

"Any money? I don't know. I had a little before I was ill, but I haven't wanted any since, of course."

"Well, I suppose you could get some?"

"What do you mean?"

Dolly cast a swift glance towards the door, which was safely closed.

"I'm hard up," she said, lowering her voice. "Only just for the time being, of course. I get my allowance from the guv'nor at the end of the month, but I'm broke till then. I thought perhaps you'd lend me some. I've always paid you back before."

"I know—but——" Somehow Biddy sensed that this was different to those other times.

Often she had lent Dolly ten shillings or even a pound, but she knew instinctively that this time such a small sum would not meet the case.

"I'll pay you back, you know that," Dolly said quickly, seeing the hesitation in Biddy's face. "It's only a loan, and I must have it, or I shall get into an awful mess. I lost at cards, but the luck will turn, and then——"

"How much do you want?"

The Big Flapper hesitated, then she said recklessly:

"I should like forty pounds, but half that will do——"

"Forty pounds!" The Little Flapper gasped. "I've never had so much money in my life! I couldn't possibly get it; besides, you can't have lost all that!"

"I've lost a darned sight more," Dolly said bitterly. "My luck's been dead out, I told you. But I can do with twenty—and you can easily get twenty."

"I can't. How can I? I've never asked Marna for more than a pound at a time—never! She'd wonder why. It would worry her most frightfully. Besides, she wouldn't give it to me."

"She would—you know she would. You can make some excuse; she'd give you anything."

Biddy shook her head.

"It would be pretending a lie, and I couldn't do it."

(To be continued.)

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

THE LITTLE PEOPLE

The little people, just so high,
Who tumble now and then, and cry,
And rise right after
With new laughter,
Who run and romp, and think each day
And street and field were made for play,
Who toil not, neither
Spin they either;
What have these little ones to do
With this great world of me and you?

On father's shoulders, mother's breast,
The burdens of the whole world rest.
'Twas we who builded
This city gilded.
We shaped this valley with this plow
And made this world this great world now,
This world of riches,
Walls and ditches—
While through it all they romp and run
Like kittens playing in the sun.

The little people, what had they
To do with all this workday?
These streets, these alleys,
And these valleys?
These long, long lines of twinkling light
Embroidered on the world at night?
Don't ask me, brother—
Ask a mother,
Or ask a toiling father why?
'Twas all for someone just so high.

CANADIAN LEGION B.E.S.L.

Peterborough Branch

Little Lessons in Legion Objects.

10. To foster loyalty among the public and education in the principles of patriotism duty and unstinted public service.

• • •

A message from the 2nd vice-president:

Members of the Canadian Legion and ex-service men of the district:

I feel it is a great honor to me to hold office in the Legion and I only hope I will be able to fill the office in the way I feel it should be filled. When we stop and think what does the Legion stand for. One of the big principles is loyalty to our king and Comrades. I often think of the days in France and the firing line and the comradeship that was among us all. No matter how hard a man was pressed he would always lend a hand to the other fellow, and I am sure that some loyalty lives in the hearts of the men of to-day. Then there is loyalty to our country. There is not a man that served that was not proud of the name of Canada, the country that he came from, and I know that a name has been made that will never be forgotten. But do not let us sit back and say "the war is over and let us forget it." No, there is still work and a great work to be done. The Legion in England has made a great success and I am sure the same thing will prevail here. The question is asked: "How can the ranks be filled?" Canadians have never started anything they could not finish. It is up to every fellow in Peterborough and district to get in, get hold of the rope, and pull the Legion up on top the same as the guns were pulled out of the dump. There are a lot of boys who need your help and we, the officers of the Legion, need your co-operation, so come along, comrades, let us get behind our worthy president and make Branch No. 52 the best and most active branch in Canada. Yours for a bigger and better Legion,

E. A. EVERITT,
2nd Vice-President.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

SUNDAY, JANUARY 13, 1929.

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Friendly stars rule today, which is governed by benefic aspects, according to astrology. It is an unusually auspicious time for rest and recreation.

There is an extraordinarily good rule for correspondence, and love letters should be especially welcome, if penned today.

Newspapers and periodicals should benefit from this planetary government which presages intense interest in public questions and much informative reading.

The clergy should benefit under this direction of the stars which, however, indicates increasing concern regarding spiritual things, but disinclination to attend church.

Controversies over tenets of faith will mark certain denominations, it is forecast, and there may be a scandal due to prejudice and intolerance.

Good from the ground is foreshadowed by the stars which seem to promise big crops this year when whatever pertains to agriculture should benefit.

Under this sway the mind should function along positive and constructive lines. It is a first rate rule for preparation for the week's activities.

Labor should benefit in the coming weeks when extraordinary and unusual demands will speed up certain lines of manufacture.

The planetary government is especially promising to chemists who pursue the fields of research and who are to make important contributions to human welfare in the next few months.

As if to warn mankind that knowledge has attained only its first steps, epidemics will present new problems to the medical profession, the seers prophesy.

Fame for a physician who will discover a means of eradicating colds from the list of most prevalent ills is prognosticated.

This is a day supposed to be especially favorable to physical exercise, and walking is recommended.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of progress and great good luck in the coming year. Journeys connected with business or professional work are presaged.

Children born on this day are supposed to be most fortunate, for they should be endowed with brains that direct hands of rare potentialities. These subjects of Capricorn often combine with artistic possibilities real mechanical talent. Many oculists as well as opticians belong to this sign which also counts many remarkable musicians among its subjects.

MONDAY, JANUARY 14, 1929

Happy hours for many dwellers on Earth are presaged by the stars today, according to astrology which finds that benefic aspects predominate.

It is a time for professional and business men and women to push all their interests, secure in the knowledge that the year will be remarkably prosperous.

The planetary government favors many new enterprises in which the widest field of co-operation is to be gained.

Women should benefit greatly, for the seers declare that they have passed the time when old prejudices handicap them in any line of work they may choose.

The influence of the stars should be stabilizing and steadying, for the year will be marked by intellectual rather than emotional guidance in human affairs.

As the post-war tide of selfish individualism recedes the standards of behavior are to improve greatly, and the coming year will show a change that largely eliminates dissipation, it is foretold.

Young leaders inspired with idealism are to appear, and they will gain large followings, astrologers foretell.

Under this direction of the stars clothing gains added interest, and merchants will profit, for both men and women will be concerned in late modes which reflect the general reactionary trend toward conservative standards.

Again color will wield a wide influence, and its symbolism will be understood through the study of astrology, it is predicted.

Colleges now will benefit, for education is to advance rapidly although old ideas are to be strongly blended with modern policies.

This is a favorable sway for the theatres into which will be infused poetic and romantic tendencies that will restore it to its highest standards of achievement, astrologers prognosticate.

Love and long devotion are predicted for those who marry on this date, which seems to promise prosperity as well as loyalty.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a memorable year in which they may make or mar the future. Romance and pleasure are forecast. Hidden forces or enmities are to be feared.

Children born on this day probably will be too emotional and imaginative to be easily guided. These subjects of Capricorn are lovers of nature and likely to be poetic or sentimental. They may be too easily led along lines of adventure.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE LISTEN TO OFF-COLOR STORIES

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

If the law of supply and demand meant anything, there must be an enormous demand for off color stories and for jokes with a double meaning, one of which is decidedly raw. Certainly the supply is overwhelming.

Not only plays, humorous magazines, and so-called art supplements, but also most of the modern fiction thrives on the raw stuff of human life with a decided sex appeal. Actual sales prove that these things are more profitable financially than the high brow stuff.

Respectibility is not diversion. It is the common lots of all self-respecting people. We are fed up on it. Those who are paid to amuse us know that they must get as far away from respectability as possible without actually destroying it.

The curious part of it is that the people who patronize venders of these questionable wares are often the most highly cultured and refined, not infrequently respectable women of middle life who are too prim and proper to do a single thing out of the way. But they get a big kick from "slumming" where life is raw. A little reflection will show that this is not so strange after all. Everyone has to have some excitement to make sure that he is really alive. Some get thrills by over-reaching in action; others in merely talking about it; still others in denouncing it.

Frequently there is real wit and humor in some of these risque jokes and stage productions. The very element of naughtiness adds to the thrill.

The long and short of the matter is that suppressed native impulses are exercised through off-color stories, risque jokes, daring plays and novels. The greater the suppression the more alluring the appeal. One need not be a follower of Freud to realize the importance of suppressed desires. Life for most of us has come to be a pretty tame sort of existence. There is strain and strife enough, but hardly a sufficient amount of the rough and tumble sort which calls forth the animal in us.

One significant outlet for pent up animalism is through the risque in fiction, drama and art. Perhaps some day we shall discover a more high brow method of sublimating our suppressed instincts and desires. Until then however the raw stuff of life will continue to be popular with young and old, and more especially with the ultra-respectable.

Why do you do what you do. Ask Dr. Thomson, write him care of this paper, send stamped envelope for reply.

Coroner's Jury Returns Verdict of Accidental Death in Kirkland Lake Case.

DOGS EXAMINED.

COBALT, Ont., Jan. 12. — (Canadian Press.)—A verdict of accidental death toward which shock and cold were declared to be contributory factors, was returned Thursday at Kirkland Lake by the coroner's jury which enquired into the circumstances surrounding the fate of six year old Germaine La Fontaine who was fatally injured when worried by two dogs the Senate Thursday.

Little light was thrown on the tragedy by the evidence given at the inquest. Bourgie, owner of the dogs, testified that the animals had been considered harmless and that the child had played with them on previous occasions. Dr. J. Dunn, the veterinary who examined the animals after they had been killed, said he had found a considerable quantity of hair in the stomach of one dog and a lesser quantity in the other.

Bourgie told of finding the child on the trail a short distance from her home and of the steps he had taken to secure assistance, but no evidence was available regarding the girl's struggles with the dogs, there having been no eye-witnesses of the tragedy. Dr. R. H. Armstrong gave the medical testimony.

FINE HUNTING DOG.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—French truffle hunting is a queer sight. Three men and a pig generally make up a hunting party. The pig is so trained that at a given signal he commence to dig at the foot of a hazel or oak tree. When the prize is uprooted, the hunters whack the pig over the nose, secure the truffle and give the pig some grains of corn as compensation.

News From the Mines

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

FALCONBRIDGE NICKEL

The attention being directed towards the shares of Falconbridge Nickel recently is undoubtedly due to the knowledge of a continuance of the orebody to the 1,000 foot horizon, where it is found to be of considerably better grade than at the 500.

SISCOE

Drilling results at the Siscoe continue to have considerable influence on market traders. Most of the work done to date has been an on island where a considerable tonnage of high grade ore has been opened up, and recent drilling appears to have proved continuation of the orebodies under the lake to the mainland. Further drilling is now in progress to ascertain the importance of the new find.

BIG MISSOURI

Big Missouri yesterday received tremendouse support following receipt of advice from Tacoma of the mighly optimistic tone evinced at the annual meeting on Tuesday. It is well known that very strong interest in close touch with Smelters at Trail, B.C., have been accumulating this stock for some time. This fact, in conjunction with active short covering, leads us to believe that still higher prices will rule in this issue in the immediate future.

While recent rumors of highly favorable results at the mine have not received official sanction, they have not been refuted, as has been the usual custom of Big Missouri officials.

According to a statement made by J. T. Gregory, president of the Big Missouri, 3,000 feet of tunneling has been done to date and new ore continues to be opened up. As Consolidated Smelters have control, the property is being developed under their direction, and progress towards the objective they had in view is steady and satisfactory.

MURPHY

Splendid progress is being made in the long crosscut from the 600 foot horizon of the No. 1 shaft to the south ore zone. Important significance is attached to this crosscut, in that it will give access to lower horizons of the south vein, on which important results were obtained last year. Surface work on this south vein showed a width of commercial ore and underground work at the 125 gave similar results at that horizon. Diamond drilling east of the shaft at two points indicated the continuation of commercial ore without decrease in the zone width.

INTERNATIONAL PETROLEUM

It is estimated that International Petroleum will have produced more than 29,000,000 barrels of oil during 1928. Production for Colombia is limited only to pipeline capacity. The pipeline built to bring 50,000 barrels daily from the interior, is being forced to 55,000 barrels. There is some talk of building a second pipeline, but we are unable to say whether or not plans for this are yet in progress.

Although International Petroleum does not publish its balance sheet, it is understood the company is in an excellent position, with ample supplies of cash to finance greatly increased activity in drilling the Colombia field.

Although production from Peru for the first ten months of 1928 increased only 6 per cent compared with the ten months of the previous year, shipments were up nearly 19 per cent, which indicates considerable improvement in the marketing situation.

VALUES HIGHER TORONTO CURB

International Nickel Leads the Trading in Active Session.

CANADIAN CAR STRONG.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 12.—(Canadian Press.)— A tendency towards slightly higher prices dominated the market on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. International Nickel was the undisputed leader in trading, and closed unchanged at 53½. National Steel Car was a strong feature, soaring 11 points to 131, while Canadian Car at 130 was 3½ points higher. Canada Bronze at 83½ and Gypsum and Alabastine at 90 were up 5 3-8 and five points respectively.

Canada Dredging continued to move into higher ground, climbing an additional two points to 72, and De Forest Radio was up 3 1-2 points to 50½. Shredded Wheat partially recovered its loss of yesterday, moving up 2 points to 97.

Brazilian, both ordinary and rights were inflicted with profit-taking but held up well and closed unchanged at 77 and 5.00 respectively. Canadian Canners, in usual trading, advanced 2¾, while McKinnon common gained two points to 73.

VIPOND SOARS ON STANDARD

High-Priced Issues Lead Trading—Wright-Hargreaves and Noranda Weak.

ACTIVE SESSION.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Unusual stength in Vipond Consolidated was the outstanding feature of the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange to-day. With trading mounting close to the 100,000 mark the price soared to 125, but later reacted to 110 for a net gain of 11½ points. Tital sales which were only 840,210 were mostly confined to the higher-priced issues.

Wright-Hargreaves and Noranda were the weak spots of the session. The former went down 16 points to a low of 169 but later staged a partial recovery to 180 for a net loss of 5 points, while Noranda after ranging around 64.00 closed at 63.50, unchanged.

Sherritt-Gordon hovered around 7.00, 10c. higher and Mining Corporation in active trading registered an advance of 25c. to 4.65.

Industrial Stocks Lead London Market

LONDON, Jan. 12 (Canadian Press Cable).—Industrial stocks have made business on the London Stock Exchange fairly lively for the larger part of the week and in other directions, too, there has been a distinctly animated feeling. Buying orders from New York rolled in and there was in the early part of the week a really hectic atmosphere around Mond Nickel, Imperial Chemical, Rhodesian issues and certain talking machine stocks.

The oil market also came into some prominence again and rubber shares advanced after a sudden spurt in the price of the raw material. British gilt-edged issues displayed a marked firmness.

The lists for the $35,000,000 New Zealand loan of 4½ per cent closed ahead of time, and it is understood the underwriters have been relieved of responsibility. The flotation was made on January 8 and the result must be considered distinctly successful, particularly as the loan followed immediately on a loan for the Government of India amounting to $50,000,000 of which something like 25 per cent was taken by the underwriters. The Dominion of New Zealand has always been popular in the London money market. Doubtless the success of the issue will encourage other borrowers, and in fact several similar emissions are believed on the way.

The County of London is expected to float a $50,000,000 loan. Wakefield in Yorkshire appeared to-day with a loan of $3,750,000 in 4½ per cent bonds at 96 and other British municipalities are preparing issues.

Wheat Values Advance, Corn Reaches New High

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 12 (Canadian Press).—Corn and oats jumped to-day to a new all-around high price record for the season. Wheat also scored sharp upturns. Prospects of farm relief legislation acted as a stimulating factor, and so, too, did increasing seriousness of drought reports from Argentina. Opening unchanged to half a cent higher, corn soon showed decided general gains, with oats following. Wheat started unchanged to 3-8c up, and continued to advance fast. Provisions were firmer.

as it grew from a very small village, of a few houses and a store.

To her it seemed but a short time since she with her parents could sit on the verandah of her home located on what is now Weller Street, and listen to the howl of the wolverine; she well remembered the cumbersome carts, and how folks thought nothing of walking through the bush, twenty-five or more miles to assist in the home of a sick friend. It was a great day in the history of the village when the first coach came to the village, and the steamer "Shoepack" was a never ending source of curiosity. Mrs. Dunn had gone through the days when the large open fireplace was something more than a means of warmth when tallow candles and the clumsy oil lamps were the common means of lighting one's home, the people hanging lanterns outside their doors to guide the traveller on his way or lead him to a night's shelter.

To her, the beautiful churches of today recalled the time when Catholic services were held in a little frame building where now stands the Oriental building, and the George Street of to-day presented a marked contrast to the road, without sidewalks, along which a few stores gradually sprung up. The first confectionary store, owned by Mr. Marshall did a small business on the site where is now located the Stenson shoe store.

The late Mrs. Dunn always took a genuine interest in the progress of her native community and it occasioned little surprise when on the occasion of the Centennial celebration in July, 1927, she recalled many old faces and looked upon the celebration with genuine pride.

The funeral will proceed from her late home at 9 a.m. Monday to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to St. Peter's cemetery for interment.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 12 (Canadian Press).—A report from Amherstburg states that an officer of the Provincial Police has been investigating charges of favoritism in connection with the export of liquor from the three docks there supervised by the Provincial Police. The officer will report to the Attorney-General.

ADMIRAL EVANS GIVEN COMMAND

Will Take Charge of Australian Squadron On March 18.

FINE NAVAL CAREER.

LONDON, Jan. 12. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—Rear Admiral Edward Radcliffe Evans has been appointed to command His Majesty's Australian squadron, effective March 18 next. The squadron includes the two new 10,000 cruisers, the Australian and Camberra, the light cruisers Adelaide and Brisbane, the seaplane carrier Albatross, now under construction, and the flotilla leader Anzac, besides two submarines now being completed, and 11 small destroyers.

Rear Admiral Evans, who attained that rank only last year, is famous for the exploit in 1917 when his ship, H.M.S. Broke, with H.M.S. Swift, both small destroyers, intercepted in the channel a German raiding patrol of six destroyers and left only survivors for a British reserve division to pick up. He was known before as second in command of the expedition of Captain Scott to the Antarctic in 1909, returning as commander after the death of Scott. He was mentioned in despatches for his part in bombarding the German right wing from off the Belgian coast in 1914. He holds a great many honors from British and foreign governments for his Antarctic exploration work, war services and saving of 228 Chinese with H.M.S. Carlisle when the Hong Mok sank in 1921. A native of New Zealand, he is 48 years of age.

CALEDONIAN CLUB HAS BASKET SOCIAL

Miss Margaret Wyllie Wins First Prize For Best Decorated Basket.

The weekly meeting of the Caledonian Club, held last night in the W.O.W. Hall, took the form of a basket social, held under the auspices of the Sports Committee. Owing to the prevalence of illness amongst the members, the attendance was not a large one. Nevertheless, an enjoyable evening was spent. The baskets brought by the ladies were nicely decorated, and the prize for the best one going to Miss Margaret Wyllie. Mr. Robert Veitch, president, occupied the chair, and a well arranged program was submitted. Songs were sung by Mrs. Lister, Miss Shearer and Miss Ralston, and by Messrs. W. May, W. Petrie, and R. Gilmour.

Robert Gilmour acted as auctioneer for the baskets, and by his ready wit, found instant buyers, and good prices. Tea was served by the ladies' committee, and the contents of the baskets much enjoyed. A pleasant evening was brought to a close by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" about 11 o'clock.

Next Friday a card party will be held, commencing sharp at 8 o'clock, and it is hoped that more members will be able to attend.

It has also been arranged that the annual Burns supper will be held in the Empress Hotel on Friday, January 25. A splendid program is being arranged for this, and a "rale nicht" is promised for those who attend, so those who wish to procure tickets should do so as early as possible, from any of the members of the Executive.

REV. C. V. McLEAN ADDRESSES CLUB

Friday Night Boys Hear Interesting Address On Age of Specialization.

"This is the age of machinery and tools, of specialization and of production," said Rev. C. V. McLean of St. Andrew's Church, while addressing the Friday Night Supper Club of the Y.M.C.A. last night at their regular weekly meeting. Over fifty of the members turned out to hear Mr McLean, who gave a very interesting address of great value.

"Nowadays," said Mr. McLean, "we do hardly anything without the use of tools and machinery. That is because they are more efficient than the body. Recently a prominent oriental gentleman, Hushih, came to America to compare the conditions of Asia with the conditions in America. He found that in America the average man was able to control between one and thirty-five machines, while in China they still do most of their work with their hands. China, however, is developing. Not long ago, in the city of Harbin, China, there was a law forbidding the people to travel only on foot or in jinrikishas, but lately that has been changed so that in one section they can travel only in cars.

"Opportunity is in one way the skilful use of tools. But we must know where to stop.

"Travelling fast is necessary but speeding is the wrong use. The revolver was at first regarded necessary for some individuals. But unless you can use it with the right confidence its use is harmful.

"Specialization represents the efficiency of the race. One great question is, to what extent shall I specialize and on how many things. Some men specialize in one thing but we should try for variety. There is, however, a limit in what we can specialize in and we should try and find that limit. We should try to introduce variety more. Life is lacking in variety for those who do too much specialization. It is a common fact that once about every seven years there is a financial depression. When this time comes there is no work for the person who has specialized in the one thing. Boys in collegiate specialize in one line. They should try to get as much as they can.

"While in New York once I noticed a large crowd in front of one store. The cause was just a ball and bat in a window. But a sign showed that it was a ball and bat that Babe Ruth had knocked a home run with, and thus all the interest. This shows the trend of the people. The ball alone did not seem to represent anything, but on further insight it was found that it took about fifty men, each specializing in a certain line, to make it.

"The interest in the bat and ball was a challenge to the young people of the day to buy goods in the store.

"We should be unselfish in what we do. When we try to break a record we should only want to contribute something for others to try and beat. We are all the same, so let us do our best in the work we do. See that we make the best use of our lives and use it well, that is, unselfishly," said Mr. McLean in closing.

The airplane contest is making great headway. Hec McLeod's team is still leading. The standing of the teams and the name of the planes they are using is:

C. Hall, Fokker, 34 points.
B. Sangster, De Haveland, 34 points.
K. Copping, Curtis, 34 points.

TRINITY CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

Rev. Clarke F. Logan Will Conduct Special Services in United Church.

COMING FROM OTTAWA.

On Sunday next, January 13, Trinity Church wil hold its anniversary. These services have become a unique event in the life of the church and this year promises to be no exception. The Rev. Clarke F. Logan, M.A., B.D., of McLeod Street United Church, Ottawa, is to be the special preacher for the occasion. While Mr. Logan has never preached in a pulpit in this city he has been in great demand as an anniversary preacher. Trinity Church has a long history. In the early days it was associated with George street. In 1872 under the superintendency of Rev. Chas. Fish, the Peterborough Circuit consisted of Peterborough and the townships of Smith, Otonabee, Monaghan, Cavan, Ops, Emily and Dummer. In 1873 the circuit was divided and Charlotte street then became a separate pastoral charge. In the old days when George street was the head of the circuit such men as Rev's. Fish, Rose, Willoughby, Starr, Shaw and Manning gave valuable and efficient leadership. Their names are still precious among the older members of the city. After Charlotte street became a preaching station by itself, the names of Rev's. Wallace, Tovell, Shorey, Edwards, Rae, Crossley, Jolliffe, Manning, Henderson and Mansell were associated with its history. It was during the pastorate of the late Rev. T. J. Mansell that plans were undertaken for the building of the present spacious Trinity Church. His death was greatly mourned but the plans matured under his leadership were carried forward under the pastorate of Rev. Dr. J. P. Wilson, under whose ministry the present church was erected. The Rev's. F. E. Malott and H. J. Langford, both gave faithful service to the church, and their works follow them. The present incumbent is the Rev. David Wren, M.D., B.D., who came from Midland a few years ago. The church is today in a very prosperous condition being well officered and every organization in a healthy and flourishing condition. Over 300 families are identified with the church and the membership is over 850. The task of the church to-day is not an easy one, many forces militate against it that did not exist fifty years ago.

Trinity Church occupies a strategic position and through its officiary looks to the future with confidence. The congregation looks forwards to its anniversary on Sunday next with high expectancy. The Rev. C. F. Logan comes with a splendid reputation as a pulpit orator. The public are cordially invited to join in these special aniversary services.

W. M. S. AUXILIARY HOLDS MEETING

Satisfactory Year Reports Read At Meeting of St. James' Church Society.

The January meeting of the W. M. S. Auxiliary of St. James United Church was held in the church parlors on Tuesday afternoon, with a large attendance of officers and members.

Mrs. E. L. Woodley, the president, was in the chair. The opening devotional service consisted of a Bible lesson, hymns, and prayer, led by several members.

Reports of last year's work were given by the several secretaries and were proof of the excellent work being done by this society.

Two new officers were elected at this meeting, left over from last month. The pianist chosen was Mrs. Church.

Superintendent of Mission Board was the next office to fill. Miss Connie Wager received the election with Miss May Ritchie assistant.

It speaks well for the X. L. Mission Circle when two of its members were chosen to undertake so difficult a task and so important a work.

Plans for the coming Presbyterial Annual meeting were the chief business of the day, as the convention will be held in St. James United Church, guests of St. James Auxiliary for the two days, January 22nd and 23rd. Committees for entertainment of the Presbyterial were appointed, Mrs. George H. Rowe, 538 Chamberlain St. is convenor of the billeting committee.

The meeting closed with the singing of a hymn and prayer.

meeting were read by the secretary-treasurer, S. T. Harris, who also gave the financial report for the year. A balance from the previous year amounted to $130.83, and receipts during the year brought the total up $494.38. Expenditures of $461.03 left a balance on hand of $33.35.

A. J. Madill, in charge of the junior work, gave a report showing an extremely successful year, in which the pupils of the schools had been interested in planting seeds of flowers and vegetables, and also were encouraged to lend their assistance in beautifying the city. The junior membership totalled 722, and 372 packets of seeds were taken. Exhibits at the Peterborough Exhibition by junior members totalled 102, with 73 exhibitors. Membership fees amounted to $93.15.

Dr. J. E. Middleton, a member of the society, spoke briefly, asking the co-operation of all the members in putting over Old Home Week by planting their premises with beautiful plowers.

"It has been said," he remarked, "that if you go into a town and see a lot of flags flying, you say it is all dressed up just for the occasion, but if you see a lot of plants and flowers in bloom, you think it is in gala attire all the time."

J. B. Nelson's Address

J. B. Nelson, Agricultural Representative for the district, welcomed the members of the Horticultural Society to his office and asked them to come back at any time and make use of its facilities. He spoke of the various publications and pamphlets which are available to them and which have to do with floriculture, also mentioned other equipment which they were welcome to use, in the way of a slide machine, a moving picture machine, and a duplicator.

Mr. Nelson went on to outline the aims and objects of horticultural societies, as formulated at their inception, many years ago, and asked the members to consider whether their society was living up to these aims.

The first was the holding of meetings for the discussion of topics relating to floriculture and also the hearing of addresses along these lines. In this connection, Mr. Nelson recommended the importance of such lectures, particularly if illustrated.

The second object was the holding of exhibits and the awarding of premiums; the third was the distribution of seeds and bulbs and plants; the fourth was the promotion of the circulation of horticultural periodicals, and here Mr. Nelson remarked on the paper on floriculture which is printed in Peterborough, as being the best of itis kind in the province; and the fifth object was the encouragement of improvement in home and public grounds. The sixth aim was the offering of prizes for essays on subjects related to horticulture.

Mr. Nelson spoke of the wonderful opportunity afforded the members in any campaign by the fact that the local press was willing at all times to co-operate in any object for the public good and the generosity with which it contributed space in its columns to any worth-while project.

At the conclusion of Mr. Nelson's brief and itneresting talk, an appreciative vote of thanks was moved by Dr. J. E. Middleton and seconded by A. J. Madill.

Secretary-treasurer S. T. Harris spoke of the facilities afforded the society by that the fact that the Ontario Horticultural Association has a fund with which it defrays all expenses of visiting speakers, with the exception of $5 a day.

Alderman Stocker rose to speak of a matter which he is interested in; the planting of 4,000 bulbs annually in Victoria Park, which are considered as the property of the contractor. He wishes to change this system if possible and have the bulbs used later in the smaller parks of the city, as is done in Toronto, where the thousands of bulbs in Queen's Park are planted later in the minor parks of the city.

J. Seymour suggested that some of the seeds supplied to the children were not of the best quality and also made the suggestion that the Market Hall should be used for the flower shows of the society, a charge for admission made, the flowers auctioned off, and the proceeds used for beautifying some of the unsightly portions of the city.

VARSITY BLANKS ST. MIKE'S 2 TO 0; SCORE IN THIRD

Both Teams Held Scoreless Through First Two Periods.

MUELLER STARS.

Winning Goals Scored Within Sixty Seconds of Each Other.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 12.—(Canadian Press). — High over Varsity Arena last night the winds carried the weird wail of the banshee. To receptive Celtic ears the banshee's creppy croon heralds the death of Irishmen or Irish hopes, and when Varsity defeated St. Michael's College last night by 2 to 0 the latter's prospects of another Senior O.H.A. title to add to their brilliant record before the war were given a rude jolt.

The boys in blue swept over the grimly fighting Irish clan in the third period to score the only goals of the night within 60 second of each other, and if ever a team deserved the laurels of victory it was that speedy set of stickhandlers.

They carried the play to St. Mike's with a nerve and a zip and a dogged persistence that the fans knew would sooner or later force that rugged Irish bulwark to crack and crumple.

Through a speed-crammed first period, a bitterly-fought second session and to past midway in the final dash St. Mike's staged a stubborn stand, fighting off the hornet-like dashes of blue atackers that pierced to the Irish goal-mouth time after time. Then came the "break." Bruce Paul swung down the full length of the ice to sweep into the very gate of the St. Mike citadel and to drive the rubber at the twine. A minute later Marshall tipped in a lost rebound for the blues' second tally.

Norbert "Stuffy" Mueller was a hero in defeat and it was well-nigh miraculous play in the Irish net that held his team in the hunt. Seldom has a goal-tender risen to such heights on local ice in many years and his display gives him ranking with the best keepers of the gate, pro or amateur, in the support.

COL. ACKERMAN ADDRESSES CLUB

Aviation Is Discussed At Meeting of Y's Men's Club.

GREAT FUTURE FOR CANADA.

"We expect to have an aviation club in the city this spring, the Government having already promised Peterborough at least one airplane on the formation of such a club," said Lieut.-Colonel C. H. Ackerman, speaking on the subject "Aviation" to the Y's Men's Club at their weekly supper at the Y.M.C.A.

Colonel Ackerman told of his surprise at meeting C. M. Keys, manager of the Curtiss Airplane Company, and one of the outstanding aviation experts in the United States, while attending a large banquet for those interested in aviation in the State of Illinois, and learning that Mr. Keys is a Canadian, and formerly played hockey against Peterborough, wearing a Lindsay uniform.

The speaker recounted some of his flying experiences, and he especially stressed some of the limitations yet to be conquered by birdmen. Low-hanging fog was said to be one of the greatest perils, making flying during such conditions most dangerous.

While flying from Port Hope to this city at a height of 5,000 feet on a day when the visibility was most extraordinarily clear, Col. Ackerman and his pilot noticed a black pencil-like mark sticking up away to the north-west. Later this was proved to be the highest smoke stack in the country, that of the Noranda Mine at Rouyn, 340 miles distant.

The speaker expressed his opinion of the great future that was opening up for aviation and aviators in Canada because of the rapid strides that wer being made in the improvement of the machines and the absolute necessity in this country to move quickly over vast distances.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 11.— (Canadian Press.)—Percy Henderson, retiring president of the Old Boys' Association of Trinity College School, Port Hope, announced last night that $500,000 had been subscribed to the fund to replace the buildings destroyed by fir. With $200,000 collected in insurance, an additional amount of $200,000 was required for a structure, estimated to cost $700,000, he said.

NEW OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

St. John's Choir Holds Annual Banquet and Election of Officers.

$700 WAS RAISED.

A celebration which had a dual form, in the way of the annual banquet and the election of officers for the coming year, took place Thursday evening in the parish house of St. John's Church, when the choir was at home to its friends at a sumptuous repast provided by the ladies of the Church Women's Association, of which Mrs. T. W. H. Young is president.

The election of officers for the coming year, which followed the service of supper, resulted as follows: The Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave and H. W. Morphet, honorary presidents; W. Gray, president; H. Spencer, vice-president; Miss Ruby Quartermaine, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. J. J. Howden, choir mother; Mrs. G. A. Wesley, assistant choir mother; R. E. Selby, librarian; A. Bacon, assistant librarian. The Social Committee will be composed of Mrs. D. J. Eldred, Miss Alice Price, Mrs. G. A. Wesley, and A. J. Hayter. Sick Committee: Miss L. Bacon, Miss S. Ecobichon, E. Massey-Cooke and B. Pitchford. Membership Committee: H. Spencer, Mrs. L. Groombridge and Miss E. Bennett.

Choir Banquet.

The banquet which preceded the business meeting was a very enjoyable affair, with Mrs. C. L. Brewer and Miss M. English as convenors. The table was arranged attractively with cut flowers and lighted candles and a display of the two shields won by the choir at the recent music festival of the Kiwanis Club added a bright, festive note to the affair.

The birthday cake was cut by Mrs. A. L. Amys, whose natal day was yesterday, and grace was pronounced at the beginning of the meal and was also sung at the conclusion, in accordance with a pleasing old custom.

The toast to "The King" was proposed by W. Gray and responded to by all present. The president of the choir then proposed a vote of thanks to the ladies, which was seconded by Miss Ruby Quartermaine, and heartily entered in by all present, who joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows."

After a brief interlude, the meeting of the choir was held in the drawing room, the first item being the presentation by F. G. Mann, organist and choir leader, of good conduct prizes to Boy Choristers Roy Pitchford and Everett Gibbs.

The annual report was then given by Mr. Mann, who reviewed the work of the past five years, since the present organization was instituted. During that period, almost $700 was raised through concerts and recitals, all rendered exclusively by choir members. By this means, over sixty new anthems, five sets of cantatas, one set of Cathedral Psalters and new hymn books, had been added to the music library of the church. In addition to this considerable other choir equipment had been purchased and $115 was subscribed to the Centenary celebration by the church. A balance still remains in the bank of $120.

Mr. Mann concluded by expressing his appreciation of the support afforded him by the officers and members of the choir and congregation.

Presentations Made.

Two pleasing presentations were then made, one by Mr. W. J. Kent, People's Warden, acting on behalf of the choir and congregation, to H. W. Morphet, of a portrait of himself and his grandson, Tom Hooper, suitably inscribed to mark the circumstance of both being members of the same choir, Mr. Morphet having commenced his choir service as a boy chorister and having been connected with the choir ever since.

The second presentation, made by Colonel Arthur Stevenson, Vicar's Warden, was to Mrs. A. L. Amys, and took the form of a gift of two books of silverware, as a small token of the esteem held for her by the choir and congregation.

Both recipients responded in cordial terms of appreciation.

The Rev. Dr. Blagrave addressed the members briefly, thanking them for their services in the past and laying stress upon the splendid record of attendance and work made by Miss Ruby Quartermaine. He also pointed out the important place which the choir holds in the church's work.

All members expressed themselves as unanimously in support of the campaign, now in progress, to raise funds for a new organ, and pledged the minimum sum of $200 towards this object, with additional financial support, if possible.

After adjournment of the business session, the balance of the evening was spent in dancing and playing games.

POULTRY PRIZE-LIST

The Peterborough Poultry Association's great Winter Show of 1929 ends this evening. There are nearly a thousand birds and in quality they rank with the champions of the country. LADIES' AID MEETS.

Considerable Business Discussed at Meeting of Trent River Society.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Jan. 12. — The Ladie' Aid met at the United church on Wednesday afternoon, when Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Archer were in attendance and considerable business was discussed. The ladies are arranging for a play to be held later and a quilting bee to be held in the dining hall on Wednesday, January 16.

A miscellaneous shower and dance were given Mr. and Mrs. Harry Plunkett, formerly Miss Mildred Ellis, on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Carnrite.

Mr. Everett Fairman, teacher at S. S. No. 10, has taken up residence for the winter months with Mr. and Mrs. George Brooks.

A Very Bad Cold Settled in Her Back

Ontario Lady Found Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills

"I thought I would drop you a line to let you know how much Dodd's Kidney Pills have helped me," writes Mrs. J. Patton, Richan, Ont. "Just about a month ago I had a very bad Cold settle in my back. It was so bad at times, I did not know what to do for it. My husband got two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and it was only a short time before I was able to do my own work again. Diamond Dinner Pills are the best laxative I have ever taken; Dodd's Antiseptic Healing Ointment is also very good. You may use this letter so that others may see what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for me."

ANNOUNCING THE New Whippet

The New Whippet Six Sedan

SUPERB BEAUTY much Larger Bodies

THE new Whippets are the style triumphs of eminent artists, men of long experience in designing expensive, custom-built cars.

The new Whippet bodies have been completely re-designed. Superb beauty is expressed in the new longer bodies, low graceful lines, higher radiators and hoods, more distinctive colors, sweeping one-piece full-crown fenders—establishing the newest style motif for Fours and light Sixes.

More Room Greater Comfort

The much larger bodies of the new Whippets afford much more spacious interiors, with extra leg room and elbow room. The seats are wider and heavily upholstered, and have form-fitting contours. Both the front and rear springs of the new Whippets have been considerably lengthened. The wheelbase is longer; snubbers and oversize balloon tires further enhance the cars' superior riding qualities.

FINGER-TIP CONTROL

1. Pull up to start motor.
2. Press down to sound horn.
3. Short right turn for parking lights.
4. Half right turn for dim lights.
5. Full right turn for bright lights.

The Most Notable Advance in Driving Convenience Since the Self-Starter

The Whippets are the first cars to offer the new "Finger-Tip Control"—a single button conveniently located in the center of the steering wheel, which controls all functions of starting the motor, operating the lights and sounding the horn.

Still the Leader

Mechanically, the new Whippet furthers its long lead over competition. A new higher-compression engine gives more than 20% added horse-power and increases speed by 4 to 7 miles an hour. Higher second gear speed gives faster pick-up.

WHIPPET FOUR COACH $725, Coupe $725, Coupe (with rumble seat) $765, Sedan $810, Roadster $660, Roadster (with rumble seat) $700; Touring $595.

WHIPPET SIX COACH $930, Coupe $930, Sedan $995, Touring $795, De-Luxe Sport Roadster $1150.

All prices F.O.B. Factory, Toronto, Taxes extra.

Harry Tinney, Cavanville — John Allen, Campbellford

OUR school took up again on Monday. And on Tuesday the twins went back to their fancy school in Massachusetts. They a ways get a longer vacation than we do. Seems like our school is afraid we don't learn enough. Or maybe they think we are so dumb, we need more than those kids who go to those fancy school's. I don't know. But shucks! what's the use to worry about it? I been going to school so long now I got to like it, and a couple of days more or less don't mean anything in my young life. One thing we boys were glad of—our school let out early enough anyway to go down to the depot with the twins and see them on their train.

Harold didn't want to go back to school, yet. His twin brother, Oliver, couldn't wait till the train came, and hopped into it as soon as it stopped. But Harold hung around me till it was time to go. "Hawkins," he says, "I wish I could stay here with you fellows, and see the end of this mystery."

"What mystery?" I asked. "There's no mystery around here—"

"Go on, you know," broke in Harold. "I mean about Little Gil—and the old tramps—and all that—"

"That's no mystery," I said, with a laugh. "Get on the train or you'll be left. Goodbye Hal. Write to me soon."

"I'll write," he said, as he wrung my hand, "but don't you forget to write and tell me all about this mystery—"

"I told you there wasn't any mystery," I said again. And as he ran to his daddy for a last hug, I wondered whether or not I was telling the truth. For a fact, I didn't know. Little Gil and his tramps didn't seem any mystery to me. They just seemed plain tramps—the whole push. Anybody could see that. And yet, as I watched Harold's daddy shove him upon the steps of the slow-moving train, I wondered whether or not there wasn't more behind Little Gil and the tramps that were hanging around our old river bank, than what we could see and understand. I was still thinking of it as the train rolled away and disappeared around the bend. And then Shadow Loomis came over and said: "Come on, let's go down to the clubhouse."

So we went down to the old river bank. It was a cold, wintry day. The little old clubhouse looked pretty all covered with snow and the river was beginning to freeze. One old steamboat was puffing upstream, dodging the cakes of ice that came floating down. We could see the Pelham boys playing on the ice on the opposite shore, watching the steamboat. Some of them had skates. And right away Jerry Moore wanted to get our skates out, but our captain, Dick Ferris, shook his head.

"No," he said, "if we go skating while those Pelhams are on the ice, they're bound to start a fight. Come inside and let's hold our regular meeting."

So in we went and took our seats around the long pine table. Perry Stokes had a good fire going in the stove, and it was nice and warm. Doc Waters came in just as we were about to adjourn.

"Keep your seats, boys," he says, with a grin; "I want to have a little talk with you. Maybe Hawkins better do the talking. It's about that little tramp kid—I think you called him Little Gil, didn't you, Hawkins?"

"Yeah," I answered. "I told you about him. He came here a couple of times and broke in with a skeleton key, made out of a shoe buttonhook. He upset the ink bottle on my desk, and during Christmas week he tore down some of our holly. And he likes to sing. An old tramp came here one night while we were having practice—said he thought Little Gil might be here, because the kid loved singing so. He was looking for him. Of course he couldn't find him here. We wouldn't have anything to do with him."

"Well," said Doc, as I paused, "go on. Tell me about him. You know it isn't permitted—to let stray kids run around this river bank without any looking after—who did this kid belong to? A man named Jacobi wasn't it? An old tramp, who goes by the solitary name of Jacobi—"

"No," spoke up Shadow Loomis, "Little Gil is Old Daddy Joe's boy—"

And then, as if seeing that he had spoken too hastily, perhaps, Shadow turned his eyes toward me. But I shook my head.

"Don't ask me," I said. "It's a mystery to me."

Doc looked at both of us, as we shook our heads at one another.

"Aw, come, come!" he said sharply. "Don't stall around like that. Tell me, you boys where I can find this Little Gil person myself. I'll take care of him all right, Fancy, a stranger boy running loose around here, no home, no school, no nothing! Speak up, Hawkins! Where is he?"

I glanced around at the faces of all the boys, and I knew that they were all giving me the signal not to tell on Little Gil. No matter what he was, no matter—these boys in this clubhouse did not want anybody to interfere with him. Running loose on the river bank, was he? Not going to school, eh? No home, no mother nor daddy—yet none of us boys wanted to see him caught and sent to the School for Bad Boys. Like catching a happy hearted singing bird out of God's wildwood, and shoving him in a cage. He wasn't like other boys—this Little Gil—he was used to it, and he knew how to take care of himself—just like those birds in the happy wildwood—

"Come on, talk up!" said Doc. "Where can I find him, Hawkins?"

I shook my head. "I don't know," I said. And that was the truth. I wouldn't have told Doc a lie for anything. But at that moment I didn't, honestly, know where Little Gil was. And I was hoping that Doc wouldn't ask me where I had seen him last—

"That's all right," said Doc, in a low tone, as he got up out of his chair, and made for the door. He paused at my chair standing behind it, resting his hands upon the back and bending over above my head. "You ought to trust me more than that, Seck," he said. "I've been with you from the start and I'll see you through. You boys are really noble—now, now sit still, don't talk back to me—you're all right! You've got the right kind of a heart. Old Doc Waters is your friend, and don't you forget that. Old Judge Granbery is your friend, too, but he has an idea that all boys who run around without any home ought to be put somewhere. Now, I says to him the other day, supposin' the kids down in the clubhouse can take care of this better than we can, and he shuts me up like a clam. So I didn't say any more."

He let go my chair and walked to the door.

"Wait, Doc!" I called out to him, and I got up and started forward, but he held up his hand.

"Don't worry," he said; "I've known all along where Little Gil is. I've been over to the old dug-out on Burney's Field, every day, since New Years, and I've given the kid enough medicine to pull him through. You'll find him there, Hawkins, pretty well again, and sound. But for the love of Mike don't get him mad. He's the worst little tyrant I ever treated in sickness and he's got his old daddy Jacobi—"

"That's not his daddy!" I broke in.

Doc looked at me amused. Then he chuckled. "Well," he said, as he turned to go, "that's what I thought. And that's why I thought I'd better let you kids handle this before I tell the Judge about it. Jacobi doesn't belong there, somehow. I just knew it. But you kids will straighten it out won't you, Hawkins?"

"I give you my word on that," I said, nodding, "if you will be so kind, Doc, as to let Little Gil alone, and don't tell old Judge Granbery until we get a chance to do something, then you can take our word that this club will see that everything comes out all right."

"I take your word," he says, and goes out.

For a few moments nobody spoke. We sat around that long pine table like a set of wooden figures. Perry Stokes moved silently and shoved another log into the open stove. The wind howled around the corners of the clubhouse, and the windows rattled.

"Well," said Jerry Moore, finally, and his voice was low and solemn, "what are we goin' to do about it? Doc took our word."

"Make good," says our captain, and he turned toward me. "Hawkins not only Doc Waters took our word, but old Judge Granberry took it, by Doc treatin' us that-a-way. There's only one thing you gotta do now, after you said that. Make good!"

I got up and shoved my chair away from me. "I'm ready," I said, "whenever you say the word."

"Here's the word!" exclaimed Dick, as he raised the wooden hammer and let it fall upon the table. Bang! it went. "That," he said, "is the signal to start at once. We'll all go with you. And we're goin' to make our word good Hawkins."

"Sure," I said. "If you want me to lead—"

"Lead the way!" Dick broke in. "Let's get this business settled. Let's get Little Gil fixed up so that old Judge Granbery can't take him and send him somewhere. Any boy in this club who is against that, needn't come along."

They all came forward to the door, except Perry Stokes.

"Excuse me, sir," said Perry, his big eyes turned upon our captain, "but somebody better stay and watch the clubhouse, sir. That little rascal might come while we're all gone, and upset the whole place—"

Dick frowned. "Funny!" he exclaimed. "But yet it might be so. Even while we go to see if we can help the little beggar, we have to take care to see that he doesn't tear down our clubhouse. Well you stay here, Perry. You lead the way, Hawkins."

I led them down to the landing, frozen all about with ice. Shadow Loomis had his little old home-made motor boat there—a skiff with a motor attached, which was about the only boat that would brave the ice-crusted river. In two trips across we were all standing on the Pelham shore. The Pelham boys had quitted their skating, and were gone. We were glad of that, as we pushed on through their woods to the edge of Burney's Field, because else we might not have gotten through without a fight. But as it was, we stood at length outside the old deserted dug-out, that had been built under Burney's Field years ago. The flagstone steps that led down into it were covered with snow, but there were footprints galore—dirty footprints, and big ones, too. I led the way down, Shadow at my heels, and the rest of the boys behind us. I knocked on the door. No answer. I shoved it open, partly. I peeped in and saw a dim light far beyond. And a voice came to our ears, singing:

"Believe me, if all those endearing young charms—"

The voice stopped suddenly. We knew that voice. It was Little Gil's. Again we waited. And again came the voice, singing the same words:

"Believe me, if all those endearing young charms—"

And again it ended as suddenly. I did not wait to hear it again. I shoved the door open, wide, now, and walked in a few steps—and then I paused, the other boys at my heels—for now I could hear the sound of voices talking—

"You don't sing it right, Jacobi!" came the shrill voice of Little Gil. "You don't get the sound melting into it—don't you see? Your voice must melt into mine, and make it sound soft and low—and sweet! Now, listen! Try it again—"

And once again came Little Gil's high, silvery music, singing the words of that old loved song. And Jacobi's grumble, attempting to sing the accompaniment, and Little Gil stopped suddenly again and complained—

"Shut yer mouth!" yelled the rough voice of a man, whom we all knew was Jacobi. "I can't sing it that way. Hold yer tongue, anyway. What do you want with singin', all the time? Can't yer get erlong without singin', I ask ya?"

"Don't think I can, Jacobi," came Little Gil's answer. "You can sing, if you do as I say. Old Daddy Joe—he could sing it so sweetly—"

"Shut yer mouth!" came again from the rough voice. "Ain't I told you once you got to forget old Daddy Joe—"

"I have forgotten him, Jacobi," came Little Gil's answer, "but I jest cain't ferget his singin'—"

"What! Ya can't ferget singin'?"

"His heart! It was his heart—a'singin'."

And then I don't know how we did it—it happened all so quickly. But I know this, that we all fell right and left into hiding positions on the floor, crouching against each wall, as with a bellow the angry old Jacobi came rushing out of that underground hole. His teeth were gnashing with rage, as he passed me and I jerked my head to the left to see him take the snow-covered stone flags of the steps in three bounds and disappear upward in a terrible rage. For a few moments we all crouched there, wondering whether or not it would be safe for us to get up. Lew Hunter was the boy who made the decision. He stood up first, and motioned for us to follow. He held up his hand. "The club will sing," he said, softly, "for Little Gil."

And we sang. We all gathered close around Lew. And Lew, who had led us so many times in our singing practice around the old organ in the clubhouse, opened his lips and formed the first words of the song, and then we sang:

"Believe me, if all those endearing young charms—"

We sang it half through, anyway, before we all forgot to sing as we gazed at the thin, emaciated figure that had come from the darkness of the dugout beyond—

"Gil!" I cried. "Little Gil!"

"Seckatary Hawkins," he said, softly. I had to smile at him, as he stood there, his arms outstretched to us, a ragged blanket falling from his shoulders—and then I was up to meet him! He grabbed my hands, first, and the next minute his bony little arms were around my neck—"I knew you'd stand by me," he was saying. "I knew somebody would come—Old Daddy Joe used to say there never was a time when a fellow needed a friend that God wouldn't send one—"

"You've got to get out of here!" I snapped. I tried to be as rough as I could with him. By Golly! The little beggar had caused me plenty of trouble already. He had done enough to make me wish he were thousands of miles away. It would not do to let him see that we were all now trying to free him from old Jacobi—

"Such singin'!" he said, as he gazed over my head at the boys staring at him from behind me. "You boys surely make that old shack up there in the hollow—"

"Our clubhouse, if you please!" broke in our captain.

"Fine clubhouse!" exclaimed Little Gil, with a jerk of his skinny head. "I'll say! I wish I could say I belonged to that clubhouse! Oh, boy! Such singin'! Such harmony! Old Jacobi doesn't know the first thing about it. And Old Daddy Joe, he would love it! I wish he could hear you sing—"

"He has heard us," I said. "Old Daddy Joe came to our clubhouse while we were singing, in the hopes that you might be there—"

"Don't talk about Old Daddy Joe to me," he shrilled. "I'm through with him—"

"We came to get you out of this place," spoke up our captain, hurriedly; "because this is not a very healthy place to live in—it's too far underground, you see. It ain't healthy to live underground—"

"No," says Little Gil, shaking his head, "I always said the other way was healthier—up in the air—"

"Come on!" cried Shadow Loomis. "Get him out of here before that old Jacobi gets back, Hawkins."

Little Gil ran back to get a bundle. When he came with it, all of us wanted to help him carry it. Shadow Loomis got the honor. We went across Burney's Field rapidly. Shadow and Rick and I were the first load in the boat with Little Gil. Bill Darby took the boat back across to get the others, but we went ahead with Little Gil. As if we knew where we would keep him, anyway. Well, I had made up my mind as soon as the question came to my mind. Our clubhouse. There was a place to let Little Gil live in, until a better home could be found. And we headed for that place, until Little Gil was aware of it, and then he made a quick switch in the plans.

"No!" he said. "Old Daddy Joe would know where to find me, if I went to your clubhouse."

"Well, you can't go back to the dug-out," said Shadow Loomis. "Old Jacobi would find you, there."

"I don't want anybody to find me," said Little Gil, "except Seckatary Hawkins and your boys. You fellows are the only ones who were ever good to me—I had to make my own way—except when old Daddy Joe was with me—"

"Well, make up your mind!" said our captain. "You can depend upon us to help you, if you let us know where you will be—"

"Listen," said Little Gil, "I'm goin' back to a place where I built myself a home—a regular home, and you fellos—you can come to see me, if you want to—and old Jacobi and old Daddy Joe—they can't come—because they don't know about it. It's up in a tree house—a little house I built for myself in a tree—way up above the ground—where it's healthy—"

"We know!" I said, with a wink at Shadow.

"You do?" says Little Gil, surprised.

"Yeah," I said, with a smile, "we saw you there on Christmas Eve, singin' by yourself, all by your lonesome. You had a little crib—and shepherds—and candles lighted, and you were singin' 'O little town of Bethlehem'—"

"You did?"

"Yeah, Gil, but we didn't want to bother you. It was a nice little home for you. And now we will see you snugly back in it, and then we will say goodbye till tomorrow."

Which we did.

GYM CAMPAIGN.

Cars leading in the Y.W.C.A. gym campaign to date are LaSalle, Chevrolet and Durant.

New cars entered for the race since last report are the Oakland, Chrysler, Studebaker, Oldsmobile, Pontiac, Buick, Nash and Dodge.

A keen race between the various classes is anticipated, and the cars will soon all be off to a good start.

Each new member means ten miles along the race.

The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal holds a record for subscribers renewing voluntarily and continuously year after year. After all it is not surprising when one considers the quantity and quality feast the readers are given each week and at a price ridiculously low—$1 a year or three years for $2.

MANY GET BACK YOUNG APPETITE

Quick lunches, usually cold, gulped down so the "dinner hour" will not be over before you can do a little playing, is the best way to ruin your stomach, and you suffer from indigestion, heartburn, bloating, nervousness, headaches; and, worst of all, you get thin, pale and weak.

If you must eat that way, always keep a package of Pape's Diapepsin handy so you can chew one of the pleasant-tasting tablets after your meals. It keeps the food sweet so your stomach can digest it.

Follow the experience of thousands who again have a young appetite. All druggists recommend and guarantee Pape's Diapepsin to relieve indigestion and sweeten the stomach in 5 minutes.

ASPIRIN

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If the name Bayer appears, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it is not! Headaches are dispelled by Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Aspirin—at any drugstore—with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) indicating Bayer Manufacture. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assure the public against imitations, the Tablets will be stamped with their "Bayer Cross" trademark.

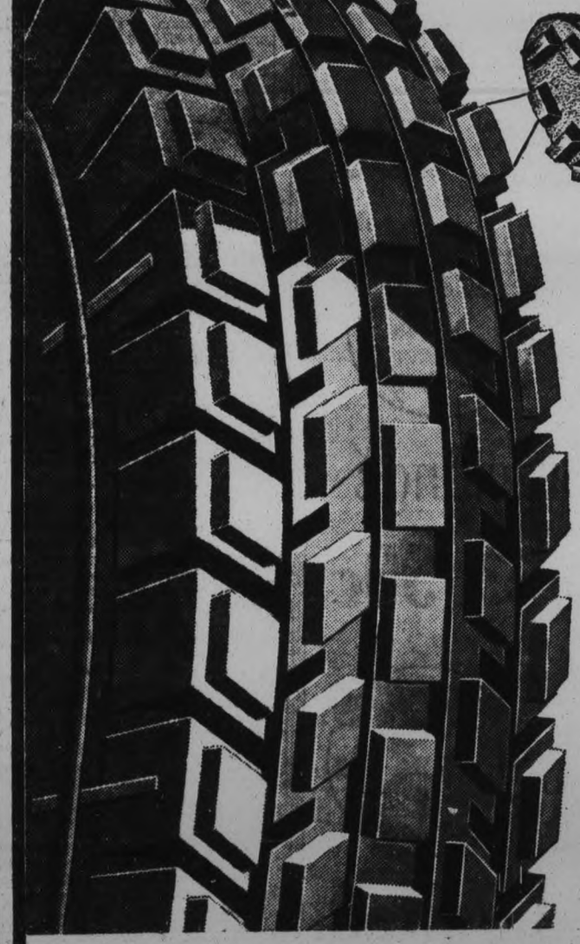
DUNLOP "WINTERIZED" TIRE



Eliminates Chains

Grips like a cleated shoe

NO CHAINS this winter. Yet, safety all the time—not just when chains are on. And quietness all the time—not just when chains are off.

Cleated treads are Dunlop's answer to winter's most annoying problem.

The picture tells the story. Cleated treads . . . grip wet roads . . . bite into snow . . . are sure-footed in slush and mud . . . respond effectively to the demands of four-wheel brakes.

After the trying conditions of winter have worn down the cleats, the standard long mileage Dunlop non-skid balloon tread comes into play . . . ready when spring comes to take over the changed road demands brought about by the difference between winter and spring road conditions.

The winter mileage provided by the cleats themselves is entirely additional to the standard tread mileage.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 12.—(Canadian Press).—A feature of the local grain trade yesterday was the demand for scalping oats from the United Kingdom and the continent and a fairly large business was done for nearby and deferred shipment. There was some demand from New York for Manitoba No. 4 wheat and sales were made at four cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option f.o.b. New York.

Owing to the decline in future wheat prices at Winnipeg local values for cash wheat were reduced one cent per bushel. Manitoba No. 6 wheat sold at $1.01, and feed at 96c per bushel. Canadian western oats were marked up one cent per bushel.

A moderate amount of business was done in spring and winter wheat flour and values were unchanged.

The demand for all lines of millfeed was good and the undertone to the market was firm.

A stronger feeling developed in the market for standard grades of rolled oats and values were marked up ten cents per bag.

For the fifth time in as many days jobbing prices for fresh and storage eggs were again reduced one to two cents per dozen. The demand was good. Receipts were 431 cases.

Prices for potatoes ruled steady under a good inquiry. Prince Edward Island whites sold for 85c, and green mountains at 50c per 90 lbs., in bags. New Brunswick green mountains sold at 65c per 90 lbs., in milk.

Canadian beans weer firm at $5.40 per bushel, wholesale. The undertone to the butter market was firm but the volume of business was small. Receipts were 13,5222 packages.

The trade in cheese was quiet but the tone of the market was steady. Receipts were 97 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, January 12 (Canadian Press). — Enlarged shipments of wheat, both from Argentina and Australia, causing Liverpool quotations to weaken, did much yesterday to pull the wheat market here down. Besides, profit-taking sales on the part of recent buyers of future deliveries of wheat and corn alike was much in evidence.

Closing prices for wheat in Chicago were unsettled, 5-8c to 1 1-8c net lower. Corn and oats finished unchanged to ¼c off, and provisions at 2c to 12c advance.

Nearly 10,000,000 bushels of wheat were shown yesterday to have come out of Argentina and Australia in the last week, curtailing to that extent the needs of other countries for wheat from North America.

Word was also at hand that Argentina is offering wheat more freely to Europe at lower quotations. These circumstances apparently went far toward explaining persistent refusal of the Liverpool market to respond to advances that have taken place here, and were also taken as a reason why export demand for wheat yesterday from North America lacked volume. Meanwhile, new investment based on prospective farm relief measures failed to develop fresh vigor.

Fears expressed in some quarters that a cold wave looked for last night would inflict additional damage on domestic winter wheat led to considerable buying at times, but not enough to bring about more than a moderate rally in prices. In this connection, one of the foremost private crop experts said yesterday that soft wheat territory which suffered severely from winter-killing last year is again experiencing trying conditions, with plant growth smaller than normal, and with many fields under an ice-pack. He added that freezing and thawing have continued longer than is good for the crop, and that prospect of another sub-zero visitation upon fields already in this shape furnished reason for apprehension.

Corn prices held up much better than wheat. Speculative bulls were credited with giving the corn market support on setbacks. Moisture needed for Argentine corn growth was again reported as below normal, but on the other hand Argentine clearances of corn for the week were larger than expected, 3,104,000 bushels. Oats were easier, influenced chiefly by the action of other grain.

Provisions were responsive to upturns in the value of hogs.

PRODUCE MARKETS

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Egg values continue to work downward but there seems to be an appreciable increase in consumptive demand, and despite the lower values there is a somewhat better undertone on the markets.

MONTREAL.—The local egg market continues easy with receipts heavy but there has, however, been some improvement in consumption. B. C. eggs are jobbing on spot as low as 38c, for extras..

SAINT John.—The local egg market is very dull with prices irregular and lower. Stocks are accumulating and some small shipments are going to Montreal in an effort to keep floor clear. Prices to retailers are extras 50-55c, firsts 45-48c, seconds 37-38c.

HALIFAX.—The local egg market is very weak and unsettled. With receipts increasing prices to country shippers have been further reduced to extras 40-42c, firsts 34-36c, seconds 25-57c.

LOCAL HOG PRICES

Dressed hogs, thick, smooth, $9.25 cwt.; select graded, $9.75; live hogs, head on, $16.50; head off, $17.50 cwt.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Jan. 12.—Butter and eggs prices turned definitely downward in dull trading throughout the Toronto wholesale market during the week. In the case of the egg market weakness was caused by liberal receipts of fresh, but the storage market was also affected by the decline, and sold 2c to 4c lower for the week. Downward revisions in butter prices followed extremely dull demand, although there was only a minor improvement in trading activity at lower levels. Week-end buying aided in the reduction of holdings yesterday, but there was no change in quoted prices and both butter and eggs closed at the week's extreme decline.

Opening at a general range of 41c to 41½c for No. 1 creamery, the butter market presented a fairly steady appearance, but demand was quiet. There was no marked change in conditions on Tuesday, but dealers were said to be unable to secure their asked prices, with the result that No. 1 creamery eased to a range of 40c to 40½c delivered in Toronto. No. 2 grade creamery showed a corresponding decline for the week, closing at 39c to 39½c a pound, but wholesale quotations to the retail trade remained unchanged at 44c to 45c for No. 1 creamery prints, with No. 2 prints at 42c and 43c. Wholesale buyers exercised caution in placing commitments in view of the impending arrival of New Zealand butter here.

Melville Fitzgerald, brother-in-law to the deceased, said he was a storekeeper in Springbrook. His wife was a sister to the deceased. He had last seen the deceased on the day before Christmas when Murray had come into his store. Their conversation had been brief since the witness had been busy at the time. But Murray had said that he was going to spend Christmas with his sister, Mrs. Blake Ketcheson, in Rawdon Township, Concession Four. Deceased had been in good health then. He was a man who did not smoke or drink. It was possible that he carried matches for the purpose of lighting his lantern or his fires in the house. Deceased was not subject to heart attacks, and had "never been sick in his life."

Fitzgerald then detailed the farm stock. His tally of the cattle coincided with that of the previous witness, but he set the number of pigs at fifteen and the hens at between thirty and forty. The henhouse, which was only a few feet from the barn, was not destroyed, he said.

Drew $175 Out of Bank.

Regarding the habits of the deceased, witness said that Murray had not been in the habit of remaining away from his home for a day or so at a time. He usually carried between forty and fifty dollars on his person, nearly always in a leather purse with metal clasps. According to his bankbook he had drawn $175.00 on the eleventh day of December. He had paid $72.00 for taxes. Witness then described the purse and personal valuables, watches, rings, etc., of the deceased.

He had first heard of the fire by telephone, and had got right out of bed and hurried to the scene. When he arrived the fire had gained considerable headway, but had not damaged the stable under the barn except a small corner at the north end. The cows and horses were out, but the bull was still in the stable. He thought the cattle were out before the fire started. This was his conclusion when he noticed that they were so far away.

"Do you know anything about the reaction of animals to fire?" asked the Crown.

"It is said that cows will go away from fire, but that horses will come back. I don't know how true it is," Fitzgerald replied, adding that both horses and cattle were some distance from the fire.

When he had arrived, he had been told that Murray was away because his car was not in the garage. There had been no attempt made to force an entrance to the south-west corner of the stable, he admitted. This is the door inside which the charred remains were found. The Ford car was of "ancient vintage," as the Crown termed it, probably 1913, "in good shape for a Ford," and worth about fifty to seevnty-five dollars. Deceased had never wanted to get rid of it.

Lantern Found in House

Questioned regarding his findings inside the house, witness said that the lamp was out and the lantern sitting beside a pair of lace rubber boots used by the deceased when working on the farm. The top lid was off the stove and the fire was out. Coke was the fuel Murray had used, and in the opinion of Fitzgerald there had not been any fire in the stove for six or seven hours. The tracks of the Murray car leaving the garage had been pretty well obliterated before he had arrived. On the table inside the house there was evidence of the deceased having had breakfast but no dinner. The last meal had apparently been of corn flakes. There was plenty of other food in the pantry and therefore there was no apparent necessity for Murray not having eaten a proper meal at mid day. His good overcoat and gloves were on the sofa in the living room, and his good suit coat hung on the back of a chair. His working mitts were also on the chair. On the window ledge there was a cheque for $38.00 from W. J. Haggerty. The cheque was not yet endorsed. There was also a receipt for coal from A. Jenkins, Campbellford, marked paid.

In the bedroom upstairs, the bed was spread in an orderly fashion and had apparently not been occupied on the night of the fire. Overalls and underwear were on the chair in the room. These would indicate that the deceased had either prepared to retire or else dressed to go to Campbellford where the mother of his deceased wife was critically ill. After searching the house, witnesses said he had arrived at the conclusion that "something amiss" had happened to Murray.

Attempts to Find Murray

Witness said he had returned home and told his wife of his fears and had then started to telephone a number of people whom he thought might be able to tell him where Murray might be, or perhaps be at the time. Failing to find any trace of his missing relative, witness said he returned to the fire. Later in the morning he found that the car had been sold to Fred Thain, who had called his store in Springbrook by telephone to give the information when news of the fire reached him. When no trace of Murray could be found by the dawn of day, Fitzgerald notified the coroner, Dr. Alger of Stirling.

During the day, some bones had been discovered in the ruins. These, the coroner had examined and pronounced them as not those of a human being. The next day the search was continued and witness had been present when the remains had been discovered, and identified as those of Morley Murray. Buttons and purse claps had been found with the body.

As far as Fitzgerald knew, Murray had no bad friends, and he could not think of anything which would serve as a motive for any crime to be committeed against the person or property of the deceased. He did not know whether Murray took ashes out to his chickens or not. He had no idea how the fire started, merely suspicions which had nothing to back them up.

Constable Gives Evidence

Provincial Constable Hammer, Belleville, said he was acting as Coroner's constable and had conducted the investigation of the ruins. He had first visited the scene on December 27th, and had examined the house. His report of how he found the interior tallied with that of Fitzgerald. On the first day of the search the ruins had been too hot for a thorough investigation and he had stopped men from tramping through the ruins in case they should destroy evidence for the future. He had received the bones and other "black material" on the first day and left them with the coroner. The bones were found to be not those of a human body and the black mass was found to be burned straw. Constable Hammer said he had interviewed Fred Thain who had bought Murray's car and was satisfied that he had nothing to do with the fire or death of Murray. He had carefully checked each detail of Thain's story and found it accurate in every detail. The following day (Friday, Dec. 28th) the terribly charred remains had been found and later identified.

At this point, Constable Hammer produced the metal clasps of the pocket book of the deceased, overall buttons, overall buckles, some teeth, both false and natural, and some coins. The body, he said, had been discovered on the stable floor near the piggery. He was unable to give any explanation as to how the fire started.

Constable Hammer was the first witness the coroner elected to question. He asked the officer if he thought that a human body would burn as rapidly as that of a pig. But the constable would not pass an opinion on the matter. He had seen a human body badly charred after being in a fire for a matter of only some twenty minutes. Murray's body had been in the heat for almost two days. The body which had been exposed for twenty minutes had been almost as badly burned. There was no evidence of coal oil having been poured over the body, as he had been mentioned by gossip in the neighbourhood. The machinery found in the fire was badly burned, bent and twisted. It had apparently been on the upper floor and dropped through to the stable floor.

Fred Thain Gives Evidence.

Fred Earl Thain, who purchased Murray's car and is believed to be the last man to have seen Murray alive, gave his age as thirty-five and his place of residence as lot 21 in the eighth concession of Rawdon. He said he was a married man with three children, aged seven, two and one and one half years. He owned his farm which was about one mile from the Murray place, and separated from it by several big hills. The farms were not visible to each other. He had discussed the purchase of the car from Murray several times before the deal had been made and he had come for the car. His reason for wanting to purchase it was that he owned a similar car of his own and it had broken down. He thought that he would be wise to purchase Murray's car for the parts he would be able to get from it. Murray had expressed a desire for a coupe.

On the day he got the car, he had walked across the fields. The ground was frozen and the going fairly good. He had worn a pair of rubber boots since it was necessary for him to cross a creek and a swale before getting to Murray's house. The deal for the car had been finally made after several offers had been put forward. Murray had not paid for the services of Thain's bull for the seasons of 1925 and 1926, although he had tried to make several deals. On one occasion he had offered Thain a field of sweet clover, but this had not been accepted since Thain had no use for the clover. The final bargain had been closed about twelve-thirty noon and he had driven the car away. Murray had just come home from the school ratepayers meeting. In exchange for the car, Thain was to cross off the charges for the services of the bull and also give Murray a bushel and a half of buckwheat, nearly a bushel of mixed grain and a spring tooth harrow which was practically new and and of the type which Murray had always preferred. Thain did not need the harrow since he had a cultivator.

After getting possession of the car, he had driven right home, got himself a light lunch and driven to Stirling for his wife and family. He had found it necessary to leave them there the previous night when his own car had broken down. They returned to their home almost at once and during the evening he had gone out alone to call on several people. His last place of call was at the store at Wellman's corners. There he had bought some candies and used the telephone. It had been about a quarter to ten when he left there to go home. On his way he was in sight of Murray's house but saw nothing unusual. He first heard of the fire the next morning about nine o'clock. When he heard that the car was gone and that Murray was missing, he telephoned to Fitzgerald to say that he had bought the car and had it with him. The next day he visited the scene of the fire, and on a second occasion when he started to walk there, he had noticed that his brother-in-law and his wife, were coming to call and had turned back to meet them, thinking that they might like to accompany him. But they had stopped for something to eat before they all went over.

Thain said that he still had the car, but that it was not in good condition. The radiator leaked and had to be filled every couple of miles. Fifty dollars would be the outside value of the car.

Robert Thain, father of the preceding witness, was called. Thain is a man of advanced years, large of stature, and with snow white hair. Somewhat hard of hearing, he was forced to stand close to the Crown Attorney in order to hear the questions that were asked. He said that he lived with his son and that he was at home on the day after Christmas, the day of the fire. He could not say where his son was on the night of the fire, since he had gone to bed. With this one exception, the father's story agreed exactly with that of the son.

Constable Hammer was recalled and shown a hatchet. Asked if he saw anything unusual about it, he said he could not, except for considerable rust. He said it had been given to him about two days after the fire.

Addresses Jury.

This concluded the evidence since no other witnesses were called and none responded to the offical call for any person who could add to the evidence already submitted. B. C. Donan, Crown Attorney, addressed the jury. He said that it was quite apparent that Murray had met his death in the fire which had destroyed his barn. He did not think that they could determine the origin of the fire from evidence that had been given, nor did he think they could throw suspicion on any member of the community. There had been much talk in the community and this was a serious matter in such a case. Murray's death, he thought, was from natural causes, and although surrounded by mystery, there was nothing suspicious shown in the evidence. There was little or nothing available to show exactly what did happen. In conclusion, the Attorney urged the jury to be very careful in arriving at their verdict. The Coroner instructed the jury as to their duties, saying that they were to find, as nearly as possible, when, where and by what means Morley Murray met his death. The jury filed out under guard of Officer Hammer, and returned with the verdict as stated.

CLASSES HELD AT MILLBROOK

Course Includes Lectures and Practical Demonstrations in Agriculture and Home Economics.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTORS.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, Jan. 12.—The short course in agriculture, under the Department of Agriculture, began here on Monday, January 7, the sessions being held in the Town Hall, regular school hours being observed, the classes opening at 9 a.m. until 12 noon, and again at 1.30 p.m. closing at 4 o'clock.

There are more than forty boys enrolled to date for the lectures, and upwards of twenty girls for the course in home economics, Miss E. Hopkins of Lindsay, being the instructress in domestic science, and Miss A. M. Owens, of Kinburn, giving the lessons in sewing.

The course for boys includes lectures and practical demonstrations in live stock, feeds and feeding, field crops, poultry, dairying, veterinary science, soils and cultivation, farm drainage, etc., with special lectures on fruits and vegetables by Professor James H. Neilson, of the Dominion Horticultural Department; a fanning mill demonstration by W. B. Ferguson, of Strathroy; plows and plowing, by James McLean, of Richmond Hill; bees and bee-keeping, by H. O. Whyte, of Glanworth; Dr. John Spencer, V.S., of Bowmanville and E. H. Marston, B.S.A., of the Poultry Department at the O.A.C., Guelph, will be the instructors along their particular lines. C.C. Rokeby, Assistant Agricultural representative for Durham County, has been here since the classes opened giving daily lectures, and J. Y. Kellough, the County representative, who arranged for the two courses now in progress, has also been doing a share of the work this week.

The girls' classes are held in the council chamber, and electric sewing machines are used for the instruction periods when hand work is alternated for that done by machine.

The course is free, except for a contingency fee of fifty cents, and it is hoped that parents will interest themselves to see that all the young people possible take advantage of the opportunity offered for practical instruction in subjects of vital importance and usefulness in their careers.

Prizes for general proficiency, will be offered. On Friday afternoons a joint literary gathering will be held, with debates, readings, and music as features of the programs.

OBITUARY

MRS. CLAPP.

CROOKSTON, Jan. 12.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Mrs. Clapp was held from the residence of Mrs. Ryan, of Crookston, to Moira Cemetery.

JOHN C. COOPER.

MARMORA, Jan. 12.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Following funeral service at his home in Madoc township, the body of the late John Chester Cooper was brought to Marmora on Wednesday for burial in the Protestant Cemetery. The last rite were taken by the rector, Rev. A. B. Caldwell.

FATHER AND SON HAD RHEUMATISM TERRIBLY

T-R-C's made short work of son's Rheumatism—then made father well, too

"When we lived in Carrick Township," writes Mr. Charles Koenig of Ayton, Ontario, "I suffered terribly from Rheumatism—an everlasting dull aching pain that moved from one part of my body to another. I could scarcely work."

Then, with Mr. Koenig laid up, his son also got Rheumatism. "After he had had all kinds of treatments," Mr. Koenig's letter runs, "he was no better. His boss suggested T-R-C's. The first box made my son well enough to return to work. He got rid of the Rheumatism completely and has had no return of it since."

Naturally, Mr. Koenig gave T-R-C's a trial himself, and says: "I found them equally good, although, of course, they didn't work so fast on me. However, in a year's time my Rheumatism was gone."

Are you in misery with Rheumatism? With Lumbago? Sciatica? Neuralgia? Why? Your druggist has T-R-C's—ready and able to give you speedy relief—with absolute safety too, as T-R-C's are entirely free from habit-forming or dangerous drugs. A wonderful remedy. Proved in use by thousands of grateful people.

There is no mystery about the action of T-R-C's. They enter the bloodstream. Go to the root of the trouble. Help your body throw off the poisons that are making your life wretched. Get a box. Enjoy good health once more. 50c and $1 at all druggists. 114

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 12.—(Canadian Press).—A feature of the local grain trade yesterday was the demand for scalping oats from the United Kingdom and the continent and a fairly large business was done for nearby and deferred shipment. There was some demand from New York for Manitoba No. 4 wheat and sales were made at four cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option f.o.b. New York.

Owing to the decline in future wheat prices at Winnipeg local values for cash wheat were reduced one cent per bushel. Manitoba No. 6 wheat sold at $1.01, and feed at 96c per bushel. Canadian western oats were marked up one cent per bushel.

A moderate amount of business was done in spring and winter wheat flour and values were unchanged.

The demand for all lines of millfeed was good and the undertone to the market was firm.

A stronger feeling developed in the market for standard grades of rolled oats and values were marked up ten cents per bag.

For the fifth time in as many days jobbing prices for fresh and storage eggs were again reduced one to two cents per dozen. The demand was good. Receipts were 431 cases.

Prices for potatoes ruled steady under a good inquiry. Prince Edward Island whites sold for 85c, and green mountains at 50c per 90 lbs., in bags. New Brunswick green mountains sold at 65c per 90 lbs., in milk.

Canadian beans weer firm at $5.40 per bushel, wholesale. The undertone to the butter market was firm but the volume of business was small. Receipts were 13,5222 packages.

The trade in cheese was quiet but the tone of the market was steady. Receipts were 97 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, January 12 (Canadian Press). — Enlarged shipments of wheat, both from Argentina and Australia, causing Liverpool quotations to weaken, did much yesterday to pull the wheat market here down. Besides, profit-taking sales on the part of recent buyers of future deliveries of wheat and corn alike was much in evidence.

Closing prices for wheat in Chicago were unsettled, 5-8c to 1 1-8c net lower. Corn and oats finished unchanged to ⅛c off, and provisions at 2c to 12c advance.

Nearly 10,000,000 bushels of wheat were shown yesterday to have come out of Argentina and Australia in the last week, curtailing to that extent the needs of other countries for wheat from North America.

Word was also at hand that Argentina is offering wheat more freely to Europe at lower quotations. These circumstances apparently went far toward explaining persistent refusal of the Liverpool market to respond to advances that have taken place here, and were also taken as a reason why export demand for wheat yesterday from North America lacked volume. Meanwhile, new investment based on prospective farm relief measures failed to develop fresh vigor.

Fears expressed in some quarters that a cold wave looked for last night would inflict additional damage on domestic winter wheat led to considerable buying at times, but not enough to bring about more than a moderate rally in prices. In this connection, one of the foremost private crop experts said yesterday that soft wheat territory which suffered severely from winter-killing last year is again experiencing trying conditions, with plant growth smaller than normal, and with many fields under an ice-pack. He added that freezing and thawing have continued longer than is good for the crop, and that prospect of another sub-zero visitation upon fields already in this shape furnished reason for apprehension.

Corn prices held up much better than wheat. Speculative bulls were credited with giving the corn market support on setbacks. Moisture needed for Argentine corn growth was again reported as below normal, but on the other hand Argentine clearances of corn for the week were larger than expected, 3,104,000 bushels. Oats were easier, influenced chiefly by the action of other grain.

Provisions were responsive to upturns in the value of hogs.

PRODUCE MARKETS

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Egg values continue to work downward but there seems to be an appreciable increase in consumptive demand, and despite the lower values there is a somewhat better undertone on the markets.

MONTREAL.—The local egg market continues easy with receipts heavy but there has, however, been some improvement in consumption. B. C. eggs are jobbing on spot as low as 38c, for extras.

SAINT John.—The local egg market is very dull with prices irregular and lower. Stocks are accumulating and some small shipments are going to Montreal in an effort to keep floor clear. Prices to retailers are extras 50-55c, firsts 45-48c, seconds 37-38c.

HALIFAX.—The local egg market is very weak and unsettled. With receipts increasing prices to country shippers have been further reduced to extras 40-42c, firsts 34-36c, seconds 25-27c.

LOCAL HOG PRICES

Dressed hogs, thick, smooth, $9.25 cwt.; select graded, $9.75; live hogs, head on, $16.50; head off, $17.50 cwt.

No. 2 grade creamery showed a corresponding decline for the week, closing at 39c to 39½c a pound, but wholesale quotations to the retail trade remained unchanged at 44c to 45c for No. 1 creamery prints, with No. 2 prints at 42c and 43c. Wholesale buyers exercised caution in placing commitments in view of the impending arrival of New Zealand butter here.

Melville Fitzgerald; brother-in-law to the deceased, said he was a storekeeper in Springbrook. His wife was a sister to the deceased. He had last seen the deceased on the day before Christmas when Murray had come into his store. Their conversation had been brief since the witness had been busy at the time. But Murray had said that he was going to spend Christmas with his sister, Mrs. Blake Ketcheson, in Rawdon Township, Concession Four. Deceased had been in good health then. He was a man who did not smoke or drink. It was possible that he carried matches for the purpose of lighting his lantern or his fires in the house. Deceased was not subject to heart attacks, and had "never been sick in his life."

Fitzgerald then detailed the farm stock. His tally of the cattle coincided with that of the previous witness, but he set the number of pigs at fifteen and the hens at between thirty and forty. The henhouse, which was only a few feet from the barn, was not destroyed, he said.

Drew $175 Out of Bank.

Regarding the habits of the deceased, witness said that Murray had not been in the habit of remaining away from his home for a day or so at a time. He usually carried between forty and fifty dollars on his person, nearly always in a leather purse with metal clasps. According to his bankbook he had drawn $175.00 on the eleventh day of December. He had paid $72.00 for taxes. Witness then described the purse and personal valuables, watches, rings, etc., of the deceased.

He had first heard of the fire by telephone, and had got right out of bed and hurried to the scene. When he arrived the fire had gained considerable headway, but had not damaged the stable under the barn except a small corner at the north end. The cows and horses were out, but the bull was still in the stable. He thought the cattle were out before the fire started. This was his conclusion when he noticed that they were so far away.

"Do you know anything about the reaction of animals to fire?" asked the Crown.

"It is said that cows will go away from fire, but that horses will come back. I don't know how true it is," Fitzgerald replied, adding that both horses and cattle were some distance from the fire.

When he had arrived, he had been told that Murray was away because his car was not in the garage. There had been no attempt made to force an entrance to the south-west corner of the stable, he admitted. This is the door inside which the charred remains were found. The Ford car was of "ancient vintage," as the Crown termed it, probably 1913, "in good shape for a Ford," and worth about fifty to seevnty-five dollars. Deceased had never wanted to get rid of it.

Lantern Found in House

Questioned regarding his findings inside the house, witness said that the lamp was out and the lantern sitting beside a pair of lace rubber boots used by the deceased when working on the farm. The top lid was off the stove and the fire was out. Coke was the fuel Murray had used, and in the opinion of Fitzgerald there had not been any fire in the stove for six or seven hours. The tracks of the Murray car leaving the garage had been pretty well obliterated before he had arrived. On the table inside the house there was evidence of the deceased having had breakfast but no dinner. The last meal had apparently been of corn flakes. There was plenty of other food in the pantry and therefore there was no apparent necessity for Murray not having eaten a proper meal at mid day. His good overcoat and gloves were on the sofa in the living room, and his good suit coat hung on the back of a chair. His working mitts were also on the chair. On the window ledge there was a cheque for $38.00 from W. J. Haggerty. The cheque was not yet endorsed. There was also a receipt for coal from A. Jenkins, Campbellford, marked paid.

In the bedroom upstairs, the bed was spread in an orderly fashion and had apparently not been occupied on the night of the fire. Overalls and underwear were on the chair in the room. These would indicate that the deceased had either prepared to retire or else dressed to go to Campbellford where the mother of his deceased wife was critically ill. After searching the house, witnesses said he had arrived at the conclusion that "something amiss" had happened to Murray.

Attempts to Find Murray

Witness said he had returned home and told his wife of his fears and had then started to telephone a number of people whom he thought might be able to tell him where Murray might be, or perhaps be at the time. Failing to find any trace of his missing relative, witness said he returned to the fire. Later in the morning he found that the car had been sold to Fred Thain, who had called his store in Springbrook by telephone to give the information when news of the fire reached him. When no trace of Murray could be found by the dawn of day, Fitzgerald notified the coroner, Dr. Alger of Stirling.

During the day, some bones had been discovered in the ruins. These, the coroner had examined and pronounced them as not those of a human being. The next day the search was continued and witness had been present when the remains had been discovered, and identified as those of Morley Murray. Buttons and purse claps had been found with the body.

As far as Fitzgerald knew, Murray had no bad friends, and he could not think of anything which would serve as a motive for any crime to be committed against the person or property of the deceased. He did not know whether Murray took ashes out to his chickens or not. He had no idea how the fire started, merely suspicions which had nothing to back them up.

Constable Gives Evidence

Provincial Constable Hammer, Belleville, said he was acting as Coroner's constable and had conducted the investigation of the ruins. He had first visited the scene on December 27th, and had examined the house. His report of how he found the interior tallied with that of Fitzgerald. On the first day of the search the ruins had been too hot for a thorough investigation and he had stopped men from tramping through the ruins in case they should destroy evidence for the future. He had received the bones and other "black material" on the first day and left them with the coroner. The bones were found to be not those of a human body and the black mass was found to be burned straw. Constable Hammer said he had interviewed Fred Thain who had bought Murray's car and was satisfied that he had nothing to do with the fire or death of Murray. He had carefully checked each detail of Thain's story and found it accurate in every detail. The following day (Friday, Dec. 28th) the terribly charred remains had been found and later identified.

At this point, Constable Hammer produced the metal clasps of the pocket book of the deceased, overall buttons, overall buckles, some teeth, both false and natural, and some coins. The body, he said, had been discovered on the stable floor near the piggery. He was unable to give any explanation as to how the fire started.

Constable Hammer was the first witness the coroner elected to question. He asked the officer if he thought that a human body would burn as rapidly as that of a pig. But the constable would not pass an opinion on the matter. He had seen a human body badly charred after being in a fire for a matter of only some twenty minutes. Murray's body had been in the heat for almost two days. The body which had been exposed for twenty minutes had been almost as badly burned. There was no evidence of coal oil having been poured over the body, as he had been mentioned by gossip in the neighbourhood. The machinery found in the fire was badly burned, bent and twisted. It had apparently been on the upper floor and dropped through to the stable floor.

Fred Thain Gives Evidence.

Fred Earl Thain, who purchased Murray's car and is beleved to be the last man to have seen Murray alive, gave his age as thirty-five and his place of residence as lot 21 in the eighth concession of Rawdon. He said he was a married man with three children, aged seven, two and one and one half years. He owned his farm which was about one mile from the Murray place, and separated from it by several big hills. The farms were not visible to each other. He had discussed the purchase of the car from Murray several times before the deal had been made and he had come for the car. His reason for wanting to purchase it was that he owned a similar car of his own and it had broken down. He thought that he would be wise to purchase Murray's car for the parts he would be able to get from it. Murray had expressed a desire for a coupe.

On the day he got the car, he had walked across the fields. The ground was frozen and the going fairly good. He had worn a pair of rubber boots since it was necessary for him to cross a creek and a swale before getting to Murray's house. The deal for the car had been finally made after several offers had been put forward. Murray had not paid for the services of Thain's bull for the seasons of 1925 and 1926, although he had tried to make several deals. On one occasion he had offered Thain a field of sweet clover, but this had not been accepted since Thain had no use for the clover. The final bargain had been closed about twelve-thirty noon and he had driven the car away. Murray had just come home from the school ratepayers meeting. In exchange for the car, Thain was to cross off the charges for the services of the bull and also give Murray a bushel and a half of buckwheat, nearly a bushel of mixed grain and a spring tooth harrow which was practically new and and of the type which Murray had always preferred. Thain did not need the harrow since he had a cultivator.

After getting possession of the car, he had driven right home, got himself a light lunch and driven to Stirling for his wife and family. He had found it necessary to leave them there the previous night when his own car had broken down. They returned to their home almost at once and during the evening he had gone out alone to call on several people. His last place of call was at the store at Wellman's corners. There he had bought some candies and used the telephone. It had been about a quarter to ten when he left there to go home. On his way he was in sight of Murray's house but saw nothing unusual. He first heard of the fire the next morning about nine o'clock. When he heard that the car was gone and that Murray was missing, he telephoned to Fitzgerald to say that he had bought the car and had it with him. The next day he visited the scene of the fire, and on a second occasion when he started to walk there, he had noticed that his brother-in-law and his wife, were coming to call and had turned back to meet them, thinking that they might like to accompany him. But they had stopped for something to eat before they all went over.

Thain said that he still had the car, but that it was not in good condition. The radiator leaked and had to be filled every couple of miles. Fifty dollars would be the outside value of the car.

Robert Thain, father of the preceding witness, was called. Thain is a man of advanced years, large of stature, and with snow white hair. Somewhat hard of hearing, he was forced to stand close to the Crown Attorney in order to hear the questions that were asked. He said that he lived with his son and that he was at home on the day after Christmas, the day of the fire. He could not say where his son was on the night of the fire, since he had gone to bed. With this one exception, the father's story agreed exactly with that of the son.

Constable Hammer was recalled and shown a hatchet. Asked if he saw anything unusual about it, he said he could not, except for considerable rust. He said it had been given to him about two days after the fire.

Addresses Jury.

This concluded the evidence since no other witnesses were called and none responded to the offical call for any person who could add to the evidence already submitted. B. C. Donan, Crown Attorney, addressed the jury. He said that it was quite apparent that Murray had met his death in the fire which had destroyed his barn. He did not think that they could determine the origin of the fire from evidence that had been given, nor did he think they could throw suspicion on any member of the community. There had been much talk in the community and this was a serious matter in such a case. Murray's death, he thought, was from natural causes, and although surrounded by mystery, there was nothing suspicious shown in the evidence. There was little or nothing available to show exactly what did happen. In conclusion, the Attorney urged the jury to be very careful in arriving at their verdict. The Coroner instructed the jury as to their duties, saying that they were to find, as nearly as possible, when, where and by what means Morley Murray met his death. The jury filed out under guard of Officer Hammer, and returned with the verdict as stated.

CLASSES HELD AT MILLBROOK

Course Includes Lectures and Practical Demonstrations in Agriculture and Home Economics.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTORS.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, Jan. 12.—The short course in agriculture, under the Department of Agriculture, began here on Monday, January 7, the sessions being held in the Town Hall, regular school hours being observed, the classes opening at 9 a.m. until 12 noon, and again at 1.30 p.m. closing at 4 o'clock.

There are more than forty boys enrolled to date for the lectures, and upwards of twenty girls for the course in home economics, Miss E. Hopkins of Lindsay, being the instructress in domestic science, and Miss A. M. Owens, of Kinburn, giving the lessons in sewing.

The course for boys includes lectures and practical demonstrations in live stock, feeds and feeding, field crops, poultry, dairying, veterinary science, soils and cultivation, farm drainage, etc., with special lectures on fruits and vegetables by Professor James H. Neilson, of the Dominion Horticultural Department; a fanning mill demonstration by W. B. Ferguson, of Strathroy; plows and plowing, by James McLean, of Richmond Hill; bees and bee-keeping, by H. O. Whyte, of Glanworth; Dr. John Spencer, V.S., of Bowmanville and E. H. Marston, B.S.A., of the Poultry Department at the O.A.C., Guelph, will be the instructors along their particular lines. C.C. Rokeby, Assistant Agricultural representative for Durham County, has been here since the classes opened giving daily lectures, and J. Y. Kellough, the County representative, who arranged for the two courses now in progress, has also been doing a share of the work this week.

The girls' classes are held in the council chamber, and electric sewing machines are used for the instruction periods when hand work is alternated for that done by machine.

The course is free, except for a contingency fee of fifty cents, and it is hoped that parents will interest themselves to see that all the young people possible take advantage of the opportunity offered for practical instruction in subjects of vital importance and usefulness in their careers.

Prizes for general proficiency, will be offered. On Friday afternoons a joint literary gathering will be held, with debates, readings, and music as features of the programs.

OBITUARY

MRS. CLAPP.

CROOKSTON, Jan. 12.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Mrs. Clapp was held from the residence of Mrs. Ryan, of Crookston, to Moira Cemetery.

JOHN C. COOPER.

MARMORA, Jan. 12.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Following funeral service at his home in Madoc township, the body of the late Joh Chester Cooper was brought to Marmora on Wednesday for burial in the Protestant Cemetery. The last rite were taken by the rector, Rev. A. B. Caldwell.

FATHER AND SON HAD RHEUMATISM TERRIBLY

T-R-C's made short work of son's Rheumatism—then made father well, too

"When we lived in Carrick Township," writes Mr. Charles Koenig of Ayton, Ontario, "I suffered terribly from Rheumatism—an everlasting dull aching pain that moved from one part of my body to another. I could scarcely work."

Then, with Mr. Koenig laid up, his son also got Rheumatism. "After he had had all kinds of treatments," Mr. Koenig's letter runs, "he was no better. His boss suggested T-R-C's. The first box made my son well enough to return to work. He got rid of the Rheumatism completely and has had no return of it since."

Naturally, Mr. Koenig gave T-R-C's a trial himself, and says: "I found them equally good, although, of course, they didn't work so fast on me. However, in a year's time my Rheumatism was gone."

Are you in misery with Rheumatism? With Lumbago? Sciatica? Neuralgia? Why? Your druggist has T-R-C's—ready and able to give you speedy relief—with absolute safety too, as T-R-C's are entirely free from habit-forming or dangerous drugs. A wonderful remedy. Proved in use by thousands of grateful people.

There is no mystery about the action of T-R-C's. They enter the bloodstream. Go to the root of the trouble. Help your body throw off the poisons that are making your life wretched. Get a box. Enjoy good health once more. 50c and $1 at all druggists. 114

RAILWAYS ARE MAKING READY FOR BIG FIGHT

borhood of Halt Mines, important mineralized areas controlled by Consolidated Smelters, a Canadian Pacific Railway concern.

Whether these apparent modifications have been made following the conference between Messrs. Beatty and Thornton, it is difficult for Ottawa to ascertain, but it is taken for granted that the Canadian Pacific Railway will make no further concessions.

Announced in Winnipeg

It is believed that the Beatty-Thornton conferences, so far as they have progressed, have been tentative in character. The announcement involving extensive C.P.R. plans was made from Winnipeg and not directly sponsored by the C.P.R. or any of its officials. It is felt here that this announcement was made in that manner so that, while clear of responsibility for the announcement, the C.P.R. when it resumes negotiations with the National chief executive according to the Dunning suggestion, will be able to say: "There is little use in further negotiations. Our plans have been made known and they represent approximately what we intend to do. We had best let the issue go to parliament and fight it out there."

And to parliament it will go.

One of the C.P.R. proposals is to build a line north-easterly from Saskatoon to Melford, from which point the C.N.R. already joins the Hudson Bay Railway further on at The Pas, in Manitoba, the C.P.R. line to Melford would parallel an existing C.N.R. line, which commences at Vonda. Only a few miles of the latter line have been built, and Sir Henry Thornton's latest announcement to this project is that the line will be built from Aberdeen nearer to Saskatoon to Melford. Thus the C.P.R. line, as now sought, would parallel this National road. The C.P.R. will probably argue that its proposed line is a trunk road to connect with other more northerly branches, but the C.N.R. will of course, fight that contention, and the whole proposal in such a fight the C.N.R. has the support of the country people of the district. The United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan Branch, has passed a strong resolution favoring the C.N.R. scheme.

Into Mining Areas

On the other hand, the Saskatoon City Council and Board of Trade have been, with equal strength, behind the C.P.R. From north of Melford the C.P.R. proposes to build another line almost straight north of Island Falls or as originally understood by those who have been "in the know," to Reindeer Lake, which it would touch upon the Western side. The C.P.R. believes that the heaviest mineralization adjacent to this lake is on the west, although other interests claim that the pre-Cambrian shield surfacing the whole territory is richest on the east. In any event such a road would run through the north upon the west side of the Flin Flon and Sherrit-Gordon mining properties. The C.P.R., with such a line in existence, could and undoubtedly would, throw lines eastward to those properties and for ever cut off the C.N.R. from any participation in the business from this rich mining area.

Having thus reached these mines and the neighborhood of The Pas, the C.P.R.'s next step would undoubtedly be to apply for running rights over the Hudson Bay Railway, should that venture prove successful, as there is every indication that it will. It would thus be in touch with the new export port to the Atlantic and would dominate all the present C.N.R. tentacles reaching into the north. But apparently not planned as far in advance as C.P.R. plans have been.

Going to the westerly area of Saskatchewan, with Prince Albert as the base of operations, an equally interesting and significant situation is found. Running northwesterly from Saskatoon is a C.N.R. line which, towards the north radiates in a number of branch lines ending at present at nowhere in particular in each case, to the west of Prince Albert.

The C.P.R. now proposes to build a line north of Prince Albert, turn its line to the west, to what is described in the Winnipeg announcement as a point on the Alberta Great Waterways Railway near Township 63.

This terminal is identified here as being in the neighborhood of Jellicoe. Such a line would cut directly across the present terminals of the Canadian National lines reaching into the northern and westerly part of the province. If built it would cut them off from the north and again the C.P.R. would have grasped a huge and rich territory from the Nationals, and again territory formerly considered the exclusive stamping ground of the National lines.

In addition a line is planned by the Canadian Pacific Railway to run directly north from Prince Albert into the Lac La Rongue territory through the Hall Mines area. This line would stand up like a great mast into the northwestern hinterland of the province, absolutely dominating the whole district. An important additional fact is that the Canadian Pacific Railway already has a charter to build a line from Nipawin, joining its easterly line to the north, to Prince Albert, where it would link up with its westerly proposed line, to the north, thus linking up the whole system now in contemplation.

Wanted to Build North

In connection with these proposals it is recalled that when the main lines of the C.P.R. were first laid across the prairies, the company desired to build more to the north than was allowed by the Government of the day which feared that the southern population in that event would be left to rely upon the transportation facilities of the western United States. Subsequently the Grand Trunk and the old northern lines went into the north and rich lumber and mineral. in addition to agricultural areas have since been opened up. It is declared that the C.P.R. now wants to get in on the great development that is already under way.

It is felt in some quarters here that this initial program is but part of a tremendous scheme of expansion on the part of the Canadian Pacific and some estimates of proposed expenditure in the next decade or two run as high as $50,000,000.

In its entirety this vast scheme is envisioned as embracing lines on steamships down the east and west coasts of the North American countries, with hotel systems to accommodate tourists at New ork, San Francisco and in the South American countries to be touched.

But these latter proposals are still far in the future and Ottawa to-day is most concerned with the legislative battles that will be fought later this winter upon the concrete proposals which are now before public.

INFLUENZA'S VICTIMS.

Left Weak, Miserable and a Prey To Disease in Many Forms.

One of the most treacherous diseases afflicting the people of Canada during the winter months is influenza. It almost invariably ends with a complication of troubles. Its victims suffer with alternate fevers and chills, headaches and backaches. It leaves them an easy prey to bronchitis and pneumonia. Indeed, the deadly after effects of influenza may leave the victim a chronic invalid. You can avoid influenza entirely by keeping the blood rich and red by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If you have not done this and the disease attacks you, you can banish its deadly after effects through the use of this great blood-building, nerve-restoring tonic.

Here is proof of the power of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills over this trouble. Mrs. F. H. McMullen, Belleville, Ont., says:—"Some years ago, following a severe attack of influenza, I was left in such a weak condition that my friends thought I would not get better. I developed nervous indigestion, and my blood got thin and watery. In this weakened condition I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and these did what other medicine had failed to do—brought me back to health and strength. I can honestly say I think them the best blood builder and nerve tonic known, and I shall always praise them."

You can get the pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

When Pain Comes

Two hours after eating

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tastless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—and drug store.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet
Or dims the radiant light
No unkind word our lips shall pass.
No envy sour the mind.
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind

MOUNT PLEASANT

In the address given by Mr. J. S. Atkinson of Toronto, director of the Canadian Bureau for the advancement of Music, at the Central Ontario Women's Institute Convention held in Toronto, November 27-28-29, on "The Advancement of Music in Rural Ontario," he said that in the music competitions at the Exhibition, forty-six out of six hundred in a class came from the rural parts and these forty-six carried off a percentage of 54 of the prizes. Being a public and high school teacher for twenty-one years, he claimed that music was the greatest force of education. It has a tremendous moral value and is recreation that is pleasant and beneficial. He advocated the teaching of music in a class where financial difficulty does not permit individual teaching and appealed to the Women's Institutes to have piano classes in the local schools.

Unfortunately, music is too often looked upon as only a pleasurable recreation. It is that, and it is an especially elevating, stimulating and highly cultural form of recreation, but it is infinitely more.

Plutarch tells us of the high regard in which music education was held by the Greeks, being the most fruitful form of education, a process for the development of creative power—power of expression of initiative and of appreciation. He said: "Who ever he be that shall give his mind to the study of music in his youth, if he meet with a musical education proper for the forming and regulating of his inclinations, he will be sure to applaud and embrace that which is noble and generous and to rebuke and blame the contrary, as well in other things as in what belongs to music, and by that means he will become clear from all reproachful actions for now, having reaped the noblest fruit of music, he may be of great use, not only to himself but also to the commonwealth; while music teaches him to abstain from every thing that is indecent, both in word and deed and to observe decorum, temperance and regularity."

Music Stimulates and Opens Reserve of Strength.

Little six-year old Johnny was down town one day with his mother when she was shopping. The poor little fellow grew very tired and finally sat down on the curb and said, "Mother, there is no more go in Johnny's legs," and he refused to move. Just then, however, a street band came along, playing a lively march. Johnny immediately jumped up and tramped along beside the band and forgot all about being tired.

In many of our big industrial plants, executives are realizing this value of music, and they are providing for their employees short music periods, usually sing-songs. These executives tell us that these short music periods, not only refresh their employees and enable them to carry through the day with a much greater degree of efficiency, but they greatly improve the general mental attitude of the workers, giving them an emotional outlet and rendering them less susceptible to the pernicious doctrines of Bolsheviks and labor agitators.

We all remember the powerful influence of music in enthusing our people during the days of voluntary recruiting at the beginning of the war, and enthusing our young men to volunteer in their country's defence. The war, probably more than anything else, could do, taught us to realize the wonderful value of music. In our training camps and on our long fatiguing marches, music gave to us a strength and reserve power that nothing else could have given. In our hospitals, its powers as a solace was almost inconceivable, and even to our homes it brought consolation and hope.

Music Gives Hope.

We all know of the boy's tendency to whistle in order to keep up his courage when passing alone through lonely places especially after dark.

(The speaker here rehearsed a most striking instance of the courage-giving effect of music on soldiers condemned to death and forced to march before the firing squad.)

Music—certain kinds of music—has also a wonderful soothing and relaxing influence. See how the crying baby reacts to the mother's soft crooning lullaby. If we would, we could all through life, when over-tired and vexed by worries secure a wonderful solace in good music. Mr. Chas. M. Schwab, President of the Bethlehem Steel Works a multi-millionaire, and one of the leading industrial magnates of the world said— "Music has meant much to me in my life of affairs. Again and again it has refreshed me when I was dog-tired; taken me out of myself and away from the problems of business. A book can do that, too. So can a painting, but not so surely as does music. There is a reach to music that the other arts have not; it seems to get to you in an exhausted mood and quiets and refreshes you when a book or a picture is not so sure."

Educational Value of Music.

Leading educationists today, from a purely educational point of view, accord to music a value equal to the best subjects on the regular curricula of our educational institutions, and they deem it far superior in its value in mental training to the majority of our regular educational subjects.

For memory training, music has no equal. In developing concentration and accuracy in perception, there is no better subjects. Its value in the co-ordination of the eye, hand and ear is unchallengeable. The study of literature and history is inseparable from music. Even in physics a knowledge of music helps greatly in the study of sound and the study of languages is greatly assisted by the musically trained mind and ear.

This has been incontrovertibly proved. Schools that have given a prominent place to the study of music have found that the music students make the highest standing in the other studies. Even short vocal music periods so refresh the pupils' minds that they return to their other studies with renewed vigor and greatly stimulated menta efficiency.

(Most convincing instances taken from the Toronto schools were related by the speaker to substantiate the above statement.)

Plato said: "Music is the finest education a state can give its children."

Wm. E. Gladstone said: "Music is one of the most forceful instruments for training, for arousing and for governing the mind and spirit of man."

Moral Value of Music.

In the United States and other countries music is being used with splendid results in the insane asylums by providing an emotional outlet, as an influence in bringing the patients to a normal condition; and in jails and penitentiaries, in awakening in the minds of those incarcerated their sense of moral responsibility to society. If music is so beneficial in making the abnormal normal, surely it can be much more effective in keeping the normal normal?

Judge Mott, of the juvenile court of Toronto, said that upon investigation they found that in a very large percent of the cases of juvenile delinquency the homes of the delinquents had failed to provide opportunities for emotional outlet, and disaster was the result. Music provides, more than any other subject, the greatest opportunities for emotional expression.

Value of Music in the Home.

But the greatest value of music, after all, is in making the home life attractive. The more attractive you make the home the more likely will you keep the young people in the home, or their friends' homes. The home is the cradle, not only of the community, but it is the cradle of the nation.

The money, people put into a piano, organ, phonograph or radio is not an expense, is not an outlay for an object that will entail large, continued expense for upkeep, but it is an investment that will make the home brighter, and will provide for the young people innumerable happy, healthful recreations in their own homes or in their friends' home under good home atmosphere, and not under the doubtful halls and many other public places. These instruments will conduce to happier relations in the home, and the betterment of the young lives in the home. Build up the home and you will build up the community and the nation.

What can we do to stimulate and develop interest in music? Here are a few suggestions. The schools offer probably the quickest way to reach the homes. The cities and towns and some villages and even rural schools where they are fortunate enough to have a teacher capable of teaching singing, have vocal music, and we are now developing plans for carrying vocal training into all the rural schools; that is, of course, where they wish it.

Here are two special features however, that are being organized and conducted with splendid results—(a) Music Memory or Music Recognition contests by which pupils each year become familiar with about twenty-five good musical compositions. A booklet outlining the contests and suggesting how they can be organized has been sent to all the schools. Copies will be sent to the officers of the Women's Institutes on request. (b) Piano Classes—For several years in England, Germany and the United States very successful work has been conducted in giving class instruction in Piano, Violin, and other musical instruments, or in the schools. Piano classes are now being conducted in Toronto, Montreal, London and Kitchener and in Bronte, Milton, Ash, and Mount Union, Stratford, Hamilton and likely Ottawa, are beginning in January and a large number of other school boards are interested. The Hamilton School Board has now adopted piano classes in their schools to commence January 1st.

By the class method the pupils naturally lose somewhat in individual attention from the teacher, but on the other hand the class method offers them many splendid advantages, such as the opportunity to compare their work and progress with that of others. The privilege of hearing others' work commended, etc.; the great [illegible] of the group enthusiasm and friendly competition which is engendered.

This leads to the pupils in class work willingly and cheerfully practicing, when too often pupils taking instruction from individual teachers have to be driven to practice. As one piano class teacher expressed it—there is a strong "thought wave" permeating the pupils in piano class study, which is of immense value.

General plan—In the group method, usually about twenty-four pupils are started together, but sub-divided into three classes of eight pupils each according to ability, and the teachers' fees are distributed over the eight pupils in the class, thus reducing the cost per lesson to fifteen to twenty-five cents, instead of paying $1.50 up. The private teachers have found the holding of such classes result in their securing a greater number of individual pupils.

All we ask from the school boards is the use of a room with a piano, one and a half hours after four o'clock, one evening a week, and one and a half hours on Saturday mornings for each twenty-four students taking the work. Naturally, a piano in the school is necessary, but these classes could be organized in a studio, Sunday school room or other convenient place. The local music merchant could probably be interested in providing both a room to hold the class in and a piano, inasmuch as the aroused interest might lead to business for him.

If the Institutes will arouse the interest of your respective school boards or other organizations or individuals who might be interested, preferably your school boards, where there are pianos, we shall be very glad to come to you and fully explain the proposition and help organize the classes.

CAVAN

A suggestion, worth repeating, comes from an Institute, which has successfully prese ted severa good plays.

Any Institute who is planning to produce a play, for the first time, should appoint two or not more than three of their most capable women as a committee. Give them free rein and make them entirely responsible for the play. They do not need to take a part, but they will need to be firm, courteous, and above all to be at rehearsals regularly. Do not try to use the stage until all have their parts memorized, for it will only be a waste of time. Go slowly about choosing your people for the different parts. Quite often a person you think would take a good part, would only spoil the play, and one poor character in a play will keep it from being the success it should be. From the beginning make those taking parts speak slowly and distinctly. Many an amateur play has been ruined simply because only those near the stage could hear what the actors were saying.

Try to get the young men and women of your community into your plays. It will give them a keen interest in something worth while, educate them, teach them to speak correctly, give them confidence in themselves and broaden their views. A good way is suggested to be sure of having music at each meeting.—Appoint a committee of members who can sing; name two of its members either to sing or pay a forfeit each month.

An Institute reports a well-proven plan for bringing in new members. They divided their membership into three groups—Red, White and Blue, each vice-president to be convenor of one group, and each group to be responsible for a meeting in turn. Points were awarded for attendance, answering the roll call, or any part taken in the programme, also for getting new members. Points were taken off for a member absent or a member not answering the roll call. At the end of the year, the two losing groups had to entertain the winning group.

WARSAW

One of the resolutions sent in to the recent Women's Institute convention in Toronto was that the department do away with the Summer series speakers, and use the money for prohibition work, or to improve the highways—give a place for pedestrians. This resolution was not carried. The great majority of institutes feel that they derive great benefit from these delegates, and what is paid them would be but a drop in the bucket of either highway or liquor-fighting expense.

No Institute is bound to have a Summer series speaker if it does not want her.

Very often the notices and application forms come along in March. This year they are out already, and it means a great deal to the department if the forms are properly filled out and returned quickly.

Along with these notices to the presidents and secretaries, has come a bulletin on Garment Making clubs. There are many of these clubs throughout the country. The only one in East Peterborough was conducted by Mrs. Sexsmith of Belmont, a few years ago. The difficulty seems to be to get farm women who can devote a whole afternoon a week. In so many homes there is only one woman.

It is possible, perhaps, to have a girls' garmentmaking club where there s no Institute Branch, or something along the same line.

The Institute regulations are that the girls between ten and eighteen years of age; girls up to twenty may be admitted for a second year's work.

The first year's work will be the making of: 1, a work-bag, to be made by hand; 2, a kimono type garment (night-gown, bungalo apron, kimono, or one-piece dress) to be made by machine; 3, towel; 4, darn one pair of stockings; make one overhand patch and one hemmed patch.

Each member must also keep an accurate account of all materials used, their cost, and hours of labour; write a story of her experiences in the Club; and exhibit her work at the close of the season.

If any one who can lead can give the time, the lessons are invaluable to the girls. Mrs. Sexsmith's dining-room used to be filled and the girls came early and stayed late. The work, some of which was exhibited at an annual district meeting, was beautiful. It is almost pathetic sometimes to see the attempt at sewing made by some girls, whose mothers were really too busy to teach them. Often a girl can pick it up, but the road is smoother and quicker, and has fewer tears, if they can be properly taught.

MILLBROOK.

Interesting the community in pioneer history is an activity being very strongly emphasized as a worthwhile Women's Institute activity throughout the province at present.

In one district they are compiling a history of the cemeteries, particularly those where pioneer settlers are buried, many of these being unfortunately sadly neglected. In this vicinity the one just south of Springville is an instance of such a cemetery being allowed to go uncared for, and apparently no record kept of those buried in this plot of ground. In fact there is not a headstone left standing, and those lying on the ground are being overgrown with grass and weeds so that probably few know this place was once in use for burial purposes, in the earlier days of the country's history.

Possibly there might be a united effort made by the Institutes of the district in gathering the history of this plot of ground, and finding out at least what could be done for its restoration, if that was thought advisable.

The history of the older churches in the community, and its immediate neighborhood, is also being gathered by Institutes in several places, and of the farms which have passed from generation to generation as well.

A venture of one rural Institute was having a roll-call when each member gave a brief history of the home farm from the time it came from the crown; some could show the Crown deed, and the one who initiated this unusual proceeding states that it brought the whole family connection into the most interesting conversation for weeks before the meeting. "Some of the dear old ladies did not want to talk at all; but we overcame that difficulty by having one of the granddaughters tell the story wrongly and that soon had the grandmother on her feet to give the correct construction of the episode."

In connection with the pioneer history work, this same society enlisted help of the school teachers in putting on a competition for which the children were to write stories of pioneer days, and offered prizes for the best essays. These were read at an evening gathering, open to the public, and afterwards refreshments were served. "and everyone had a lovely time, and we are going to have a similar 'family gathering' in the community hall each year."

LITTLE SONGS OF LOVE

YESTERDAY AND TO-DAY

(Contributed by Marie Christine.)

YESTERDAY

It is so wide, this great world vaulted o'er,
By the blue sky clasping white shore to shore;
And yet it is not wide enough for me!
I love you so—it cannot hold my love.
There is not space in Earth or Heaven above;
There is not room for my great love and me.

TO-DAY

It is so wide, this great world vaulted o'er,
By the sad sky clasping dark shore to shore;
It is too wide—it is too wide for me!
Would God that it was narrowed to a grave,
And I slept quiet, naught hid with me, save—
The love that was too great—too great for me.

—Francis Burnett.

FAVORITE RECIPE.

SPLIT PEA OR BEAN SOUP

(Contributed by Mrs. L. J. S.)

1 cup split peas or beans.
1 pint of milk.
3 tablespoons butter or substitute.
1½ teaspoons of salt.
2½ quarts of cold water.
½ an onion.
2 tablespoons of flour.
½ of a tea spoon pepper.
2 or 3 cubes of fat salt pork.

Method.

Pick over the peas or beans. Soak for several hours or over night in cold soft water.

Drain this water off. Rinse the beans. Put on to cook in 2½ quarts of cold water with pork and onion.

Carrots and celery may be added. Simmer three or four hours or until soft. Rub through a sieve.

Melt butter and stir flour into it. Add it to the soup, also pepper and salt. Add enough milk to dilute it sufficiently.

BEEF STEW.

(Contributed by Mrs. L. J. S.)

One and one-half pounds of beef from leg; 4 potatoes cut in ½-inch slices; 1 onion cut in slices; 1 teaspoon of salt; ½ cup of turnip cut in dice; ¼ teaspoon of pepper; ½ cup of carrot cut in dice; ½ cup of flour; 1 quart of water.

Method.—Remove the fat and cut meat into 1-inch pieces or larger. Put aside the tenderest pieces of meat, put the rest of the meat and bone into cold water and soak for one hour. Then heat until it bubbles. Season reserved meat and roll it in the flour. Melt the fat in a frying-pan, remove the scraps, brown the sliced onion and then the floured meat in the hot fat; add both to the stew and cook for two hours at a low temperature. Add the vegetables and flour which has been mixed with ½ cup of cold water, and cook for one hour, or until the meat and vegetables are tender. Remove the bone, season and serve.

DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE.

(Contributed by Mrs. L. J. S.)

One cup of brown sugar; 1 cup of white sugar; ½ cup of butter; 3 eggs; ½ cup of cocoa; ¾ cup of sour cream; 1 teaspoon of soda; 2 cups of flour; ½ cup of raisins; ½ cup of nuts; 1 cup of dates.

Method.—Cream together the sugar and butter and drop in the eggs one at a time and beat together, and add cocoa creamed in a little boiling water. Add the cream with the soda dissolved in. Add the flour. If not quite stiff enough, add a little more flour; and lastly, the raisins and nuts. Pour in square pan, and stick the dates over the top of the batter.

Frosting.—Drain the juice of can of pineapple and chop the pineapple pulp finely and thicken with icing sugar.

DAILY READING

A FEW MINUTES A DAY WITH THE BEST OF THE WORLD'S AUTHORS CONDUCTED BY THE NEIGHBORS AND MARION

"Dear Marion:

Am enclosing song entitled "The Roast Beef of Old England." Thinking it may interest reader who mentioned in your column of Saturday's paper about the history of the sirloin of beef. It is an old song; we sang it at Christmas time in school forty years ago. You will see the third verse mentions the sirloin of beef. If you care to publish it, it may interest others.

Yours for a Prosperous New Year,
Santa."

THE ROAST BEEF OF OLD ENGLAND

1. Since might roast beef was an Englishman's food,
It accounts for the freedom that runs in his blood.
For generous living the step to all good.
Oh, the roast beef of old England; oh the old English roast beef.
2. Our fathers of old were robust, stout and strong.
They kept open house with good cheer all day long.
Which made their plump tenants rejoice in the song.
Oh, the roast beef, etc.
3. The tender sirloin was by Royalty's sword,
To Knighthood, ennoble in grateful record
Of the smoking hot joint that he found on the board.
Oh, the roast beef, etc.
4. Then long may each Briton of beef have his fill
At Christmas, the season of Peace and Goodwill;
For the man that's well fed Sirs can never do ill.
Oh, the roast beef, etc.

G. R. Miles, tea-taster in latter half of 19th century—father of W. R. Miles.

G. P. Miles, a noted tea-taster before Victoria became queen —grandfather of W. R. Miles.

Thomas Miles, tea-taster during the reign of King George III—great-grandfather of W. R. Miles.

William Lomer, a tea-taster in the era of King George II—great, great-grandfather of W. R. Miles.

He Upholds a Tradition of FIVE Generations

W. R. Miles, whose picture you see above, is head tea-taster for Red Rose Tea and an eminent authority on teas. His father, grandfather great-grandfather and great, great-grandfather were tea-tasters before him. He received his training in the leading tea blending centres of the world.

Mr. Miles is upholding a fine and honorable tradition. His ancestors were among the foremost tea-tasters of their time. And Mr. Miles is one of the foremost tea-tasters of his.

For more than 30 years he has been testing Red Rose Tea. When he puts his "O.K." on a tea it means that that tea is top quality. Its flavor cannot be improved. It is as near perfection as human skill and ingenuity can make it.

This man is as much an artist in his way as a master musician or a distinguished painter. He knows all the delicate blends and subtleties of taste. And we have so much confidence in his unerring judgment of tea that we can guarantee every package of Red Rose Tea your grocer sells.

Here is the Guarantee—

"Buy a package of Red Rose Tea and use as much as you please. If you do not like it better than the tea you have been using, return the unused part in the package to your grocer and he will refund the full purchase price."

We have authorized all grocers to give this guarantee because we have unswerving confidence in the quality of our product. We know it is the most economical tea you can buy at the price. We know it is composed of selected tea-buds—redolent of fine flavor—blended by experts—packed in clean, bright aluminum.

Will you try it. You can lose nothing and you may gain much.

The third annual Charity Ball of the Knights of Columbus took the form last night of an innovation, in a Mardi Gras Festival held in Columbus Hall and attended by about one hundred and fifty guests Arrangements were carried out very efficiently by Grand Knight D. A. McKinnon and Lecturer Dr. E. M. Crough and the Entertainment Committee, headed by D. A. Costello and comprising Messrs Frank Hickey, R. M. McGarrell, J. H. Primeau, L. LeBarr, jr., Michael Clancy, Emmet Sheehy, J. Sharpe, jr. and Dr. J. F. O'Brien. Honorary patrons and patronesses were His Worship Mayor Denne and Mrs. Denne, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Corkery, Dr. and Mrs. J. J Craig, Dr. and Mrs F. P. McNulty, Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Glover, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Sullivan and Mr. and Mrs S. Shaughnessy. Excellent music for dancing was provided by Stewart Widdess' ten piece Silver Slipper orchestra and decorations were especially effective. They were carried out in the K. of C. colors of yellow and blue and with rainbow electroliers, which had long paper shades of green, blue, rose, yellow and purple. Novelty wall decorations were fan-shaped ornaments of the same hues and the orchestra stand at the east end of the hall was draped with curtains of blue and yellow and had a background of panels of the same colors and K. of C. emblems in gold. The program included a number of favor dances and a very attractive interlude was the arrival of the Queen of Mardi Gras, in the person of Miss Geraldine Collins. The queen was in a lovely robe of white satin, with long draperies, flowing sleeves and Medici collar of metallic cloth. She wore a girdle of white satin and a gold coronet. Her purple throne was supported by four dark-skinned Nubian slaves in appropriate costume and two attendant guards were in armor. Assistants with this portion of the program were Messrs. O Conners, Joseph Sharpe, Clare Wolff, William MacPherson, Hubert O'Keefe and G. Turley. A grand march was formed, led by Grand Knight D. McKinnon, the Queen announced her mission as "The Queen of Mardi Gras, come to bring happiness" and sang a bright number, in which the guests joined The throwing of confetti and serpentine crepe concluded this part of the entertainment.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

This new sports frock has plaid kasha skirt with pockets and a printed cashmere blouse which buttons on the skirt. The beige and brown tones in skirt and blouse are the same.

It is hard enough to spring a real surprise—to think of anything in dress that can possibly be considered a real novelty. Sometimes it seems as if the only way that a dressmaker could achieve the desirable bit of novelty was to launch something quite absurd—since everything that isn't absurd has obviously been thought of and tried before.

Perhaps the new combination of figures and plaids or of two sorts os figured materials in the same costumet is just an absurdity. But the effect is not really so preposterous as it might seem since the colors and shades used in the two materials are the same.

Sometimes two distinct figures are used in this way—but more often a figure with a plaid or a check, or a large scroll figure with a dot, or a small figure with a stripe.

There are companion prints consisting of chiffon and crepe printed in the same color and design. These are less striking. Then there are printed crepes showing the same design and the same colors—only on one piece the dark color is printed on the light and on the other the light is printed on the dark. A smart effect may be gained by combining a navy blue dotted with ecru and an ecru ground dotted with navy blue.

White has turned out to be more in favor than most of us had expected—that is, pure white. The prediction was often made that with sunburned skin off-white shades would be preferred and eggshell white and oyster white have been seen a great deal. But for the smart evening ensemble pure white—in satin, georgette, chiffon or tulle, worn with the wrap of white moire velvet or ermine— has taken on a place of real importance both with older women and with the younger ones.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion

(Copyright)

DID you ever hear a woman say she was so tired she couldn't go to a concert or a picture show? "I never go out evenings at all now," she will say. "I seem to need so much sleep. I'm always tired as it is: I wouldn't dare make matters worse by staying up past my regular bedtime."

* * *

She may even justify her outlook on life by saying "One cannot burn the candle at both ends. The strange thing is, though I go to bed early every night, I am always tired anyhow. I don't seem to get rested."

* * *

Do you neighbors know someone like that? Are YOU like that? If you do, and if you are, then I hope you read this little Whatnot right to the end, and put into practice just what I am going to suggest.

* * *

Go to the concert, or dance, or picture show, my dear. Just forget for the time being all about work or regular bed time. Dress up in your very fluffiest gown, and curl your hair, and step out!

* * *

By thinking of the genius on the platform, or the magic of the orchestral music, or the thrill of the picture, banish all thought of work from your mind.

* * *

Just revel in the roaring fortissimo and in the sheer joy of the breathless pianissimo. Let little squeals of glee run up and down your spine until the last chord of the concert has thundered, the last trill laughed itself away, the last note sent its throb of pleasure to your heart.

* * *

Then don't think of the time, but stand up with the rest of them and applaud. Shout as loud as any for your favorite encore, and settle back again to giving yourself up to the sheer, perfect joy of it.

* * *

Or if you go to a dance, let the orchestra sway you to its heavenly rythms; lose yourself in the joy of the moment.

Or if you go to a picture or a play, forget all but the story, the plot, the thrilling incidents, the artistry of the actors.

* * *

And then, to top it off, step into one of the restaurants for a sandwich, or an ice cream soda. Do things up brown!

* * *

Go home when you feel like it—not before. And when you awake next morning it will be with more exhilaration than you have known for a long time!

* * *

I don't advise this for every night, or even very often. But if you "haven't been anywhere in months" this is just what you need—instead of more sleep.

* * *

It's just as dangerous as burning the candle at both ends to give one's self no flame at all. Without oxygen the fire will go out, and so will the body or the brain. And as sleep is the essential brain food, so some relaxation and recreation are the brain's fresh air.

* * *

When we bind ourselves to merely working and sleeping we are asphyxiating ourselves.

* * *

I know of one organization in the city where there is a dance every few months. The dance, following a dinner, is over at midnight, and most of the members and their ladies go home.

* * *

But a score have more sense. This event comes seldom, and they make the most of it. They raid a restaurant, get tables fixed to suit them, with nice newly-laundered cloths, and they have a supper. I've heard of the women ordering frog's legs, and fried oysters, and other outlandish things—just for the newness of it.

* * *

Then they have impromptu speeches, in which everyone present has to talk for one minute on some subject written on a slip of paper and handed out just as the speaker is rising.

* * *

They swap stories, and sing songs, and do everything foolish they can think of—and about 2 o'clock or after they start getting ready to go home.

* * *

I know some of the happy circle very well, and I've never heard any complain of lack of sleep! The evening's thrill is good for many hours of sleep—especially for the womenfolk.

* * *

And a good advertisement for this evening's fun is the constantly growing number indulging in it.

* * *

Just try it for once, neighbor. Put it up to hubby, or the boy friend. You'll be carried right out of the dumps, and refreshed, and you will sparkle with a new wit and enjoyment.

* * *

Apply the same psychology to your card parties. Don't make them merely a matter of playing and eating and waiting until the prize-winners are announced—and then flying home to bed. Linger, and talk, and laugh, and grow young again in an irresponsible atmosphere.

* * *

We take life too seriously, many of us. Every woman should have as an object in life to keep young—and she can't do it in any other way than by doing the things she did in her youth; in thinking youthful thoughts, and in keeping her outside interests alive.

* * *

All you who have written your New Year resolutions for the contest, add this one: "I will make it a point to get out into enjoyable company and forget the wearisome details of living and sleeping; I will keep young in thought and body."

* * *

The New Year resolution contest closes at midnight to-night, and the results will be announced as soon as I get the decisions made. Yes, the neighbors put the judging up to me, by a vote of about six to one. I had hoped they would take this responsibility off my shoulders for this once, but there's no use trying to have the neighbors judge if they don't wish to, is there?

* * *

There are more entries in this contest than in any we have run, and the letters are particularly interesting to me. I am sure they will be to you neighbors, too.

* * *

Many neighbors have expressed appreciation of the new pattern service, and I am sorry that because of customs delays some of the patterns have not yet come through. I have asked, however, to have a new system started, and I expect that patterns will now come to us within a few days of our receiving the order.

* * *

In accordance with a new policy, the editor is now allowing me to choose the features to appear on our pages, and at the expiration of present contracts I hope to give you some really good outside features. The local articles will be continued, of course, but just watch for the splendid program I have mapped out for June and after.

* * *

I'm also to have a word to say in regard to the serials, so I shall expect you women to write telling me what you like most, and what articles you appreciate reading, to guide me.

* * *

Between us, we neighbors should be able to progress a long way in our pages this year!

"Dear Marion:—

Just another reader of your page who finds it very interesting and helpful. I like the neighbors' letters very much but I always read the Whatnot first. There are splendid serviceable ideas in it.

In a response to an SOS call for salads I am sending some recipes I have used for some time and have found satisfactory.

Thank you "Wanda" for your answers to SOS; the recipes look very good. I'm glad you like our pages.

Don't you wish to book your pen name? I can't do it unless I have your own name and address.

"Dear Marion:—

I noticed in one of the letters on our page, someone was asking how to remove warts. I used to have warts on my hands and all I used was ordinary castor oil. Rub the oil on at night and tie a cloth over them saturated with oil. If you're able to put any on in the daytime, all the better. If this is done regularly the warts will not be long in going. This remedy never leaves a scar or cause any pain.

I had better close now Marion hoping this will prove a help to others. I also wish you a Happy and Successful year.

Thank you for your help "Black Eyed Susan," which I'm sure neighbors will appreciate and keep for reference.

"Dear Marion:

I have not forgotten you as you suggested in the letter you sent me—I read the letters every day but I guess I should be in the Big Sister Column as I am only a young girl in my teens. I am sending you a recipe for a pudding which we like very well and I thought maybe some of the neighbors might like to try it.

Sincerely,

Glad to hear from you again, "Ramona", and hope you don't stay away so long again. Thanks for your recipe for Queen's Pudding.

The lecture to be given to members of the Women's Canadian Club on Monday evening next in the hall of the Conservatory of Music, by Major Charles G. D. Roberts, M.A., LL.D., F.R.S.C., promises to be a very interesting event in the history of the club, which has brought some outstanding lecturers to the city.

Charles George Douglas Roberts was born on January 10th, 1860, near Fredericton, New Brunswick, and was educated at the University of New Brunswick, where he graduated with high distinction in 1879.

In that year, he became a schoolmaster and during the years of 1883 and 1884 edited "The Week." From 1885 to 1895 he was professor at King's College, Nova Scotia.

He served in the British Army during the Great War, becoming a major in 1917. Meanwhile he had become known as a prolific writer of verse, essays and fiction, and especially of tales of animal life in the Canadian wilds. Among his numerous books may be mentioned Orion (poems), published in 1880; History of Canada, 1897; Collected poems, 1900; Kindred of the Wild, 1902; Red Fox, 1905; Haunters of the Silences, 1907; Babes of the Wild, 1913; In the Morning of Time, 1919; New Poems, 1919 and Some Animal Stories, in 1920.

Watching the ladies who appeared in the cast of "Oliver Twist," as it was presented by Bransby Williams and his players at the Grand Opera House this week, one remembered the days when Charles Dickens' books were considered quite ultra-modern in their implications, and contrasted them with the type of femininity that prevails today

Mrs. Maylie, the mild friend of Mr. Brownlow, Oliver's benefactor, was tall and sweet-voiced. She seemed to exude an atmosphere of perfect ladyhood. From a tight-fitting bonnet with a feather curling around it, little ringlets peeped forth. Her dress was of that deep purple which our grandmothers called 'puce' and it was long and trailing. Over the shoulders fell a fichu of cream-colored lace. Lace mittens were on her hands.

Rose Maylie was an example of the delicate, shrinking maidenhood of that period. She seemed to have a lot of trouble with the old-style flounces on her dress, her modern feet kicking them out oddly as she walked. But she had ringlets too and a mild manner, and she possessed a beautiful, vibrant voice that reminded one of Ethel Barrymore's tones, heard once when she came here in "Checkmate."

The housekeeper, Mrs. Bedwin, was a delightful creature that made one think of Mr. Pickwick's inamorata, Mrs. Bardell, in the famous breach of promise suit. She had a large mob cap and a fussy manner and she popped in and out with various messages.

Nancy, the poor victim of Bill Sykes and his wrath, was a lovely blonde creature with ragged clothes and a shrinking manner and Betty Booth, who played Oliver, was like one of the small, flapperish damsels of 1928.

The interesting campaign for members in the gymnasium which has been launched at the Young Women's Christian Association has got off to a good start. Although just in its infancy, three new members have already been registered, one by the Monday Elementary class, one by the Juniors, and one by a dancing class of the 'Y'.

Two captains for each team are chosen by each class, and a certain make of automobile, sold in the city, is used as an incentive, the car being a symbol of the number of passengers, or gymnasium members, obtained by each team.

Essex and Whippet cars have been chosen by the Monday Elementary class, and two other cars, the LaSalle and Ford, have also been taken.

The Tuesday Seniors have the Packard on one side, with Miss Verda Gamble as captain, and the Graham-Paige on the other, with Miss Mabel McLaren as captain.

The Babies and Juniors Dancing classes have chosen the Willys-Knight and the Durant, with little Sophie Yeotes as captain for the former side and Mary Kingsbury for the latter.

Three cars have already started from the post, with ten miles, represented on the bulletin by four inches of space, covered by them already.

The local Y.W.C.A. makes an objective of fifty new members in this campaign, to try and reach a total registration in the gymnasium of five hundred pupils. With Miss Caroline Littlefield in charge, the Peterborough 'Y' far outstrips in gymnasium membership many of the larger cities. It is ahead of Hamilton in this way and also of many of the Toronto branches.

Dietetic Dissertations

(Specially Written for The Examiner.)

XXI.—BUTTER.

Do you like butter?

During school days most country-bred boys and girls have an infallible method of determining the answer to that question. A dandelion (or is it a marsh-marigold?) is held under the chin; if a golden reflection can be seen on the skin above, that is positive proof that one likes it. The brightness of the day and a discriminating palate are factors which do not enter into the matter at all.

From a dietetic standpoint, the more goldenly the reflection appears, the more fortunate the individual.

Butter is the most easily digested of the common fat foods, and is the best fat for children. Its fat content is twice as high as that of cream. It contains vitamine A in varying amounts, depending on the season. Its accompaniment should be a carbohydrate food as is shown by its composition: Water 13.9%, protein 1.1%, fat 3%, mineral matter 3%.

One pound of butter provides 3,500 calories—one gram, 7.7 calories. There is as much food value in one pound of butter as in four and a half pounds of beefsteak, twelve pounds of chicken, or six pounds of beans. Ten cents spent in butter at sixty-five cents a pound buys 537 calories, in pork chops 351 calories, in salmon at thirty cents 193 calories. We should have an average of at least 2 ounces per day.

Butter has no substitute, the substance most frequently used in its place is oleomargarine. This was first made by a chemist of France for use in the French navy in 1870. At that time it was clarified animal fats; now it is prepared from various animal and vegetable fats and oils—the chief materials being neutral lard (prepared from the fresh "leaf lard" of the hog) and cotton seed oil. It is made to resemble butter as nearly as possible in consistency. The main objection to it is that it is sometimes sold as butter with intent to deceive. The following is a test to distinguish them: Heat in a small dish until it boils briskly. Butter boils with very little noise, but abundance of foam. Oleo boils noisily and sputters like a mixture of water and fat—there is much less foam.

The composition of oleomargarine is: Water 9.3%, protein 1.3%, fat 82.7%, mineral matter 6.7%. It is not so high in vitamines as butter.

Butter Tarts.

(Canadian Cook Book.)

One cup sugar; ¼ cup butter; 2 eggs; 1 cup currants or seedless raisins; 2 tb lemon juice, or ½ t. vanilla.

1.—Cream the butter, add sugar and mix thoroughly.

2.—Add eggs well-beaten, fruit and flavoring.

3.—Line patty tins with paste, fill with the mixture. Bake in a moderate oven.

NOTE.—Have oven quite hot at first, then reduce heat. Temperature: 450° F. reduce to 400° F.

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

PETES SCORE WINNING GOAL IN OVERTIME

INTERMEDIATE TEAM PLAYS GOOD COMBINATION HOCKEY TO DEFEAT BOWMANVILLE 6-5

Local Sextette Stage An Offensive As Well As Defensive Game.

FAST HOCKEY TILT.

Both Goalies Called Upon To Stop Many Shots Right From Outset of Game.

Uncorking a brand of hockey reminiscent of the great senior team of three years ago in its sparkling combination and speed that should have netted them at least ten goals, the Peterborough Intermediates nosed out a 6 to 5 victory over Bowmanville after ten minutes overtime in Bowmanville, and as a result take a firm grip on the group leadership. Time and time again the Petes worked inside of the Bowmanville defence only to be robbed of a goal by a rolling puck, a shot that skimmed the nets, or the great goal tending of Colville.

The Petes monopolized the play for the greater part of the game. Their defence was even greater than their attack, two of the Bowmanville goals going in by long shots that glanced off Ernie Legon's stick, another from a wild scramble in front of the nets and yet another, the tieing goal, from a lucky heave that was hoisted high from centre ice; Bowmanville not geting past the Petes' defence pair, Legon and Ted Lebarr more than twice during the whole seventy minutes of play. Twice they had the game sewed up, two goals to the good and ever threatening to add more, only to have Bowmanville rap in the necessary lucky goals to even it up. The Petes were leading 1 to 0 at the close of the first period, 3 to 2 at the close of the second, made it 4 to 2 early in the third stanza to have Bowmanville pull even with them just near the close of the period. But they went out in the first overtime period and ran in two goals in rapid order on brilliant combination attacks and Bowmanville, try as they might, could not again draw up even with them, although they did succeed in grabbing one.

Fast All the Way.

In spite of the soft, shaley and bumpy ice, that made the going hard and did not lend itself to a passing game, both teams went at top speed throughout, and both worked a combination that steadily improved as the game progressed. Bowmanville, although not showing the speed nor stickhandling exhibited by the Petes played a stubborn, rugged game, being absolutely at home on the narrow rink, that extended the Petes to the limit by its sheer persistence.

Both goalies were called upon to turn back shots right from the outset, the Petes boring in close and Bowmanville being forced to shoot from well-outside the defence. The Petes had narrowly missed several counters when Legon carried the puck the length of the rink, lifted a high, fast shot in the corner of the net from outside. Early in the second period Maudsley checked a Bowmanville attack, tore right in on top of Colville and slipped the rubber past him for the Petes' second goal. There were three men in the penalty box, two being Petes when Piper scored the first goal for Bowmanville. Maudsley grabbed a loose puck in front of the Bowmanville nets after an attack had failed and slammed in the third goal. But a minute later Piper lifted a high shot which glanced off Legon's stick and in.

Petes Miss Many Chances.

In their efforts to work in close the Petes missed many a chance with the rolling puck. The fourth goal came after a great combination effort by Maudsley and Foley, that beat Colville cold. Luxton tore in after Moyse's long shot and banged in the rebound and Bowmanville evened the score and forced the game into overtime when Luxton wildly whacked the puck into the nets from a scramble out in front while Ted Lebarr was serving a penalty. The Petes' combination attacks could not be frustrated in the overtime and they ran in two goals in quick order. Piper let drive a high shot from mid-ice, the same kind that had been hitting the signs behind the nets all through, and it landed into the nets for the last score of the game.

Team An Eye-Opener.

Every member of the Peterborough team contributed to the victory and all played at top form. Jack Lebarr in goal handled a flock of sizzling shots cooly and expertly and out in front of him, his brother Ted and Ernie Legon each turned in seventy minutes of real defensive work. The whole front line, Eddie Foley, Ted Maudsley and Ira Dundas, combined on the plays, backchecked hard and skated miles. The relief pair, Chuck Kenneally and Fred Cripps never weakened the team while on. Altogether the team as it worked last night was an eye-opener.

For Bowmanville "Big" Hooper rushed repeatedly and his shooting while just as hard was more accurate than in the other game and Piper, at left wing, was a thorn in the side of the Petes in the way he bore in on the shots. Colville turned in a great game in the nets and he rose to fame before the fans by repeatedly saving the game for his team mates.

The line ups were:

Peterborough—Goal, Jack Lebarr; defence, Ted Lebarr and Legon; centre, Maudsley; left wing, Foley; right wing, Dundas; alternates, Cripps and Kenneally.

Bowmanville—Goal, Colville; defence, Densem and Hooper; centre, Luxton; right wing, Moyse; left wing, Piper; alternates, Crossey and Cameron.

HOCKEY SCHEDULE OPENS ON TUESDAY

High School and Grove To Compete For Casement Cup.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 12.—The District Hockey League opens on Tuesday evening, January 15th, at 8 o'clock and will continue till the schedule is complete (weather permitting) for the Casement Cup. This year the District League has been entirely re-organized and only players of 20 years and under are eligible. It is expected that the re-organization of the league will help to feed the O.H.A. teams and improve the play in every respect. The following is the schedule:

Tuesday, Jan. 15—High School vs. Colts.

Tuesday, Jan. 22 —Grove (2) vs. High School.

Tuesday, Jan. 29—Colts vs. Grove (2).

This schedule will be repeated on February 5th, 12th and 19th, and the winners of Section 1 will play the winners of Section 2 for the cup.

Junior Hockey League.

Plans are made for the Junior Hockey League for boys of fifteen years and under, with the Midget Cup as the special trophy. This is marking out a very definite course in regard to the future of hockey, as boys will be trained and will naturally graduate into the district league and later into the O.H.A. Probably with this system carried out under careful arrangement for a couple of years we can once more put a junior team into the O.H.A. as well as an Intermediate team.

Three teams have entered the Midget League and the games will be played on Saturday mornings, beginning on January 19th. The followng is the schedule:

Jan. 19th—Trail Rangers No. 1 vs. Grove No. 3.

Jan. 26th— Grove No. 3 vs. Trail Rangers No. 2.

February 2nd—Trail Rangers No. 1 vs. Trial Rangers No. 2.

This schedule will be repeated on February 9th, 16th and 23rd and the winners of section 1 will play the winners of section 2 for the cup.

Fans Follow Team.

A large number of fans went to Peterborough in cars, trucks, cutters and sleighs on Wednesday night to cheer the local team to victory and came home in great triumph, proud of the team and delighted with the initial encounter, which was almost without practice. Lakefield warms up to enthusiasm over hockey more than any other game and the teams never lack support.

Art Ryan has been appointed manager of the Brockton team of the New England League. He played third base for the team last season and finished with a batting mark of .306. Ryan replaces Lou Courtney.

St. John's Defeats Lindsay Juniors

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, since you heard from me last the boys has lifted the lid off of the local hockey season, and if it wasn't for a bump on the chin what the Petes' jrs. took from Bowmanville Tues. night the opening woulda been hitting on all 8. The St. John's kids started the ball arolling by beating Bobcaygeon, and the intermediates kept up the good work by a clean-cut win over Bowmanville, but just when we was getting ready to call it 3 in a row, along came them pesky Bowmanville youngsters and tied a loss on the Peterborough jrs. Still 2 outa 3 is a mile ahead of last season when we couldn't beat nobody nowhere.

The Saints was the 1st to perform and they got a good brake there, drawing a real crowd to see them clash with Bobcaygeon. Their 4-2 win over the Northerners was appreciated, and all the more so when Bobcaygeon turned round and beat the Lindsay Midgets. The Saints showed some good boys and should be strong er when they shake old John B. Influenza, which nearly wrecked their team for the 1st game. However, this Mister Doc Hewett was a team himself in that 1st battle and had a lot to do with his team's win. The red and white kids tie into Lindsay here next week, and it promises to be a real lively cup of tea.

Mister Ray Rose's pupils did their stuff Mon. nite and made Bowmanville like it in a lively clash. Mister Rose has a lotta good material and they should round out into a machine that will set a lively pace for the Lakeshore group. The 2 graduates from last year's jrs., Mister Ted Lebarr and Mister Charlie Kenneally, made good with a bang, and the resta of the cast did all what was asked of them, especially Mister Jack Lebarr, who refused to let the Bowmanville marksmen have any fun. And talk about marksmen, that Mister Hooper on the Bowmanville lineup drilled about as mean a shot as has been seen in this neck of the woods. If that bird ever gets his hair cut so he can draw a bead on the nets goalkeepers is going to be a mighty poor insurance risk. He musta shattered half of the boards in our ice palace the other nite.

Tues. nite's jr. clash, Mac, showed that a little inside hockey is worth barrels of speed. The Petes' youngsters skated at a clip that shoulda run the Bowmanville kids into the ground, but a few smart moves by the visitors more than made up for the miles covered by the blue and white squad. Led by the smart Mister Candler, who knows what its all about, the Bowmanville lads stuck to their positions, passed nicely and covered up well, and the result was a 3 to 1 win over a team which had far more speed. The experience should do the local kids good, for it should oughta teach them the value of getting together.

I can't give the customers no 1st hand dope on that Marmora-Lakefield clash, for they hadda struggle along Wed. nite without me among them present. It was a great chance to see this winter's Marmora hockey team and next summer's Deloro ball team, as well as the Lakefield crew, all for 1 price of admission. The presence of Mister Buck, of Kingston, on the Marmora battle array means, of course, that Mister Bob Elliott is sure anyway of 1 sweet outfielder when the ball season rolls around. Mister Buck can go and get them in the far corners like nobody's business and he can hit and run bases, two.

The 1st slant at the groups in which Peterborough teams is engaged, Mac, shows no reason why we shouldn't be able to grab off a couple anyway. The intermediates looked good against Bowmanville and St. John's made a nice start in their scramble. The jrs. got a bad brake losing at home to Bowmanville, but they can fight their way back if they go at it right, and if they learn to cash in on that speed they can't be headed off.

Well, Mac, neither the fans nor the players has any cause to kick about not having enough hockey what with the O.H.A. and the City League. The lads will be lucky if they don't get too much, and it might be just as well for them to remember that while they're in the running in the big serious the city stuff should get 2nd place in their thoughts, if any.

And now I'll hafta tear myself away.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

GORDON CUTHBERTSON SINKS WINNING COUNTER TO GIVE LOCAL TEAM 3 TO 2 VICTORY

Lindsay Outfit Holds Lead On Two Occasions in See-Saw Affair.

GOALIES GOOD.

St. John's Offensive Play Balked By Back-Checking of Homesters.

With both goalies doing everything from flops to handsprings in an almost always successful effort to turn back enemy sharpshooters, the O.H.A. junior game between Peterborough St. John's and Lindsay Midgets, played in the Lindsay rink last night, was generally conceded by those who saw it from both viewpoints to be one of the fastest junior games played in the district within the last couple of years. St. John's came out the winners by a 3-2 score after a see-saw affair that was anybody's sugar to within one minute of the final gong, when Gord. Cuthbertson found an unattended rubber in a fracas near the Lindsay citadel and drove it home for the winning counter, and incidentally put the Petes at the head of the group.

All the more credit to the local lads in that the Lindsay outfit proved so unexpectedly good, particularly at back-checking, that the Petes had a struggle on their hands necessitating no end of defensive, as well as offensive hockey. The Midgets climbed right in at the drop of the hat to take their hom-town engagement and hold the lead through the first part of the first, most of the second and the early part of the final session, only to slow up and give ground. At that, they turned in an exhibition of frantic goal hunting following Cuthbertson's counter, that had Miller in the Peterborough nets doing his job on the double quick, and Art Wood, their sturdy defenseman, climbed right through on two occasions that deserved a better fate. Certainly it was a great game to win and a tough one to lose, and some great hockey is indicated for the return game and in the next half of the double schedule.

Game Was Clean.

Not only was the game fast, but contrary to tradition, this Peterborough-Lindsay set-to did not develop more than a trivial amount of rough stuff. Meagher and Gerster, the Lindsay left-winger, crossed swords on one occasion, but they were promptly chased for four minutes each—which gave referee Jacobi of Toronto a strong hand with players and fans and quelled the rising spirits of any other would-be pugilists. Some difficulty was encountered by all concerned when both teams appeared on the ice wearing uniforms of which red was the predominant color, but this was remedied in the final session when the Lindsay team managed to locate the Lindsay Intermediate sweaters, which were blue in color.

The First Period.

The first period saw both teams having dififculty in getting started, and both goalies, as a result, having occasion to take a hand in the matter. Dunkerley, playing at left wing for the Petes, pulled the first real threat of the evening when after ten minutes of defensive hockey, he took a pass from half way down the rink and going along his own rail, waltzed right in on Lee, the Lindsay goalie, for what looked like a certain counter. Lee proved equal to the occasion and play shifted back around centre ice with both teams unable to get more than an occasional drive from the blue lines. Fred Gerster, combatant of Meagher, proved a dangerous factor at this stage. He was perhaps the fastest man on the ice, and was able to get several shots at Miller, or rather in that direction. His eye was a little off so that for the most part, the rubber bounced off the boards on one side or another. At that though he paved the way for the first goal of the game when he bounced one off the end and Weaver, his running mate, picked it up and beat Miller after thirteen minutes of play.

Wood drew the first penalty of the night soon after when he stepped into Frost, St. John's defenseman, as the latter was circling the Lindsay end. Dunkerley followed him soon after. He had shown a tendency to loaf offside to which the referee finally took exception. With only five men to a team, the play opened considerably and there were numerous hair raisers. The parade of subs became more noticeable and the Petes ended the period with a rush to the Lindsay end.

Scrappers Were Chased.
